ABORTION TEST TO BE LAUNCHED IN THIS COUNTY

AAA Allots Federal Funds to Pay Indemnity to Farmers in National Clean-up.

At a series of meetings to be held during the second and third weeks in September, Mr. Douglass, county agent will explain to the farmers of Pennington county the proposed Bangs abortion test for cattle.

The agricultural adjustment administration has allotted funds to the secretary of agriculture for a nationwide purchase of animals that react to this test.

An allotment has been given to Minnesota, orders to start immediately. This work will be done with Dr. J. W. Fretz, federal inspector, in charge. This money is to be spent in order to reduce a surplus of cattle and it is logical to expect that the reduction of diseased cattle is the best way to go about this.

The federal government pays maximum indemnities of $20.00 for grade animals and $50.00 for purebreds. These indemnities will be paid in addition to the salvage to the owner received from the value of the carcass.

The Bangs disease program is entirely voluntary on the part of the individual cattle owner. The agreement that the farmer will have to sign provides that all heifers over six months of age, cows an,nd bulls in the herd shall be tested. The farmer agrees to clean up the premises after the test providing he has any reacters and market them within 30 days.

Mr. Douglass says that there are many men in thecounty who have more cattle than they can keep this winter and they are intending to [illegible] some on the market this fall. He feels that all of these men should come in under this plan and test their cattle, clean up their herd and in this way reduce any animals that may be diseased.

Indemnities paid are satisfactory so that the man who has diseased cows and is forced to sell them under this plan will receive all they are worth and will be more satisfied than putting them on the market.

He also states that anyone that has had abortion in their herd will appreciate the value of a clean herd and since this is offered at this time with no expense to the owner, every cattle owner in the county should take advantage of this opportunity to clean out this idsease.

At the following meetings throughout the county Mr. Douglass will present this program and he urges every cattle owner in the county to attend one of these meetings, hear the discussion and sigin up for his test.

Meetings will be held as follows: Sept. 10, Bray and Polk Centre Twps at John O. Swanson school at 8 p. m. Sept. 11, Black River, River Falls at St. Hilaire at 8 p. m. Sept. 12, Sanders, Rocksbury, Norden, North, Numedal, Court Room 8 p. m. Thief River Falls. Sept. 13, Silverton and Cloverleaf at Silverton Hall 8 p. m. DRIVE SAFELY CAMPAIGN GETS INTO MOMENTUM

Brakes and Lights Test Campaign Will be Launched By Police

Following a meeting of the Pennington County public safety committee on Thursday, it was announced that 1,500 pledge cards have been ordered which will be signed by automobile drivers in this vicinity. W. H. Quist was named permanent chairman of the committee. A. B. Stenberg chief of police, announced that the police department is to sponsor a series of brake tests in the city beginning next week.

The pledge cards bear the statement: "I realize that care on the part of each individual driver of a motor vehicle is the best known way to prevent the loss of life and injuries from traffic accidents. As a citizen of or visitor in Minnesota interested in the conservation of life, I pledge myself to drive safely."

Pledge tokens in the form of small windshield stickers cut in the shape of the State of Minnesota and bearing the slogan "Make Minnesota the Safest State" will be given to those signing the pledge. They are for distribution by the Public Safety Committees through their members, at meetings of all kinds, by police officers, or any other way which meets the approval of the committee. The Pledge Tokens are to be given free to drivers who sign pledge cards.

"Lights tested" and "Brakes tested" chevrons will be placed above the pledge token only by a patrol officer, police officer, or a garage or service station, when, by bona fide tests, lights or brakes have been found to be or have been mechanically correct.

The Pledge Token and the two Chevrons make a "Token of Honor" and indicate the the owner or driver of the vehicle upon which it is displayed is cooperating to help "Make Minnesota the Safest State."

Creamery Stockholders Seek Injunction To Prevent Sale of Creamery Building

Stating that the resonable value of the present creamery property was $65,000, nine stockholders of the Thief River Falls cooperative creamery served a summons on the directors of the organization Friday, and are appealing to the district court for a temporary injunction to stop the directors from completing their plans of turning the creamery building over to the Land O' Lakes creameries in exchange for a new structure among other thing.

At a meeting of the stockholders on August 3rd, 62 stockholders favored the transaction, while it was opposed by 17 members.

The stockholders have engaged Attorney Charles E. Boughton of Red Lake Falls as their representative, while the creamery directors are represented by attorney Paul Lundgren.

Including the stockholders instituting court action are L. O. Stenseth, Gordon M. Olson, Christian Steen, Peter Hornseth, Albert Olson, Mikkel G. Jorde, Louis Dimmen, Nils N. Nora,, and Tobias Stene.

W. Long, 1st Vice Commander; A. B. Stenberg, 2nd Vice Comander; T. A. Disrud, 3rd vice commander; George Baken, adjutant; and P. G. Federson, finance officer.

Installation of the new officials will take place at the next regular meeting.

Oklee Man Threshes Wheat Crop of 40 Bushels an Acre

Forty bushels fo wheat to the acre and a 15 cent premium on the output is a pleasure that can be classed with "the thrill that comes once in a lifetime," as most farmers would testify.

O. T. Vigen of Oklee had that thrill last week when he threshed a ten acre tract of durum wheat, reports brought here by the Rural Credit Bureau's field man Tuesday.

Believe it or Not, a Guernsey Cow in Good Shape Brings the Shipper 62 Cents Net

It may not be generally known to most of his friends and neighbars, but A. J. Rau, of this city is a farmer. That is he has a farm altho he does not personally work it. Two weeks ago Mr. Rau shipped a cow to market. It was a pretty good cow too. A three year old Guernsey and in pretty good shape, Mr. Rau says.

Anyway, here are the returns, copied right from the commission firms invoice, and, believe it or not the check for 62 cents is right here with the invoice.

1 cow weight 580 lbs. Price .75

amount		$4.35
Deductions
Yardage	.39
Hay	.20
State weighing charge	.01
Insurance	.01
Commission	.80	1.41
		2.94
Hauling		2.32
Net to Mr. Rau		.62

"Anyway if I could have shipped one thousand head it would have paid the mortgage," Mr. Rau said. And that's right, one thousand times 62 cents is $6,200 a little more than enough to pay the average mortgage on a quarter section of good land.

Yet there are still people who believe that the Farmer-Labor program is "too radical" when it demands public ownership and cooperative control of the marketing facilities.

Mr. Rau says he will frame the invoice and check.

NEW CO-OP. STORE TO OPEN AT RIVER VALLEY CREA'RY

Eastern Pennington Co. Farmers Organize New Mercantile Cooperative

A new cooperative store is being launched in this community, with the incorporation of the River Valley cooperative association. The store which will be established at the River Valley cooperative creamery in Deer Park township, is authorized under its articles of incorporation to "engage in a general grocery and mercantile business; to buy, sell, lease, or otherwise acquire or dispose of" real estate and other property and to affiliate if it so sees fit with other cooperatives.

Authorized capital stock is set at $5,000 and shares have a par value of ten dollars each.

The incorporators are: Didrick Kolestrand, Olaf Stolaas, H. A. Dahlen Ed. Syversrud, Nels Fore, Ed. Stucy and Pete Gustafson. These seven are the first board of directors, which is to hold office until the first annual meeting to be held on the first Tuesday in February. Officers of the new enterprise are: Ed. Stucy, president; Pete Gustafson, vice president; Nels Fore, secretary; and Olaf Stolaas treasurer.

57 Persons Placed by Local NRS in Week Says Manager

For the week ending August 25th the local National Reemployment Service office placed 57 persons, according to Howard Davidson, local NRA statistician, and 279 persons were placed in the district. Eighteen of the local placements were with private employers, while there were 116 placed with private employers in the district. Mr. Davidson says that a check of the active files shows that 324 persons who are employed in Pennington County are registered in the NRS. The local office last week made 26 employer visits.

There is also a big demand thruout the district for women to do housework. Those interested should register immediately at the local NRS once if they have not already done so.

Girls PTA Recreational Project Will be Carried On During School Year

The summer recreational activities for girls sponsored by the Parents-Teachers Association ends this week with the tennis tournament, but will be continued again after the girls have adjusted themselves to the new school term.

NEW ORDINANCE EXTENDS HOURS FOR POOL HALLS

Council Tackles the Nels Myrin Flowage Rights Question. Will Investigate.

An amendment to the closing ordinances was introduced and given its first reading at the council meeting Tuesday evening. The new amendment is designated to make the closing hours for pool halls, skating rinks and other recreation parlors harmonize with the ordinance regulating the hours of the beer parlors. Under the proposed ordinance the pool hall hours will be extended to one o'clock in place of as formerly closing at eleven. Sunday hours will be as is the case with the beer parlors, from one to ten p.m.

A resolution was passed to advertise for bids for coal for the auditorium for the coming winter, the specification calling for coal of first quality suitable for use in mechanical stoker. The building committee was instructed to make estimate and specifications to be embodied in the call for bids.

The vexing flowage rights controversy between Nels Myrin and the city was again discussed, Mr. Myrin being present. He stated that he is still willing to settle for $700 if the case is settled before going to court. A committee composed of president Peter Mynrom and Walter Jung will investigate and report at the next meeting.

Two building permits were issued. To Herman Wagner a permit to erect a garage at an estimated cost of $150 on lot 4, block 3 to Meenan's addition, and to Carl Christofferson permit to erect a store and install gasoline pumps at an estimated cost of $1,000 on Johnson street, lots 45-48, block 17, Red Lake Rapids addition.

The council also discussed the possibility of refinancing the city's bonded indebtedness with the RFC, city attorney Theo. Quale being instructed to correspond with the proper authorities. City clerk P. G. Pederson called attention to the fact that the dates of maturity on outstanding bonds are not convenient for payment, stating that if the debt can be budgetted and the payment dates set to follow right after the dates of tax settlement there would be less trouble having the funds available for meeting payments.

The council adjourned until Tuesday, September 4.

DRIVE SAFELY CAMPAIGN GETS INTO MOMENTUM

Brakes and Lights Test Campaign Will be Launched By Police

Following a meeting of the Pennington County public safety committee on Thursday, it was announced that 1,500 pledge cards have been ordered which will be signed by automobile drivers in this vicinity. W. H. Quist was named permanent chairman of the committee. A. B. Stenberg chief of police, announced that the police department is to sponsor a series of brake tests in the city beginning next week.

The pledge cards bear the statement: "I realize that care on the part of each individual driver of a motor vehicle is the best known way to prevent the loss of life and injuries from traffic accidents. As a citizen of or visitor in Minnesota interested in the conservation of life, I pledge myself to drive safely."

Pledge tokens in the form of small windshield stickers cut in the shape of the State of Minnesota and bearing the slogan "Make Minnesota the Safest State" will be given to those signing the pledge. They are for distriblution by the Public Safety Committees through their members, at meetings of all kinds, by police officers, or any other way which meets the approval of the committee. The Pledge Tokens are to be given free to drivers who sign pledge cards.

"Lights tested" and "Brakes tested" chevrons will be placed above the pledge token only by a patrol officer, police officer, or a garage or service station, when, by bona fide tests, lights or brakes have been found to be or have been mechanically correct.

The Pledge Token and the two Chevrons make a "Token of Honor" and indicate the the owner or driver of the vehicle upon which it is displayed is cooperating to help "Make Minnesota the Safest State."

Large Diesel Unit Undergoes Overhaul

The McIntosh-Seymour diesel unit at the local power plant was put back into service again on Wednesday after being shut down for about a week undergoing repairs and conditioning.

During the time it has been shut down the city has been served by the old Bush-Sulzer engines, augmented by current from the interstate Power company's highline.

This current has been purchased from the power company without the formality of a written contract. The hook-up is still maintained, pending settlement of the question of whether or not the city shall enter a contract with the power company for five years. Altho the contract has been under consideration by the council and representatives of the power company for almost a month, the matter was not broached at the Tuesday evening of the council.

Stating tha, the resonable value of the present creamery property was $65,000, nine stockholders of the Thief River Falls cooperative creamery served a summons on the directors of the organization Friday, and are appealing to the district court for a temporary injunction to stop the directors from completing their plans of turning the creamery building over to the Land O' Lakes creameries in exchange for a new structure among other thing.

At a meeting of the stockholders on August 3rd, 62 stockholders favored the transaction, while it was opposed by 17 members.

The stockholders have engaged Attorney Charles E. Boughton of Red Lake Falls as their representative, while the creamery directors are represented by attorney Paul Lundgren.

Including the stockholders instituting court action are O. G. Stenseth, Gordon M. Olson, Christian Steen, Peter Hornseth, Albert Olson, Mikkel G. Jorde, Louis Dimmen, Nils N. Nora, and Tobias Stene.

W. Long, 1st Vice Commander; A. B. Stenberg, 2nd Vice Comander; T. A. Disrud, 3rd vice commander; George Baken, adjutant; and P. G. Federson, finance officer.

Installation of the new officials will take place at the next regular meeting.

Oklee Man Threshes Wheat Crop of 40 Bushels an Acre

Forty bushels fo wheat to the acre and a 15 cent premium on the output is a pleasure that can be classed with "the thrill that comes once in a lifetime," as most farmers would testify.

O. T. Vigen of Oklee had that thrill last week when he threshed a ten acre tract of durum wheat, reports brought here by the Rural Credit Bureau's field man Tuesday.

Believe it or Not, a Guernsey Cow in Good Shape Brings the Shipper 62 Cents Net

It may not be generally known to most of his friends and neighbhars, but A. J. Rau, of this city is a farmer. That is he has a farm altho he does not personally work it. Two weeks ago Mr. Rou shipped a cow to market. It was a pretty good cow too. A three year old Guernsey and in pretty good shape, Mr. Rau says.

1 cow weight 580 lbs. Price .75 amount		$4.35
Deductions
Yardage	.39
Hay	.20
State weighing charge	.01
Insurance	.01
Commission	.80	1.41
		2.94
Net to Mr. Rau		.62

"Anyway if I could have shipped one thousand head it would have paid the mortgage," Mr. Rau said. And that's right, one thousand times 62 cents is $6,200 a little more than enough to pay the average mortgage on a quarter section of good land.

Yet there are still people who believe that the Farmer-Labor program is "too radical" when it demands public ownership and cooperative control of the marketing facilities.

Mr. Rau says he will frame the invoice and check.

NEW CO-OP. STORE TO OPEN AT RIVER VALLEY CREA'RY

Eastern Pennington Co. Farmers Organize New Mercantile Cooperative

A new cooperative store is being launched in this community, with the incorporation of the River Valley cooperative association. Hanson of Viking to fill Mr. Bordewich's unexpired term.

57 Persons Placed by Local NRS in Week Says Manager

For the week ending August 25th the local National Reemployment Service office placed 57 persons, according to Howard Davidson, local NRA statistician, and 279 persons were placed in the district. Eighteen of the local placements were with private employers, while there were 116 placed with private employers in the district. Mr. Davidson says that a check of the active files shows that 824 persons who are employed in Pennington County are registered in the NRS. The local office last week made 26 employer visits.

There is also a big demand throuout the district for women to do housework. Those interested should register immediately at the local NRS office if they have not already done so.

Girls PTA Recreational Project Will be Carried On During School Year

The summer recreational activities for girls sponsored by the Parents-Teachers Association ends this week with the tennis tournament, but will be continued again after the girls have adjusted themselves to the new school term.

Marion Green is the champion in the older group, including ages 14 to 16, defeating Lois Morell by 6-3, 6-3. Mary Chommie and Marjorie Jean Helquist will vie for honors in the younger girls finals being played this afternoon. The latter won a keenly contested game from Verna Mattson and Mary Chommie won from Peggy Jacobson in the semi-finals on Wednesday.

NEW ORDINANCE EXTENDS HOURS FOR POOL HALLS

Council Tackles the Nels Myrin Flowage Rights Question. Will Investigate.

An amendment to the closing ordinances was introduced and given its first reading at the council meeting Tuesday evening. The new amendment is designated to make the closing hours for pool halls, skating rinks and other recreation parlors harmonize with the ordinance regulating the hours of the beer parlors. Under the proposed ordinance the pool hall hours will be extended to one o'clock in place of as formerly closing at eleven. Sunday hours will be as is the case with the beer parlors, from one to ten p.m.

A resolution was passed to advertise for bids for coal for the auditorium for the coming winter, the specification calling for coal of first quality suitable for use in mechanical stoker. The building committee was instructed to make estimate and specifications to be embodied in the call for bids.

The vexing flowage rights controversy between Nels Myrin and the city was again discussed, Mr. Myrin being present. He stated that he is still willing to settle for $700 if the case is settled before going to court. A committee composed of president Peter Mynrom and Walter Jung will investigate and report at the next meeting.

Two building permits were issued. To Herman Wagner a permit to erect a garage at an estimated cost of $150 on lot 4, block 3 to Meenan's addition, and to Carl Christofferson permit to erect a store and install gasoline pumps at an estimated cost of $1,000 on Johnson street, lots 45-48, block 17, Red Lake Rapids addition.

The council also discussed the possibility of refinancing the city's bonded indebtedness with the RFC, city attorney Theo. Quale being instructed to correspond with the proper authorities. City clerk P. G. Pederson called attention to the fact that the dates of maturity on outstanding bonds are not convenient for payment, stating that if the debt can be budgetted and the payment dates set to follow right after the dates of tax settlement there would be less trouble having the funds available for meeting payments.

The council adjourned until Tuesday, September 4.

NRA REORGANIZES TO CUT RED TAPE

Total of 682 Will be Reduced to 250 in Simplifying Recovery Setup.

Washington—An internal reorganization was made in the national recovery administration to promote efficiency in supervising the diverse codes. As one of the first steps in reshaping of the blue eagle machine, an activity already productive of official wrangling, there will be henceforth 22 groups, in each of which will be placed the codes having related interests. At present there is no such grouping of the 682 codes. Officials said, for instance, that all the codes having to do with the textile industry would be placed under one group. The idea is that this would make them easier to administer and any inequalities could be more easily ascertained and corrected.

One of the prime reasons for the change, in process of formation for several months, was to insure that allied lines received identical treatment on common problems. This is but the first step. The ultimate plan envisages formation of 10 divisions, to be accompanied by code mergers which will make the total only 250 instead of 682.

Administration officials also are drawing up legislation for the next congress, under which all the features of NRA found to be desirable would be made permanent. Officials have explained that for months administration of the codes have been cumbersome, due to inadequate organization. This plan is intended to produce order.

Other reasons given for the change are: Reduced administrative overhead by eliminating duplication of functions and studies.

Opportunity for many allied codes to merge by voluntary action of industry for greater economy in the self-government function.

Cleared perspective on the several classes of codes, with consequent greater definition of the problems to be solved by both government and industry in development of code law and its application, and elimination of overlapping definition in industry codes.

Simplicity in alignments to furnish more accurate statistics on industries and trades.

Brooklyn Gunners Get $427,000 Loot.

New York—A gang of at least a dozen robbers bore down on an armored truck three blocks from a divisional police headquarters in Brooklyn, pointed machine guns and pistols at guards, and escaped with a cash sum of $427,000. It was one of the boldest and most sensational holdups in the New York area. The raid on the armored car was as well planned and executed as a military maneuver. A machine gun was concealed on a pushcart in the street. The bandits carefully disguised their purpose until the signal was given for the raid. Then they struck quickly and fled. More than 40 police cars raced in pursuit and airplanes and police launches joined in the chase. The bandits escaped in speed boats after abandoning their cars. The robbery was the biggest cash haul in history and took only three minutes.

Whisky Under Bond Limited to 4 Yrs.

Washington — Officials disclosed that an old internal revenue law revived by prohibition repeal makes it unlawful to store whisky in bonded warehouses longer than eight years. It must be withdrawn from bond, and the federal tax paid on it, by the end of that time. The government simply doesn't want to wait longer than eight years for its money.

Hog Prices Rise for Twentieth Day.

Chicago—Hog values hopped again in all the principal markets of the country. It was the twentieth consecutive trading-day in the Chicago stockyards which had seen a small rise in prices. The net result has been to return swine values to the levels from which they began to sag in August, 1931. Top price was $7.40 a hundredweight on Aug. 23.

Schoolboy Rowe Ties Pitching Record

Washington—Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe joined the ranks of baseball's immortals when he pitched his sixteenth consecutive victory, tying the American league record. He led the Detroit Tigers in a defeat of the Washington Senators in a thrilling game, 4 to 2.

N. Y. Relief Costs $6.37 Each Second!

New York—The department of public welfare has figured the city's unemployment relief expenditures down to a matter of seconds—$6.37 every time the clock ticks. The department said that expenditures for 1934 will total $201,000,000.

Chicago Gets Check to Pay Teachers

Washington—The Reconstruction Finance corporation turned over its check for $22,300,000 to the Chicago board of education for the back pay of that city's school teachers which will be made at once.

Unemployed, Let's Hornets Kill Him

Tampa, Fla.—The stings of scores of hornets killed Ramon Peres, 34, unemployed cigar maker, who leaped nude into a colony of the insects with the avowed intention of killing himself.

Co-op Plants Increase Output

Farmers' Cooperative creameries have increased their output of butter each year since 1926, according to estimates by the Cooperative Division Farm Credit Administration, based on reports from approximately 1,500 associations. Of the total production of creamery butter, the percentage produced in cooperative plants has risen from 34.8 percent in 1926, to 36.7 per cent in 1933.

"This percentage gain," in the opinion of T G. Stitts, in charge of dairying, "is very significant. It was brought about not by an increase in the number of co operative creameries, but by an increase in the average volume handled by the cooperatives reporting. Better business management of the cooperative plants and more efficient service to the members undoubtedly is a factor in attracting more business to them.

"A large number of the cooperative plants are greatly benefited by the use of a regional sales organization in marketing their product. About one-sixth of all the butter made in the United States is manufactured by members of five regional cooperative sales agencies."

Displays Set All Time Record at Minnesota Fair

Thirty-five thousand individual exhibits and displays—an all time record—will be installed and ready for inspection when the gates open for Minnesota's Diamond Jubilee State Fair Saturday, announces Raymond A. Lee, secretary.

Record entries are reported from virtually every deparment, and visitors to the 75th annual Exposition will see exhibits and entertainment comparable to any program in world's fair history. More than 6,000 head of cattle, horses, sheep and swine; 1,600 boys and girls in club work; 5,000 exhibits of household arts; record displays in the school exhibits, fine arts, machinery, poultry, bee and honey, agricultural, horticultural and machinerydepartments combine to make this year's Jubilee Exposition the greatest ever.

Adding of a five-star wrestling card to the entertainment program gives sports fans an unusual variety of events, including auto, harness, running and motorcycle racing; the Northwestern Class Championship Trapshooting tournament and a parade of the leading grapplers.

Jim McMillen, former Illinois grid captain and team mate of Harold "Red" Grange and Abe Kashey, the villain of the mat, will meet in of the wrestling bouts in the Hippodrome the final evening. Cliff Olson, former Gustavus Adolphus athlete, and Roughhouse Joe Cox of Cleveland also will tangle. Mile Steinborn, strong man of Germany, and Tony Catalino, Boston Italian, Vincent Loped, Uiversity of Idaho basketball star, and Mike Nazarian, Little Rock Armenian, and Barney Cosneck of the U. of Illinois and Frank Topaz of St Louis are scheduled in the other contests on the card. It will be the Fair's first wrestling show.

Another innovation will be the modernistic lighting system that has been installed to illuminate the new park. Features will include a new fountain which is a part of the $130,000 improvement project and is located in the park adjacent to the Conservation building. Painting with light by means of intricate color combinations will make it the finest in this part of the county. Other highlights are the Avenue of Flags leading from the new entrance to the Grandstand, in direct flood-lighting of the dome of the Horticultural building and the installation of more than 1700 white lights in various sections of the grounds.

Hog Market is 136 Percent Over January Low

Hog Values at South St. Paul have advanced 136% over the year's low spot, and during the fourteen days that Chicago market has operated, following a ten-day close-dawn due to labor controversy there, prices have advanced steadily $2.20 per cwt on hogs. Thus states the weekly market bulletin issued by the Central Co-operative Association at South St. Paul

Highest price levels since August 1931 were paid for hogs at that market last week, the top late being $7.10 compared with $4.15 a year ago and $3.05 at the same time in January this year. The market now stands within short distance of the average at this date for the last five years.

Wholesale pork prices also are registering sharp gains. At one of the major meat distributing centers, wholesale prices on best pork loins set a new high mark since 1932 at 21c per pound. A month ago the same grade of loin sold at 12½ per pound and at the low spot last winter they went at 8c.

One of the favorable factors of importance in the hog advance is the rapid disappearance of pork stocks OApparently supplies of hogs have not been sufficient to satisfy the immediate needs of the trade, for packers have taken pork out of storage rather freely in recent weeks.

On August 1 there were million pounds of pork in storage. This amount was 23% less than in storage a year ago and 11% less than in storage at this date than a year ago and in storage at this date during the five-yearaverage. Pork stocks in storage at present are smallest in many years, and in view of the fact that hog slaughter thus far this year is near normal, it indicates pork has been consumed rapidly.

Minnesota Week At World Fair

The Minnesota state flag is waving in Chicago at the Century of Porgress this week where the recreational attributes of the "playground of 10,000 lakes" are being shown to the world in an exhibit sponsored jointly by the Minnesota Tourist Bureau and the Rock Island railroad.

Located in the Travel and Transport building on the Exposition, the display includes both motion pictures and photographs depicting the varied possibilities that exsist in Minnesota for the home seeker, sportsman and vacationist, according to George H. Bradley, tourist bureau director who with E. A. Dove, general passenger agent of the railroad planned the exhibit. The talking pictures, being shown 10 times daily, portray a cross section of Minnesota varied Activities. They include among others, scenes showing trout and muskellunge fishing, iron mining, dairying, deer, upland bird and duck hunting, sail and motor boating, wild animals in their natural habitat, airplane views of cities and lakes and canoeing along the wilderness water trails of northern Minnesota.

Every section of Minnesota is likewise edpicted in the two by three foot photographs, which include pictures of Itasca, Whitewater and Scenic state parks, Lake Pepin and Sugar Loaf mountain together with several views of Minnesota Indians. Two maps six by eight feet, one showing the 10,000 lakes in detail, the other Minnesota's historical background, will augment the still picture display, while two cases of virtually every spaces of fish caught in Minnesota, mounted under glass will be displayed through the coutesy of the Park Rapids Community Club.

Approximately 1,000,000 pieces of Minnesota literature, pictorial maps of the state, agricultural, summer resort and community pamphlets will be distributed during the week to the 150,000 expected visitors, according to Mr. Bradley. The exhibit will be under the direct supervision of Miss Zita McSherry, who was one of four hostesses in the Minnesota exhibit at the Minnesota exhibit at the fair last summer.

In addition to the exhibit in the railroad building the tourist bureau, in cooperation with the Minnesota Boosters' Association has a dozen tanks of live Minnesota fish as a feature of the International Motor Boat and Sportsmen's show on the fair grounds.

Bootleggers Get Fat on Repeal

Speaking for New England The BOSTON HERALD joins the swelling national chorus of press and people who now denounce repeal as worse than a failure so far as the elimination of the bootlegger is concerned.

They have discovered, with naive surprise, that bootleggers wax fat and flourish since liquor is legalized. In a front-page article, bearing the head that is quoted above, the statement is made in the opening sentence that the bootlegger is now more prosperous than he ever was during the 14 years of prohibition." This acknowledged result, which seems to shock the wets generally, was anticipated by every student of the question.

It must be perfectly clear that the way of the bootlegger is hard, at least comparatively hard when even the possession of a pint of liquor is an offense. It is hard for the bootlegger to find buyers, since it is dangerous for the buyer to buy, and it is also more dangerous for the 'legger to sell. Under regulation it is no crime for a buyer to possess a pint or a barrel. Again, under prohibition, if the buyer gets drunk that fact alone is evidence of law violation, and the 'legger stands to suffer the pains and penalties. Not so under regulation. A drunk gives no hint of an illegal sale. It only indicates that the drinker overplayed his capacity. And yet again, under prohibition, the 'legger can find no open, legitimate, advertised seller to whom he can wholesale his wares. There is no way for the 'legger to get his goods into the legitimate market to be sold over the counter on Main Street. But under regulation he can go to every licensed dealer, and if the licensed dealer can be tempted by a bit of additional profit, he becomes the bootlegger's customer. It is easy, so the HERALD article points out, to put spurious stamps over the corks, indicating that taxes have been paid. And, the article continues, "The situation in New England is not a whit different from the situation thruout the nation.

So the bootlegger waxes fat, as informed people knew he would, under repeal. And youth, womanhood, and the home go on the auction block of Uncle Sam, for revenue only.

NRA REORGANIZES TO CUT RED TAPE

Total of 682 Will be Reduced to 250 in Simplifying Recovery Setup.

Washington—An internal reorganization was made in the national recovery administration to promote efficiency in supervising the diverse codes. As one of the first steps in reshaping of the blue eagle machine, an activity already productive of official wrangling, there will be henceforth 22 groups, in each of which will be placed the codes having related interests. At present there is no such grouping of the 682 codes. Officials said, for instance, that all the codes having to do with the textile industry would be placed under one group. The idea is that this would make them easier to administer and any inequalities could be more easily ascertained and corrected.

One of the prime reasons for the change, in process of formation for several months, was to insure that allied lines received identical treatment on common problems. This is but the first step. The ultimate plan envisages formation of 10 divisions, to be accompanied by code mergers which will make the total only 250 instead of 682.

Administration officials also are drawing up legislation for the next congress, under which all the features of NRA found to be desirable would be made permanent. Officials have explained that for months administration of the codes have been cumbersome, due to inadequate organization. This plan is intended to produce order.

Other reasons given for the change are: Reduced administrative overhead by eliminating duplication of functions and studies.

Opportunity for many allied codes to merge by voluntary action of industry for greater economy in the self-government function.

Cleared perspective on the several classes of codes, with consequent greater definition of the problems to be solved by both government and industry in development of code law and its application, and elimination of overlapping definition in industry codes.

Simplicity in alignments to furnish more accurate statistics on industries and trades.

Brooklyn Gunners Get $427,000 Loot.

New York—A gang of at least a dozen robbers bore down on an armored truck three blocks from a divisional police headquarters in Brooklyn, pointed machine guns and pistols at guards, and escaped with a cash sum of $427,000. It was one of the boldest and most sensational holdups in the New York area. The raid on the armored car was as well planned and executed as a military maneuver. A machine gun was concealed on a pushcart in the street. The bandits carefully disguised their purpose until the signal was given for the raid. Then they struck quickly and fled. More than 40 police cars raced in pursuit and airplanes and police launches joined in the chase. The bandits escaped in speed boats after abandoning their cars. The robbery was the biggest cash haul in history and took only three minutes.

Whisky Under Bond Limited to 4 Yrs.

Washington — Officials disclosed that an old internal revenue law revived by prohibition repeal makes it unlawful to store whisky in bonded warehouses longer than eight years. It must be withdrawn from bond, and the federal tax paid on it, by the end of that time. The government simply doesn't want to wait longer than eight years for its money.

Hog Prices Rise for Twentieth Day.

Chicago—Hog values hopped again in all the principal markets of the country. It was the twentieth consecutive trading-day in the Chicago stockyards which had seen a small rise in prices. The net result has been to return swine values to the levels from which they began to sag in August, 1931. Top price was $7.40 a hundredweight on Aug. 23.

Schoolboy Rowe Ties Pitching Record

Washington—Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe joined the ranks of baseball's immortals when he pitched his sixteenth consecutive victory, tying the American league record. He led the Detroit Tigers in a defeat of the Washington Senators in a thrilling game, 4 to 2.

N. Y. Relief Costs $6.37 Each Second!

New York—The department of public welfare has figured the city's unemployment relief expenditures down to a matter of seconds—$6.37 every time the clock ticks. The department said that expenditures for 1934 will total $201,000,000.

Chicago Gets Check to Pay Teachers

Washington—The Reconstruction Finance corporation turned over its check for $22,300,000 to the Chicago board of education for the back pay of that city's school teachers which will be made at once.

Tampa, Fla.—The stings of scores of hornets killed Ramon Peres, 34, unemployed cigar maker, who leaped nude into a colony of the insects with the avowed intention of killing himself.

Co-op Plants Increase Output

Farmers' Cooperative creameries have increased their output of butter each year since 1926, according to estimates by the Cooperative Division Farm Credit Administration, based on reports from approximately 1,500 associations. Of the total production of creamery butter, the percentage produced in cooperative plants has risen from 34.8 percent in 1926, to 36.7 per cent in 1933.

"This percentage gain," in the opinion of T G. Stitts, in charge of dairying, "is very significant. It was brought about not by an increase in the number of co-operative creameries, but by an increase in the average volume handled by the cooperatives reporting. Better business management of the cooperative plants and more efficient service to the members undoubtedly is a factor in attracting more business to them.

"A large number of the cooperative plants are greatly benefited by the use of a regional sales organization in marketing their product. About one-sixth of all the butter made in the United States is manufactured by members of five regional cooperative sales agencies."

Displays Set All Time Record at Minnesota Fair

Thirty-five thousand individual exhibits and displays—an all time record—will be installed and ready for inspection when the gates open for Minnesota's Diamond Jubilee State Fair Saturday, announces Raymond A. Lee, secretary.

Record entries are reported from virtually every deparment, and visitors to the 75th annual Exposition will see exhibits and entertainment comparable to any program in world's fair history. More than 6,000 head of cattle, horses, sheep and swine; 1,600 boys and girls in club work; 5,000 exhibits of household arts; record displays in the school exhibits, fine arts, machinery, poultry, bee and honey, agricultural, horticultural and machinerydepartments combine to make this year's Jubilee Exposition the greatest ever.

Adding of a five-star wrestling card to the entertainment program gives sports fans an unusual variety of events, including auto, harness, running and motorcycle racing; the Northwestern Class Championship Trapshooting tournament and a parade of the leading grapplers.

Jim McMillen, former Illinois grid captain and team mate of Harold "Red" Grange and Abe Kashey, the villain of the mat, will meet in of the wrestling bouts in the Hippodrome the final evening. Cliff Olson, former Gustavus Adolphus athlete, and Roughhouse Joe Cox of Cleveland also will tangle. Mile Steinborn, strong man of Germany, and Tony Catalino, Boston Italian, Vincent Loped, Uiversity of Idaho basketball star, and Mike Nazarian, Little Rock Armenian, and Barney Cosneck of the U. of Illinois and Frank Topaz of St Louis are scheduled in the other contests on the card. It will be the Fair's first wrestling show.

Another innovation will be the modernistic lighting system that has been installed to illuminate the new park. Features will include a new fountain which is a part of the $130,000 improvement project and is located in the park adjacent to the Conservation building. Painting with light by means of intricate color combinations will make it the finest in this part of the county. Other highlights are the Avenue of Flags leading from the new entrance to the Grandstand, in direct flood-lighting of the dome of the Horticultural building and the installation of more than 1700 white lights in various sections of the grounds.

Hog Values at South St. Paul have advanced 136% over the year's low spot, and during the fourteen days that Chicago market has operated, following a ten-day close-dawn due to labor controversy there, prices have advanced steadily $2.20 per cwt on hogs. Thus states the weekly market bulletin issued by the Central Co-operative Association at South St. Paul

Highest price levels since August 1931 were paid for hogs at that market last week, the top late being $7.10 compared with $4.15 a year ago and $3.05 at the same time in January this year. The market now stands within short distance of the average at this date for the last five years.

Wholesale pork prices also are registering sharp gains. At one of the major meat distributing centers, wholesale prices on best pork loins set a new high mark since 1932 at 21c per pound. A month ago the same grade of loin sold at 12½ per pound and at the low spot last winter they went at 8c.

One of the favorable factors of importance in the hog advance is the rapid disappearance of pork stocks

OApparently supplies of hogs have not been sufficient to satisfy the immediate needs of the trade, for packers have taken pork out of storage rather freely in recent weeks.

On August 1 there were million pounds of pork in storage. This amount was 23% less than in storage a year ago and 11% less than in storage at this date than a year ago and in storage at this date during the five-yearaverage. Pork stocks in storage at present are smallest in many years, and in view of the fact that hog slaughter thus far this year is near normal, it indicates pork has been consumed rapidly.

Minnesota Week At World Fair

The Minnesota state flag is waving in Chicago at the Century of Porgress this week where the recreational attributes of the "playground of 10,000 lakes" are being shown to the world in an exhibit sponsored jointly by the Minnesota Tourist Bureau and the Rock Island railroad.

Located in the Travel and Transport building on the Exposition, the display includes both motion pictures and photographs depicting the varied possibilities that exsist in Minnesota for the home seeker, sportsman and vacationist, according to George H. Bradley, tourist bureau director who with E. A. Dove, general passenger agent of the railroad planned the exhibit. The talking pictures, being shown 10 times daily, portray a cross section of Minnesota varied Activities. They include among others, scenes showing trout and muskellunge fishing, iron mining, dairying, deer upland bird and duck hunting, sail and motor boating, wild animals in their natural habitat, airplane views of cities and lakes and canoeing along the wilderness water trails of northern Minnesota.

Every section of Minnesota is likewise edpicted in the two by three foot photographs, which include pictures of Itasca, Whitewater and Scenic state parks, Lake Pepin and Sugar Loaf mountain together with several views of Minnesota Indians. Two maps six by eight feet, one showing the 10,000 lakes in detail, the other Minnesota's historical background, will augment the still picture display, while two cases of virtually every spaces of fish caught in Minnesota, mounted under glass will be displayed through the coutesy of the Park Rapids Community Club.

Approximately 1,000,000 pieces of Minnesota literature, pictorial maps of the state, agricultural, summer resort and community pamphlets will be distributed during the week to the 150,000 expected visitors, according to Mr. Bradley. The exhibit will be under the direct supervision of Miss. Zita McSherry, who was one of four hostesses in the Minnesota exhibit at the Minnesota exhibit at the fair last summer.

In addition to the exhibit in the railroad building the tourist bureau in cooperation with the Minnesota Boosters' Association has a dozen tanks of live Minnesota fish as a feature of the International Motor Boat and Sportsmen's show on the fair grounds.

Bootleggers Get Fat on Repeal

Speaking for New England The BOSTON HERALD joins the swelling national chorus of press and people who now denounce repeal as worse than a failure so far as the elimination of the bootlegger is concerned.

They have discovered, with naive surprise, that bootleggers wax fat and flourish since liquor is legalized. In a front-page article, bearing the head that is quoted above, the statement is made in the opening sentence that the bootlegger is now more prosperous than he ever was during the 14 years of prohibition." This acknowledged result, which seems to shock the wets generally, was anticipated by every student of the question.

It must be perfectly clear that the way of the bootlegger is hard, at least comparatively hard when even the possession of a pint of liquor is an offense. It is hard for the bootlegger to find buyers, since it is dangerous for the buyer to buy, and it is also more dangerous for the 'legger to sell. Under regulation it is no crime for a buyer to possess a pint or a barrel. Again, under prohibition, if the buyer gets drunk that fact alone is evidence of law violation, and the 'legger stands to suffer the pains and penalties. Not so under regulation. A drunk gives no hint of an illegal sale. It only indicates that the drinker overplayed his capacity. And yet again, under prohibition, the 'legger can find no open, legitimate, advertised seller to whom he can wholesale his wares. There is no way for the 'legger to get his goods into the legitimate market to be sold over the counter on Main Street. But under regulation he can go to every licensed dealer, and if the licensed dealer can be tempted by a bit of additional profit, he becomes the bootlegger's customer. It is easy, so the HERALD article points out, to put spurious stamps over the corks, indicating that taxes have been paid. And, the article continues, "The situation in New England is not a whit different from the situation thruout the nation.

So the bootlegger waxes fat, as informed people knew he would, under repeal. And youth, womanhood, and the home go on the auction block of Uncle Sam, for revenue only.

HOW 'A GREAT FINANCIAL EMPIRE' WAS BUILT

Synopsis of Testimony Developed in the Hearings On The Northwest Bancorporation

(Contiued from last week.)

Stock Sales

Each of these contributing factors according to the evidence appears to have been taken advantage of. The general attitude of the public towards speculation during this period of time and the willingness to invest in stocks is well known. Each day's daily paper was bringing forth new stories of the rise in prices of securities. Fortunes were being made over night, in the stock market. Corporate bubbles of all kinds, were easily financed, and the time for "marketing operations" in stocks was most propitious. Rumors of prospective profits were acceptable in the minds of the public, as the foundation for the investment of a life's savings. Stock salesmen were making fortunes peddling their wares from door to door like a fruit vendor. These were the conditions exsisting when Northwest Bancorporation appeared upon the financial horizon of the northwest. The average purchaser did not stop to inquire as to the tangible values behind the stock he purchased, nor as to the reason why the Federal Reserve Bank of which the Northwestern National Bank was a member, had repeadly warned against the orgy or speculation that was going on, and, when at the first meeting of the board of directors of Northwest Bancorporation a dividend of 45c per share per quarter was authorized, this prospective earning plus possible speculative value and the other factors above enumerated, played a most important part in the situation which brought into the coffers of the company the millions of dlolars that were paid for the company's stock.

Earn $11,000; Pay Dividend of $742,000

Dividends were paid continuously from the organization of the company until the latter part of 1932. At the time when the first dividend was paid on April 1, 1929, the company, according to its books and records, had not received earnings sufficient to pay the dividend throughout the year 1930, according to records identified by Mr. Decker, the company declared dividends, many of them at directors' meetings at which reports from the officials of the company were rendered showing that there had not been a sufficient amount of dividends received, from the subsidiaries to cover the dividends which were pair. A specific instance is shown by Exhibit 15, which was the minute book of the company's board of directors, on page 155, which shows a dividend of 45c per share voted to be paid April 1, 1930. At the same meeting the minutes show a report rendered by Mr. Thompson, who was then general manager. The amount of dividend voted was $742,000. Mr. Thompson's report as to the financial condition of the company and made at the same meeting shows their earnings at that time were $11,000. Again on the 25th of June, 1930, on page 159 of the directors' minute book, anotther dividend of 45c per share was voted. At the same meeting another report was rendered which shows expenses and dividends in excess of collected earnings $105-836.06. Mr. Decker admitted that at the time this dividend was voted the report referred to was before the board of directors. At the time the next dividend was voted, payable October 1, 1930, a report was rendered at the same meeting at which the dividend was voted, showing expenses and dividends in excess of collected earnings $192.671.13. Notwithstanding the fact that on September 11, 1930, Mr. Thompson had made this report, according to the evidence introduced, he sent out a letter on Nov. 15, 1930, which letter was addressed "To the President" and was identified as being sent to the president of the various institutions that they controlled, in which he made the following statement: "Following are the estimated earnings for 1930 based on actual reported earnings of the institutions affiliated with the Northwest Bancorporation for ten months, and estimated earnings for November and December, after charge-offs and recoveries, the net earnings should exceed $3 15 per share, or 1¾ times the annual dividend requirement." And further stated: "Under present conditions the officers of this corporation have no hesitancy in recommending the purchase of Northwest Bancorporation stock when such purchase is made for investment purposes by persons who intend to hold the stock. In fact, we believe it is advisable to call the attention of investors in your community to the information contained in this letter in order that those persons who are looking for investments may appreciate the value back of this stock." When questioned about this letter, Mr. Decker was asked:

"Q. I now ask you, Mr. Decker, if this statement of Mr. Thomson is true or false?

"A. Why, I don't know I assumed it was true, certainly.

"Q. Does your audit show it was true of false?

"A. Not on those figures.

"Q. Showed it was false on those figures?

"A. Shows it is less than that.

"Q. It shows approximately $3,000,000 less, doesn't it?

"A. Well, if the accounting was made on the same basis it would.

"Q. Well, this is on the basis, isn't it, of taking all the profits and charging off the losses?

"A. I don't know.

"Q. That is what your auditors say isn't it, sir?

"A. That is what the report shows

Stoekyard Strike Had no Adverse Effect; Hormel

"Live stock prices during the shutdown of the Chicago Stock yards demonstrated conclusively that those yards have very little effect on the making of prices," according to Jay C. Hormel, Austin, Minnesota mea packer.

"We have always known that live stock prices are based on provision markets, which in turn are made by supply and demand for meat at retail. Many people have claimed, and many others have believed, that the stockyards at Chicago set the price. Those opposed to direct marketing of livestock have needed this claim in order to support their argument that direct buying reduced the demand at Chicago and therefore reduced prices generally. It should have been clear that when direct buying reduced the demand at Chicago, it reduced the available supply also. Now it should be clear that in any case, it doesn't matter."

"The Chicago Stockyards were closed under strike for ten days. No stock moved in. No sales were made. During that time the prices for live stock were establihed just as they always have been. All we lacked were the Chicago quotations. The natural prices prevailed as they always have. In this particular instance, conditions were set for a rise in live stock prices. Because of those conditions we had a rise in spite of the fact that Chicago was not operating. When conditions are set for a decline, Chicago can't stop it. No single market can change price-making routines. The people still eat. Housewives continue to enter butcher shops and bargain for meat This bargaining is reflected in the provision market. As always, this daily, hourly decision by the consumer sets the price whether Chicago is operating or shut down.

WORLD FAIR ENDS OCT. 31, THIS YEAR

Many Unusual Gala Events Planned for Last Two Months.

Chicago (Special).—With the announcement that Chicago's new World's Fair, A Century of Progress Exposition, closes its gates forever on October 31st, and the advent of cool September weather, attendance figures at the exposition are steadily soaring to make new records for all American fairs. More than 9,000,000 persons have paid admissions this year, which brings the total for the two years showing to date in excess of 31,000,000

The management of the Fair has accomplished the purpose desired by President Roosevelt when he requested that the fair operate a second year so that those who could not come last year would be given an opportunity to see it in 1934. This over and with two months of operation left, all activity is being directed to the staging of spectacular special events and shows which will close the exposition in a blaze of glory.

With all indications pointing to the probability that the attendance in September and October will outstrip the combined totals of the first three months of the Fair, exhibitors, concessionaries and the exposition itself are extending every effort to amuse and entertain the huge throngs that daily fill the magic streets of the fair, to an extent even greater than before.

Fair to Close Oct. 31.

In making the announcement that the Fair will have accomplished its aim by closing date, and therefore would not reopen, President Rufus C. Dawes said:

"A Century of Progress in its present form will not be in existence next year. If the Fair or any part of it is to be maintained it would have to be by outside sources. The Fair is under contract to the Chicago park board to demolish all buildings the board names, and the board also has the right to name any buildings which it wishes to retain and maintain.

"If you want to see Chicago's great Century of Progress Exposition you must come this summer or fall. It will not be here next year. Come and we shall do our best to make your visit pleasant, interesting and profitable."

With the closing, wreckers will come in and the enchanted city whose streets transported visitors into the mysterious realms of scientific research, art, music, industry, light, color, entertainment, education and commerce will come down. Officials, however, carefully pointed out that demolition will not begin until after the closing on October 31st. All exhibits and concessions will remain intact, until that time.

Big Times for Two Months.

The fantastic buildings will be leveled. The Street of Villages with its fifteen perfect reproductions of as many foreign lands will be no more. The largest and most beautiful fountain will no longer throw its scintillating spray skyward. The gay cafes will not echo the laughter of happy people. The famed Avenue of Flags will be stripped and the greatest and most beautiful of all major expositions will be history.

It has been currently rumored that the Fair would remain as a permanent Chicago attraction; that each year henceforth it would reopen on the lake front. Now that people have realized that this is their last opportunity to see it, attendance totals have increased by leaps and bounds. The great free attractions are constantly choked with people. The twin symphony orchestras, the huge lagoon theater with its water carnivals and circus, the cage of fury, the roads of the world and the multitude of other free shows are playing to capacity crowds.

The final two months of the Fair will see the greatest collection of talent, spectacles and amusements ever seen anywhere. All existing entertainment will be expanded and new attractions added to the daily programs. Events appealing to every class of person have been scheduled at a cost of thousands of dollars. Railroads and bus lines have agreed to maintain the same low travel rates while Chicago [illegible] and tourist [illegible] accommodate travelers to Chicago in comfort and ease at the fixed low prices now prevailing.

"Entered as second-class matter, April 27, 1932, at the post office at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, under Act of March 3, 1879."

During the city campaign last fall the Mayor, E. L. Tungseth and the members of the present council, then candidates for election circulated a campaign leaflet captioned:

WHY?

This leaflet hurled at the erstwile council, and candidates for reelections, some twenty-six questions designed to lead the voters to believe that all was not open and above board in the council's conduct of the city's affairs. While they were so worded that there could be no "roarback" libel suits result, they nevertheless by innuendo accused the council of collusion with the architect and the contractor to the end that Nels Olson became building inspector on the auditorium; that they were in collusion with the Fairbanks-Morse company for the purpose of saddling the taxpayers with an enormous debt for an additional unit to the power plant, and that the members of the council would receive some immoluments from the Fairbanks-Morse company in return; that they held secret meetings; that they were controlled by a secret clic; that they manipulated the city printing contract to favor the Forum; that they were responsible for the act of a previous council buying dumping grounds "in the city's front yard;" that they were extravagant in the building of the auditorium; and that they used the light plant for a "political football."

Knowing the source of this libelous propaganda and the abuse and vituperation heaped upon H. O. Berv, Paul A. Harris and the editor of the Forum, we can excuse it on the ground that it was only the wellknown typical republican method of campaigning. However, the same leaflet and other printed, written and verbal campaign matter distributed by the mayor and the present council led the voters to believe that the election of the Citizens League ticket would result in, an open and above board conduct of the city's affairs; the strictest economy; close cooperation with ALL civic organizations; strict, hardheaded business administration; and the elimination of all graft and coruption in city business. Their capaign was quite successful and their entire ticket was elected with an overwhelming majority. THERE HAS BEEN NO RECALCITRANT OPPOSITION IN OFFICE TO FRUSTRATE THEIR EFFORTS.

Eight months; one-third of their term has elapsed, and it seems to us that at this time we may be justified in expecting the mayor and the council to render some small accounting of their activities to date. In order to facilitate matters we suggest that they answer the following questions:

WHY—have the retained the services of the city engineer long after he has been weighed and found wanting?

WHY—has no provision been made to meet the payment of eighteen thousand dollars in city bonds due in September?

WHY—did they purchase a "mongel" fire truck at $9,500 when other responsible bidders offered dependable equipment at $6,000 and $7,500?

WHY—after assuring the people that we have adequate power facilities do they propose entering contract with the power companies?

WHY—did they spend over $3,000 to get the reservoir "plastered" without calling for bids?

WHY—has the mayor so far forgotten his duties to the citizens that he has failed to explain the reservoir deal?

WHY—is it necessary to have two janitors at the auditorium, and two street commissioners?

WHY—was the city printing let to the highest bidder at thirty percent higher cost?

WHY—has petitions and demands from citizens been tabled without explanation time and again?

WHY—have the city's employees not been paid their salaries or wages since August 1st?

MR. REGAN ASKS CREDIT

And now Regan wants credit for the Mortgage Moratorium Act passed by the last regular session of the legislature. According to an article being circulated by Mrs. E. G. Quamme, vice chairman of the democratic state committee, the moratorium was Regan's idea all the time. The farmer-laborites and Governor Olson got it from Regan she says. According to her story Regan wrote letters to the heads of the two houses of the legislature on the 31st of January 1933 urging the measure.

Even so, and what about it? The farmer-laborites and the governor broached the subject during the 1932 campaign. Senator Naplin of this district considered the proposition before the 1933 legislature met and laid the matter before the attorney general during the first few days of the 1933 session. At her request, an assistant attorney general was put to work to draw the measure. A few days later, Representative Leonard Eriksson of Fergus Falls also requested such a measure be drawn. Another assistant attorney general went to work for him. After a couple of days these two assistant attorney generals discovered that they were working on the same subject and pooled their effort. The bill introduced by Senator Naplin on Thursday February 16; S. F. 850, was the result of those efforts. The house copy was introduced a couple of days later by Mr. Eriksson. Pederson, Iverson, Regnier Lawson and Teigan went on the bill as coauthors at Mrs. Naplin's request. Almost all, if not all of the farmer-laborites in the house went on the house bill as coauthors. We wonder if Mr. Regan will claim that he suggested the idea to Senator Naplin.

However, we might as well get used to it. Before the campaign is over the democrats will have the sun rising and setting from Regan's vest pocket.

We have one hundred percent cooperation and one hundred percent efficiency—but no power.

DON'T SOFT-PEDAL THE PROGRAM
(Mid-West American)

Every forward-looking citizen in Minnesota, who has risen above the petty limits of an outworn partisanship, welcomed the "fighting program" which was adopted by the Farmer-Labor party in its convention last March. It is a program with a purpose and it proposes concrete and constructive solutions for the economic ailments responsible for the present depression. It is a program on which farmers, city workers and independent businessmen can wholeheartedly unite and it probably marked the birth of a new national party which may have a ticket in the field before the next presidential election rolls around.

Every reactionary, of course, and the subsidized Twin City press, denounced the platform as pure Communism. Everything that threatens the pocketbooks of the monopolists naturally seems "Socialistic" to them, but intelligent voters no longer are frightened by this bogey-man and as the primary returns showed the people of Minnesota put their seal of approval on the Farmer-Labor platform by a huge plurality.

Why not? The people are tired of subterfuges They see the folly of paltering with surface defects instead of honestly correcting underlying causes. The long continued depression has destroyed their confidence in the old political shibboleths. They know the Republican and Democratic parties alike are financed by Wall Street and consequently not only lacking in vision but in courage to deal with vital economic problems.

Yet, with the mass of the people ready for radical measures, there is a disposition on the part of certain high Farmer-Labor officials to soft-pedal the program of their own party—and to curry favor from Republican and Democratic ranks with the whispered assurance that the platform really doesn't mean what it so plainly says. Obviously, these certain candidates are more concerned about keeping attached to the public payroll than they are in promulgating progressive principles.

In the old Nonpartisan League days this sort of despicable treachery would not have been tolerated. The rank and file of the Leaguers saw the vision of a better day and they preferred to go down fighting for what they believed than to scuttle their cause by "political" compromises or evasive "interpretations." And they had as their standard-bearers men like the elder Lindberg who would rather be right than be elected.

We think that every candidate, from Governor and United States Senator down, should be required to state precisely where he stands on the Farmer-Labor platform. Either let him repudiate it outright or sign a pledge to carry out its provisions. It might be well to call a convention of the rank and file to consider this matter.

In times like these we want no candidates who are campaigning with their fingers crossed. After all, no man should be bigger than his party and principles in the long run are far more impartant than personalities—or even temporary victories.

We might as well begin schooling ourselves for rather quick annihilation when the next war comes on. There was plenty of terror attached to the use of gasses in the last war and while they were criticized as heinous, yet all the civilized christian nations resorted to their use. Now, however, science has taken an additional step and has developed a machine which throws out a death ray which kills immediately as far as it reaches. The machine is reported to resemble somewhat a motion picture propection machine and is said that in its preliminary stages of being able to project now, with instantly killing power, to the extent of a quarter of a mile. As the machine becomes perfected, this distance will likely be extended to several miles. It turns blood instantly into water. Reports are that in an agreement between the inventors and representatives of the government, the machine should be suppressed because of its terrible death-dealing possibilities. This merely indicates what will be the terrific destruction in the event of another great war. The more highly civilized and christianized nations become, the more gruesome there killing devices.—National Service Syndicate.

Farmer-Labor Press Service
by Senator Henry G. Teigan

The Farmer-Labor campaign is now under way. The state control committee of the Farmer-Labor party, named by the several nominees for state and congressional offices, met last week and elected a manager and an executive committee to direct the compaign.

Senator Emil L. Regnier of Marshall, who so ably conducted the campaign two years ago, was again chosen manager. To aid him in the work the state control committee selected an executive committe of men and women fully able to aid in the work of carrying on a campaign.

The members of the committee are as follows: Herman Auderhoide chairman, New Ulm; Irene Welby, St. Paul; Emil L. Regnier, Marshall; Ed. Prochaska, Pine City; Fay Child, Russel; John Woebke, New Ulm; Irene Ingeman, St. Paul; Phil Scheror, Winthrop; Julius J. Rieter, Rochester; M. W. Fox, Kenyon; Edwin I. Hudson, Minneapolis; John Hess St. Cloud; Howard Fredrickson, Tylor Oscar Widstrand, Hibbing.

While officially the campaign has just gotton under way, the fact is however, that the campaign has been carried on ever since the primary campaign was over. Governor Floyd B. Olson, U. S. Senator Henrik Shipstead, and other nominees of the party for state and congressional offices, have been speaking to large and attentive audiences for several weeks past. Everywhere those candidates have been received most favorably and the indications are that neither "fusion" nor "confusion" will operate to make defeat of the Farmer-Labor ticket possible.

Nevertheless, no stone will be left unturned to make victory a certainty Overconfidence is the thing that does damage on to many occasions. Moreover, it is quite obvious that we are facing a vicious campaign by both old-party wings of the 'Big Biz' organization.

Olson Arraigns Citizens Alliance

In a radio address Monday evening Governor Olson called attention to the vicious campaign, as he termed it which Farmer-Labor candidates were facing this year. He warned the workers everywhere to be on their guard against the poison propaganda of the enemy newspapers and of the political henchmen of big business.

In his aldress the Governor assailed the Citizens Alliance of Minnepolis as public enemy No. 1 in this state. He showed how that the citizens alliance is an anti-labor group and is a part of a national organization that is vilifying and defaming President Roosevelt and the New Deal. There is, of course, no question about the correctness of the Governor's statement. It is doubtful whether this unholy aggregation of big business groups has been so ably and forcifully arraigned and was done by the Minnesota chief executive last Monday evening.

War on Gunderson

Reverting again to the work of the Farmer-Labor state central committee, the meeting last week was devite in large measure to organization, though sometime was taken up in an attempt to force out Russell O. Gunderson, nominee for clerk of the supreme court, on the ground that he was not a member of the Farmer-Labor Association.

There is no doubt that the Farmer-Labor Association has a perfect right to place an independent nominee in the race for this office, but there is considerable question as to the propriety of the state central committee of the Farmer-Labor party having anything to do with the matter. Mr. Gunderson, however, felt that he is entitled to the position on the ballot in view of the fact that he defeated his opponent, Laura E. Naplin, for the nomination by a fairly substantial majority.

Should an independent nominee be placed in the field by petition it will probably be Mrs. Marion LeSueur of Minneapolis who appears to have the unanimous support of the State Women's Farmer-Labor Association. Mrs. Le Sueur is a women of more than ordinary ability, and is an able campaigner.

The Liberal Digest

THE PUBLISHERS POINT WITH PRIDE

An Editorial from the Nation

Radical critics of our capitalist economy and culture have long contended that the apparatus of our daily and periodical press constitutes the most strategically placed as well as one of the most reactionary vested interests in America. This contention is impressively confirmed by a bulletin issued on July 16 by the National Publishers Association from which the following excripts are taken:

> This has been a most unusual year in the publishing field and the National Publishers' Association has due cause to be proud of its operations during this year in the interests of the entire publishing industry.
> WAGNER LABOR BILL. This legislation would have been very costly to all publishers whether or not they operate their own printing plant. We took a very active part in killing this legislation.
> TUGWELL PURE FOOD AND DRUG BILL. As originally proposed, this legislation would heve been a serious blow to all advertising. Your committee and executives were finally successful in modifying this legislation.
> UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE. This bill provided for a tax of 5 percent on all payrolls. Its seriousness speaks for itself, and your representatives aided in preventing its passage.

Among the directors of the N. P. A. responsible for this patriotic, forward-looking, inter-office communication is one Malcolm Muir of the McGraw Hill Publishing Company, and formerly one of the administrators in charge of heavy machinery codes Others are Ray Larsen of Time, P. S. Collins of the Curtis Publishing Company, Merle Thorpe of the Nation's Business, S. R. Latshaw of the Butterick Publishing Company, William B. Warner of McCall's, and A D. Mayo of Crowell Publishing Company.

It was to gentlemen of this ilk, and to activities of this character that the President and the Secretary of Agriculture paid homage when at a recent convention of the American Federation of Advertisers, they praised the patriotism and passion for truth of the ad-men. It was statesment of this caliber that General Johnson was honoring when he said, in his address to the Pactific Coast Association of Advertising Clubs.

> He (the advertising man) must have an insight into the manufacture of the article he is to write the copy for. He must know the resitance to be met in prospective sales: he must know his market. In a word, in this great country he must know the temper ond mind of the American people, and when a man knows that he is a statesman—no less. Do you know that in selling the draft we were told that it could not be done—that the Anglo-Saxon race would not stand for conscription. It had failed in England and three times here—but we did it. How? By pure publicity. The sculptor works in plastic clay, the artist in paints, the author in words, but material is human minds and emotions—a far more delicate and fleeting thing. You are artists or you are not good adverising men Well, statesmen and artists—NRA needs your help.

Just how much help these "statesmen and artists" contributed toward furthering the objectives of the New Deal is indicated by the N. P. A. bulletin already quoted. Besides being a sprouting vulgarian, General Johnson has the characteristic ad-man's gift of self-hypnosis, which, when consistently cultivated, produces highly dangerous charlatans and psycho- [illegible] They [illegible] among the most effective disseminators of moral, ethical and economic balderdash and confusion, the most diligent breeders of mass moronism in America. They are loud-speakers of our emerging industrial feudalism; not our masters, but certainly our masters bullying and cozening voices.

In a recent issue of the Ladies' Home Journal we see the statesmanship and artistry of the ad-man-editor applied to the exceedingly practical task of immunizing his readers against any future attempt to pass the consumer legislation which the N. P. A. boasts proudly of having defeated. The following is quoted from a chaste little editorial entitled Musings of Mrs. Consumer:

> The way some folks still go on talking about the "forgotton consumer" and the "forgotton buyer" is funny. If being steadily in the spotlight, with controversy raging over our poor neglected state, with government departments being rapidly set up for our protection—if that is being forgotten, then I've forgotten my own name. If the brain trusters really succeeded in getting a people's forum, the people would probably have something to say about taxes—when they found out how much it cost them to be saved.
> Possibly government needs cleaning up as much as advertising. Perhaps there is as much misuse of power in one case as in the other—and with as much ultimate harm to us consumers.

When Congress adjourned without passing even Senator Copeland's emasculated version of the Tugwell bill. Secretary Tugwell wrote a consoling letter to the personnel of the Food and Drug Administration. "I wish to assure all of you," he said "that the efforts of the Administration to secure a satisfactory law have not ended. They have only begun. Sooner or later we shall have a satisfactory law under which to work in our efforts to protect the consumer."

Sooner or later, one might add, the Administration, if it really desires to protect the consumer, will have to do battle with the publishers, and with the thus far unrebuked effrontery of the advertising "statesmen" and "artists."

Olson Arraigns Citizens Alliance

In a radio address Monday evening Governor Olson called attention to the vicious campaign, as he termed it which Farmer-Labor candidates were facing this year. He warned the workers everywhere to be on their guard against the poison propaganda of the enemy newspapers and of the political henchmen of big business.

In his address the Governor assailed the Citizens Alliance of Minneapolis as public enemy No. 1 in this state. He showed how that the citizens alliance is an anti-labor group and is a part of a national organization that is vilifying and defaming President Roosevelt and the New Deal. There is, of course, no question about the correctness of the Governor's statement. It is doubtful whether this unholy aggregation of big business groups has been so ably and forcifully arraigned and was done by the Minnesota chief executive last Monday evening.

War on Gunderson

Reverting again to the work of the Farmer-Labor state central committee, the meeting last week was devite in large measure to organization, though sometime was taken up in an attempt to force out Russell O. Gunderson, nominee for clerk of the supreme court, on the ground that he was not a member of the Farmer-Labor Association.

There is no doubt that the Farmer-Labor Association has a perfect right to place an independent nominee in the race for this office, but there is considerable question as to the propriety of the state central committee of the Farmer-Labor party having anything to do with the matter. Mr. Gunderson, however, felt that he is entitled to the position on the ballot in view of the fact that he defeated his opponent, Laura E. Naplin, for the nomination by a fairly substantial majority.

Should an independent nominee be placed in the field by petition it will probably be Mrs. Marion LeSueur of Minneapolis who appears to have the unanimous support of the State Women's Farmer-Labor Association. Mrs. Le Sueur is a women of more than ordinary ability, and is an able campaigner.

Jealousy and love don't grow on the same tree.

Forgiveness if sincere will include forgetfulness.

The greatest obstacle to community welfare is—indifference. It isn't what we believe that makes us fit to die, it's what we are.

A better consideration of prophets and profits would mean better business.

We can hear a lot that isn't so but the harm to the innocent has been done.

"A rush on the church" would be more sensible than "a rush on the bank" or "a rush on beer."

The Liberal Digest

THE PUBLISHERS POINT WITH PRIDE

An Editorial from the Nation

Radical critics of our capitalist economy and culture have long contended that the apparatus of our daily and periodical press constitutes the most strategically placed as well as one of the most reactionary vested interests in America. This contention is impressively confirmed by a bulletin issued on July 16 by the National Publishers Association from which the following excripts are taken:

> This has been a most unusual year in the publishing field and the National Publishers' Association has due cause to be proud of its operations during this year in the interests of the entire publishing industry.
> WAGNER LABOR BILL. This legislation would have been very costly to all publishers whether or not they operate their own printing plant. We took a very active part in killing this legislation.
> TUGWELL PURE FOOD AND DRUG BILL. As originally proposed, this legislation would heve been a serious blow to all advertising. Your committee and executives were finally successful in modifying this legislation.
> UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE. This bill provided for a tax of 5 percent on all payrolls. Its seriousness speaks for itself, and your representatives aided in preventing its passage.

Among the directors of the N. P. A. responsible for this patriotic, forward-looking, inter-office communication is one Malcolm Muir of the McGraw Hill Publishing Company, and formerly one of the administrators in charge of heavy machinery codes Others are Ray Larsen of Time, P. S. Collins of the Curtis Publishing Company, Merle Thorpe of the Nation's Business, S. R. Latshaw of the Butterick Publishing Company, William B. Warner of McCall's, and A D. Mayo of Crowell Publishing Company.

It was to gentlemen of this ilk, and to activities of this character that the President and the Secretary of Agriculture paid homage when at a recent convention of the American Federation of Advertisers, they praised the patriotism and passion for truth of the ad-men. It was statement of the caliber that General Johnson was honoring when he said, in his address to the Pacific Coast Association of Advertising Clubs.

> He (the advertising man) must have an insight into the manufacture of the article he is to write the copy for. He must know the resitance to be met in prospective sales: he must know his market. In a word, in this great country he must know the temper and mind of the American people, and when a man knows that he is a statesman—no less. Do you know that in selling the draft we were told that it could not be done—that the Anglo-Saxon race would not stand for conscription. It had failed in England and three times here—but we did it. How? By pure publicity. The sculptor works in plastic clay, the artist in paints, the author in words, but material is human minds and emotions—a far more delicate and fleeting thing. You are artists or you are not good advertising men Well, statesmen and artists—NRA needs your help.

Just how much help these "statesmen and artists" contributed toward furthering the objectives of the New Deal is indicated by the N. P. A. bulletin already quoted. Besides being a sprouting vulgarian, General Johnson has the characteristic ad-man's gift of self-hypnosis. which, when consistently cultivated, produces highly dangerous charlatans and psycho- [illegible] They [illegible] the most effective disseminators of moral, ethical, and economic balderdash and confusion, the most diligent breeders of mass moronism in America. They are loud-speakers of our emerging industrial feudalism; not our masters, but certainly our masters bullying and cozening voices.

In a recent issue of the Ladies' Home Journal we see the statesmanship and artistry of the ad-man-editor applied to the exceedingly practical task of immunizing his readers against any future attempt to pass the consumer legislation which the N. P. A. boasts proudly of having defeated. The following is quoted from a chaste little editorial entitled Musings of Mrs. Consumer:

> The way some folks still go on talking about the "forgotton consumer" and the "forgotton buyer" is funny. If being steadily in the spotlight, with controversy raging over our poor neglected state, with government departments being rapidly set up for our protection—if that is being forgotten, then I've forgotten my own name. If the brain trusters really succeeded in getting a people's forum, the people would probably have something to say about taxes—when they found out how much it cost them to be saved.
> Possibly government needs cleaning up as much as advertising. Perhaps there is as much misuse of power in one case as in the other—and with as much ultimate harm to us consumers.

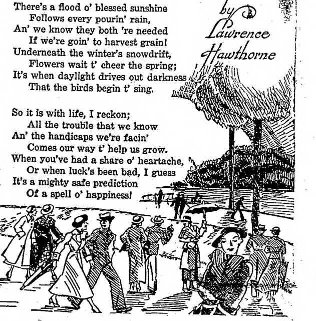
When Congress adjourned without passing even Senator Copeland's emasculated version of the Tugwell bill. Secretary Tugwell wrote a consoling letter to the personnel of the Food and Drug Administration. "I wish to assure all of you," he said "that the efforts of the Administration to secure a satisfactory law have not ended. They have only begun. Sooner or later we shall have a satisfactory law under which to work in our efforts to protect the consumer."

Sooner or later, one might add, the Administration, if it really desires to protect the consumer, will have to do battle with the publishers, and with the thus far unrebuked effrontery of the advertising "statesmen" and "artists."

After the Storm
by Lawrence Hawthorne

There's a flood o' blessed sunshine
Follows every pourin' rain,
An' we know they both 're needed
If we're goin' to harvest grain!
Underneath the winter's snowdrift,
Flowers wait t' cheer the spring;
It's when daylight drives out darkness
That the birds begin t' sing.

So it is with life, I reckon;
All the trouble that we know
An' the handicaps we're facin'
Comes our way t' help us grow.
When you've had a share o' heartache,
Or when luck's been bad, I guess
It's a mighty safe prediction
Of a spell o' happiness!



W. C. T. U. NOTES

THEN I'LL TAKE TO DRINK

When by sports with festive wink
I am asked to take a drink,
Then I'll tell them what I think.
This is what I'll say:—
When good counsels I despise,
When for truth I take to lies,
When my aspiration dies.
Then I'll take to drink.
When all virtue I reject,
When I glory in neglect,
When I've lost my self-respect,
Then I'll take to drink.
When I forfeit manhood's claim
When I'm careless of all blame,
When I've lost all sense of shame,
Then I'll take to drink.
When I've mother-love forgot
Spurning good by choosing rot,
When I want to be a sot,
Then I'll take to drink.
When I yield to Satan's spell,
And to friends have said farewell,
When I'm satisfied with Hell,
Then I'll take to drink.

Orris Root in Cosmetics May Cause Hay Fever

A good many victims of year-round "hay fever" and asthma owe their troubles to a common substance that appears in cosmetics of all kinds from tooth pastes to smelling salts.

This substance, according to a bulletin issued today by the Minnesota State Medical Association, is the orris root or orris oil used in all manner of toilet preparations. Physicians are finding more and more people, by skin test, who are sensitive to it.

Sometimes the same people are also sensitive to other substances such as pollens or dander but change of cosmetics often greatly helps if it does not entirely solve the difficulty.

Orris root comes from the root stalk of three kinds of iris which are cultivated most successfully on the northern shores of the Mediterranean and in Morocco. At San Palo in Tusany, situated among the sun-baked Florentine hills, they raise as much as a ton per acre of the roots and sell the iris blooms as well.

Orris root is useful in all kinds of toilet preparations because it has a pale flesh tint of its own and a pleasant fragrance. Also it will hold and diffuse the essences of other scents employed. Powders, perfumes, soaps, hair tonics, bath salts, rouge, liptions make use of it. particularly those of foreign manufacture.

The doctor can tell by a patch test on the skin if orris root is helping to cause the trouble. If it is, the first thing to do is to try to eliminate all preparations containing it.

Incidently, it will be of little use to change to orris-root-free cosmetics. according to the bulletin, unless the old powder puff. rugs, curtains, mattresses, furs, cloths, etc. are thoroughly cleaned and dusted to remove all traces of the substance. If it isn't possible to avoid it altogether, then de-sensitization to the substance can be undertaken and is usually satisfactory.

Owatonna May Become Model Beauty Town

Minneapolis, Aug. 27. What results purposeful efforts can have in making a community sensitive to beauty and aware of ugliness is the subject of a study of national significance that is being conducted in a Minnesota town.

Endowed by the Carnegie Corporation, the College of Education at the University of Minnesota will continue this year its community art project at Owatonna. Results of the first year, completed last spring, were called so good when the endowing foundation sent an inspector to report on the job. that $20.000 has been given to continue the work. The inspector, an art critic, said the results obtained were a sign that the project would be widely significant.

How art, by which is meant in this case an appreciation of beauty and an effort to attain it, can be helped to become part of the tradition of a community, has already been shown at Owatonna. The advisers stationed there by the university are willing to give help on any problem, from the arrangement of a garden or planting of trees, to thearchitecture of a major building, business or public, the decoration of a living room, or the arrangement of a store show window. As long as the end desired is to make a thing more attractive, or to gain a sence of what is attractive, symmetrical, harmetrical, harmonious and what is ugly distorted, or repulsive, any project falls into the scope of this study. School programs play a prominent part.

The program was first conceived of by Dean M. E. Haggerty of the College of Education. If the accomplishments are what they now promise to be the Owatonna plan may become a by word wherever community improvement projects are hatched.

MINNESOTA NEWS

St. Paul—Cattle buying in Minnesota on account of the drouth will end November 1, after approximately 400,000 head have been purchased by the government.

St. Paul—Minnesota this year will market nearly three-fourths of all the flax raised in the United States, a survey taken by state crop reporting officials revealed.

St. Paul—The Minnesota treasury is facing a $10,000,000 deficit next month, the largest in state history, according to figures compiled in the office of State Audtor Stafford King.

Fort Snelling—Aug. 24 was the 115th anniversary of the founding of Fort Snelling, but the soldiers at the post didn't do anything in particular about it. No celebration of any kind was planned.

Glencoe—Glencoe merchants will sponsor a two-day fall festival on September 28 and 29, with a pavement dance, boxing bouts, kittenball games, football, street sport and other attractions being planned.

St. Paul—Litigation involving letting of construction contracts by the state highway department nears a close as writs of injunction were filed to give the state legal title to $400,000 in contract refunds which have been in sequestration.

Duluth—In one of the most drastic economy measures in the history of the board of education here, school directors ordered the closing of six public institutions affecting more than 400 children, who will be transferred to other schools.

Baudette—Peter J. Klimek, operator of the airmail line over Lake of the woods, rescued six Twin City residents when they were stranded on a sand bar. Klimek had made his trip by launch instead of plane, and ran across the refugees.

Mankato—The pilot and his passenger, both of Chicago, were killed when their plane crashed in a field two miles southeast of here. Fay H. Freadhoff, the pilot, died on the way to a hospital, and his pasenger, Henry Pfaff, was killed instantly.

Wood Lake—A golden anniversary celebration marking the founding of Wood Lake will be conducted August 30. Sioux Indians will appear in a pageant and parades will depict the village's growth Ball games, races and a popularity contest are planned.

Henderson—Five and one-half pounds of sauerkraut, liberally seasoned with wieners and buns, brought Harry Olson of Le Sauer the northwest kraut eating championship before an estimated crowd of 15,000 persons at the annual festival here.

Minneapolis—Thirty navy enlistments will be accepted during September from Minnesota and North Dakota at the navy recruiting station in the federal building, Lieut. L. W. Mills, recruiting officer, reports. The quota for the United States during September is 700.

St. Paul—Potatoes are coming through again for Minnesota. Despite drouth, the crop is expected to be bigger than last year. There will be potatoes on every dinner plate, thousands of bushels for export and dollars in the pockets of farmers, according to the present outlook.

St. Paul—Minnesota duck hunters are warned not to exceed the new bag limit of five birds daily for canvas backs, redheads, bluebills and teals, as State Conservation Commissioner E. V. Willard received the biological survey's order governing the 1934 season hunting regulations.

St. Paul—Homer Van Meter, killer, bank bandit and gangster associate of the late John Dillinger, was shot and killed by St. Paul police. He was brought down by a round of machine gun bullets and shot gun slugs as he sought to escape from a squad of detectives by running up an alley near the state capitol.

Ortonville—Ten thousand persons jammed this community for its fourth annual corn festival. Ed Kottwitz retained his "world's corn eating championship" by putting away 37 ears. Berge Simonsen was second with 34. Mrs. L. W. Lindstrom, 72, Bigstone county farm woman, led the ladies with 28 ears.

Minneapolis—Truck strikers and their employers finally agreed on a plan for going back to work and the five-weeks strike was broken. Martial law was withdrawn from the street and conditions have returned to normal. The strike cost well over a million dollars with the cost of the national guard alone amounting to $400,000.

Minneapolis — An attempt by liquor manufacturers to ship fake liquor into the state was balked when chemists for the state liquor commission discovered 165 cases of whisky whose analysis did not conform with the original content of the whisky as declared to the liquor commission. The 165 cases were denied admittance to Minnesota and sent back to the eastern shippers.

St. Paul—Erection of a new state office building, to eliminate payment of outside rentals, was recommended by the commission of administration and finance. A $1,500,000 state office building was completed in November, 1932, but various state departments, including the highway department and the liquor commission, now occupy outsde space at rentals of more than $100,000. The commission suggested a survey of a state-owned site immediately north of the capitol. A request for federal funds was proposed for the project.

MINNESOTA NEWS

St. Paul—Cattle buying in Minnesota on account of the drouth will end November 1, after approximately 400,000 head have been purchased by the government.

St. Paul—Minnesota this year will market nearly three-fourths of all the flax raised in the United States, a survey taken by state crop reporting officials revealed.

St. Paul—The Minnesota treasury is facing a $10,000,000 deficit next month, the largest in state history, according to figures compiled in the office of State Audtor Stafford King.

Fort Snelling—Aug. 24 was the 115th anniversary of the founding of Fort Snelling, but the soldiers at the post didn't do anything in particular about it. No celebration of any kind was planned.

Glencoe—Glencoe merchants will sponsor a two-day fall festival on September 28 and 29, with a pavement dance, boxing bouts, kittenball games, football, street sport and other attractions being planned.

St. Paul—Litigation involving letting of construction contracts by the state highway department nears a close as writs of injunction were filed to give the state legal title to $400,000 in contract refunds which have been in sequestration.

Duluth—In one of the most drastic economy measures in the history of the board of education here, school directors ordered the closing of six public institutions affecting more than 400 children, who will be transferred to other schools.

Baudette—Peter J. Klimek, operator of the airmail line over Lake of the woods, rescued six Twin City residents when they were stranded on a sand bar. Klimek had made his trip by launch instead of plane, and ran across the refugees.

Mankato—The pilot and his passenger, both of Chicago, were killed when their plane crashed in a field two miles southeast of here. Fay H. Freadhoff, the pilot, died on the way to a hospital, and his pasenger, Henry Pfaff, was killed instantly.

Wood Lake—A golden anniversary celebration marking the founding of Wood Lake will be conducted August 30. Sioux Indians will appear in a pageant and parades will depict the village's growth Ball games, races and a popularity contest are planned.

Henderson—Five and one-half pounds of sauerkraut, liberally seasoned with wieners and buns, brought Harry Olson of Le Sauer the northwest kraut eating championship before an estimated crowd of 15,000 persons at the annual festival here.

Minneapolis—Thirty navy enlistments will be accepted during September from Minnesota and North Dakota at the navy recruiting station in the federal building, Lieut. L. W. Mills, recruiting officer, reports. The quota for the United Staes during September is 700.

St. Paul—Potatoes are coming through again for Minnesota. Despite drouth, the crop is expected to be bigger than last year. There will be potatoes on every dinner plate, thousands of bushels for export and dollars in the pockets of farmers, according to the present outlook.

St. Paul—Minnesota duck hunters are warned not to exceed the new bag limit of five birds daily for canvas backs, redheads, bluebills and teals, as State Conservation Commissioner E. V. Willard received the biological survey's order governing the 1934 season hunting regulations.

St. Paul—Homer Van Meter, killer, bank bandit and gangster associate of the late John Dillinger, was shot and killed by St. Paul police. He was brought down by a round of machine gun bullets and shot gun slugs as he sought to escape from a squad of detectives by running up an alley near the state capitol.

Ortonville—Ten thousand persons jammed this community for its fourth annual corn festival. Ed Kottwitz retained his "world's corn eating championship" by putting away 37 ears. Berge Simonsen was second with 34. Mrs. L. W. Lindstrom, 72, Bigstone county farm woman, led the ladies with 28 ears.

Minneapolis—Truck strikers and their employers finally agreed on a plan for going back to work and the five-weeks strike was broken. Martial law was withdrawn from the street and conditions have returned to normal. The strike cost well over a million dollars with the cost of the national guard alone amounting to $400,000.

Minneapolis — An attempt by liquor manufacturers to ship fake liquor into the state was balked when chemists for the state liquor commission discovered 165 cases of whisky whose analysis did not conform with the original content of the whisky as declared to the liquor commission. The 165 cases were denied admittance to Minnesota and sent back to the eastern shippers.

St. Paul—Erection of a new state office building, to eliminate payment of outside rentals, was recommended by the commission of administration and finance. A $1,500,000 state office building was completed in November, 1932, but various state departments, including the highway department and the liquor commission, now occupy outsde space at rentals of more than $100,000. The commission suggested a survey of a state-owned site immediately north of the capitol. A request for federal funds was proposed for the project.

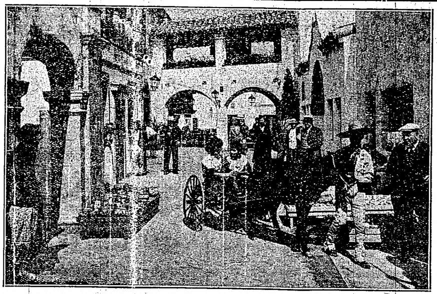
You'll Find This Only in Mexico After Oct. 31



Warmth and gayety now fill the streets of the Mexican Village, one of fifteen foreign villages at the World's Fair in Chicago, but it, too, will fall to earth under the relentless blows of the wrecker when the most successful and popular of all American expositions closes forever Oct. 31. Gigantic special events, dwarfing by comparison those which have been scheduled at the Fair, are planned for the closing weeks, when a great inrush of "last-lookers" will break attendance records. The Fair remains intact until closing day.

Mr. Eve calls attention to the fact that children not old enough to enter the first grade but who are five years old on or before March 1, 1935 may enter kindergarten at the Knox, Northrop, and Washington buildings on September 4, 1934, but that none may be enrolled later than September. Children in grades one to six will attend either the Knox, Northrop, or Washington schools. To enter the first grade on September 4, a child must be six on or before March 1, 1935.

In the grades the text books are furnished free. High school students will be charged a rental fee of $2.50 for the use of the textbooks that they need for the year. One dollar of the rental fee will be refunded at the end of the school year if and when all textbooks are returned in good condition.

Lockers are available in the Lincoln building for the high school students. Girls will be assigned a combination lock locker and the boys a key locker upon payment of a fee of 50 cents. This fee will be refunded upon return of the combination or the key at the proper time.

Information in regard to rooms boarding places, and employment for students can be obtained from Mrs. Blanche G. Korstad, Dean of Girls Those having rooms to rent to students or who wish to employ students should call Mrs. Korstad at her residence, phone 66, or office phone 696 in order that the information will be available.

Near 3,000 Nazi Storm Troopers Were Arrested

Berlin (TIS)—According to semi-official sources, arrests among the Nazi storm troop leadership totel 3,000 to 4,000. They will be brought before the newly established people's courts which represent in reality Nazi courts of terror. More than 300 leaders are expected to receive the death sentence. Executions will be carried out secretly, if they have not already taken place.

The mysterious plot of the alleged revolutionists with an unnamed foreign power still arouses great curiousity and all kinds of comment amongst the German populace. It is whispered in reliable circles that not France, as first beiived, by Yugoslavia is the power involved. Roehm, who only two months ago paid a visit to Yugoslavia, entertained ambitious foreign plans which called for a closer approach between Nazi Germany and the semi-dictatorial masters of Yogoslavia. He is said to have offered the Yugoslavian government the border country of Southern Carinthia, Austria, in return for an active and aggressive support of the Hitler regime and, presumably a military and political alliance. The offered border strip is inhabited by German and Slovenian speaking groups voted in 1920 overwhelming in favor of remaining within the Austrian state.

1600 Nazi storm troopers are at present imprisoned in the notorious concentration camp Oranieburg. Numerous murders are rumored but none can be verified due to the strict censorship of the Nazi state secret police. Incidentally, the Nazi standard leader Schaefer, former commandant of the concentration camp Oranienburg, has also taken refuge abroad. Schaefer is resposible for the torture and brutal mistreatment of the Socialist and Communist camp inmates which were glaringly exposed by the fugitive Socialist Reinchstag member Gerhard Seger. Schaefer attempted to refute Seger's substantiated charges in a recently published book, but to no avail.

Serious bloody clases between unruly storm troopers and heavily armer state police occured in the Bornhelmer Strasse, in the northeastern district of Berlin. An unknown number of participants were killed. The brown shirts have at no time disappeared from the streets of Berlin, Mainly for lack of other clothing. A new governmental forms curing themonth of July is expected soon. It simply represents an acknowledgment of these conditions.

L. A. Larson, chief clerk to the Soo Line cuperintendent at Superior visited with friends here on Monday eve.

Mr. Eve calls attention to the fact that children not old enough to enter the first grade but who are five years old on or before March 1, 1935 may enter kindergarten at the Knox, Northrop, and Washington buildings on September 4, 1934, but that none may be enrolled later than September [illegible] Children in grades one to six will attend either the Knox, Northrop, or Washington schools. To enter the first grade on September 4, a child must be six on or before March 1, 1935.

In the grades the text books are furnished free. High school students will be charged a rental fee of $2.50 for the use of the textbooks that they need for the year. One dollar of the rental fee will be refunded at the end of the school year if and when all textbooks are returned in good condition.

Lockers are available in the Lincoln building for the high school students. Girls will be assigned a combination lock locker and the boys a key locker upon payment of a fee of 50 cents. This fee will be refunded upon return of the combination or the key at the proper time.

Information in regard to rooms boarding places, and employment for students can be obtained from Mrs. Blanche G. Korstad, Dean of Girls Those having rooms to rent to students or who wish to employ students should call Mrs. Korstad at her residence, phone 66, or office phone 696 in order that the information will be available.

Near 3,000 Nazi Storm Troopers Were Arrested

Berlin (TIS)—According to semi-official sources, arrests among the Nazi storm troop leadership total 3,000 to 4,000. They will be brought before the newly established people's courts which represent in reality Nazi courts of terror. More than 300 leaders are expected to receive the death sentence. Executions will be carried out secretly, if they have not already taken place.

The mysterious plot of the alleged revolutionists with an unnamed foreign power still arouses great curiousity and all kinds of comment amongst the German populace. It is whispered in reliable circles that not France, as first belived, by Yugoslavia is the power involved. Roehm, who only two months ago paid a visit to Yogoslavia, entertained ambitious foreign plans which called for a closer approach between Nazi Germany and the semi-dictatorial masters of Yogoslavia. He is said to have offered the Yugoslavian government the border country of Southern Carinthia, Austria, in return for an active and aggressive support of the Hitler regime and, presumably a military and political alliance. The offered border strip is inhabited by German and Slovenian speaking groups voted in 1920 overwhelming in favor of remaining within the Austrian state.

1600 Nazi storm troopers are at present imprisoned in the notorious concentration camp Oranieburg. Numerous murders are rumored but none can be verified due to the strict censorship of the Nazi state secret police. Incidentally, the Nazi standard leader Schaefer, former commandant of the concentration camp Oranienburg, has also taken refuge abroad. Schaefer is resposible for the torture and brutal mistreatment of the Socialist and Communist camp inmates which were glaringly exposed by the fugitive Socialist Reinchstag member Gerhard Seger. Schaefer attempted to refute Seger's substantiated charges in a recently published book, but to no avail.

Serious bloody clases between unruly storm troopers and heavily armer state police occured in the Bornhelmer Strasse, in the northeastern district of Berlin. An unknown number of participants were killed. The brown shirts have at no time disappeared from the streets of Berlin, Mainly for lack of other clothing. A new governmental forms curing themonth of July is expected soon. It simply represents an acknowledgment of these conditions.

L. A. Larson, chief clerk to the Soo Line cuperintendent at Superior visited with friends here on Monday eve.

VOLUME THREE NUMBER 22 — THIEF RIVER FALLS, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA. — THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 6, 1934

W. W. PRICHARD PIONEER, DIES TUESDAY EVE.

Veteran Businessman and Civic Leader Founded Creamery

W. W. Prichard, Sr., a pioneer resident of this city for 33 years, passed away at his home on Tuesday evening, September 4, following a brief illness.

Mr. Prichard was 78 years at the time of his death, and was born in Slattington, Pennsylvania on October ,9 1856. As a boy he was taken by his parents to California, the family moving to Iowa in 1869, where in 1881, Mr. Prichard engaged in the grain business. Following his marriage to Miss Arita Skewis in 1884, the couple moved to Spirit Lake, Iowa later moving to Thief River Falls in 1901 where they have since made their home. With the exception of a period from 1909 to 1911 which they spent in Tacoma, Washington.

Not long after coming to this city, Mr. Prichard and associates bought a controlling interest in the Scandia State bank, converting it into the First National bank, in which he served as cashier.

In 1902 Mr. Prichard was instrumental in building the first creamery in this community, selling it in 1905 to a cooperative association of farmers. In 1909 he sold control of the First National bank, and until until his retirement in 1929, he was engaged in the lumber business in this city.

Mr. Prichard served in 1908 as president of the city council; and as a member of the board of education from 1914 to 1917, the last year serving as president.

Surviving him are his wife and nine children: W. W. Prichard, Jr. and Mrs. Hazel Halgrim of this city; Harry R. and James of Storm Lake, Iowa; Charles of Minneapolis; Mrs. A. J. Anderson of El Monte, Calif.; Mrs. Harry Fredricks of LaGrande, Oregon; Mrs. Arwood Northby of Minneapolis, and Theodore of Moscow, Idaho.

The body will lie in state at the Larson Funeral home on Friday morning from 8:30 to 10 o'clock, following which Rev. E. A. Cooke will conduct services from the funeral home at 10:30 A. M. Services will be held Saturday afternoon at Inwood, Iowa, where interment will also be made.

'Jack' Brendecke Re-Opens Shooting Gallery on LaBree

"Jack" Brendecke, (Popcorn Jack) has erected his shooting gallery on the lot adjoining the Red Owl store after having had it stored away for several years. The equipment has been repainted and put in first class condition and a full complement of new target rifles added.

Ladies are especially invited to try out the range, Mr. Brendecke says, and he offers instruction to beginners.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Fowler, daughter Dorothy and son Harry, Jr. returned Tuesday evening from the Twin Cities where they have attended the state fair and visited with friends.

HAIL RELIEF TO BE DISTRIBUTED TO CO. FARMERS

Government Relief Funds Available to Stricken Farmers

County Agent R. M. Douglass announced this week that blanks are now obtainable at his office for Hail Relief Aid to farmers who have been hailed out this year. The farmer is not eligible for this relief, however, if he has had more than 25% damage or if he has had insurance on his crop.

The maximum amount that each man can receive is $60.00, and in accepting this relief the farmer must agree to work out the money he has received. The basis for total damage is 60c an acre.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday September 6, 7, and 8, applications for this aid will be taken in the Couty Agent's office. Be sure to come in one of those days because the final day for applications will be on Saturday, September 8th, Mr. Douglass says.

Minnesota Public Health Association will Sponsor Xmas Seal Orthopedic Clinic Here

Thief River Falls is one of the twelve Minnesota communities selected for the holding of Christmas Seal Orthopedic Clinics. Announcement has been received from the Minnesota Public Health Association that arrangements are now under way for this clinic which will be held late in September. The definite date will be announced next week.

The clinic will be sponsored locally by the Pennington County Public Health Association and Miss Eunice Lindgren, R. N., school nurse in Thief River Falls is in charge of local arrangements.

Women's organizations of the city are cooperating in arrangements. The committee in charge of arrangements is as follows: Eunice Lindgren, Dr. B. C. Bernard, Mrs. Theo. Quale, Mrs. Chas. Froats, Mr. A. C. Matheson, Mrs. Thelma Holm Erickson, all of Thief River Falls, and Mrs. Geo. W. Cristie and Miss Erba Pouliot of Red Lake Falls.

Approximately 500 crippled children and adults have been examined at the seven clinics held previously in the state under the direction of the State Christmas Seal organizaion. The other clinics have been held at Eveleth Brainerd, McIntosh, Crookston, Long Prairie, Roseau and Detroit Lakes.

The clinic offers the opportunity for medical examination and occupational advice for physically handicapped individuals.

Representatives of the Minnesota Division of Reeducation and the Gillette State Hospital for Crippled Children will be in attendance at the Clinic. The examiner will be a member of the Minnesota Orthopecis Club which consists of physicians who specialize in the diagnosis and treatment of physical deformities.

NRS Has Openings for Girls Seeking Work

Girls who do housework are in great demand at the local National Reemployment Service office. Those interested should immediately call or get in touch with the office, county manager, Howard Davidson announced.

BOTHUN TO OPEN A SECOND CAFE ON MAIN

It has been announced by Martin Bothun, proprietor, that the new log Cabin Tavern, adjacent to the north of the present Palm Garden Cafe in the Bothun building, will open for business around Saturday, September 22nd.

Wall decorations in the tavern portray scenes of outdoor life, while the sky will be reproduced in the ceiling The booths and bar will be finished in knotty pine carrying out the out-of-door spirit. A realistic log cabin accomodating 24 persons will be reproduced in the rear of the room and will be available for private parties.

A wide archway in the front of the building will connect the tavern with the Palm Garden Cafe.

HEALTH CHECK-UP IS URGED FOR ALL PUPILS

The most important preparation for school is not new shoes and a haircut according to the Public Health Education Committee of the Minnesota State Medical Association in a statement issued today.

It is the assurance from the family doctor that the proud owner and opoperator of the shoes is healthy and fit for a hard year at school.

A thorough yearly physical examination for the youngsters should be a part of every family's plans in the opinion of all medical and educational authorities who deal with children.

Inqniry into the difficulties of a large percentage of the children who come to grief in school leads straight to some physical disability, and usually a disability that can be corrected if it is found early and properly treated.

Defective eyes, defective hearing, under-nourishment, bad teeth and a host of other ailments that afflict children seriously handicap them in competition with other fitter fellows at school. They lay the foundation for failure, unhappiness and behaviour troubles later on.

"Through summer," according to this bulletin, "is the ideal time to check up on every youngster no matter how robust he seems to be, sure he is not going back to school with an unnecessary physical burden to bear. It is not yet too late, to ckeck Johnnie's health before he is deep in the routine of school."

OEN MERCANTILE CO. SPONSORS TRACTOR DEMONSTRATION SAT.

There will be a John Deere tractor demonstration at one o'clock Saturday on the Oen farm which is 2 miles south of the city on state aid highway no. 1 east of the river.

State Examiner Will Make Audit of Books of School Dist. No. 18

A. J. Linden, examiner from the state comptroller's office is in the city for the purpose of making an audit of the school district.

The audit is being made in response to a request made by a group of taxpayers for an official survey of the district's activities covering the past several years.

Disarmament Meeting to be Held at Court Room Tues.

Local people interested in world peace and disarmament are invited to attend a meeting at the courthouse on Tuesday, September 11 at 8 p.m. the purpose o fthe meeting being to elect delegates to the Congress of Universal Peace which will be held on September 28, 29, and 30 in Chicago.

School Attendance Decreases Slightly

The local school system passed its opening day for another year of school on Tuesday, September 4 with the total enrollment in the high school and grade schools being 1,346, which was 65 less than the total of 1,411 for last year. Sixteen students are enrolled in the teacher's training department.

The opening enrollment in the city schools on Tuesday with the comparative figures of last years is as follows:

Lincoln High School	540	586
Central	181	207

FIRST NATIONAL BANK PAYS 2ND DIVIDEND; 78 PCT

Total of 85 Percent Paid by Innstitution Closed a Year Ago

The receiver of the First National Bank of this city, announced yesterday that a 78 percent dividend has been declared and will be paid by his trust as soon as the checks are returned from Washington, D. C.

This makes a total of 85 percent that this bank has paid since closing 7 per cent being paid last spring.

The receiver announces that notice will be given thru the press when the checks arrive and creditors may then call for them at the bank

No distribution can be made, however, the receiver points out, before the Receiver's certificate is presented.

Motorists Safety Pledge Cards Are Being Signed Up

A large number of motorists' safety pledge cards have been signed by local citizens to date according to W. H. Quist, chairman of the local public safety committee.

The words contained on the pledge cards which the drivers sign to obtain the "Honor Token" is as follows: "Safe driving follows from courtesy and common sense behind the wheel of motor vehicle in good condition."

Local police have this week been testing brakes and lights, preparatory to "Help make Minnesota the safest state."

Miss Verna Becker left Sunday evening for St. Paul where she will attend the State Fair.

Morris Kapland. Bemidji Socialist Enters Race for U. S. Senate Against Shipstead

Affirming the news dispatches of Friday that petitions were being circulated to place his name on the ballot for United States Senator on the Socialist ticket, Morris Kaplan, issued a statement outlining the reasons why this move was made by his party. Mr. Kaplan in his statement says:

"We Socialists are political idealists. We know that the present economic system has become topheavy and is now in its stage of disintegretion. We know that individualism has had its day and has been found wanting. We know that Socialism, or to put it more specifically, Cooperative ownership by all the people of all the Social means of Production, Destruction, and Exchange is the inevitable and necessary next step in economic evolution, if society is to progress.

"We have no time to waste chasing rainbows, or to expend energy suggesting picayune reforms. We are not interested in the political aspirations of individuals no matter who or what they may be.

"When we nominate candidates for political office it is only because in that way it enables us to bring our ideals before the people so that they may hear and get to understand our philosophy. We aim to build the future society, the future civilization, along constructive lines that will as far as possible avoid the pangs of revolutionary trife. We believe in legistic methods, but we also know that a "ruling class never voluntarily surrenders its privileges"

"We are satisfied with the Farmer-Labor platform as adopted at their state convention as it is an out and out socialist platform, but we are not satisfied with the philandering and the evasions of many of the candidate nominated by the Farmer-Labor party when asked as to how they stand with reference to the platform.

We believe that it is the wise and the manly thing to stand squarely on the platform and it is because it shows a lack of sincereity on the part of some of the leaders and the fear that they will lose some votes of people who are not economically grounded that they now try to straddle the issues. "We believe that the man who does not stand squarely upon the platform of the party the has nominated him is not honest to his party and not honest to the people and deserves a defeat. We are decidedly not interested in boosting a few individuals into political office at the expense of the great mass of impoverished wealth producers.

We intend to challenge every candidate of every political party who does not recognize the existance of the Class conflict, to debate the fundamental issues of capitalistic individualism versus democratized collectiveism. We are collectiveists and are even prepared to meet all comers to prove the logic of our ideals. These are the reasons why we have nominated candidates. There are no personal reasons involved.

With us, principle is everything, and individuals are mere incidents in the pathway toward a higher and better civilization.

Third Annual Farmer-Labor Picnic to be Held Sunday

Legion aux. Drum Corps to Appear on the after-Noon Program

CHAMP VEGA TEAM TO MEET FARMERS

Prominent Speakers are on Afternoon Speaking Program

The third annual Pennington County Farmer-Labor picnic will be held at Thief River Falls on Sunday, September 9th at the picnic grounds located southwest of Greenwood cemetery on State Aid Road No. 2.

In the program beginning at 11 A. M. the following outstanding speakers are included: James E. Montague, Judge of the 14th Judicial District; R. T Buckler, Farmer-Labor candidate for Congress; Lieuteant Governor K. K. Solberg, candidate for Secretary of State; and Charles Munn, Speaker of the House of Representatives and candidate for Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner.

At noon a picnic dinner will be eaten, with free coffee and cream being served by the local Farmer-Labor club. Refreshment stands will be maintained on the grounds for the convenience of those not bringing their own lunches.

Races and stunts, under the direction of Mr. Messenger, athletic director of the ERA, will begin at 12 noon, and prizes will be awarded to the winners of the different events.

Of interest to the local kittenball fans will be the game in the afternoon between the Vega team of Marshall County, who are the district champions, and the Farmers, a championship team of this community.

A special feature of the day will be the appearance of the local American Legion Auxiliary drum corps which has won so much favor throughout this territory.

Rebekahs, Attention!

Practice Monday evening, Sept. 10th at the Odd Fellows hall at 7:30, for the regular officers and those who take part in the memorial work for the district meeting.

Regular meeting of the Rebekahs on Thursday, Sept. 13, and our new assembly president, Mrs. Lena Nelson of Wilmar, will be present. The meeting is to be called promptly at 8 o'clock.

The district meeting of the Rebekan lodge will be held at Warren on Tuesday, Sept. 18. Those planning on attending the banquet should call Mrs. Myrtle Stenberg, phone 231, by Sept. 13th.

Junior Farmer-Labor Club Being Organized

A state organizer for the Junior Farmer-Labor Clubs of Minnesota was in the city this week making arrangements for the formation of a Junior Farmer-Labor club in this city.

The young men and women of Minnesota are becoming increasingly interested in politics, he stated, and in the face of the depression with its accompanying scarcity of jobs they will demand some concerted action looking towards setting up a society wherein it will not only be possible to get a good education, but also be possible to make constructive use of the knowledge after it has been secured "We can't all become doormen at the cabarets." he said smiling, "and that is about the only jobs there are left for college graduates."

The junior association affords an opportunity for the young people to have their own organization where they can feel more free to enter into political discussions than they would when becoming members of an organization composed of older people.

Cooperating with the organizer in this city are; Leonard Harris and Arthur A. Johnson.

Locomotive Engineers will Meet Sunday, September 9

The regular meeting of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers will be held Sunday, Sept. 9 at the Odd Fellows hall, according to an announcement made by H. Halland this week. All members are requested to be present.

Rural Credits Dept. Plans Tenant Meet

Theodore Arens of St. Paul, Conservator of the department of rural credit, and Kent Holen, in charge of sales, met last Thursday evening with the agricultural committee of the Civic and Commerce association and made plans for a meeting in this city this fall of the tenants of the rural credit farms in Norhwestern, Minnesota.

Mr. Arens states that the territory served by the local office of the rural credit department includes about 700 farms owned by the bureau, and 400 loans now in force representing a total investment of about $4,000,000. Last year the local office collected $102,000 in rents and nearly as much in interest according to Mr. Arens.

Roy Berg of the Crookston N.R.S. Office spent Wednesday in the city on matters of business.

New Ordinance Gets Second Readiug at Tuesday's Meeting

Only routine matter was taken up by the city council at its meeting last Tuesday evening. Prior to opening the meeting the possibility of eliminating the sewer odors along Riverside avenue was discussed. Among other things the feasibility of extending the east side sewer to cross the river and spill ino the same channel as the west side outlet was taken up. It was pointed out that the small channel along the east bank carries no water but only sewage and that if it could be carried across a quicker disposal would be possible.

The ordinance extending the closing hours for pool halls till one o'clock was given its second reading.

Attention was called to the fact that there are several partly burned buildings standing in the city which should be razed since they constitute a fire hazard. The city attorney agreed to look into the possibility of getting them removed.

Farmer-Labor Opens Campaign This Week

The state Farmer-Labor campaign headquarters opened this week with quarters at 214 Hamm building in the heart of the St. Paul loop district. State Senator Emil L. Regnier, Marshall will direct the activities of the party's workers as campaign manager.

"Our compaign this year, like those conducted in the past, will be one of principles and issues involved, and not one of personalities," Senator Regnier announced in opening the party's drive for success at the election nine weeks off. "Ours is the fight between the people and the monopolistic interests.

"It is our intention to enter every section of the state, where our speakers will expound the doctrines of the party. We are confident that the result of the election will show that the masses are sympathetic with the Farmer-Labor aim to solve the reactionary system which has plundered the wealth of the nation to the advantage of the few and the constant enslavement of the vast majority of the people."

Farmer-Labor candidates seeking election at the polls November 6 are: Governor Floyd B. Olson; United States Senator Henrik Shipstead; Hjalmar Peterson, Lt. Governor; K. K. Solberg, Secretary of state; John T. Lyons, State Auditor; A. H. Kleffman, State Treasurer; Charles Munn, Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner.

Borgen Players Return to Play a Fall Engagement

The Borgen Players who played to Thief River Falls audiences last season at the Sons of Norway hall with much favorable comment, will play a return engagement at the same hall on Wednesday, Sept. 12, to be followed by presentations there on each of the next three ensuing Wednesdays.

The Borgens have just closed a successful summer season under canvas, having put away their tent theatre last week.

SURVEY SHOWS BUSINESS GAIN

U. S. Chamber of Commerce Analyzes Condition as Unusually Favorable.

Washington—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States reported that business conditions were unusually favorable. In its fortnightly summary, it said midsummer conditions had the advantage of an export gain in the first half of the year. It noted particularly the increase of domestic imports of raw materials—usually forecasting domestic activity. The chamber also told of increases in pay rolls, carloadings and department store sales.

In concluding that business had shown evidence of strength in the face of adverse factors, the chamber added, that drouth over great areas, strikes and rumors of strikes, a fast oncoming political campaign, and public emphasis upon the magnitude of the burden of relief are among depressing influences which might have caused a reaction in business activity. Yet, exports in the first six months of 1934 brought 55 per cent more than the same period the year before and imports cost 40 per cent more

Carloadngs ran a good eighth over these of the first half of last year, and industrial production was up by 18 per cent and on a parity with 1931—and 30 per cent over the corresponding part of 1932—employment was substantially higher, sales of department stores advanced, and other general indices were equally favorable.

Pay roll disbursements by manufacturing establishments in each of the first six months of 1934 exceeded disbursements not only for the corresponding month of 1933 but also for he corresponding month of 1932. Electric power output was in August of this year about 12 per cent higher than for August 1933. Most of the indicators which can be obtained during the month suggest that there has this year been no such recession in August as occurred last year in August, 1933.

Evangeline Booth Elected Army Head

London — Commander Evangeline Booth, 68, was elected general and commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army. In selecting her the 47 delegates from 22 countries making up the army's high council not only paid tribute to her record, but voted, as well, for restoration of the Booth dynasty that, beginning in 1867 when General William Booth founded the army, held sway over the organization until five years ago, when the high council ousted General William Bramwell Booth, the founder's son, on grounds of ill health.

Shoemaker Hires Ex-Wife as Clerk.

Washington—Instead of alimony, Mrs. Lydgia Shoemaker got a clerk's job in the Washington office of her husband, Congressman Francis H. Shoemaker, when she divorced him recently. A Stevens Point, Wis., court that granted her the divorce ordered alimony at $200 a month. Shoemaker obtained a clerkship in his office for her at $156 a month, reducing his contribution to her support to $1 a week. Mrs. Shoemaker charged infidelity and cruel and inhuman treatment.

Faces on Currency

Portraits appearing on currency are: One dollar, Washington; $2, Jefferson; $5, Lincoln; $10, Hamilton; $20, Jackson; $50, Grant; $100, Franklin; $500, McKinley; $1,000, Cleveland; $5,000, Madison; $10,000, Chase.

State Will Protect Indians In Rice Lake Project

Assurance was voiced to Washington authorities that the state would protect the interests of Chippewa Indians in the Lower Rice Lake conservation project, which will include maintaining an adequate water level and forest management opportunities. Better facilities for raising wild rice a vital food and revenue scource for indians, will result. Wild life will be particularly benefited.

Ind. Bankers are Low Bidders on R. Credit Bonds

T. H. Arens, Conservator of the Rural Credit Department, effected savings of over $10,000 to his department when $845,000 in certificates of indebtedness were purchased by the Independent Bankers' Association at the low interest rate of 1.6 per cent.

Previously the Rural Credit Department was obligated to pay an interest on its certificates of indebtedness of 4.01 per cent. The Independent Bankers' Association, and organization of small Minnesota banks were low on the bid, which is considered by financial authorities as an all-time low for interest rates on short time investments.

These certificates of indebtedness were floated by the Rural Credit Department for the purpose of meeting an oustanding issue of certificates which mature September 1

Ask Right to Exchange Lands as Forestry Aid

Voters of Minnesota's three major political parties are asked to support the proposed constitutional amendment which would, if adopted authorize the exchange of state lands for federal or privately-owned lands as the legislature may provide. The appeal was voiced by E. V. Willard, Commissioner of Conservation, in a letter to chairmen of the state control central committees of the Farmer-Labor, Democrat and Republican parties. The amendment will be voted upon at the general election on Tuesday, November 6. It follows:

"Any of the public lands of the state, including lands held in trust for any purpose, may, with the approval of a Commission consisting of the Governor, the Attorney General and the State Auditor, be exchanged for lands of the United States ond other privately-owned lands, as the legislature may provide—and the lands so acquired shall be subject to the trust, if any, to which lands exchanged therefore were subject, and the state shall reserve all mineral and water power rights in lands so transferred by the state."

"Minnesota's program of consolidating forest lands within legally established state forests will be benefitted and federal forestry authorizes will be enabled to combine areas within national forests," Mr. Willard said. "More effective and economical forest management will result."

Survey to Decide Winter Fishing

Lakes that will be closed and which open to the various kinds of winter fishing and netting of white fish will be determined by a survey of Game and Fish. Lake conditions are being investigated by state game wardens and state-owned fish hatchery employees.

Last winter 113 lakes and streams in 35 counties were closed wholly or in part to any manner of fishing; 127 lakes and streams in 25 counties permitted the use of fish-houses for spearing of whitefish, tullibees, suckers, pickerel, redhorse, bullheads, herring and tullibees, including all carp and eelspout but banned angling; 129 lakes and streams in 26 counties were closed to the use of fish-houses and spearing but angling was allowed 174 lakes and streams in 17 counties were closed to netting of whitefish, herring and tullibees, ulincding all lakes in Morrison County and all in Douglas Caunty with the exception of 10.

Christgau Announces Football Schedule at the Northwest Ag. School

An attractive schedule of five games has been arranged by R. J. Christgau, athletic coach at the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston, for the 1934 Aggie football season. More than fifty candidates are expected to report for the opening practice October 1. Ten lettermen from the 1933 squad plus ten members of last year's reserves will be on hand for the first sessions Candidates will immediately plunge into stiff workouts for the opening encounter of the 1934 season, which is scheduled for October 5 against Minot Teachers' College at Minot, North Dakota.

Three conference games will be played by the Crookston Aggies. The Morris aggies, traditional rivals, will furnish the opposition to the Christgau-coached eleven as a feature of the annual Northwest School Home Coming program on the Crookston campus, Saturday, October 20. The Grand Rapids aggies and the Park River (North Dakota) aggies, members of the Agricultural School conference, will provide the opposition in the other 1934 conference games. The final encounter of the season finds the Crookston team pitted against the strong Bemidji Teachers' eleven in the seventh annual contest between the two schools

Candidates for this year's team will be led by Captain Ralph Sheldon of Bagley. Sheldon is expected to hold down one of the halfback posts where he starred in 1932 and '33 seasons. Other lettermen who will be returning are Stanley Alseth, Fox; Torleif Bee, McIntosh; Richard Jaranson, Pitt; Edson Washburn, Crookston; Gilbert Gunderson, Dalton; Arne Nelson, Twin Valley; Noel Hanson, Detroit Lakes; Elmer Ross Fisher, and George Kotrsing, Waubun. Members of the 1933 reserves who are expected to put up a strong fight for positions on the 1934 team are Gilmore Alseth, Fox; Paul Billberg, Wannaska; Donald Gandrdud Detroit Lakes; Ray Oen, Thief River Falls; Tilford Strand, Twin Valley; Clarence Stromberg, Rosewood; Peter Tandberg, Newfolden; Glenn Tasa Trail, Marcus Wolden, Fergus Falls and Roland Wentzel, Fisher.

Motorists Lose Driving Rights

The drivers license bureau of the state highway department has revoked the licenses of 376 motorists and has suspended the licenses of 159 others on recommendatoin of the courts, says a highway department bulletin. This means that 535 motorists lost the right to drive.

"Never in any instance has the bureau failed to suspend a license when such action was recommended by a court," said Gil Carmichael, director of the bureau. "Never in any instance have we failed to revoke a receipt of notice that its holder had been convicted of drunken driving or any other offense specified in the law as cause for mandatory revocation. Every suspension has been for the full time recommended by the court.

"The bureau has in its files, 3,24 convictions for traffic law violations of which 2,711 are for minor violations not punishable by revocation and on which the courts made no recommendation for suspension. However, every conviction is entered on the driver's record for reference in case he gets in trouble with the law again."

New Tax Bill Will Be Worked Out.

Washington — The administration will be forced to ask the next congress to enact a $500,000,000 tax bill in January because numerous levies now returning that sum to the treasury will expire on July 1, 1935. Already there is some talk on capitol hill about reviving the once defeated general sales tax to replace the existing so-called nuisance levies. Unless the administration recommends the proposition, however, the chances for its adoption are considered slim.

Largest Gold Shipment Now Made.

San Francisco—One of the great movements of gold in the history of the world was accomplished when ingots of the yellow metal, variously estimated as worth from $1,500,000,000 to $2,250,000,000, were sent to the Denver mint from the San Francisco mint under a heavy guard of picked soldiers.

Series Set Between Giants and Tigers

Detroit, Mich.—As far as the management of the Detroit ball club is concerned, the world series is all set for their park. Defying all jinxes, Owner Frank Navin has ordered some changes in his baseball plant to increase the seating capacity for the big meeting with the New York Giants.

Half of Schools in No. Dak. May Close

Bismarck, N. D.—More than half the elementary and high schools in North Dakota may have to close this year, unless federal aid is forthcoming, R. B. Murphy, deputy superintendent of public instruction warned.

Blind Man and Dog Scale Mt. Hood.

Government Camp, Ore.—Although he is totally blind, Ed G. Robbins, publisher of a Portland weekly newspaper, has realized his ambition of climbing Mt. Hood. Aided by his police dog he made the climb.

Talcot Chain is Proposed as a Bird Sanctuary

A public shooting grounds and refuge for migratory waterfowl comprising about 3,000 acres in the Talcot Lake area in southwestern Minnesota has been proposed to federal authorities by E. V. Willard. Commissioner of Conservation. It is recomended that this project be included under the President's plan for the restoration of wild life. Land acquisition and necessary improvements would be taken care of by federal funds in the event the project is approved.

The Talcot Lake chaim, in southwestern Cottonwood and southeastern Murray counties is loctated between Fulda and Jackson. The Des Moines River, starting in Lake Shetek, flows through the chain, assuring adequate water that could be increased by conservating runoff from a satisfactory water basin.

"A major conservation area for southwestern Minnesota has been planned for 1935 by the Minnesota Conservation Commission," Mr. Willard said. "A survey revealed Talcot Lake and connecting lakes as the best available location for such a project with organized sportsmen heartily endorsing the proposal."

College Life is Analysed by 'U' Bulletin

A frank and revealing analysis of "The purpose of college training" is being printed this year in the general information bulletin of the University of Minnesota, which goes to all applicants for admission. It points out the goals that can be reached by college training, the differences between the several lines of educational effort that one may choose among on entering the university.

"Each must decide for himself whether he should go to college," says this statement. "This decision is to be made only in the light of his interests, desires, skills, and abilities and by determining what he wants out of life. Human beings differ markedly from one another. A few are best suited for lifelong study and research in library and laboratory; some for public service as in teaching law, and governmental work; some for science as in medicine and engineering; some for management and administration in business; some for combination of these with outdoor interests as in agriculture and forestry. But there is no short road in and of these these things.

A college degree in any of these fields guarantees neither job nor success in the job if one is procured. Particularly is this true in modern society wherein jobs are scarce, unemployment is widespread, and competition is hard tnd keen. To meet such competition in the professions a student must devote all his time and energy over a considerable period of years to both general and special preparation, to building himself up in knowledge, skill, and power to analyze and apply what he learns to real situations and problems.

College, university, and graduate professional study are offered primarily for those who have these qualities and who want intensily to become leaders in the field of their choice But that most people do not realy want to become leaders is indicated by the fact that even in college a large proportion do not concentrate on preparation for leadership.

There is much truth in the statement that most people fundamentally desire to live simply. They do not want to assume heavy burdens of responsibility. They really wish rather to strike a balance in their living, using their job as support for their marriage, home, social and recreational activities.

On the other hand, some students desire to become leaders in a special field but do not have the combination of special skills and abilities which may be trained by the educational process for accomplishment. It is therefore, necessary for each student to find out all he can about about himself."

Typhoid Danger Increased by Water Shortage

One of the most dangerous specters to stalk in the wake of drouth is typhoid fever.

Physicians of the Minnesota State Medical association issued a special warning this week to those in the drouth areas who are responsible for providing water supplies, whether individuals or community officials, to keep a sharp lookout for typhoid.

A sharp rise in the disease has been reported in a number of middle western states that have suffered from lack of rain according to the bulletin.

That indicates a possibility that, with water becoming scarce and the necessity for looking about for new sources of supply, authorities may have relaxed their watchfulness to keep the water pure.

"In former times, drouth always meant typhoid fever. In the scarcity of water, people drank from contaminated supplies and pestilence was not slow in following.

"Nowadays there is no excuse for allowing the disaster of disease epidemics to add unnecessary tragedy to the disaster of drouth.

"It is always possible to purify the drinking water supply even if the customary source runs dry and it is necessary to find new ones.

Individuals are as responsible as community officials for seeing that their families have good drinking water, the physicians warn. If they are not absolutely certain of their water, they can always boil it for drinking and be safe.

In Minnesota, a total of 74 cases of typhoid fever has been reported so far this year with 12 deaths. Last year the number from January to July was 45 with 7 deaths.

Safety Means More Business From Tourists

That a reputation for safe driving on Minnesota highways has a commericial value to the state is brought out in a communication from the safety division of the state emergency relief administration, quoting L. G. Foley, member of the state board of control. Some excerpts from a talk on this subject made by him recently, present safety values in a new light.

"Danger" is the sign he would have put up on Minnesota highways. He said he was not thinking of physical conditions of roads—such as new gravelling, a newly-oiled condition, or that sort of thing. What he referred to, he said, was the fact that careless and irresponsible drivers of motor vehicles make the highways dangerous.

Minnesota is host to thousands of motoring visitors every summer and the state should give a host's protection and courtesy to its guests, Mr. Foley suggested. The safety education program inaugurated by Governor Olson and sponsored by the safety division SERA should mean primarily that highways and streets should be made so safe, by all drivers of motor vehicles, that no visitor will have his vacation marred by acicdent, he stated.

"If Minnesota drivers use courtesy and common sense and keep their cars in safe mechanical condition," he said, "our highways and streets will be fit to entertain our visitors. None of them will go home with a vacation darkened by accident. They will carry back from Minnesota a fine impression of safe highways and uniform driving courtesy as well as memories of scenic beauty."

Gull's Eggs Pointed

A gull's egg is shaped differently from that of a hen, being much more pointed. This is a characteristic of all cliff-nesting birds. If the egg rolls, it rolls only in a small circle, and seldom or never can be rolled off a cliff by any accident or by wind.

Ostrich Egg "Steaks"

An ostrich egg is boiled by the Boer family for between two and three hours, and is shelled. "Steaks" are cut off it, and it is kept in a refrigerator. One ostrich egg lasts a week or so for a family. In the meantime, excess eggs are gathered fresh and eaten by slices, after having been hard boiled.

Pay roll disbursements by manufacturing establishments in each of the first six months of 1934 exceeded disbursements not only for the corresponding month of 1933 but also for he corresponding month of 1932. Electric power output was in August of this year about 12 per cent higher than for August 1933. Most of the indicators which can be obtained during the month suggest that there has this year been no such recession in August as occurred last year in August, 1933.

Evangeline Booth Elected Army Head

London — Commander Evangeline Booth, 68, was elected general and commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army. In selecting her the 47 delegates from 22 countries making up the army's high council not only paid tribute to her record, but voted, as well, for restoration of the Booth dynasty that, beginning in 1867 when General William Booth founded the army, held sway over the organization until five years ago, when the high council ousted General William Bramwell Booth, the founder's son, on grounds of ill health.

Shoemaker Hires Ex-Wife as Clerk.

Washington—Instead of alimony, Mrs. Lydgia Shoemaker got a clerk's job in the Washington office of her husband, Congressman Francis H. Shoemaker, when she divorced him recently. A Stevens Point, Wis., court that granted her the divorce ordered alimony at $200 a month. Shoemaker obtained a clerkship in his office for her at $156 a month, reducing his contribution to her support to $1 a week. Mrs. Shoemaker charged infidelity and cruel and inhuman treatment.

Faces on Currency

Portraits appearing on currency are: One dollar, Washington; $2, Jefferson; $5, Lincoln; $10, Hamilton; $20, Jackson; $50, Grant; $100, Franklin; $500, McKinley; $1,000, Cleveland; $5,000, Madison; $10,000, Chase.

State Will Protect Indians In Rice Lake Project

Assurance was voiced to Washington authorities that the state would protect the interests of Chippewa Indians in the Lower Rice Lake conservation project, which will include maintaining an adequate water level and forest management opportunities. Better facilities for raising wild rice a vital food and revenue scource for indians, will result. Wild life will be particularly benefited.

Ind. Bankers are Low Bidders on R. Credit Bonds

T. H. Arens, Conservator of the Rural Credit Department, effected savings of over $10,000 to his department when $845,000 in certificates of indebtedness were purchased by the Independent Bankers' Association at the low interest rate of 1.6 per cent.

Previously the Rural Credit Department was obligated to pay an interest on its certificates of indebtedness of 4.01 per cent. The Independent Bankers' Association, and organization of small Minnesota banks were low on the bid, which is considered by financial authorities as an all-time low for interest rates on short time investments.

These certificates of indebtedness were flouted by the Rural Credit Department for the purpose of meeting an oustanding issue of certificates which mature September 1

Ask Right to Exchange Lands as Forestry Aid

Voters of Minnesota's three major political parties are asked to support the proposed constitutional amendment which would, if adopted authorize the exchange of state lands for federal or privately-owned lands as the legislature may provide. The appeal was voiced by E. V. Willard, Commissioner of Conservation, in a letter to chairmen of the state control central committees of the Farmer-Labor, Democrat and Republican parties. The amendment will be voted upon at the general election on Tuesday, November 6. It follows:

"Any of the public lands of the state, including lands held in trust for any purpose, may, with the approval of a Commission consisting of the Governor, the Attorney General and the State Auditor, be exchanged for lands of the United States ond other privately-owned lands, as the legislature may provide—and the lands so acquired shall be subject to the trust, if any, to which lands exchanged therefore were subject, and the state shall reserve all mineral and water power rights in lands so transferred by the state."

"Minnesota's program of consolidating forest lands within legally established state forests will be benefitted and federal forestry authorizes will be enabled to combine areas within national forests," Mr. Willard said. "More effective and economical forest management will result."

Survey to Decide Winter Fishing

Lakes that will be closed and which open to the various kinds of winter fishing and netting of white fish will be determined by a survey of Game and Fish. Lake conditions are being investigated by state game wardens in state-owned fish hatchery employees.

Last winter 113 lakes and streams in 35 counties were closed wholly or in part to any manner of fishing; 127 lakes and streams in 25 counties permitted the use of fish-houses for spearing of whitefish, tullibees, suckers, pickerel, redhorse, bullheads, herring and tullibees, including all carp and eelspout but banned angling; 129 lakes and streams in 26 counties were closed to the use of fish-houses and spearing but angling was allowed 174 lakes and streams in 17 counties were closed to netting of whitefish, herring and tullibees, ulincding all lakes in Morrison County and all in Douglas County with the exception of 10.

An attractive schedule of five games has been arranged by R. J. Christgau, athletic coach at the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston, for the 1934 Aggie football season. More than fifty candidates are expected to report for the opening practice October 1. Ten lettermen from the 1933 squad plus ten members of last year's reserves will be on hand for the first sessions Candidates will immediately plunge into stiff workouts for the opening encounter of the 1934 season, which is scheduled for October 5 against Minot Teachers' College at Minot, North Dakota.

Three conference games will be played by the Crookston Aggies. The Morris aggies, traditional rivals, will furnish the opposition to the Christgau-coached eleven as a feature of the annual Northwest School Home Coming program on the Crookston campus, Saturday, October 20. The Grand Rapids aggies and the Park River (North Dakota) aggies, members of the Agricultural School conference, will provide the opposition in the other 1934 conference games. The final encounter of the season finds the Crookston team pitted against the strong Bemidji Teachers' eleven in the seventh annual contest between the two schools

Candidates for this year's team will be led by Captain Ralph Sheldon of Bagley. Sheldon is expected to hold down one of the halfback posts where he starred in 1932 and '33 seasons. Other lettermen who will be returning are Stanley Alseth, Fox; Torleif Bee, McIntosh; Richard Jaranson, Pitt; Edson Washburn, Crookston; Gilbert Gunderson, Dalton; Arne Nelson, Twin Valley; Noel Hanson, Detroit Lakes; Elmer Ross Fisher, and George Kotrsing, Waubun. Members of the 1933 reserves who are expected to put up a strong fight for positions on the 1934 team are Gilmore Alseth, Fox; Paul Billberg, Wannaska; Donald Gandrdud Detroit Lakes; Ray Oen, Thief River Falls; Tilford Strand, Twin Valley; Clarence Stromberg, Rosewood; Peter Tandberg, Newfolden; Glenn Tasa Trail, Marcus Wolden, Fergus Falls and Roland Wentzel, Fisher.

Motorists Lose Driving Rights

The drivers license bureau of the state highway department has revoked the licenses of 376 motorists and has suspended the licenses of 159 others on recommendatoin of the courts, says a highway department bulletin. This means that 535 motorists lost the right to drive.

"Never in any instance has the bureau failed to suspend a license when such action was recommended by a court," said Gil Carmichael, director of the bureau. "Never in any instance have we failed to revoke a receipt of notice that its holder had been convicted of drunken driving or any other offense specified in the law as cause for mandatory revocation. Every suspension has been for the full time recommended by the court.

"The bureau has in its files, 3,24 convictions for traffic law violations of which 2,711 are for minor violations not punishable by revocation and on which the courts made no recommendation for suspension. However, every conviction is entered on the driver's record for reference in case he gets in trouble with the law again."

New Tax Bill Will Be Worked Out.

Washington — The administration will be forced to ask the next congress to enact a $500,000,000 tax bill in January because numerous levies now returning that sum to the treasury will expire on July 1, 1935. Already there is some talk on capitol Hill about reviving the once defeated general sales tax to replace the existing so-called nuisance levies. Unless the administration recommends the proposition, however, the chances for its adoption are considered slim.

Largest Gold Shipment Now Made.

San Francisco—One of the great movements of gold in the history of the world was accomplished when ingots of the yellow metal, variously estimated as worth from $1,500,000,000 to $2,250,000,000, were sent to the Denver mint from the San Francisco mint under a heavy guard of picked soldiers.

Talcot Chain is Proposed as a Bird Sanctuary

A public shooting grounds and refuge for migratory waterfowl comprising about 3,000 acres in the Talcot Lake area in southwestern Minnesota has been proposed to federal authorities by E. V. Willard. Commissioner of Conservation. It is recomended that this project be included under the President's plan for the restoration of wild life. Land acquisition and necessary improvements would be taken care of by federal funds in the event the project is approved.

The Talcot Lake chaim, in southwestern Cottonwood and southeastern Murray counties is loctated between Fulda and Jackson. The Des Moines River, starting in Lake Shetek, flows through the chain, assuring adequate water that could be increased by conservating runoff from a satisfactory water basin.

"A major conservation area for southwestern Minnesota has been planned for 1935 by the Minnesota Conservation Commission," Mr. Willard said. "A survey revealed Talcot Lake and connecting lakes as the best available location for such a project with organized sportsmen heartily endorsing the proposal."

College Life is Analysed by 'U' Bulletin

A frank and revealing analysis of "The purpose of college training" is being printed this year in the general information bulletin of the University of Minnesota, which goes to all applicants for admission. It points out the goals that can be reached by college training, the differences between the several lines of educational effort that one may choose among on entering the university.

"Each must decide for himself whether he should go to college," says this statement. "This decision is to be made only in the light of his interests, desires, skills, and abilities and by determining what he wants out of life. Human beings differ markedly from one another. A few are best suited for lifelong study and research in library and laboratory; some for public service as in teaching law, and governmental work; some for science as in medicine and engineering; some for management and administration in business; some for combination of these with outdoor interests as in agriculture and forestry. But there is no short road in and of these these things.

A college degree in any of these fields guarantees neither job nor success in the job if one is procured. Particularly is this true in modern society wherein jobs are scarce, unemployment is widespread, and competition is hard tnd keen. To meet such competition in the professions a student must devote all his time and energy over a considerable period of years to both general and special preparation, to building himself up in knowledge, skill, and power to analyze and apply what he learns to real situations and problems.

College, university, and graduate professional study are offered primarily for those who have these qualities and who want intensily to become leaders in the field of their choice But that most people do not realy want to become leaders is indicated by the fact that even in college a large proportion do not concentrate in preparation for leadership.

There is much truth in the statement that most people fundamentally desire to live simply. They do not want to assume heavy burdens of responsibility. They really wish rather to strike a balance in their living, using their job as support for their marriage, home, social and recreational activities.

On the other hand, some students desire to become leaders in a special field but do not have the combination of special skills and abilities which may be trained by the educational process for accomplishment. It is therefore, necessary for each student to find out all he can about about himself."

Typhoid Danger Increased by Water Shortage

One of the most dangerous specters to stalk in the wake of drouth is typhoid fever.

Physicians of the Minnesota State Medical association issued a special warning this week to those in the drouth areas who are responsible for providing water supplies, whether individuals or community officials, to keep a sharp lookout for typhoid.

A sharp rise in the disease has been reported in a number of middle western states that have suffered from lack of rain according to the bulletin.

That indicates a possibility that, with water becoming scarce and the necessity for looking about for new sources of supply, authorities may have relaxed their watchfulness to keep the water pure.

"In former times, drouth always meant typhoid fever. In the scarcity of water, people drank from contaminated supplies and pestilence was not slow in following.

"Nowadays there is no excuse for allowing the disaster of disease epidemics to add unnecessary tragedy to the disaster of drouth.

"It is always possible to purify the drinking water supply even if the [illegible] source runs [illegible] is necessary to find new ones [illegible]

Individuals are as responsible as community officials for seeing that their families have good drinking water, the physicians warn. If they are not absolutely certain of their water, they can always boil it for drinking and be safe.

In Minnesota, a total of 74 cases of typhoid fever has been reported so far this year with 12 deaths. Last year the number from January to July was 45 with 7 deaths.

Safety Means More Business From Tourists

That a reputation for safe driving on Minnesota highways has a commericial value to the state is brought out in a communication from the safety division of the state emergency relief administration, quoting L. G. Foley, member of the state board of control. Some excerpts from a talk on this subject made by him recently, present safety values in a new light.

"Danger" is the sign he would have put up on Minnesota highways. He said he was not thinking of physical conditions of roads—such as new gravelling, a newly-oiled condition, or that sort of thing. What he referred to, he said, was the fact that careless and irresponsible drivers of motor vehicles make the highways dangerous.

Minnesota is host to thousands of motoring visitors every summer and the state should give a host's protection and courtesy to its guests, Mr. Foley suggested. The safety education program inaugurated by Governor Olson and sponsored by the safety division SERA should mean primarily that highways and streets should be made so safe, by all drivers of motor vehicles, that no visitor will have his vacation marred by acicdent, he stated.

"If Minnesota drivers use courtesy and common sense and keep their cars in safe mechanical condition," he said, "our highways and streets will be fit to entertain our visitors. None of them will go home with a vacation darkened by accident. They will carry back from Minnesota a fine impression of safe highways and uniform driving courtesy as well as memories of scenic beauty."

Gull's Eggs Pointed

A gull's egg is shaped differently from that of a hen, being much more pointed. This is a characteristic of all cliff-nesting birds. If the egg rolls, it rolls only in a small circle, and seldom or never can be rolled off a cliff by any accident or by wind.

Ostrich Egg "Steaks"

An ostrich egg is boiled by the Boer family for between two and three hours, and is shelled. "Steaks" are cut off it, and it is kept in a refrigerator. One ostrich egg lasts a week or so for a family. In the meantime, excess eggs are gathered fresh and eaten by slices, after having been hard boiled.

HOW 'A GREAT FINANCIAL EMPIRE' WAS BUILT

Synopsis of Testimony Developed in the Hearings On The Northwest Bancorporation

(Contiued from last week.)

Perry Urges "Let's Make Most of It"

Certified public accountants for the year 1930 showed the total income as $2,914,000. The $3.15 earnings per share reported by Mr. Thomson in his letter would be more than $5,000,000. Further evidence that this class of dividends which were being paid were played to encourage the purchase of this stock is shown by a letter from Gardner B. Perry to Mr. Thomson. Gardner B. Perry was a vice president of the Northwestern National Bank, and was in charge of the so-called customer ownership campaign, of which more will be said later. In one of his bulletins to salesmen urging them to speed up their sales, he stated: "Another dividend is upon us. Let us make the most of it." In another bulletin from Perry to the salesmen, he stated: There is great psychology in a dividend." Still more startling testimony regarding the payment of dividends, however, was introduced during the course of the department of commerce hearings when the audit of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. was introduced in evidence. According to this audit, during the year 1931, net income for the company was reported as $4,461,000 in the red; that is there was no net income, and on the contrary there was a loss of $4,461,000 (odd figures omitted.) Notwithstanding the fact of this audit, the company reported to its stockholders in its annual report for the year, operating earnings of $5,740,000. When questioned about this discrepancy, Mr. Thomson, the general manager of the company, testified in substance that stockholders could obtain the information as to the losses by an analysis of the surplus account, a long column of figures which occupied about a page. In the report, however, under a sub-heading, which occupied about a page. In the report, however, under a subheading, which was the only heading which the word "earnings" was used, no mention was made of the fact that there was a deficit in net income. However, dividends continued to be paid upon the stock. During this period of time, the company was engaged in a customer ownership compaign. Banc-Northwest, a susidiary company, was pushing the customer ownership campaign among the customers of the bank. Mr. Thomson was asked whether or not at any time he ever issued instructions that prospective stockholders were to be told of these losses, and after much equivocation, was forced to admit that he had issued no such instructions and that they were not told. It is to be noted that in all of the company's reports to their stockholders and in all the literature that they put out, they referred to "operating earnings" or to "operating earnings after chargeoffs," but in no instance did they refer specifically, except at an alaysis might reveal it, to the net income that company had made after paying its expenses and charging off its losses, at least not during the time the stock sales campaign was pushed. This fact was much commented on by Mr. Watson, counsel for the department, also by the commissioner, S. Paul Skahen.

Dress Market to Unload Own Stock

Evidence introduced at the hearing showed that the company during the frenzied finance days of 1929 was engaged, through the activities of one of its subsidiaries, in accumulating its own stock on the market by means of "joint trading accounts," which were classed by Mr. Watson as "pools;" that subsidiary company, BancNorthwest, maintained a trader on the floor of the Minneapolis-St.Paul Stock exchange, known as a Specialist, and that was purchased through exchanges was purchased on the Minneapolis-St. Paul Stock Exchange thru BancNorthwest or its traders and specialists. The hearing also developed the fact that the BancNorthwest at various times was engaged in so-called "marketing operations" and that during the period when these pools or syndicates were operating, the stock advanced from $50 to a high price of $100.25 pershare. During the time BancNorthwest, or its predecessor, the Minnesota Company, were operating these joint trading accounts or pools, and accumulating the stock of their parent company, it was done for the purpose of re-distribution through sales on the stock exchange to the general public. One of the joint trading accounts was with the firm of A. G. Becker & Co. of Chicago. A letter was introduced from one Merrill Cohen, Identified as sthe Minnesota' Company's trader on the floor of the Minneapolis-St. Paul Stock Exchange. Testimony showed that just prior to the date of Mr. Cohen's letter, the Minnesota Company and A. G. Becker & Company had accumulated thru their manipulation several thousand shares of Northwest Bancorporation stock, which they proposed to distribute or sell to the bublic. Mr. Cohen wrote to A. G. Becker & Company and stated "I assume you will let us know when you are ready to make distribution of the stock, so that we can dress the market" When questioned as to what this letter meant, D. R.. West, who was secretary of Northwest Bancorporation and a vice president of BancNorthwest Company, finally admtited that it was "window dressing," that is, giving the market an appearance of strength and activity for the purpose of being able to unload the stock which they had accumulated Mr. West likewise admitted that BancNorthwest controlled the opening price of the stock on the exchange at various times. He also admitted issuing instructions to the firm of Hornblower & Weeks, an investment house in Chicago, as to what price they were to close the Chicago Stock Exchange market on Banco stock at. This evidence was introduced to show the fact that the market was manipulated, and that the quotations on this market were fictitious.

Subsidiary Acts To Raise and Lower Market

During the course of the hearings a letter from W. E. Brockman, identified as being the publicity director of the Northwest Bencorporation, was introduced, which letter suggested to Mr. Thomson, who was then general manager, the fact that there were a large number of orders that had been placed in the market a little below the then market price and that "we should put the market up about a half a point or so and let it rest there a few days until these orders raised their price, when we can drop the market down and pick the orders up." Mr. Thomson was then asked to produce the record of the market price of the price of the stock for the next few days following Mr. Brookman's letter to him. When he did so, it developed that within five of six days after the date of Brockman letter, the market did go up a point, remained there for a few days, and then dropped. Mr. Thomson stated he did not believe they had acted on Brockman's suggestion and Mr. Watson, attorney for the commission, stated that he would introduce the original slips from the Minneapolis-St. Paul Stock Exchange and show that it was their subsidiary, BancNorthwest, who made the bid which raised the price on the date mentioned and that it was their subsidiary, BancNorthwest, which made the offer that lowered the price.

"Window dressing" was not confined solely to the market. The testimony at the hearings showed that in order to create a surplus over and above the par value of the company's stock, thus giving to the stock a greater apparent value than the tangible assets behind the costk, that Northwest Bancorporation adopted the following plan: When exchanging stock of their company for stock in banks which they acquried, there was set up on the books of the company. and credited to the surplus account, the difference between the market price of the stock at the time they acquired a given bank, and the par value of their stock. The evidence further showed that when the crash came in 1932, and the company found it necessary to discontinue paying dividends, a letter was sent to stockholders were requested to vote to change their stock from a par value of $50, to stock without any stated par value. The letter further stated that "in the interests of conservative accounting" the company was about to eliminate $39,000,000 from their assets, which sum was the amount of so-called good will value that they had accumulated by reason of the manner above described that was used for creating surplus. When this financial operation on the corporate body had been performed the assets which had theretofore been carried on their books at $93,000,000, had, because of wiping out the $39,000,000 of intangible good will, together with some $14,000,000 of losses, $9,000,000 of which, according to the report of their examiner, were "well determined" but not set up on their books, shrunk to the point where the common stock had stated value of $25,000,000. The common stock had a stated value of $25,000,000. The query naturally presents itself as to how the officers and directors of the company could pay dividends in the face of a situation such as this, which must have been known for some time to the reduction in assets.

Government Reports 437,704 Liquor Shops

When national prohibition came there were 177,000 saloons in the United States. The record of the institution as a lawless, debasing, debauching den of moral filth and social inicuity was such that its own devotees condemned it in unrestrained denuniciation. For instance, the WHOLESALERS AND RETAILERS REVIEW, a liquor trade journal, said editorially, "Our saloons are houses of drunken men, profantiy and obscenity of the vilest possible type." "Hell-holes" was accepted vernacular for them.

When the drive for repeal was launched shortly after the adoption of the prohibition amendment, it was emphatically stated in numberless articles and speeches by the repealists, that the saloon should not come back. They often vehemently asserted that they themselves would lead a fight against any repeal measure which would permit the return of that unspeakable and iniquitous curse.

Repeal has come. With it the saloon. To this hour these repealists who most valiantly pledged their deal and honor to a fight against its return have whispered no protest. In the stead of 177,000, the Treasury report for the year ending June 30 shows Federal tax receipts (licenses) issued to 437,704 retail liquor estabilshments 207,382 of which are to retailers of hard liquor, and 230,322 to dealers in beer. Not all of these are saloons, but most of them are. Tens of thousands of them are much more vicious than the old type ever was. The old saloon was a man's resort. It was illegal for minors to enter it, and it had no lure for women or girls, with the exception of female outcasts who preyed upon the lousts of men But the modern saloon, in the form of liquor cafes, beer gardens and dance dance halls, crowded with men, women are often gilded traps where youthful innocence and chastity are doped with drink, debauched, and damned.

The American voter was deceived by the faithless promise of certain men and women in high places, who repeal achieved, have welshed on their word, and seem to revel in the moral havoc they have wrought.

Doctors Warn Against New Reducing Drug

The question, "How can I reduce?" has not been solved by recent experiments with weight reduction by use of the drug called dinitrophenol and its related compounds declares the Public Health Education Committee of the Minnesota State Medical Association in a bulletin issued August 28.

Dinitrophenol is a derivative of carbolic acid, according to this committee. Its use in weight reduction is a re[illegible]opment [illegible] [illegible] useful in the hands of physicians where other methods of reducing are difficult or impossible.

It is very dangerous in the hands of those who do not understand the dosage or action and already several deaths have been reported among people who bought it on their own responsibility and took it recklessly without knowledge whatever of its proper use or safty for them.

"The drug acts to produce fever, increased pulse and respiration rates, and sopious sweating," says the bulletin. "It speeds up the body's metabolism, that is its consumption of fuel, cauisng in not only to oxidize food but to draw upon theh fat tissues to provide fuel for increasing activity. Excessive dosage causes a fatal high fever. In smaller doses, it may be extremely dangerous for persons suffering from some of the common chronic diseases."

Recent reports [illegible] the Pure Food and Drugs Administration show that dinitrophenol or one of its compounds is being used in some patented flesh reducing preparations.The medical association issued a special warning against use of any such preparation containing the drug.

"Taking off weight still has to be done in most normal cases by taking in less food than the body consumes each day in physical exercise. That means, in most cases, eating less and exercising more. There it no royal road, yet, to a slim figure.

New Book Tells of Bird Life in Minnesota

All the birds of Minnesota, nearly 300 different species, are pictured in "Bird Portraits in Color," by Dr. T. S. Roberts, a book published September 1 by the University of Minnesota Press

This new bird book has been published to meet the continued demand that has been made for such a book since Dr. Roberts' "Birds of Minnesota" was sold out last Christmas. "Bird Portraits in Color" contains all the ninety-two color plates which appeared in the older book, together with new descriptive matter and bird anecdotes by Dr. Roberts. The artists [illegible] water colors the illustration were reproduced are Allen Brooks, W. A. Weber, F. L. Jaques, George M. Sutton, and W. J. Breckenridge. There is also one picture by the late Louis Agassiz Fuertes.

"Bird Portraits in Color" is published in three styles: a stiff binding for home and library, flexible binding for field use, and the color plates in a portfolio, without any descriptive matter but with a complete index that gives both the scientific and popular names of all birds depicted. This index is also included in the bound volumes.

The birds shown are not only those of Minnesota; most of them are found throughout the northern United States and southern Canada east of the Rocky Mountains, Dr. Roberts who has devoted the leisure time of more than sixty years to the study of birds, describes the plumages, nests eggs, songs, and habits of all the birds describes the plumagess, nests, songs, and the range over which it may be seen. His introduction supplies much general information about birds.

Mrs. Anna Myrin of North Township Dies on Tuesday

At the age of 57 years, Mrs. Anna Julia Myrin passed away Tuesday September 4th at her home. She was born June 3, 1877 in Grant County, Minn. where she was married in June 1899 to Nils Myrin. They moved to Crary, N. Dak. in 1899, following which they lived at Kilburnie, N. Dak. In 1904 they moved to the Township of North, where they have since made their home.

Those left to mourn her death are her husband, Nils Myrin; three daughters, Myrtle of Grand Forks and Ethel and Laurel both at home; and five sons, Arthur of Milwaukee, Wisc., Millard of Minneapolis, and Irwin, Clifford, and Vernon all at home. One son has preceded her in death.

Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Alfred Thompson of Minneapolis, and Mrs. E. A. Samuelson, of Barret, Minnesota; and three brothers, Olaf and Freeman Bjerke both of Hoffman, Minn., and Even Bjerke of Van Hope, N. Dak.

Rev. R. M. Fjelstad will officiate at services on Saturday, September 8th at 2 p. m. from the Trinity Lutheran Church. Interment will be made in Greenwood cemetery.

Former Resident Dies at Fergus Falls Wed. Aug. 20

Miss Inga Boen passed away Wednesday, August 29th at Fergus Falls, Minnesota, being 70 years old at the time of her death. Miss Boen was born December 31, 1863 in Telemarken, Norway, and came to this country when a young woman. For several years Miss Boen owned and operated a hospital on Red Lake Boulevard in this city, leaving in 1913 for China where she worked with her brother who was a missionery there. She returned to this country in 1929 and in November 1933 went to Fergus Falls where she has since lived. Services were held Monday, Sept. 3, from the Erickson and Lund Funeral Home with Rev. J. O. Jacobson officiating. Interment was made in Greenwood cemetery.

HOW 'A GREAT FINANCIAL EMPIRE' WAS BUILT

Synopsis of Testimony Developed in the Hearings On The Northwest Bancorporation

(Contiued from last week.)

Perry Urges "Let's Make Most of It"

Certified public accountants for the year 1930 showed the total income as $2,914,000. The $3.15 earnings per share reported by Mr. Thomson in his letter would be more than $5,000,000. Further evidence that this class of dividends which were being paid were played to encourage the purchase of this stock is shown by a letter from Gardner B. Perry to Mr. Thomson. Gardner B. Perry was a vice president of the Northwestern National Bank, and was in charge of the so-called customer ownership campaign, of which more will be said later. In one of his bulletins to salesmen urging them to speed up their sales, he stated: "Another dividend is upon us. Let us make the most of it." In another bulletin from Perry to the salesmen, he stated: There is great psychology in a dividend." Still more startling testimony regarding the payment of dividends, however, was introduced during the course of the department of commerce hearings when the audit of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. was introduced in evidence. According to this audit, during the year 1931, net income for the company was reported as $4,461,000 in the red; that is there was no net income, and on the contrary there was a loss of $4,461,000 (odd figures omitted.) Notwithstanding the fact of this audit, the company reported to its stockholders in its annual report for the year, operating earnings of $5,740,000. When questioned about this discrepancy, Mr. Thomson, the general manager of the company, testified in substance that stockholders could obtain the information as to the losses by an analysis of the surplus account, a long column of figures which occupied about a page. In the report, however, under a sub-heading, which occupied about a page. In the report, however, under a subheading, which was the only heading which the word "earnings" was used, no mention was made of the fact that there was a deficit in net income. However, dividends continued to be paid upon the stock. During this period of time, the company was engaged in a customer ownership compaign. Banc-Northwest, a susidiary company, was pushing the customer ownership campaign among the customers of the bank. Mr. Thomson was asked whether or not at any time he ever issued instructions that prospective stockholders were to be told of these losses, and after much equivocation, was forced to admit that he had issued no such instructions and that they were not told. It is to be noted that in all of the company's reports to their stockholders and in all the literature that they put out, they referred to "operating earnings" or to "operating earnings after chargeoffs," but in no instance did they refer specifically, except at an alaysis might reveal it, to the net income that company had made after paying its expenses and charging off its losses, at least not during the time the stock sales campaign was pushed. This fact was much commented on by Mr. Watson, counsel for the department, also by the commissioner, S. Paul Skahen.

Dress Market to Unload Own Stock

Evidence introduced at the hearing showed that the company during the frenzied finance days of 1929 was engaged, through the activities of one of its subsidiaries, in accumulating its own stock on the market by means of "joint trading accounts," which were classed by Mr. Watson as "pools;" that subsidiary company, BancNorthwest, maintained a trader on the floor of the Minneapolis-St.Paul Stock exchange, known as a Specialist, and that was purchased through exchanges was purchased on the Minneapolis-St. Paul Stock Exchange thru BancNorthwest or its traders and specialists. The hearing also developed the fact that the BancNorthwest at various times was engaged in so-called "marketing operations" and that during the period when these pools or syndicates were operating, the stock advanced from $50 to a high price of $100.25 pershare. During the time BancNorthwest, or its predecessor, the Minnesota Company, were operating these joint trading accounts or pools, and accumulating the stock of their parent company, it was done for the purpose of re-distribution through sales on the stock exchange to the general public. One of the joint trading accounts was with the firm of A. G. Becker & Co. of Chicago. A letter was introduced from one Merrill Cohen, Identified as sthe Minnesota' Company's trader on the floor of the Minneapolis-St. Paul Stock Exchange. Testimony showed that just prior to the date of Mr. Cohen's letter, the Minnesota Company and A. G. Becker & Company had accumulated thru their manipulation several thousand shares of Northwest Bancorporation stock, which they proposed to distribute or sell to the bublic. Mr. Cohen wrote to A. G. Becker & Company and stated "I assume you will let us know when you are ready to make distribution of the stock, so that we can dress the market" When questioned as to what this letter meant, D. R.. West, who was secretary of Northwest Bancorporation and a vice president of BancNorthwest Company, finally admtited that it was "window dressing," that is, giving the market an appearance of strength and activity for the purpose of being able to unload the stock which they had accumulated Mr. West likewise admitted that BancNorthwest controlled the opening price of the stock on the exchange at various times. He also admitted issuing instructions to the firm of Hornblower & Weeks, an investment house in Chicago, as to what price they were to close the Chicago Stock Exchange market on Banco stock at. This evidence was introduced to show the fact that the market was manipulated, and that the quotations on this market were fictitious.

Subsidiary Acts To Raise and Lower Market

During the course of the hearings a letter from W. E. Brockman, identified as being the publicity director of the Northwest Bencorporation, was introduced, which letter suggested to Mr. Thomson, who was then general manager, the fact that there were a large number of orders that had been placed in the market a little below the then market price and that "we should put the market up about a half a point or so and let it rest there a few days until these orders raised their price, when we can drop the market down and pick the orders up." Mr. Thomson was then asked to produce the record of the market price of the price of the stock for the next few days following Mr. Brookman's letter to him. When he did so, it developed that within five of six days after the date of Brockman letter, the market did go up a point, remained there for a few days, and then dropped. Mr. Thomson stated he did not believe they had acted on Brockman's suggestion and Mr. Watson, attorney for the commission, stated that he would introduce the original slips from the Minneapolis-St. Paul Stock Exchange and show that it was their subsidiary, BancNorthwest, who made the bid which raised the price on the date mentioned and that it was their subsidiary, BancNorthwest, which made the offer that lowered the price.

"Window dressing" was not confined solely to the market. The testimony at the hearings showed that in order to create a surplus over and above the par value of the company's stock, thus giving to the stock a greater apparent value than the tangible assets behind the costk, that Northwest Bancorporation adopted the following plan: When exchanging stock of their company for stock in banks which they acquried, there was set up on the books of the company. and credited to the surplus account, the difference between the market price of the stock at the time they acquired a given bank, and the par value of their stock. The evidence further showed that when the crash came in 1932, and the company found it necessary to discontinue paying dividends, a letter was sent to stockholders were requested to vote to change their stock from a par value of $50, to stock without any stated par value. The letter further stated that "in the interests of conservative accounting" the company was about to eliminate $39,000,000 from their assets, which sum was the amount of so-called good will value that they had accumulated by reason of the manner above described that was used for creating surplus. When this financial operation on the corporate body had been performed the assets which had theretofore been carried on their books at $93,000,000, had, because of wiping out the $39,000,000 of intangible good will, together with some $14,000,000 of losses, $9,000,000 of which, according to the report of their examiner, were "well determined" but not set up on their books, shrunk to the point where the common stock had stated value of $25,000,000. The common stock had a stated value of $25,000,000. The query naturally presents itself as to how the officers and directors of the company could pay dividends in the face of a situation such as this, which must have been known for some time to the reduction in assets.

Government Reports 437,704 Liquor Shops

When national prohibition came there were 177,000 saloons in the United States. The record of the institution as a lawless, debasing, debauching den of moral filth and social iniquity was such that its own devotees condemned it in unrestrained denunciation. For instance, the WHOLESALERS AND RETAILERS REVIEW, a liquor trade journal, said editorially, "Our saloons are houses of drunken men, profantiy and obscenity of the vilest possible type." "Hell-holes" was accepted vernacular for them.

When the drive for repeal was launched shortly after the adoption of the prohibition amendment, it was emphatically stated in numberless articles and speeches by the repealists, that the saloon should not come back. They often vehemently asserted that they themselves would lead a fight against any repeal measure which would permit the return of that unspeakable and iniquitous curse.

Repeal has come. With it the saloon. To this hour these repealists who most valiantly pledged their deal and honor to a fight against its return have whispered no protest. In the stead of 177,000, the Treasury report for the year ending June 30 shows Federal tax receipts (licenses) issued to 437,704 retail liquor estabilshments 207,382 of which are to retailers of hard liquor, and 230,322 to dealers in beer. Not all of these are saloons, but most of them are. Tens of thousands of them are much more vicious than the old type ever was. The old saloon was a man's resort. It was illegal for minors to enter it, and it had no lure for women or girls, with the exception of female outcasts who preyed upon the lousts of men Bu' the modern saloon, in the form of liquor cafes, beer gardens and dance dance halls, crowded with men, women are often gilded traps where youthful innocence and chastity are doped with drink, debauched, an' damned.

The American voter was deceiv' by the faithless promise of certain men and women in high places, who repeal achieved, have welshed on their word, and seem to revel in the mora' havoc they have wrought.

Doctors Warn Against New Reducing Drug

The question, "How can I reduce?" has not been solved by recent experiments with weight reduction by use of the drug called dinitrophenol and its related compounds declares the Public Health Education Committee of the Minnesota State Medical Association in a bulletin issued August 28.

Dinitrophenol is a derivative of carbolic acid, according to this committee. Its use in weight reduction is re[illegible]pment [illegible]ved useful in the hands [illegible] physicians where other methods of reducing are difficult or impossible.

It is very dangerous in the hands of those who do not understand the dosage or action and already several deaths have been reported among people who bought it on their own responsibility and took it recklessly without knowledge whatever of its proper use or safty for them.

"The drug acts to produce fever, increased pulse and respiration rates, and sopious sweeting," says the bulletin. "It speeds up the body's metabolism, that is its consumption of fuel, cauisng in not only to oxidize food but to draw upon theh fat tissues to provide fuel for increasing activity. Excessive dosage causes a fatal high fever. In smaller doses, it may be extremely dengerous for persons suffering from some of the common chronic diseases."

Recent repo[illegible] the Pure Food and Drugs Administration show that dinitrophenol or one of its compounds is being used in some patented flesh reducing preparations. The medical association issued a special warning against use of any such preparation containing the drug.

"Taking off weight still has to be done in most normal cases by taking in less food than the body consumes each day in physical exercise. That means, in most cases, eating less and exercising more. There it no royal road, yet, to a slim figure.

New Book Tells of Bird Life in Minnesota

All the birds of Minnesota, nearly 300 different species, are pictured in "Bird Portraits in Color," by Dr. T. S. Roberts, a book published September 1 by the University of Minnesota Press

This new bird book has been published to meet the continued demand that has been made for such a book since Dr. Roberts' "Birds of Minnesota" was sold out last Christmas. "Bird Portraits in Color" contains all the ninety-two color plates which appeared in the older book, together with new descriptive matter and bird anecdotes by Dr. Roberts. The artists [illegible] water colors the illustrations were reproduced are Allen Brooks, W. A. Weber, F. L. Jaques, George M. Sutton, and W. J. Breckenridge. There is also one picture by the late Louis Agassiz Fuertes.

"Bird Portraits in Color" is published in three styles: a stiff binding for home and library, flexible binding for field use, and the color plates in a portfolio, without any deseriptive matter but with a complete index that gives both the scientific and popular names of all birds depicted. This index is also included in the bound volumes.

The birds shown are not only those of Minnesota; most of them are found throughout the northern United States and southern Canada east of the Rocky Mountains. Dr. Roberts who has devoted the leisure time of more than sixty years to the study of birds, describes the plumages, nests eggs, songs, and habits of all the birds describes the plumagess, nests, songs, and the range over which it may be seen. His introduction supplies much general information about birds.

Mrs. Anna Myrin of North Township Dies on Tuesday

At the age of 57 years, Mrs. Anna Julia Myrin passed away Tuesday September 4th at her home. She was born June 3, 1877 in Grant County, Minn. where she was married in June 1899 to Nils Myrin. They moved to Crary, N. Dak. in 1899, following which they lived at Kilburnie, N. Dak. In 1904 they moved to the Township of North, where they have since made their home.

Those left to mourn her death are her husband, Nils Myrin; three daughters, Myrtle of Grand Forks, and Ethel and Laurel both at home; and five sons, Arthur of Milwaukee, Wisc., Millard of Minneapolis, and Irwin, Clifford, and Vernon all at home. One son has preceded her in death.

Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Alfred Thompson of Minneapolis, and Mrs. E. A. Semuelson, of Barret, Minnesota; and three brothers, Olaf and Freeman Bjerke both of Hoffman, Minn., and Even Bjerke of Van Hope, N. Dak.

Rev. R. M. Fjelstad will officiate at services on Saturday, September 8th at 2 p. m. from the Trinity Lutheran Church. Interment will be made in Greenwood cemetery.

Former Resident Dies at Fergus Falls Wed. Aug. 20

Miss Inga Boen passed away Wednesday, August 29th at Fergus Falls, Minnesota, being 70 years old at the time of her death. Miss Boen was born December 31, 1863 in Telemarken, Norway, and came to this country when a young woman. For several years Miss Boen owned and operated a hospital on Red Lake Boulevard in this city, leaving in 1913 for China where she worked with her brother who was a missionery there. She returned to this country in 1929 and in November 1933 went to Fergus Falls where she has since lived. Services were held Monday, Sept. 3, from the Erickson and Lund Funeral Home with Rev. J. O. Jacobson officiating. Interment was made in Greenwood cemetery.

THE OLD BATTLE BETWEEN HUMAN RIGHTS AND PROPERTY RIGHTS

Two interesting meetings were held in New York, not so very long ago. They were interesting, mainly because of the opposite slants the groups in convention took anent the New Deal.

The one group; about one thousand bankers attending a convention of the National Savings Banks, found plenty of trends and tendencies in the New Deal which they "viewed with alarm." Philip. A. Benson, president of the banking association, attacked "the blatant demagogery of those who speak of destroying capital and transferring wealth from those who own it to those they regularly call the 'debtors'." He deplored "brain trusters" and "acedemic cure it alls" who "didn't give a damn about anybody's securities." He spoke of 13,500,000 savings bank depositors; 60,000,000 insurance policy holders and 5,000,000 small investors," and seen in the trend of the New Deal their utter annihilation. Laboring as he does under the popular illusions and delusions of his class, Mr. Benson would also very likely have summed these three classes together and said, "here are 78,500,000 of our people; a vast majority of the population threatened with destruction" when as a matter of fact the 60,000,000 insurance policy holders would include all of the small investors and the savings bank depositors, and represent a mighty swollen figure at that, for literally millions of people have been forced to let their insurance policies lapse during thepast three years. And not because of the New Deal, but because of the old shuffle which the New Deal is supposed to remedy. So that even taken at their best Mr. Benson's figures deal with a minority of the population and not as he would have us believe, a majority.

The other meeting was composed of about two hundred and fifty Methodist ministers attending the New York East Conference of their church. Their views of the New Deal were quite different. They said it has not gone far enough, nor fast enough. They would eliminate the profit motive and socialize the banking system and all natural resources except the soil. They decided that the way the NRA codes have been violated in letter and in spirit, gives evidence of how extensively the spirit of anarchy rules in business operating under the profit system. They were convinced that the very essence of Capitalism is inimical to the building of a planned economy. They advocate the socialization of the rights to issue money and credits; extension of social ownership; and financing of relief by inheritance taxes and by income taxes, and advocate sharp increases in these in the higher brackets. In fact, their report resembles nothing more than the platform adopted by the Farmer-Labor association at its convention in Saint Paul last March.

The views are of course typical of the men and the worlds in which they live. The bankers sitting in their gilded cages, toying with blocks of glittering metals; building fantastic castles with sheafs of embossed papers, must weep with breaking hearts like the spoiled and pampered child whose block houses have been accidentally knocked over, if their dream structures are threatened. Profits are sacred to them, and real. Human misery they only know in the abstract. Finance and paper securities is their world. Rent interest and profit the Trinity of their God. Their whole existence is artificial and unreal, but like the ant they see in the destruction of their own hill, the destruction of the universe.

We consider the views of the clergymen of infinitely more importance. They know life. They see the plenty, and they see the squalor. They minister to us in the depths of heart-breaking despair and rejoice with us in our moments of greatest happiness. They mix with the rich and with the poor; they know the innocents as well as the hardened sinners. The tools of their profession are sublime love, faith in God and in humanity, compassion forgiveness and blessings. Their motto and watchwords are "I am my brother's keeper." "Do unto others as ye would have others do unto you."

The importance of paper documents and horded gold fades into insignificance in comparison with human welfare. The first can rot and vanish, but factories, and farms and homes and natural resources still remain to bring comfort and happiness to the human race, and threefold so, if the red tape and legal entanglements created by the financial masters are eliminated.

THE PATH OF PROGRESS IS STREWN WITH CORPSES

Saturday evening we stepped into a local store and got into a short discussion of the textile strike with the proprietor. He voiced the opinion that labor always loses by strikes. We retorted that in our opinion, everything that labor has gained in the line of safeguards against hazardous employment, shorter hours and securing a living wage has been secured by the strike, or the threat of strike. We were by way of getting into a firstrate discussion on economics when a customer entered to claim his attention and we left. The incident was almost forgotten, when on Sunday afternoon we were listening to a radio commentator and heard him say that "it is necessary to make strikes unlawful and arbitration compulsory." The remark brought home to us forcefully how widespread this fallacious belief is among even the most progressive-minded and intelligent people.

Barbaric as the strike is, and we admit that it is a remnant of the barbaric age, we nevertheless must defend the workers' right to strike, anytime they so decide, regardless of what may be termed by a belicose capitalistic press as "the public interest." The system of society under which we live is in itself a remnant of the barbaric age and its philosophy of "survival of the fittest," and the strike is only the natural counterbalance. It can not be abolished without changing the entire social and economic set-up. So long as some must labor while others own and control the tools of production; so long as some produce while others own and control the avenues of distribution, strikes will be necessary to protect the workers or producers. To make strikes unlawful will be to saddle upon the producers actual slavery, worse than chattel slavery, because under chattel slavery the employer must feed and clothe their slaves even when they have no work for them, or choose to keep them idle because production has ceased to be profitable. Only under a cooperative commonwealth can strikes be abolished, and then they will cease to exist, not because they are illegal, but because the reason for strikes will have disappeared. A man who own his tools of production and controls his marketing facilities does not strike. He may curtail his production to the needs of the market. But he doesn't strike. No militia is necessary, no teargas; no special police; no martial law. No strike breakers threaten his job.

Costly in lives and blood and human misery as they are, strikes are nevertheless the only successful weapon that the producers have yet devised to combat encroaching capital. With the men at the machines the bargainers have no power at the council table, with the men out on strike they have some power tho due to shortage of funds their power is usually limited. Capital is losing its profit, while the strikers lose their wages, but capital doesn't have to eat.

As long as there is entrenched, organized capital it will have a dominant voice in government, therefore compulsory arbitration must become only a farce as far as the producers are concerned.

The progress of the human race up from barbarism towards the cooperative commonwealth is a path that is strewn with corpses. Every reform has cost lives and blood and suffering, to say nothing of the inconvenience to the noncombatants.

The Thirty-Year War was fought to gain religious freedom for the protestants. Its cost in blood cannot be estimated. It left Europe prostrated, but the reform was gained, and it could not have been arbitrated. The American colonies tried arbitration without success, until they had struck with success. No amount of arbitration could force the southern planters to relinquish chattel slavery. Labor's right to organize has been gained with strikes. The right is still disputed in localities where there has been no successful strikes. The right to collective bargaining is becoming recognized thru the militant action of organized labor. The railroad brotherhoods voted to strike and Congress hurriedly passed the Adamson eight hour day law, years tardy.

Strikes are deplorable and costly to labor, to capital and to the nation, but as long as we tolerate "rugged individualism" we must put up with its twin brother, the strike.

THE SWING TO THE LEFT CONTINUES

America's swing to the left which started so modestly with the election of Roosevelt seems to be gaining momentum rapidly. The liberal and progressive forces, winning skirmish after skirmish in every by-election during the past two years are now giving way to those of more radical tendencies. Outstanding among the victories of the radicals are of course the tremendous increase in voting strength shown by the farmer-labor party of Minnesota in the June primaries following the adoption of its radical platform in March. And now the state of California, admittedly one of the reactionary strongholds of the country has joined the big parade with a leap that puts it up near the front. The victory of Upton Sinclair, noted socialist author in his race for the democratic nomination for governor was impressive by the decisive majority he polled.

Nor is it strange that the American people have at last taken the bit in their teeth and decided to try something fundamenally different. More the wonder that they accepted the situation as long as they did. Americans are by nature radical. We are never satisfied with the status quo. To our impatience with things as they are we owe our leadership in laborsaving machinery and industrial organization. If we have moved slowly in political reforms it is because we have been too busy with other things to give them the thought we owed them. The depression seems to have centered our thoughts on the needs for an industrial and political reorganization and because we never took kindly to halfway measures two years of patching seems to have just about fed us up with it. Recent election seems to indicate that we are going to see the most far-reaching swing to the left yet recorded when the November elections roll around.

When we get drunk we get gloriously drunk and when we decide to go places we stampede. We seem to be ready for another "Great American Stampede." but this time we know where we are going.

Quotation from History—Spring of 1933; "The American people will not tolerate a return of the saloon." Repeal Advocate.

PUBLIC UTILITIES
(Tyler Journal)

A recent Washington dispatch says that the public utilities barons are shaking in their shoes. They are afraid that the government power projects are to be used as a yardstick in determining what they may charge the public. Such a scale of prices would leave little room for dividends on watered stock, hundred thousand and half million dollar salaries, together with huge bonuses for executives. Power rates would be cut in two, or lower, according to the new schedules.

One of the directors of the Tennessee Valley Authority, David Lillienthal, has gone to England to study the British power system, where the government owns all of the power generating plants. These government plants sell the power to private companies, or to municipalities which in turn, sell it to the consumers, but the rates are regulated by the wholesale cost. Reports will be made to Congress, and that body will go into the subject of rates and new power developement.

When the Farmer-Labor party of Minnesota declares in favor of public ownership of public utilities, it is called names—communist, etc. When the national government goes into the power business, it is a New Deal. All the while the staid old monarchy, England has been communist, or socialist, or whatever it is to be in the power business.

THREE CHEERS FOR THE G. O. P.
(Meeker Co. News)

It is peculiarly fitting that R. W. Hitchcock, veteran Hibbing editor and state legislator, has been appointed publicity director for the Minnesota Republican campaign. It was he who joined Albert Pfaender, Ray Quinlivan and others in trying to block without success however, the appropriation for investigation of the Northwest Banco stock sales two years ago. Now Hitchcock will try to block the farmer-laborites again in their efforts to secure an "even break" for the common people. If his luck is no better in this new venture than it was in the banco affair, farmer-laborites can afford to wish him a lot of "luck."

"COMMON SENSE TAX"
(Austin American)

A contemporary describes the Iowa sales tax as a "common sense" tax. The statement apparently is made either without application of gray matter, or for the express purpose of misleading people.

Without a doubt, the much-touted sales tax is the most pernicious form of taxation which can be imposed on the public. Why? Because it places an unreasonable burden on those least able to pay.

The tax is favored by politicians because they can tax and tax and spend and spend and the people will not notice it except their dollar will buy less goods. The tax is favored by the wealthy because it would impose a lesser burden on them.

A man whose income is from $1,000 to $1,500, spends most of it on necessities, all of which would be taxed. But a man whose income is $5,000 and upwards, needs only about so much to eat, so much to wear, etc. He reaches a "saturation" point, after which his money is invested or placed in savings. In comparison with his income and that of the $1,500 a year man, he would pay much less than would his less fortunate neighbor.

FARM AND MARKET
By
R. A. Trovatten
Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture Dairy and Food.

Minnesota has the largest farm crop, in terms of cash, in three years. It is tesimated that the total crop will bring 25 percent more than last year's yield. These figures are based upon the six major commodities.

* * * *

It is calculated that corn, wheat, hogs, milk, potatoes, and cattle, regarded as usually producing two-thirds of the state's income, will contribute 40 million dollars more than the 1933 yield for these products. In these figures are included benefit payments.

* * * *

Crop forecasts indicate that corn wil bring Minnesota farmers over 79 million dollars, an increase over last year of 33 millions.

It is figured that the wheat crop will produce twice the revenue of last year. an increase of two million dollars. Including benefit payments the crop is regarded as worth $11,886,000.

* * * *

South Saint Paul reports that hog prices have reached the highest peak since April, 1933. Cattle prices also reached new heights. Last week choice hogs, 170-300 pounders, brought $7.20 to $7.50.

* * * *

The above figures presents a rosy picture. However, behind these figures still remains "Old Man Gloom." This would be a great situation if the increased farm income were to be distributed among all the farmers But the sad part of it is—many farmers will receive little or nothing as they have no crop. Upon the misery of many, the few will ride to a temporary prosperity.

* * * *

In addition, as is usually the case most of the livestock to be marketed is in the hands of the middlemen—they will make the increased profit not the farmers.

The local vigilante organization is in the same class as the law and order league. Both are snooping organizations of good-for-nothing meddlers who have the hardihood to take the law into their own hands and pass judgements on their neighboors—all under cover of darkness. To one who believes in organized society and the protection which society thus gives the individual under our laws, order leagues, so-called. Of late, there has been quite a recurrence in this country of these cowardly, secret bodies. News dispatches show them quite active in lynching strike leaders and otherwise breaking up labor strike leaders and otherwise breaking up labor strikes. When they act in that capacity, their true purpose is revealed. There should be a law making it a criminal offense to belong to an organization which takes the law into its own hands and usurps the powers of ours courts.

Attorney General Harry H. Peterson speaking at the Convention of the American Bar association in Milwaukee defended the New Deal after numerous speakers assailed it. Mr. Peterson in comparing the decision in the Minnesota Mortgage Moratorium case to that of the famous Dred Scott Case of 1857, which held that human being were chattels, said: "The reactionary Dred Scott case brought on a civil war and made necessary the adoption of a constitutional amendment, but the liberal and progressive Minnesota decision averted an economic catastrophe and established the principle that in an emergency human rights are superior to property rights."

With a political campaign in our midst, which will probably get "hotter" as it proceeds; conservation should be on the alert against political attacks against a department of our state government which has made and is still making signal progress—the Department of Conservation. When such attacks are made, sportsmen's and other conservation organizations, in the interest of good government and the public welfare, should appoint responsible committees to make investigation of their own to determine the truth or falsity of the charges and make their findings known to the public. The records of the department are available to everybody, and unbiased investigations are welcomed by the Conservation Commission. Of all state departments, the public has a right to expect that the Department of Conservation, in charge of our natural resourses, is not made a political football and the common welfare not made to suffer at the hands of politicians, posing as conservationists or otherwise.

FATHER COUGHLIN FLAYS THOSE WHO UPHOLD SYSTEM THAT "MAKES RADICALS"

CHICAGO.—Billed to deliver the "opening gun" in the American Legion's campaign against radicalism, the Rev. Charles Coughlin, "Radio Priest" of Royal Oaks, Mich., warned his audience against battling "senseless windmills of radicalism."

"Radicals Made, Not Born"

Radicals are made, not born, he declared, addressing the Cook County Legion on Americanization Day at the World's Fair.

"Are not you gentlement sagacious enough to comprehend," he asked, "that before the voice of the last radical can be silenced in America, the flagrant abuses which in our midst must be subtracted from our lives?

"Your program is indeed most pretentious as you enivsage the abuses which surround you. Nine million unemployed, millions of dollars spent to shelter, clothe and feed the indigent, business partially paralyzed on every side, is there any wonder that there are radicals in this country when there is no need for such atrocities to be perpetrated? And all this due to a barbarous financial system which identifies itself with gold and places financial rights above those of God and man."

The "Prostituted Press"

"Jesus Christ would feed tht soap box radical who is hungry, and not imprison him," the priest asserted in a criticism of the press. "He would preach to gospel to him. In other words, He would tell him the truth, whether it be over the air waves of the radio, or on the front page of a prostituted press whose columns too often have been dedicated to serve the interests of those who had concentrated wealth."

The "White Collared" Radicals

Attacking the "gold bloc" and the "white collared radical of Wall Street who still bows before his god of gold," Father Coughlin defended the recovery efforts of President Roosevelt.

"It is sad commentary on modern life when Franklin Roosevelt is condemned openly for imitating Jesus Christ in feeding the poor. And it is a sadder commentary on our civilization when the modern scribes and Pharisees continue to oppose every honest effort which he is making towards restoring America to the Americans.

Criticism of Roosevelt

"If Mr. Roosevelt is to be criticized it is for his delay in not having struck deeper and quicker at the money changers, the international bankers, [illegible] to the princes of international finance in the person of the Federal Reserve banker.

"Associated with this thought, may I become specific in referring to the international banker who knowing that there were only eleven billion dollars of gold in the world, attempted to force us to pay with it more than 200 billion dollars in debts?

Soapbox Radicals and Others

"Call the soap boxer a radical if you will, but he is far less to be condemned than the ultra radical who does not know the meaning of "whatsoever you do unto the least of my little ones, you do unto Me."

Altho he said that incidental mistakes have been made in the execution of the National Recovery Act, "there are thousands of industrialists in our country who are planing today to scuttle the basic idea that industry should be regulated in any sense at all and maintain that the profits therefrom shall continue to be paid out in dividends when factory doors are closed. They will tell up at the cashier's desk to receive their profits—while the workingmen take their place in the breadlines to seek the crumbs of charity."

The address was broadcast over the NBC network.

THE OLD BATTLE BETWEEN HUMAN RIGHTS AND PROPERTY RIGHTS

Two interesting meetings were held in New York, not so very long ago. They were interesting, mainly because of the opposite slants the groups in convention took anent the New Deal.

The one group; about one thousand bankers attending a convention of the National Savings Banks, found plenty of trends and tendencies in the New Deal which they "viewed with alarm." Philip A. Benson, president of the banking association, attacked "the blatant demagogery of those who speak of destroying capital and transferring wealth from those who own it to those they regularly call the 'debtors'." He deplored "brain trusters" and "acedemic cure it alls" who "didn't give a damn about anybody's securities." He spoke of 13,500,000 savings bank depositors, 60,000,000 insurance policy holders and 5,000,000 small investors," and seen in the trend of the New Deal their utter annihilation. Laboring as he does under the popular illusions and delusions of his class, Mr. Benson would also very likely have summed these three classes together and said, "here are 78,500,000 of our people; a vast majority of the population threatened with destruction" when as a matter of fact the 60,000,000 insurance policy holders would include all of the small investors and the savings bank depositors, and represent a mighty swollen figure at that, for literally millions of people have been forced to let their insurance policies lapse during thepast three years. And not because of the New Deal, but because of the old shuffle which the New Deal is supposed to remedy. So that even taken at their best Mr. Benson's figures deal with a minority of the population and not as he would have us believe, a majority.

The other meeting was composed of about two hundred and fifty Methodist ministers attending the New York East Conference of their church. Their views of the New Deal were quite different. They said it has not gone far enough, nor fast enough. They would eliminate the profit motive and socialize the banking system and all natural resources except the soil. They decided that the way the NRA codes have been violated in letter and in spirit, gives evidence of how extensively the spirit of anarchy rules in business operating under the profit system. They were convinced that the very essence of Capitalism is inimical to the building of a planned economy. They advocate the socialization of the rights to issue money and credits; extension of social ownership; and financing of relief by inheritance taxes and by income taxes, and advocate sharp increases in these in the higher brackets. In fact, their report resembles nothing more than the platform adopted by the Farmer-Labor association at its convention in Saint Paul last March.

The views are of course typical of the men and the worlds in which they live. The bankers sitting in their gilded cages, toying with blocks of glittering metals; building fantastic castles with sheafs of embossed papers, must weep with breaking hearts like the spoiled and pampered child whose block houses have been accidentally knocked over, if their dream structures are threatened. Profits are sacred to them, and real. Human misery they only know in the abstract. Finance and paper securities is their world. Rent interest and profit the Trinity of their God. Their whole existence is artificial and unreal, but like the ant they see in the destruction of their own hill, the destruction of the universe.

We consider the views of the clergymen of infinitely more importance. They know life. They see the plenty, and they see the squalor. They minister to us in the depths of heart-breaking despair and rejoice with us in our moments of greatest happiness. They mix with the rich and with the poor; they know the innocents as well as the hardened sinners. The tools of their profession are sublime love, faith in God and in humanity, compassion forgiveness and blessings. Their motto and watchwords are "I am my brother's keeper." "Do unto others as ye would have others do unto you."

The importance of paper documents and horded gold fades into insignificance in comparison with human wellfare. The first can rot and vanish, but factories, and farms and homes and natural resources still remain to bring comfort and happiness to the human race, and threefold so, if the red tape and legal entanglements created by the financial masters are eliminated.

Saturday evening we stepped into a local store and got into a short discussion of the textile strike with the proprietor. He voiced the opinion that labor always loses by strikes. We retorted that in our opinion, everything that labor has gained in the line of safeguards against hazardous employment, shorter hours and securing a living wage has been secured by the strike, or the threat of strike. We were by way of getting into a firstrate discussion on economics when a customer entered to claim his attention and we left. The incident was almost forgotten, when on Sunday afternoon we were listening to a radio commentator and heard him say that "it is necessary to make strikes unlawful and arbitration compulsory." The remark brought home to us forcefully how widespread this fallacious belief is among even the most progressive-minded and intelligent people.

Barbaric as the strike is, and we admit that it is a remnant of the barbaric age, we nevertheless must defend the workers' right to strike, anytime they so decide, regardless of what may be termed by a belicose capitalistic press as "the public interest." The system of society under which we live is in itself a remnant of the barbaric age and its philosophy of "survival of the fittest," and the strike is only the natural counterbalance. It can not be abolished without changing the entire social and economic set-up. So long as some must labor while others own and control the tools of production; so long as some produce while others own and control the avenues of distribution, strikes will be necessary to protect the workers or producers. To make strikes unlawful will be to saddle upon the producers actual slavery, worse than chattel slavery, because under chattel slavery the employer must feed and clothe their slaves even when they have no work for them, or choose to keep them idle because production has ceased to be profitable. Only under a cooperative commonwealth can strikes be abolished, and then they will cease to exist, not because they are illegal, but because the reason for strikes will have disappeared. A man who own his tools of production and controls his marketing facilities does not strike. He may curtail his production to the needs of the market, But he doesn't strike. No militia is necessary, no teargas; no special police; no martial law. No strike breakers threaten his job.

Costly in lives and blood and human misery as they are, strikes are nevertheless the only successful weapon that the producers have yet devised to combat encroaching capital. With the men at the machines the bargainers have no power at the council table, with the men out on strike they have some power tho due to shortage of funds their power is usually limited. Capital is losing its profit, while the strikers lose their wages, but capital doesn't have to eat.

As long as there is entrenched, organized capital it will have a dominant voice in government, therefore compulsory arbitration must become only a farce as far as the producers are concerned.

The progress of the human race up from barbarism towards the cooperative commonwealth is a path that is strewn with corpses. Every reform has cost lives and blood and suffering, to say nothing of the inconvenience to the noncombatants.

The Thirty-Year War was fought to gain religious freedom for the protestants. Its cost in blood cannot be estimated. It left Europe prostrated, but the reform was gained, and it could not have been arbitrated. The American colonies tried arbitration without success, until they had struck with success. No amount of arbitration could force the southern planters to relinquish chattel slavery. Labor's right to organize has been gained with strikes. The right is still disputed in localities where there has been no successful strikes. The right to collective bargaining is becoming recognized thru the militant action of organized labor. The railroad brotherhoods voted to strike and Congress hurriedly passed the Adamson eight hour day law, years tardy.

Strikes are deplorable and costly to labor, to capital and to the nation, but as long as we tolerate "rugged individualism" we must put up with its twin brother, the strike.

THE SWING TO THE LEFT CONTINUES

America's swing to the left which started so modestly with the election of Roosevelt seems to be gaining momentum rapidly. The liberal and progressive forces, winning skirmish after skirmish in every by-election during the past two years are now giving way to those of more radical tendencies. Outstanding among the victories of the radicals are of course the tremendous increase in voting strength shown by the farmer-labor party of Minnesota in the June primaries following the adoption of its radical platform in March. And now the state of California, admittedly one of the reactionary strongholds of the country has joined the big parade with a leap that puts it up near the front. The victory of Upton Sinclair, noted socialist author in his race for the democratic nomination for governor was impressive by the decisive majority he polled.

Nor is it strange that the American people have at last taken the bit in their teeth and decided to try something fundamenally different. More the wonder that they accepted the situation as long as they did. Americans are by nature radical. We are never satisfied with the status quo. To our impatience with things as they are we owe our leadership in laborsaving machinery and industrial organization. If we have moved slowly in political reforms it is because we have been too busy with other things to give them the thought we owed them. The depression seems to have centered our thoughts on the needs for an industrial and political reorganization and because we never took kindly to halfway measures two years of patching seems to have just about fed us up with it. Recent election seems to indicate that we are going to see the most far-reaching swing to the left yet recorded when the November elections roll around.

When we get drunk we get gloriously drunk and when we decide to go places we stampede. We seem to be ready for another "Great American Stampede." but this time we know where we are going.

(Tyler Journal)

A recent Washington dispatch says that the public utilities barons are shaking in their shoes. They are afraid that the government power projects are to be used as a yardstick in determining what they may charge the public. Such a scale of prices would leave little room for dividends on watered stock, hundred thousand and half million dollar salaries, together with huge bonuses for executives. Power rates would be cut in two, or lower, according to the new schedules.

One of the directors of the Tennessee Valley Authority, David Lillienthal, has gone to England to study the British power system, where the government owns all of the power generating plants. These government plants sell the power to private companies, or to municipalities which in turn, sell it to the consumers, but the rates are regulated by the wholesale cost. Reports will be made to Congress, and that body will go into the subject of rates and new power developement.

When the Farmer-Labor party of Minnesota declares in favor of public ownership of public utilities, it is called names—communist, etc. When the national government goes into the power business, it is a New Deal. All the while the staid old monarchy, England has been communist, or socialist, or whatever it is to be in the power business.

THREE CHEERS FOR THE G. O. P.
(Meeker Co. News)

It is peculiarly fitting that R. W. Hitchcock, veteran Hibbing editor and state legislator, has been appointed publicity director for the Minnesota Republican campaign. It was he who joined Albert Pfaender, Ray Quinlivan and others in trying to block without success however, the appropriation for investigation of the Northwest Banco stock sales two years ago. Now Hitchcock will try to block the farmer-laborites again in their efforts to secure an "even break" for the common people. If his luck is no better in this new venture than it was in the banco affair, farmer-laborites can afford to wish him a lot of "luck."

"COMMON SENSE TAX"
(Austin American)

A contemporary describes the Iowa sales tax as a "common sense" tax. The statement apparently is made either without application of gray matter, or for the express purpose of misleading people.

Without a doubt, the much-touted sales tax is the most pernicious form of taxation which can be imposed on the public. Why? Because it places an unreasonable burden on those least able to pay.

The tax is favored by politicians because they can tax and tax and spend and spend and the people will not notice it except their dollar will buy less goods. The tax is favored by the wealthy because it would impose a lesser burden on them.

A man whose income is from $1,000 to $1,500, spends most of it on necessit[illegible] which would be ta[illegible] But a man whose income is $5,000 and upwards, needs only about so much to eat, so much to wear, etc. He reaches a "saturation" point, after which his money is invested or placed in savings. In comparison with his income and that of the $1,500 a year man, he would pay much less than would his less fortunate neighbor.

Offers Interest Coupons To Help the Farmers

Touched by the widespread stories of drouth disasters to farmers of the Northwest, a man in Indianapolis, Indiana, has written to the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul sending 10 interest coupons from Federal Land Bank bonds, with the request that they placed to the credit of a fund for the relief of distressed agriculture.

"In these times of economic distress, and since the drought has lasted for a number of years, I think that all those who feel that they can afford it, should do what little they can for the farmer; therefore, I am enclosing herewith some coupons which you may place to the credit of the farmers."

President Roy A. Nelson of the bank answered the letter expressing his deep appreciation of the spirit shown by the proposed donation, but at the same time he declined to accept the coupons, explaining that the bank has no means of administering such a fund as is suggested. The activities of the Federal Land Bank must be confined to the provisions of the farm loan act, he indicated.

Mr Nelson said that as the coupons did not bear conscutive serial numbers he believed the doner was purchasing small bonds from time to time as he had funds available and that he had probably decided to devote the proceeds of one six-months period to the worthy purpose he indicated. The coupons are being held temporarily awaiting further word from the giver.

Martin Oscar Brandon, Democratic nominee for Congress, comes from pioneer stock. His father, Ole Brandon, after being discharged from the Union armies, became the first settler in the town of Moe, Douglas County, Minnesota. He settled there among the lakes and hills because the country was like his native Norway, years before any railroad. He grubbed and cleared the land to make a home. Mr. Brandon's mother died at his birth and his father passed on when he was eight years of age. He then stayed with his brother on a farm until he was twelve and then struck out for his own. He worked his way thru high school and the University of Minnesota, receiving both academic and law degrees. He worked nights, washing dishes, scrubbing floors, working at the express office and other odd jobs. He had to walk home from work many nights because he did not have the car fare. He graduated with honors.

Martin Oscar Brandon taught in high school after graduation; serving in the world war, and then commenced the practice of law in Crookston, Minnesota, moving to Fergus Falls, Minn., in 1923 where he now resides. He has been active in civic affairs, a leader in organizing farm cooperative enterprises and is a substantial and respected citizen in his own community. He has taken part in the National Recovery program and is a fair-minded liberal in politics. Mr. Brandon owns farm land. He is 41 years of age, able aggressive and particularly fitted to serve in Congress as the Representative from our Agricultural Ninth District; and if elected will soon be a leader in the House of Representatives. Let us make him our next Representative.

1. Abolition of tax exempt securities. 2. Fair treatment for disabled veterans. 3. Legislation demanded by agriculture which will tend to give the American farmer equality with other industries and increase his buying power. 4. Simplified and more liberal farm financing. 5. Federal aid to education. 6. Sane and rational legislation to bring about more equitable distribution of the fruits of our mass production.

Martin Oscar BRANDON for CONGRESS

Martin Oscar Brandon, Democratic nominee for Congress, comes from pioneer stock. His father, Ole Brandon, after being discharged from the Union armies, became the first settler in the town of Moe, Douglas County, Minnesota. He settled there among the lakes and hills because the country was like his native Norway, years before any railroad. He grubbed and cleared the land to make a home. Mr. Brandon's mother died at his birth and his father passed on when he was eight years of age. He then stayed with his brother on a farm until he was twelve and then struck out for his own. He worked his way thru high school and the University of Minnesota, receiving both academic and law degrees. He worked nights, washing dishes, scrubbing floors, working at the express office and other odd jobs. He had to walk home from work many nights because he did not have the car fare. He graduated with honors.

Martin Oscar Brandon taught in high school after graduation; serving in the world war, and then commenced the practice of law in Crookston, Minnesota, moving to Fergus Falls, Minn., in 1923 where he now resides. He has been active in civic affairs, a leader in organizing farm cooperative enterprises and is a substantial and respected citizen in his own community. He has taken part in the National Recovery program and is a fair-minded liberal in politics. Mr. Brandon owns farm land. He is 41 years of age, able aggressive and particularly fitted to serve in Congress as the Regresentative from our Agricultural Ninth District; and if elected will soon be a leader in the House of Representatives. Let us make him our next Representative.

1. Abolition of tax exempt securities. 2. Fair treatment for disabled veterans. 3. Legislation demanded by agriculture which will tend to give the American farmer equality with other industries and increase his buying power. 4. Simplified and more liberal farm financing. 5. Federal aid to education. 6. Sane and rational legislation to bring about more equitable distribution of the fruits of our mass production.

Dragon Still Survives

Until the first two were captured in 1927, dragons were considered a mythical animal. The reference books s describe them. But an exploratio of the jungle dot in the blue seas below Borneo and close to Java, rolle back the curtain of time to a hundred million years, perhaps, before the grea flood. It revealed that the dragon whose shadowy terror has lurked in the Asiatic mind for immemorial ages, whose legend is everywhere, from Ireland to the South pole, the earliest monster dreaded and hated by man, still survives in this remote spot.

Miles of Telephone Wires

It requires 100 million miles of wire to run the world's telephones. Of this wire mileage, some 68 million is found in the United States, 10 million in Germany, seven million in Great Britain and three and one-half million in Canada.

Branding Cattle

The custom of branding cattle is still practiced in many states as a means of identification and to enable inspectors at the slaughter points to trace the ownership of diseased animals. Branding is necessary when animals are on ranges.

MINNESOTA NEWS

Ivanhoe—Ivanhoe will have a new modern bandstand in Legion park.

Granite Falls—Two wells are now furnishing Granite Falls with the main portion of its water.

Minneapolis — Another reminder that summer is waning—stream trout fishing throughout Minnesota ended Sept. 1.

Blooming Prairie—Voters of Blooming Prairie turned down a bituminous street surfacing plan in a special election, 166 to 82.

St. Cloud—Appointment of James R. Bennett, Jr., as a special assistant attorney general of the United States, was made public.

Waconia—St. Joseph's Catholic church celebrated the seventy-fifth anniversary of its founding with a homecoming and harvest festival.

Montevideo—The freshman class of the local high school will be absorbed by the Junior high school, leaving only three classes in regular high school.

Walnut Grove—Walnut Grove, which enjoys the distinction of having the first Blue Eagle celebration in the nation, paraded the streets in second annual celebration.

Byron—One less bank bandit is at large after one attempted to hold up the State Bank of Byron. The presiden, F. M. Williams, stepped on an alarm and defied the bandit. Aroused citizens wrecked the get-away car and the robber was jailed.

Montevideo—The Lac qui Parle reservoir project now appears to be assured, with the state highway department ordered to make a survey of the site of the proposed reservoir to determine what lands will be needed for flood control purposes.

Minneapolis—The University, of Minnesota has obtained permission from the Minneapolis city engineer to lay a 30-fot section of iron pavement on the campus for experimental purposes, E. W. Davis, director of the school of mines experiment station, announced.

St. Paul—Rising prices during the past three weeks have increased the potential value of Minnesota's 1934 pig crop more than $30,000,000 above the market value of the same corp on January 1, 1933, officials estimated. Hog prices continued to mount to $8.10 at So. St. Paul.

Minneapolis—A drop of more than $53,000,000—nearly 17 per cent—in the assessed valuation of real and personal property on which the new tax rate is to be applied for collections in 1935 was reported by City Assessor Edward S. Gould. This will bring a tax of 100 mills to the city.

St. Paul—E. J. Pollie of Dunnell is the champion buttermaker of the state. He won his title in connection with 169 others in the creamery butter competition featured at the Minnesota State fair. Second in the contest was Ed Peterson of Villard, a quarter point behind Mr. Pollie. George Rapp of Holdingford won third money and William Straska of Owatonna fourth.

Canby—One of Minnesota's greatest industries, iron ore mining, is celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the first shipment of ore from Minnesota. While historians cannot agree on the exact date of the first iron ore shipments, nevertheles it was 50 years ago this summer that 10 cars of ore were loaded at Soudan from a hand worked pit and shipped to Two Harbors where it was loaded on a lake steamer.

Worthington—Postponement of installation of a new electric power plant turbine here was decided by the city council after it had considered increased costs of the proect. Under the original plan, the turbine cost $80,000, with one-third of that amount to be contributed by the government. The cost now, however, is estimated at $110,000, and the city council decided against the purchase.

St. Paul—The Minnesota highway department will open bids on approximately $2,000,000 of road construction work September 7, according to an announcement by N. W. Elsberg, highway commissioner. The work will include concrete paving, a bituminous surfacing, grading, graveling and bridge jobs. The projects are in 23 counties and will be the first from the $5,400,000 appropriation given the state by the last session of congress.

Cass Lake—Ten thousand hay hands selected from the state relief rolls will be needed in the northeastern part of the state to put up the 150,000 ton hay crop of the state emergency relief administration. E. E. Mattson, direcor of the drouth division, announced the hay is to be cut on the unoccupied land of St. Louis, Koochiching, Lake, Itasca, Cass, and Cook counties as part of the roughage conservation program of the SERA. Mr. Mattson said that the work on the cutting of this fodder will be started at once and that the work on the cutting will require the services of about 10,000 men. These men will be selected from the state relief rolls.

Fergus Falls—A $300,000 emergency relief project to divert the Whetstone river in western Minnesota from the Minnesota river, into which it now flows, is under consideration by the state emergency relief administration.

Minneapolis—The city purchasing agent was directed by the city council police committee to advertise for bids on 150 riot guns and six machine guns for the police department. The action was taken at the request of Michael Johannes, superintendent of police.

Fair Indian Art

May Produce Sturdier Cattle

A sturdy breed of cattle, able to exist without grass, may be necessary in the future when the growing population encroaches upon the present great cattle ranges. The inhabitants of South Africa have a breed which came through the recent two-year drought in fine shape by being able to live on leaves of such desert bushes as could be found. These Afrikanders, as they are called, have now been introduced to Texas and their adaptation to the climate of the Southwest is being watched woth great interest. Perhaps by interbreeding a type of milk and beef cow can be produced which could thrive on twigs, sawdust, corn stalks, leaves, or whathaveyou.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Employment of Prisoners

It is estimated that approximately 500,000 prisoners are confined each year in municipal and county jails and work houses in the United States. According to a warden in a New Jersey penitentiary, lack of employment for inmates is the most undesirable condition in any penal institution, opportunity, through lack of occupation, being given them to plan further crimes to be perpetrated when they shall be free. It also tends to make them economical failures through long habits of lolling about in cells. He advocates the development of idle lands, food growing and preparation and other industrial programs for all prisoners.

Stone Age Tools "Modern"

In the matter of efficiency, says the American Museum of Natural History, the tools of the Stone age were not far behind our own before the mechanical improvements of recent years. Doctor Nelson, curator of prehistoric archeology, as a test, felled a four-inch maple tree with a flint ax in six minutes. A further experiment was made some years ago in Denmark by a landowner who built from his own timber a block house involving the felling of 25 eight-inch trees with a flint ax, and his labors left the flint undulled. The entire building, made with Stone age tools throughout, was completed in 66 days.

2,000 [illegible] R F-L CANDIDATES AT PICNIC SUNDAY

Auxiliary Drum Corps Play A Much Appreciated Concert

A program of snappy marches by the Thief River Falls Auxiliary Drum Corps, a fast kittenball game between the CCC boys and a team composed of players from Bill's Eat Shop and the Glueks and speeches, both fiery and instructive, from a formidable battery of orators provided a full afternoon for about 2,000 people at the third annual Pennington county farmer-labor picnic last Sunday.

The program was opened by the drum corps at about one o'clock when it marched on the grounds and remaining in formation played several marches to the delight of an appreciative audience.

The speaking program was opened by Mr. H. O. Berve, attorney of this city with the introduction of W. E Day of Bagley, member of the House of Representatives since 1918. Mr. Day in a short talk brought out the fact that the reactionary group in the House are apparently licked. He cited 12 of the most able and experienced of the conservative group who after being shorn of complete power at the last session of the legislature refused to run for re-election. Even if some reactionaries are elected in their places he stated, they will be handicaped by lack of experience just as the progressives were a few years ago." If reelected he will endeavor to serve the people in the future as in the past he said.

Paul A. Harris, of this city, candidate for state senator to succeed Laura E. Naplin, called attention to the fact that the old system has broken down and does not take ca of the people. He discussed tax forms and social legislation, citing the fact that 80 per cent of the people leave no will when they die because there is no estate, and 95 per cent leave less thna $1,000 in estate It is time he said, that the tax burden is lifted from the shoulders of the poor and placed on those best able to pay. He favors a reasonable old age pension system to be financed by inheritance taxes and taxes on incomes in the higher brackets. "If am elected to the senate I shall r lay awake nights worrying about the millionaires," he stated, "they have demonstrated that they can take care of themselves. I am going to worry about the undernourished children of the workers in the city and the hard-working men and women on the

LINCOLN SQUAD WILL UNLIMBER AGAINST ALUMNI

Series of Assembly Programs Featuring Artists Is Booked.

The enrollment in Lincoln High school is 560 students to date, according to a statement made this week by W. G. Claffy, principal.

The high school gridiron team will meet the alumni in a game of football at Lincoln field on Friday afternoon, September 14, with no admission charge. A game the following week with Grafton will mark the first home game of the season.

During the course of the year, says Mr. Claffy, a series of assembly programs provided by the Northwest Assemblies, Incorporated, will be given by various artists and entertainers for te purpose of improving probrams for student appreciation. Included in the Northwest Assemblies Inc. are a group of several hundred school of the Middlewest.

Miss Jane Dudly, a violinist of great renown, will be the first to appear in program on Friday, Sept. 21 at the city auditorium. Admission will be charged. Miss Dudley won the Leopold Auer Scholarship in 1925, has studied in New York, and has made two trips to Europe in pursuit of music and art. She is a member of the Madison Civic Symphony Orchestra and is on the faculty of Carroll college.

Among others who will appear on similar programs are Gerald Giving, the world traveler and lecturer; the Browns Metropolitan Jubilee Singers the Orpheon Quartette; E. Stanley Brooks, the world's greatest Dickenson artist; Bob Briggs the cartoonist; Brown and Meneley, musical entertainment, readings, and songs including cathedral chimes; L. E. Gerde, magician, ventriloquist, and entertainer.

Car Stolen

While attending the World's Fair James Widjum, manager of the local Hartz store, had the misfortune of having his new master six Chevrolet car stolen from the front of the appartment house in which he and his wife were living while in Chicago. Even though the doors and ignition of the car were locked, neighbors told of having seen a man gain enterance to the car and drive away. The car was fully insured.

Program of Bangs Disease Eradication is Conducted by Government Veterinarians

A bangs disease eradication program, involving the free testing of herds by government paid veterinarians, and the payment of indemnities on diseased cattle sold, is now being conducted in Pennington County. Details of the program will be explained by County Agent R. M. Douglass at meetings being held thruout the county. All farmers will be given an opportunity to sign a contract for this test at these meetings.

The germ that couses Bang's disease in cattle also causes undulant fever in human beings. Consumers of dairy products in the future will doubtlessly demand that these products be produced by Bang abortion free herds, or that they be efficiently pasteurized. Some consumers may demand that both of these precautionary measures to be taken.

Bang's disease, also known as contagious or infectious abortion, or slinking of calves, is one of the most serious diseases, from a dollars-and-cents standpoint, that affects dairy cattle. Few herds of long standing have escaped its destructive influences.

Probably 10 to 15 per cent of Minnesota cattle have this disease, and since the infected animals are widely scattered throughout the state and many different herds, they serve as a constant menace to cattle health. In a few herds are as many as half of the cattle infected, Mr. Douglass says.

The loss of calves by premature birth is only one of the many effects of this disease. Affected cows give from 20 to 25 per cent less milk than they would normally produce. They are also more subject to after-calving troubles, such as failure to "clean" properly, failure to breed, and udder diseases. Other diseases and conditions occasionally may lead to these difficulties, but often Bang's disease is responsible. About 85 per cent of all cattle abortions are caused by Bang's disease.

Bang's disease is caused by a specific germ, named after Dr. Bang of Denmark, who discovered it. It is spread chiefly in the discharges of diseased cows at calving time. Healthy cattle become infected by eating foods soiled with these discharges, or by licking infected animals.

In view of these facts, the owner of a clean herd should be exceedingly careful in purchasing animals to prevent the introduction of this disease, and the farmers having the disease in their herds should be careful to keek it from spreading from one animal to another.

This disease does not affect the value of cattle for meat purposes.

Ministerial Fellowship to Start Meetings on Sunday

RURAL CREDIT REPORTS BRISK SALE OF LANDS

District Supervisor Lists Large Number of Sales in This Territory.

J. W. Sands, district supervisor for the department of rural credit in this district, reports the following land sales through his office in the last two weeks:

Alvert Anvinson, Four Towns bought back his old farm of 160 acres in Beltrami county; Otto E. Parnow of Erie, purchased back his farm of 160 acres; Herbert Bettleson, Erie bought the 160 acres of the old Gunder T. Anderson farm; Gilmer Oftelie of Trail, purchased the Even Oftelie farm of 200 acres which he has been leasing for several years; Christopher Vad, of Goodridge, purchased the old Tennes Skatberg farm of 160 acres which he has been leasing from the state; Ludvig P. Peterson of Grand Forks, purchased the Bert N. Thorstad farm of 80 acres lying southwest of the city; and Mary Evenson bought back her farm of 80 acres.

John Jordit of Grygla bought his old farm of 160 acres; Ole Anderson of Mavie bought the Bella Byklum farm of 80 acres lying east of Grygla in Beltrami county; Ellef Sorter of Holt bought the Daniel Anderson farm of 80 acres in Marshall county; Mathias Nabben of Goodridge bought the Peter Muldoon quarter; W. R South of Goodridge bought the 200 acres of the Emma Johnson Lye farm; Henry Clausen of Goodridge re-purchased his farm back from the state; D. D. Diehl of Rolla, N. Dak bought the Morgan Vaugh farm of 160 acres.

There are also several more offers in waiting for approval. Due to the good crops and prices there has been an unusual demand from outside parties who have inspected farms with intentions of buying this fall.

REFINANCING OF COUNTY BONDS PLANS OF BOARD

From One Half to One and One Half Percent Interest May Be Saved.

Meeting at the court house on Tuesday, the county board of commisioners discussed the re-financing of the indebtedness of the county and decided to try to re-finance under the 1933 act of the state legislature.

Under the plan, the board will call in all the bonds that bear more than 4½% interest and refund them at 4½% interest. All the outstanding warrants will be refunded. If that is done, the county will continue on a cash basis, allowing no more overdrafts. It is estimated that a saving in interest from ½% to 1½% will result on the different issues.

H. I. Frisbie, division engineer of the ERA, requested an appropriation for material for five dams on the Red Lake river, which was not granted by the board.

Rocksbury Club Will Sponsor Picnic for Kittenball Players

The Rocksbury Comunity club will sponsor a picnic at Valhall on Sunday September 23rd according to an announcement made by Paul Engelstad this week.

The club will entertain all the community kittenball teams at this time and a consolation game will be played between the Rocksbury team which was the low scorer in the summer tournament and the Smiley club team. Kratka and Silverton which were tied for first place will play off their tie.

A special feature of the afternoon will be a game between the Thief River Falls High Hatter and the Rocksbury High Hatters, according to Mr. Engelstad. One of the rules of this game will be that the players must wear their high hats, Mr. Engelstad says, and using it for a basket to catch the ball in will disqualify the player from further participation in the game. The winners will be allowed to add another two inches to the height of their hats, he stated.

Installation of Legion Officers

The recently elected officers of the Elmer J. Ecklund post of the American Legion will be installed at a meeting on Friday evening, September 14.

ERA Nutrition Expert Reports on Progress of Vegetable Drying

Miss Bena Johnson, local investigating nutritionist of the E. R. A. announced today that the work of drying the products obtained from the community gardens is progressing rapidly and in fine shape. The drying of corn began last Saturday, resulting in 59 pounds being dried that day; 79 pounds on Monday; and 100 pounds on Tuesday. Miss Johnson states that the yield of corn is unusually good this year, and there is a total of 1500 tons of corn to dry. To date, 160 pounds of peas have been dried, and 148 No. 2 cans of spinach have been canned by the hot pack method.

Vegetables From Community Garden Are Dried and Canned For Use of Relief Clients

The canning of the vegetable products from the community gardens supervised by Miss Bena Johnson investigating nutritionist of the ERA., and maintained by the state is an interesting an invaluable project. Vegetables such as spinach tomptoes, etc. are being canned and will be distributed to needy poor relief clients during the coming winter months.

Step one in the canning process is to first pre-cook the vegetables with steam using the hot pack method. The many advantages of pre-cooking are that it shrinks the product, drives out the air enclosed in the plant tissues, enables the product to retain its food value, and helps to prevent spoilage by starting processing with uniform temperature throughout the container. Pre-cooking by the hot pack method with steam is now advocated and insisted upon rather than the open kettle or cold pack methods.

After the pre-cooking, the product is packed hot into hot, sterile, tin containers which are safe except for highly-colored and certain protein foods. These cans are carefully opened, washed and sterilized before the product is put into them, and may be used over and over again for three and four years if care is taken in sterilizing and storing them safely. Advantages favoring the use of the cans are that there is no breakage, they heat more rapidly, are easier to handle, there is no loss of liquid in processing, and they are economical. The containers are not packed as tightly as formerly advocated as the heat penentrates the product so slowly that is is not sterilized in the process of canning.

An automatic sealer simplifies sealing the cans, following which the cans are labeled as to the lot number the date and time of day they were canned, and the report used, which makes easy traceage in case of spoilage.

The cans are then placed in 25-quart size Burpee retorts or pressure cookers, of which there are four These retorts make possible a higher temperature which is necessary to destroy bacteria, and also shortens the time one-third. For spinach, an hour's temperature of 250 degrees at a pressure of 15 pounds is required as compared to three hours for the same in a water bath. Throughout these processes a form of bacteria (bacillus baccilanus) which has given considerable trouble is eliminated and destroyed. Pressure cooking helps to eliminate spoilage because the center of the can is already hot.

On being removed from the retorts the cans are plunged into a large vat of cold water, whoch insures more rapid cooling and results in a finer project.

The state ERA furnishes the supplies needed to carry out this project, and the local City Dairy has been an invaluable aid in allowing the use of their steam and facilities.

Miss Johnson is to be highly commended for the interest and cooperation she has solicited in this work among her co-workers and people of the community.

Appointed Postmaster

Mrs. Jennie M. Payne ofGoodridge received word from Washington today that she has been appointed as actingf postmistress at the Goodridge postoffice. She will assume her duties at once.

WCTU Will Meet Friday At the Community Church

The regular September meeting of the local unit of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will meet Friday afternoon, September 14th at 2:30 p.m. at the Community church with the following hostesses: Mrs. Fred D. Lorentson, Mrs. J. V. Toffelmire, and Mrs. O. E. Taxeraas. All friends are cordially invited to attend.

STATE OFFICIALS SPEND MONDAY IN THE CITY

Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner Knud Wefald, Lieutenant Governor K. K. Solberg and Chas. Munn, speaker of the house of representatives spent Monday in the city on Mr. Wefald returned to St. Paul in the evening and the Lieutenant Governor and Mr. Munn left for Red Lake Falls where they were scheduled to speak in the afternoon.

Postponed Peace meeting Will be Held Wed. Sept. 19

The meeting called for last Tuesday, the 11th, by a group that calls themselves the Anti-War League, was postponed until the 19th with the view of getting a larger attendance at next Wednesday's meeting.

The following statement was passed on by this oranization: "Now, more than ever before, gathering war clouds cast their shadows over the earth. In every country in the world the menacing rise of the forces of war threatens to destroy the last remnants of democratic rights, as a prelude to unloosing the horrors of a new world slaughter! Only a conscious and militant mass movement can check this steady drift toward war. Only the power of the aroused masses in taking these issues into their own hands will halt the war makers.'

If sufficient number of people are interested, the League plans to send several delegates to the next national anti-war congress to be held in Chicago on September 28, 29 and 30. Everyone interested in peace is asked to attend next Wednesday's meeting at 8:00 p.m. in the court house.

COUNCIL AWARDS STOKER CONTRACT AT MEETING TUES.

Friesbie Outlines Plans For Series of Dams in Red Lake River

The city council spent a busy evening last Tuesday when bids for a mechanical stocker for the auditorium were opened, building permits were granted, bills were paid and a long conference was held with I. R. Frisbie, third district ERA engineer.

Bids on the stoker were as follows: Red Lake Ice and Fuel company, for a Butler Stocker completely installed, $675.00; Northern Stoker Co., "Coalmaster" stocker, installed $895.00; L. W. Fossum, "Stokol" automatic stocker, installed, $634.00; P. W. Grady, "Kolburner" installed, $757.00; A. J. Borry, "Iron Fireman" installed, $1050.00; and the Link. Belt" stoker installed, $680.00. The bid of Red Lake Ice company was accepted.

Building permit was granted to Wm. Grosslie, remodeling, to cost $50. Also to Henry Gran, construction of bungalow on lots 23 and 24 of block 15, Red Lake Rapids addition, to cost $900. Application by Herb Safford, exterior refrigerator; Land O' Lakes Inc., oil warehouse and Robertson Lumber Co., warehouse, were also refused on the grounds that they do not conform to the fire ordinances Land O' Lakes also submitted application for the permit to erect a leanto warehouse at their plant on Atlantic avenue to be constructed of a framework of lumber covered with sheet metal which was rejected. A second application was then entered by Land O' Lakes for the same building to be constructed of brick and tile and this application was granted

I. R. Frisbie of the ERA appeared before the council and reported work on the river channel east of the city to be progressing satisfactorily. He explained plans for construction of a servies of small inexpensive dams to aid in storing a winters supply of water and requested that the city furnish the lumber to build them. After some discussion the council decided to take the matter up with the Five City committee because this work would benefit all five cities dependent on the Red Lake River for their water supply.

Mr. Frisbie also submited figures for covering three rooms in the auditorium with accustical wall board to be applied by ERA labor. The rooms included the Community room City Clerk's office and the Relief office and the cost will be about $180. The proposal was adopted.

The new ordinance governing the closing hours of pool halls and bowling alleys was given the third and final reading and passed.

A resolution was passed appointing W. S. Ferris, formerly engineer at the light plant to the position of assistant filteration plant operator, and another resolution approved the accumulated bills for payment.

Milk and cneam licenses were granted to the following: A. Stenberg, Frank Strang, Peter Jacobson and Ole Helgeneset.

LAND O'LAKES, INC TO CONSTRUCT NEW WAREHOUSE

Work Started this Week on Structure to House Flour and Feed.

The Land O'Lakes Creameries incorporated will start construction immediately on an addition to their building on Atlantic avenue, according to an announcement made yesterday by B. O. Norby, plant manager.

The new structure which wil be 36 feet front by 120 fet long will flank the main building on the north, and be connected to it with doors, enlarging the main floor by approximately 4300 square feet will be one story with basement and the front will be built up with a face brick veneer to match the main building. Construction will be of tile. The north wall will have brick bearing pillars at regular intervals which will carry the roof and a margin of strength will permit another floor to be added later if necessary.

The front 40 feet of the addition will be used for the chick hatchery and the balance wil be used as a flour and feed warehouse, while the basement will be used for storage for poultry and turkey coops and for work room for the box makers. A corridor will connect the basement in the other building and elevator in the east end will give acess to a loading platform where cars can be spotted

"This does not mean that we have dismissed the plan of purchases offered the farmers cooperative creamery, "Mr. Johnson, treasurer of Land O'Lakes who is in the city says, "the proposition will remain open for them anytime they wish to accept it. But it will give the stockholders of the creamery ample time to iron out their own difficulties. "In the meantime we need the room this fall and this addition will give it to us. The organization is growing fast and it would only be a matter of a short time until we would need this extra room anyway, so we decided to build it now," Mr. Johnson stated.

The Land O' Lakes architect is here preparing the plans for the new structure and excavation will start as soon as possible, perhaps this weekend.

The large room in the rear end of the main building, now used for flour, feeds and so forth will soon be filled with overflow from the poultry feeding room on the second floor Mr. Norby stated. In the past we have used another warehouse for these products during the rush poultry and turkey season, but at this time that warehouse is entirely filled with sweet clover seed and cleaning machinery, and this activity is expected to continue for quite a long time to come. We have been getting crowded that this added warehouse space became absolutely necessary, he said. The new addition will cost in the neighborhood of $5,000.00.

CHICKEN SEASON IN THIS COUNTY AT NOON SUNDAY

Ten Days Season on Chickens and Grouse Provides Half Day Shooting.

Erling Swenson, director of Game and Fish of the State of Minnesota has announced that prairie chicen or pinnated grouse, and white breasted of sharptail gouse may be taken beginning at 12 o'clock noon to sunset each day, from September 16 to September 24, in the following counties: Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods. Koochiching, St. Louis, Marsha Polk, Pennington, Red Lake, Mahnomen, Clearwater, Beltrami and ka.

Prairie chicken or pinnated grouse and white breasted or sharp tail grouse may be taken at any time in any of the other counties in Minnesota in the year 1934.

The number of the above mention exceed 6 birds in a day; shall not exceed 12 birds in possession at any time; and shall not exceed 18 birds in the aggregate for the season.

Mr. Swanson also states that mourning dove, upland plover, and woodcock shall not be taken in any of the counties of the state during 1934.

Small Boys Bring "Big Bad Wolf" to Grief

Literally speaking, Roald and Obert Josephson, aged 10 and 8 respectively, encountered "the big bad wolf" at their farm home in Hickory township recently.

On returning to their home one evening, the boys were egitated to discover the thief of their poultry flock prowling about the grounds, so with sticks as their only weapons the brothers advanced upon Mr. Wolf striking him repeatedly until he became entangled in a fence which sealed his doom as far as the little boys were concerned.

Upon later relating the incident to an interested family, it was discovered that the boys presumed they were pursuing a mad fox. Roald and Obert are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Arne Josephson.

133 LOSE LIVES IN FIRE AT SEA

S. S. Morro Castle Blaze Was Arson, Ships' Officers Declare.

New York—One hundred thirty-three men, women and children were either drowned or burned to death when the luxury liner, Morro Castle, was destroyed by fire eight miles off the coast of New Jersey. Despite valiant work on the part of the crew, scores refused to leave the doomed ship and were burned to death. Life boats were lowered only half-full as flames and smoke engulfed the ship. The crew urged the passengers to cross the decks through smoke to the lifeboats. The wall of smoke became heavier and the passengers, becoming frenzied, refused to risk the few short steps needed to take them to the rail and safety in the boats.

As calls for help crackled from the liner, rescue boats and tugs rushed to the scene. There were 553 passengers and crew aboard. Four hundred and twenty were rescued or swam to safety while 116 bodies were recovered. Seventeen persons are still to be accounted for.

The Morro Castle had left Havana bound for New York. Captain Robert Willmott, master of the ship, had passed away several hours before the holocaust, of a heart attack. Passengers, upon the news of his death, retired to their cabins for the evening. The fire caught the majority of passengers asleep.

Confusion was rampant, as cries of women and children filled the air. Capt. W. F. Warms, chief officer who was in command, reported many more could have been saved if they had obeyed the crew in reaching the boats. The department of commerce at Washington launced an investigation of the disaster.

Tugs and rescue boats swarmed to the scene and many persons were taken from the waves. Out of those rescued there were two men who swam to shore, a distance of eight miles. The still burning hulk was towed to Asbury Park, N. J., where coast guardsmen began a search for missing bodies.

At the federal inquiry, officers of the liner declared the fire was the work of arsonists. Warms said it was not true, as stated by survivors, that the ship was struck by lightning. He disclosed the fact that an attempt was made to fire the ship on the last trip out. Other officers substantiated Warms' story and declared that the fire was set by someone aboard.

The Morro Castle was an 11,520-ton vessel owned and operated by the Ward line in New York. The ship was built several years ago at a cost of $10,000,000. Loss was estimated at approximately three million dollars.

A. F. of L. Convention Prepares Symposium On Fascism

New York (TIS) — International Labor will be represented at the coming annual convention of the American Federation of Labor in San Francisco, California, by the President of the International Federation of Trade Unions, Walter M. Citrine, is also the chairman of the British Tradess Union Congress, has already accepted the invitation. He will arrive late in September. The main object of Citrine's visit to America is sto present to the American working masses a picture of labor conditions in Europe, and to rally their support against the forces aiming at the destruction of organized labor everywhere.

The A. F. of L. whose uncompromising stand against Fascism and oppression is well known, has also decided to devote a session of the coming convention t a symposium on Fascism. The speakers will be Mr. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, Mr. Walter M. Citrine, and Mr. B. Charney Vladeck, chairman of the Jewish Labor commtitee, which has a membership of more than 600,000 Jewish Labor committee which has the A. F. of L.

Added significance is thrown on Mr. Citrine's visit by the recent decision of the American Goverment to become a member of the International Labor Office at Geneva. Informed circles believe that Mr. Citrine's visit will result in a closer relationship be- Unions.

Safe Drivers Are Proud of Honor Tokens

Every driver who takes pride in his record as a safe driver, in showing courtesy to other drivers on the streets and highways, and in keeping his car in good mechanical condition will welcome the opportunity to join forces with other drivers of like standard.

This is the theory of the safety division, state emergency relief administration, which announces that the display of "Honor Tokens" on their cars is already forming a bond of unity among those who want safety to prevail in the operation of motor vehicles in this state.

"Safe driving follows from courtesy and common sense behind the wheel of a motor vehicle in good condition." This sentence is printed on pledge cards which drivers sign to obtain their "Honor Tokens." It keynotes the movement to bring individual drivers, whose safety ideals are in accord with this thought, into action to "Help Make Minnesota the Safest State."

When the "Honor Token" is complete on a car '(with the brake and light test chevrons in position) a driver has begun to live up to the pledge he signed when he obtained the pledge section of the token, the safety division SERA advises.

It makes a further suggestion that immediate conformance to the requirement for brake and light tests is time-saving; and adds, "If every driver will have brake and light tests made at his early convience, at any garage he chooses, and have the chevrons placed on the car wind shield, he will avoid being stopped by highway patrolment making brake and light tests. An exception of course would be a car that seemed to highway patrolmen to be unmistakeably deficient in respect to brakes or lights.

To make reckless drivers, or careless drivers, aware of the fact that concerted effort is being made in the interest of safe driving, public safety committees are carrying out various plans. One has approved a plan to send warning cards to habitually reckless drivers. Another purposes publishing the names of drivers whose licenses have been revoked for driving while intoxicated. Still another is making a record of all traffic violations witnessed by members and is sending a carefully worded letter to traffic violaters asking them to drive carefully, to cooperate with the safety committee, and assist in the safety campaign.

The whole movement for reduction of traffic accidents has came at the phychological movement to give momentum to individual driver cooperation, according to the safety division SERA.

Advance Enrollment at N. W. School Increases

Anticipating the largest attendance since the fall of 1929, Northwest School officials are making final plans for the opening of the school year October 1. According to Registrar J. W. Mlinar, the advance enrolment is fifteen per cent above last year with many new students applying for room reservations in the various dormatories.

A veteran staff of instructors will again supervice the class and labratory work in Agriculture and Home Economics. T. M. McCall will have charge of the work in horticulture and bookkeeping; R. S. Dunham and E. R. Clark, farm crops and soils; O. M. Kiser and R. J. Chrastgau, animal and dairy husbandry; A. M. Foker and S. A. Anderson, gas motors, farm machinery, carpentry and blacksmithing; and A. M. Pilkey, poultry. Misses Retta Bede, Elsie Mae Kingston and Fanny B. Lippitt will have charge of the work in home economics, which includes foods and cooking, clothing, household mangement and applied art.

Other courses include music, public speaking, debate, in addition to a wide range of preparatory courses.

Students and parents appreciate the homelike atmosphere surrounding the school dormitories. Each dormitory is under the supervision of the staff. Students who have completed the eighth grade or who are sixteen years of age or over are eligible to attend.

Huge Science Group To Meet in Minnesota

The largest body of scientists in the United States, possibly in the world, will meet in Minnesota next June. The Univetirsy of Minnesota and the city of Minenapolis will be hosts to the American Association for the Advancement of Science at its summer meeting. In consultation with Dr. Henry B. Ward of Illinois, permanent secretary of the association the committee of university and Minneapolis men who are planning the meeting this week chose the fourth week of June, 1935, for the sessions.. One hundred and forty two scientific bodies are affiliated in the association. More than 2,000 accredited delegates are expected, and many others, interested in various scientific fields, will attend. About 1500 papers will be presented before various sessions. Most of the sessions will be held on the Univerity of Minnesota campus.

Highway Employees Cut Accident Ratio

Maintenance workers of the state highway department have reduced their ratio of motor vehicle accidents by almost two-thirds in the past three years, says a highway department bulletin.

Three years ago the maintenance division entered on a systematic safety program. During the first year there were 7 motor vehicle accidents for each 100 employees. In the second year the ratio was cut down to 3.26 accidents per 100 employees. The third year, results of which have just been tabulated, shows a further reduction to 2.64 accidents per 100 employees

Maintenance District No. 15 with headquarters at Marshall won first place in the past year's safety contest. Its record was .72 per 100 employees District No. 5 with headquarters at Crookston won second place with a ratio of 83. accidents per 100 men. District No. 4 with headquarterrs at Brainerd took third position with a ratio of .98 accidents per 100 men.

District 15 won first place in the first safety conest year, second place in the second year and is now back in first place.

State Gasoline Tax Collection Loss Declines

Over $11,500,000 have been collected in gasoline taxes during a period of a year ending July 22, it was announced by George H. Griffith, Chief of the State Oil Inspection Department.

The collection of this huge tax was effected with the loss of only $558.77, Mr. Griffith stated. During other years the state suffered annual losses from bad accounts on an average of $14, 500. Mr. Griffith attributed this marked improvement to a new gasoline tax law which he fathered. This new law requires that all in-shipping distributors submit a responsible financial statement or post a bond in guarantee of the tax.

Prior to the passage of the new law many "chiselers" took advantage of the old law and cheated the state out of the tax, Mr. Griffith said.

Miles of Telephone Wires

It requires 100 million miles of wire to run the world's telephones. Of this wire mileage, some 68 million is found in the United States, 10 million in Germany, seven million in Great Britain and three and one-half million in Canada.

Socialists Oppose Disfranchising Of Relief Cases

Sharp criticism of an editorial in the Chicago Tribune advocating disfranchisement of citizens on relief is contained in a statement issued last week by the Public Affairs committee of the Socialist party, of which Normban Thomas is chairman.

"When the advocates of disfranchisement begin with the government subsidized rich we shall be more willing to listen to what they say about the government subsidized poor," the committee says, pointing to receivers of "government bounties by the tariff" and the R. F. C. loans to the Dawes' bank as examples of "pensioners" who "vote themselves a dole."

The complete statement follows:

"It was bad enough when the New York State Economic Council recommended the withdrawal of suffrage from citizens on relief. That is a reactionary body of little political significance at present, and its whole program was a kind of Fascist trial balloon, which received on the whole an indifferent or hostile reception. It is far worse when a paper with the circulation of the Chicago Tribune takes up this crusade.

"For generations manufacturers have been beneficiaries of government bounties by the tariff. The eminent Mr. HellandMaria Dawes resigned the chairmanship of the R. F. C. just in time to get a loan of upwards of $90,000,000 from that Federal agency. The idle rich are able to be btoh idle and rich only because of the protection extended to them by the government in drawing out from the life giving stream of the national wealth that which they have not earned. Yet neither the New York State Economic Council nor the Chicago Tribune ever suggested that these pensioners should be disfranchised lest the subsidized czitiens vote them selves a dole." That would be coming too near home.

"When the advocates of disfranchisement begin with the government subsidized rich we shall be more willing to listen to what the say about the government subsized poor.

"Meanwhile this concrete event of a lurking fascism to stimulate Americans to rally to the campaign initiated by various labor organizations and the Socialist party the disfranchisement of millions of our citizens by a poll tax the workers cannot pay, espeacilly in the depression, and by other devices of which the disfranchisement of the unemployed would be the worst. These things make a mockery of our boasted democracy. They are a frank expesion of the class rule of the holders of property. The fight against an American Fascism is a fight for the franchisement, of workers, none of whom should lose his citizenshhip because through no fault of his own he has lost almost everything else."

Land Bank Expects Pay When Possible--Many Pay In Advance Says President

Despite the fact that is shown by a recent Dun & Bradstreet review to be the worst hit section of the United States so far as farmers are concerned, the farmers' rugged determination to get out of debt and keep up current payments on obligations is encouraging in many parts of the 7th Farm Credit district, says Nelson President of the Federal Land Bank of Saint Paul.

Mr. Nelson said that the Bank expects interest, insurance and other current items to be taken care of where conditions make this possible, but he takes a sympathetic view of the conditions of agriculture in an interview given this week. He said:

"Conditions differ greatly in different states of this district and in different parts of each state. Some areas have been blessed with an average crop, and in limited areas, with more than an average crop, while other areas present a distressing picture.

"The bank will be considerate of borrowers in distress in drouth areas but where there is sufficient income to meet obligations we expect payment in accordance with the liberal terms extended," said Mr. Nelson. "The Land Bank incurred large certain fixed interest liabilities through extending the vast volume of credit to the farmers of this district since June, 1933, which oblications must be paid as they mature.

"While funds have been obtained with the aid of government credit this does not relieve the bank of its direct obligations.

"Commissioners loans which are financed through the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation must not be confused with the relief activities of other government agencies. Commissioner's are accomodations granted to distressed farmers to save homes or meet heavy debt burdens but they are obligations nevertheless and must be paid.

"The purpose of the Farm Credit Administration is to build up a strong and permanent cooperative organization and all credits extended were extended on the basis and with the understanding that they were eventually to be retired by payments with due consideration shown to those who are victims of consideration shown to those who are victims of conditions they can not control."

Mr. Nelson said, however, that, "It is encouraging to note that farmers are paying their obligations promptly in most instances where they are able to do so, some of them even paying in advance and paying installments which they might postpone to 1938."

Whiting Comes From Dover

The painting pigment known as "whiting" is made from limestone, a large portion of which comes from England's famous "chalk cliffs of Dover." Whiting is used chiefly as a base for calcimine and for making putty.

Warns Food Buyers Against Unfair Prices

Family food buyers throughout the nation should be in guard against unreasonable food prices attributed to the effect of the drougth on crops warns Dr. Fredric C. Howe, consumers' counsel of the AAA, Washington, D. C.

Dr. Howe asserts that exaggerated report are being spread about prospective increases in the price of foods. "Consumers should follow closely official reports on the movement of food supplies and prices," he says. "This will help them buy wisely and economically and to detect unwarranted price increases."

The present concern is not over increased prices to farmers but, rather over possible unwarranted spread between prices received by farmers and prices paid by consumers. Dr. Howe says that some food prices will undobtedly rise, partly in line with usual seasonal changes and partly because of drouth-reduced supplies, but supplies of so many foods will be normal or above and the rest so near normal that no one need fear a food shortage.

(Contined from last week.)

Income Loss Mounts To $4,460,000—Costomer-Ownership Sale Goes Merrily On

The company auditors report a net income loss of $4,461,000 for the year 1931 but the so-called "Customer Ownership Campaign" waged amongst customers of the bank, went merrily on. Gardner B. Perry, a vice president of Northwestern National Bank, was in charge of this campaign which had been suggested by J. Cameron Thomson. The executive committee of the Northwest Bancorporation was kept advised from time to time, according to J. Cameron Thomson, by reports from him as to the campaign's activities and the number of new stockholders obtained. Employees of the various banks were organized into groups, or clubs, for the purpose of inducing customers of the bank to become stockholders. These employees were promised a commission on any stock which they sold. Mr. Perry kept these salesmen pepped up with literature, some of which is most interesting reading. This literatiure was sent out in the form of bulletins. One bulletin refers to the fact that "the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker" are all prospecive stockholders. If there was any doubt in the minds of promoters of the institution as to the customer ownership campaign being a success, it was speedily dissipated by one of the first bulletins which Mr. Perry sent to the employees of their banks, in which he said: "As [illegible] said when he discovered the Pacific, 'Boys it's a success." Apparently Mr. Perry felt that as a discoverer of as large a body of water as the Pacific ocean. Balboa had nothing on him. Mr. Perry also discovered that in spite of thirty-nine million dollars of watered stock in Northwest Bancorporation, he Perry, could still sell the stock in such amounts to such numbers of people that he could tell crew: "Boys, it's a success.' Their method of obtaining stockholders during this campaign was exemplified by another bulletin which Mr. Perry sent out, in which he referred to one of the employees in Lead, So Dakota, and stated: "He angles for stockholders with the same success as he does for trout." Mr. Watson, counsel for the department, interrupted Mr. Thomson's explanation of the above to ask if he was sure that the angler from South Dakota was not fishing for suckers.

Use $1,200,00 of Bancorporation Funds to Operate Pool

When the customer ownership campaign started the stock was selling at $50 per share. When it ended in late 1932, the stock was selling at approximately $10 per share. It is worthy of comment that during this period of time Northwest Bancorporation maintained a short position in its own stock. In connection with this, Mr. West was asked:

"Q. It is true is it not that selling short depresses the price of stock?" Which fact Mr. West admitted, but claimed the depression was temporary. Short selling such as was done in this instance was defined by Mr. Watson as being "a sale by the company of its own stock without delivering the same, such sale being made to depress the market and then pick up the stock at a lower price so as to make delivery of the stock previously sold." Many letters were introduced showing the extent of the short position that this company maintained in its own stock. Evidence was introduced showing that Mr. Decker, Mr. Thomson, Mr. Wold, Mr. B. B. Sheffield and many others closely affiliated with Northwest Bancorporation, sold many hundreds of shares in the aggregate of their stock during the whep period when the company was urging its customers to buy. It is also worthy of note that Mr. Thompson claimed that he replaced the stock that he had sold and that his sales had been for the purpose of obtaining income tax deduction. Mr. Watson, attorney for the commission, presented facts to show that his so-called replacements were at prices many thousands of dollars less than the price he obtained when he sold. When Mr. Thomson was asked whether he considered that in making these sales during the customer ownership campaign and in selling short, that such transactions were fair to the stockholders, he declined to answer. The evidence produced before the commission in support of market manipulation and in support of the charge as to pool operations showed that in December, 1929, a pool was organized, of which pool E. W. Decker, John S. Pillsbury, and David Williams of Duluth were the pool managers. This pool was to buy 75,000 shares of the company's stock on the market. Many of our leading citizens such as James Ford Bell of the Washburn-Crosby Co., B. B. Sheffield, formerly president of the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce Association, Shreve M. Archer of the Archer-Daniels Company, and others, many of whom were directors of either the Northwest Bancorporation or its affiliate companies, were members of this pool. Each member agreed to take so many shares. Authority was given to the pool managers to both buy and sell. At the conclusion of the pool operation, the pool managers and certain members of the pool were indebted to the Northwest Bancorporation of $1,200,000, which money had come out of the company's treasury. If any profits had accrued on the operation of the pool, those profits would under the contract have been personal profits for the members. Some of the members paid in full, but all were engaged as members of a common pool. Among others indebted to the company was E. W. Decker, chairman of the board of directors of the company. Mr. Decker was drawing a salary, according to Mr. Thomson's best recollection, of $45,000 a year as president of the Northwestern National Bank, one of the company's named subsidiaries, and while the employees of the bank were required to make monthly payments Mr. Decker had reduced his loan from $115, 000 to approximately $100,000 during the years 1931, 1932 and 1933 during which time he had drawn in salary from the affiliated company according to Mr. Thomson's testimony, over $135,000. Faced with the fact that this $1,200,000 so advanced would have to be rereflected in the company's books, the following action was taken in 1932: The Union Investment Company, a wholly owned subsidiary, transferred to the Northwest Bancorporation certain of their assests, and the Northwest Bancorporation transferred to the Union Investment Company the $1,200,000 due from these pool members and certain other frozen and slow assets as "slow and non-bankable" paper. Thereupon the Union Investment Company set up a reserve for losses against this and other paper in an amount equal to practically the face value of all the assets that had been transferred to it. Mr. Decker was present at the meeting at which this action was taken, according to the company's minute book, and voted in favor of transferring these assets, including his own note, as "slow and non-bankable." Mr. Thomson made no claim, however, that Mr. Decker applied his $45,000 salary from the Northwestern National Bank or any part of it to the payment of his own "slow and non-bankable" paper.

Badoura Transient Camp Is to be Enlarged

Members of the Transient relief crew at the Badourde Nursery are building a new camp. It is planned that approximately 125 men will be stationed in this camp during the winter of 1934–35. An entirely new camp is being built approximately a quarter mile away from the site of the present camp.

The men in the camp will be busy with the various nursery activities during the fall season. In a very short while the men will be digging trees and packing them preparatory to shipping them to the various CCC camps for field planting. After this work is completed the field planting at the nursery will be started. During the winter the men will be busy with cleanup and cultural work at the nursery.

It is also planned that they will install a small saw mill at the nursery and cut into lumber logs removed during thinning operations.

Closed Season Set for Three Species of Game Birds

A closed season on mourning doves upland plover and woodcock was prescribed for the entire state of Minnesota for the year 1934 by Erling Swenson, St te Game and Fish Director, to prevent undue depletion of these species.

New Lookout Tower Is Being Erected

Thirty-three new lookout towers have been erected or are in the process of being erected throughout the forested areas of the State, according to Grover M. Conzet, director of the Division of Forestry.

Where tower records indicate that a large number of people visit a tower, new stairway towers are being erected. The towers that are now located at these places will be torn down and erected in spots not so accessible to the public. Some of the towers that have been erected which are accessible to the public are the ones that are located at Badoura Nursery, Birch Lake overlooking the Foot Hills State Forest and Sandy Lake on the Savannah State Forest.

Mr. Conzet said that the addition of these towers the forest service is able to spot fires while they are still very small and get action on them in a very short time.

Drought Halts Trout Propagation in Streams

Drought condition in Minnesota, reflected in dried up streams and increased temperature of the water, prevented stocking of trout in many streams during the month of August. Surplus trout, according to Dr. T. Sunber, Superintendent of fish propagation, were consigned to small springfield lakes.

A total of 2,038,802 lake and stream trout were distributed during August, according to Dr. Surbor's erport. A total of 1,601,102 stream trout of four species propagated during the month and 428,700 lake trout fingerlings were planted.

Reduced water supply at Glenwood Hatchery necessitated distribuiton of all the stock fingerlings a month sooner than usual, and only a few retained at the St. Peter Hatchery for the same reason. Rapid increase of water temperature at the Lake Superior Hatchery forced early distribution of all the trout, both lake and sstream.

Forty carloads at the Lanesboro Hatchery and three at the St. Peter Hatchery will be distributed during September and October.

All Bachelors at West Point
Only single men are admitted to the military academy at West Point.

Minnesota Farmers Repay Land Bank Over $1,000,000

Minnesota farmers have paid to the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul more than $1,083,000 this year up to the first of September, and that in the face of the worst drouth conditions that agriculture can remember in this state.

The August report on collections, just by the Land Bank, shows that farmers of this state repaid $145,397 during the month, bringing the total to the figure mentioned above. Joining with Minnesota, but with smaller volume, are the other 3 states of the district, North Dakota, Wisconsin and Michigan, making the total 8 months' $2,820,000 approximately.

Of the August Minnesota payments almost $36,000 was repaid on the advances that the Land Bank had made or comprised payments which the farmers were making in advance on obligations not yet due. The advances the bank had made included tax payments to save its borrowers from delinquent tax penalties, or to keep insurance policies in effect at a time when the borrowers could not meet the premiums. However the collection department of the bank points out that the largest par of the advance payment is made up of forehanded remittances that are not due for 3 months or more.

The payments referred to do not include any installments on Commissioner's loans, though the volume of these is also considerable and must be added to the Land Bank installments to show the full amount that the farmers of the state are paying on their farm mortgages to federal agencies. Also only a small portion of these payments are on 1934 loans, very few of which yet have installments due, but are on the basis of Land Bank loans made in 1933, the volume of which Minnesota was approximately $12,746,000.

State Traffic Count Being Tabulated

Results of a statewide traffic count on the trunk highway system are being tabulated by the state highway department. The counting required seven days and was done at 500 important points on both old and new trunk routes. Checkers were on duty sixteen hours daily during the seven-day census. The work was handled as an ERA employment relief measure. The checksrs were not paid from state highway funds.

Repeal Fulfills All Promises----- of Its Opponents

The results of repeal have fulfilled every promise its opponents made for it. The records prove it. Its friends admit it.

Repeal has brought back the public drunk. Arrests for drunkenness durness during the first three months of 1934, after repe l, as compared with the same months of 1933, dry increased sharply over the entire nation. Typical cities are New York 55.5% and Los Angeles, 95.5% increase while Denver and some other cities more than doubled Boston reports an increase of 75% in drunkenness among women.

Repeal has brought back the saloon Figures of the U. S. Department of Justice show that prohibition closed 177,000 saloons,. The International Revenue Department reports show that on June 30, 1934 there were over 700,000—four times the number in preprohibition days.

Repeal has increased auto fatalities. The Chicago Tribune editorially deplored the fact that auto fatalities chargeable to drunken driving had increased four-fold in that city since repeal. The Automobile chamber of Commerce figures show that with car registrations and gas consumption down in 1933, as compared with 1932, traffic deaths are up. The U. S. Census confirms with a report showing an increase of 1.2 deaths per 100,000 population.

Repeal has greatly increased bootlegging Choate of the Federal Alcohol Control Administration emphatically says, and Secreary of the Treasury Morgenthau supports the claim.

Repeal debauches and ruins young girls. Dr. Alice Alrich, Chicago welfare superintendent, says: "Chicago present-day saloons are causing delinquency among young girls to an extent never equalled even in the old days. Young people of opposite sexes drink openly until they are no longer responsible for their acts.

The saloons, with their back room and upstairs facilities, constitute an alarming cause of immorality." Similar reports come from every quarter of the Union.

Repeal has fully lived up to every promise its opponents made for it.

Swamp Fever In Horses

Minneapolis, Minn. Sept. 14.—Farmers and horseowners in Iowa and Illinois are waging war on so-called Swanp Fever of horses but blood worms are frequently mistaken for infectious Anemia or Swamp Fever, according to United States Department of Agriculture, bulletin number 148. Cases diagnosed as Swanp Fever, in many instances, have cleared up following the removal of the blood worm. This dreaded Parasite is wide-spread in horses especially animals which feed on wild hay or low pastures. The blood worms obstruct blood from the blood vessels in the lining of the gut and when many worms are present in a horse at the same time the loss of blood may be considerable and may lead to Anemia with usual consequences of weakness and watery sweillngs in various parts of the body which in due time the liver, pancreas and other organs are effected producing sympttoms often mistaken of Jaundice. It has been found that when horses are treated for the removal of blood worms and other parasites many of the symtoms have disappeared, animals take on weight, regain their capacity and make an all around improvement.

Reds, Yellows, Warm Colors
Reds and yellows and their derivatives are said to be "warm" colors, producing a feeling of warmth. "Warm" colors include all modifications of red and yellow, from the palest straw tint down through orange and brown, and from the most delicate rose color to the deepest crimson and mahogany.

STUART CHASE SECONDS OUR MOTION

The Union Advocate of Saint Paul carried an editorial last week in which it discusses what they term a new plan brought out a week before by Stuart Chase, nationally known economist.

The plan in short, proposes that municipalities be granted the same privileges by the government that it extends to national banks, namely the right to issue money againsts bonds. "To illustrate" the Union Advocate says, "A city wishes to undertake a building program. It would issue non-interest bearing bonds and deposit them with the federal government, just as the banks now deposit A-1 mortgage bonds with the government to secure a floatation of federal bank notes. The government in turn would then print currency to the full amount of the bonds deposited by the city asking the loan. Each year a tenth part of the loan would be repaid to the government and at the end of ten years the original issue of city bonds would have been cancelled by payment to the government. There would be no interest charges either way, and the building program will have been completed with everyone paid in sound American currency."

Far be it from our mind to detract in any way from any glory due Mr. Chase for bringing this plan into national prominence. So far as we know Mr. Chase may have thought of it first. However, we have heard of the plan before, and recognize it as very similar to one we have discussed with friends for the last two years. We of course thought we originated the idea. Maybe that this proves that "great minds travel in the same channel"(Ahem! hhrr, mmph, caugh-caugh, a al Major Hoople.)

The currency and banking system has of course come in for more study by the rank and file of the people during the past few years, and it is not extraordinary that those who have given it some thought come to the same solution of the difficulty. Two years ago we published in our columns the story of the Guernsey Market House and quite a lively discussion of its philosophy followed among our friends. Later when Paul A. Harris, then alderman of the city attended the convention of the League of Minnesota Municipalities in 1933, he introduced and succeeded in geting a resolution adopted embodying a plan similar to the one endorsed by Mr. Chase.

When the farmer-labor association held its convention at Saint Paul in March the writer, assisted by Fred C. Proehl and Paul A. Harris of this city, N. P. Stenshoel of Crookston, Verner Nelson, editor of the Northern Minnesota Leader at Roseau whipped the plan into shape and submitted it to the platform committee. However, that committee had already adopted a plan which they felt embodied our idea and being swamped with work, turned it down. We have often later regretted that we did not introduce it from the floor. We like to think that it would have been adopted by the convention. We still have the rough pencil draft of the plank and the final copy as it was introduced after we, in company with Mr. Proehl had it typewritten by a hotel stenographer. It reads as follows:

> Realizing that economic recovery and the establishment of a sane social and economic order is impossible under the present monetary and banking system, with its heavy interest burden, we favor the reorganization of the monetary and banking system and the elimination of interest on public debt, abolishing private banking and the elimination of the Federal Reserve bank, restoring to Congress its constitutional powers to isue money and establish the value thereof.
> We demand immediate legislation making it possible for states and other subdivisions of government to issue non-interest bearing bonds to the federal treasury in return for treasury notes of full legal tender, at cost of printing and recording, such bonds to be retired in the same manner as our state and municipal bonds now held by private investors, through taxation or otherwise. Such money, upon repayment, to be withdrawn from circulation until and unless it is re-issued, similarly safeguarded and secured by bonds of subdivisions of government. That to safeguard the treasury against any tendency on the part of such subdivisions of government to over-bond an Appraisal Commission be established to pass on potential earning power, indebtedness and tax levy of such municipalities or subdivisions of government and their ability to repay their obligations.

Anyway regardless of who thought of it first, we strained a couple of buttons off our vest when we found that Stuart Chase endorses a similar idea.

TACTICS OF DIVISION
(Saint Paul Daily News)

As was to be expected Gov. Olson disposed of the demand of the "Committee of 100" for dismissal of a number of state officials with an uncompromising refusal.

He took occasion to remind the petitioners that he regarded it as proceeding from A. C. Townley, former Nonpartisan leager, to whom he issued a challenge to "prove that his announced intention of running for Governor against him was not interwoven with the motives of big business and public utilities of the state."

So Mr. Townley, it is now announced, automatically files as an independent against the governor.

Considering the opportunity, the governor is comparatively mild in his reply to the petitioners. Perhaps he was considerate of the feelings of some who, he prefers to believe, were led astray by the wily Mr. Townley.

In any event the outcome of this political play remains to be seen. Offhand the petitioners were not on very sound ground asking the dismissal of jobholders in order to put in others. This is hardly a high plane upon which to stage such a spectacular political revolt. The boys should have thought of something more idealistic—or socialistic.

The entire episode is quite likely to react for the benefit of the governor. Could it be that fusion having failed to date, the tactics have been changed to division?

Persecution has ever followed in the wake of the progressive cause, and this campaign will be no exception. CHRIST, the religious radical of his day, was crucified. Consider Washington the "Traitor" to England and Lincoln the "radical" who believed that human rights were paramount to property rights. These men were the objects of unfair and vile attacks by their enemies, and yet, because of their courage and ideals, they persevered and laid the foundation for a great nation. These great figures in political history were not content to let existing systems remain unchanged. They knew that only through progress could their country continue to grow in a normal way. If Lincoln were alive today he would be fighting against the capitalistic and monopilistic institutions that oppress the people. It was Lincoln who prophesied that capitalists would eventually control propaganda channels and hold the govenmental power over the peopl. As he freed the negros from their bonds of slavery, so would he free the masses from the grips of the system that has grown up in this nation since his demise. We say that he would continue the fight for the people because he was a true progressive. When a progressive fails to seek reform, he becomes a conservative. With cold logic and humane priciples on the side of the progressive reactionary forces must of necessity resort to character assassination and intimidation, to block the steady advance of the progressive idea in the minds oif the people. Such a campaign is now being waged in Minnesota, with pamphlets that are so fantastic in their conception that sane people are nauseated. A deliberate attempt is being made to confuse the co-operative program of the Farmer-Labor Party with the system existing in Russia, inspite of the fact that the program is drawn on an exact parallel to the system now in successful operation in Denmark, Sweden and Norway. There is no doubt that some of the good citizens who perpetuate these false impressions, are doing so in the belief that they are guarding the stability of the nation and state. They have been led to believe by the reactionary and lying press that there is cause for fear and are consequently acting as any good American should act, BUT when they study the other side of the picture they can not help, if they wish to be fair, but see that there are evils in our present system to be corrected, and that only through planned political, economic, and educational programs can this be accomplished. —Russel Anchor

There is a type of politician that thinks as soon as a man from his party is elected to office, that man should convert his office into a clearing house for patronage and constitute himself the head of an employment agency. If things don't "click" to his satisfaction, he becomes fired with energy and covers the state making disorganizing speeches, and even offers to run for governor is "something isn't done about it." I am referring to A. C. Townley and his side kick, Chas. Johnson of Jackson County. These men undoubtedly are voicing the opinions of many Farmer-Laborites, ye editor included, but they forget that patronage is secondary to the principle for which the party stands, and that any concenrated drive, such as is being put on at this time is to the detriment of the movement. Their attitude is one of selfishness and should be exposed. The people of the state of Minnesota are looking to the Farmer-Labor Party to help them out of this chaos of private creed and depression, and to them belongs the first consideration from the elected office-holders of the Farmer-Labor Party. Governor Olson HAS retained men who served under a Republican regime, and we feel that more effort should be made to find men qualified to fill those positions from the ranks of the party in power, so that their friendliness to the administration would aid in the carrying out of the program; but, on the other hand, the Governor should not destroy the efficiency of the department because of the patronage cry. There are good men in the F-L party and they should be used, and it is our hope that the administration will finish their job of housecleaning after the next election. As to these disorganziers, they should be read out of the organization if they persist in their attempt to cripple the only party that has a chance to accomplish what the people want accomplished. —Russel Anchor

If you think Mr. Townley won't run for some office this fall you are very incorrect. If you ask him who is the greatest man in Minnesota he will point his finger at his own nose.

WHAT A NERVE

The W. C. T. U., "feeble folk, yet they build their homes among the rocks," has an exhibit at the Century of Progress Fair, showing the evil effects of alcohol upon the human system The liquor interests have protested, claiming that the exhibit was directer at the liquor business.

It is, why not?

What a nerve!

You would think that the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment has entirely defaced and eradicated all the evils of liquor on the human system and on the social body, and that the only way to get to heaven, health, happiness and prosperity was to take a nose dive drinking your tummy full into a sea of raw alcohol!

The more you think of repeal and the more you thing how the amalgamated booze interests put it over the less you think of human intelligence.

It is as though the combination of lice and fleas had conspired to make the dogs bark at flea soap in the interests of canine happiness.

WALL STREET'S INIQUITIES BARED

An Editorial from "Labor".

In his inaugural address March 4, 1933, President Roosevelt denounced the financial oligarchy centering in Wall Street and promised that his administration would "drive the money changers from the temple." The whole and was thrilled by the promise.

Last week, the Senate Banking and Currency Committee issued the second of its reports on its investigation of the Stock Exchange. This sober, restrained statement of a Senate committee shows that the emoney changers certainly need to be driven from the temple.

Wall Street, according to the report regularly deals in crimes of six and seven figures. Its total loot while the looting was good is counted by billions. It pegged markets, marked stocks up and down, put bankers and politicians on its "preferred lists," and, on foreign bonds alone, skinned the public out of a sum larger than the total cost of the Civil War.

From 1923 to 1930 bankers floated in this county $6,293,000,000 of foreign bonds. This brought up the total of foreign bonds held in this country to $7,836,000,000. Of these, $2,900,000,000 are now in default; and a loss probably about equal in amount has been suffered through the decline in price of bonds that have not defaulted —yet.

"The colossal loss sustained by the public on bond issues sponsored by investment bankers," says the report "proves that these bankers were either incompetent or derelict in the performance of their duties. The records of the method by which securities were originated and sold to the American public, when disclused at the hearings of the Senate committee, were so shocking as to place beyond controversy the urgent need for such legislation as the Banking Act of 1933."

The boosting of domestic securities —the sale, through various devices, of stocks and bonds at prices often many times their value—cost American investors much more than the foreign bonds.

From 1920 to 1932, the committee finds, $55,270,500,000 in stocks and bands were isssued by the corporations and sold. The figures are astronomical; no one can get more than a dim picture of what they mean.

The report of the Senate committee shows that a large part of these securities were unloaded on the public at pegged prices—and then the peg was pulled out.

The plunder gained by the money changers in this way is almost incredible. The committee gives many instances, of which one will suffice. J. P. Morgan & Co. got warrants to buy 1,514,200 shares of United Corporation—a Morgan est-up at $1 per share.

"Within 60 days," says the Senate report, "J. P. Morgan & Co. was in a position to sell these warrants in the market at a minimum of $40 a share, or a total profit of over $68,000,000."

Somebody paid that $68,000,000 profit which the House of Morgan made. That somebody, the Senate report plainly indicates, is the American people.

In another case, where Kuhn, Loeb & Co. cleared $6,000,000 out of the isssue of securities for the Pennroad Corporation, Pecora questioned H. H. Lee, president of the Pennoad.

"Will you tell this committee, if you can, the specific services which Kuhn, Loeb rendered for which they received $6,000,000?"

"I do not thing I can, M. Pecora." said Mr. Lee.

"Do you think anybody can?"

"I doubt it, very much."

"It is beyond belief," says the committee, "that any form of services an investment banker can render entitles him to so stupendous a profit."

Many of the money changers, particularly the House of Morgan and Kuhn, Leob & Co., delt heavily in "preferred lists" This means that each investment banking house had a list of persons with whom it would share a part of the profits it made from deals like the Pennroad and the United Corporation. It would take these favored in on the ground floor.

"The preferred lists," says the committee, "strikingly illuminate the methods employed by bankers to extend their influence and control over individuals in high places. The persons upon whom princely favors were bestowed in this manner were officers and directors of banks, trust companies, insurance companies, executives of railroads, utilities and industrial corporations, editors, lawyers politicians and public officals."

For example, the late President Coolidge, the late William H. Woodin, first Secretary of the Treasury under Roosevelt; "Barney" Baruch, and F. H. Ecker, head of the Metropolitan Life.

It is a long report, though there is not a word too much in it, and it does not mention one of the most incriminating things uncovered by the inquiry. That is the fact that after "gypping" investors out of their money, the money changers cheated Uncle Sam out of his taxes on the profits of their looting.

..Not one of the 20 multi-millionaires who compose the House of Morgan paid a cent of income taxes to the United States in 1930, 1931 and 1932; and the same course was followed by the other money chnagers. ....

It is a revealing document, that report it shows that President Roosevelt was far too mild in the things he said about the financial oligarchy of Wall Street. But as for driving the money changers from the temple, that has not been done.

The money changers still ply their trade in the temple. They have been restricted and curbed to some extent; but the men who sold those worthless foreign bonds, and took those conscienceless profits, and then evaded their taxes, are still masters of money and credit in America.

Farmer-Labor Press Service
by Senator Henry G. Teigan

California has taken the limelight away from Minnesota.

Upton Sinclair, former socialist and internationally-known writer, was nominated for governor of California by a huge majority in last week's primary election in that state. Mr. Sinclair polled a vote approximating 425,000 for the Democratic nomination. This was about 130,000 votes more than were received by his principal Democratic opponent, Geo. Creel, wartime propagandist for the Wilson administration. The Sinclair vote exceeded that given Governor Merriam for the Republican nomination by approximately 75,000.

These large majorities given Mr. Sinclair over his political oponents, do not, however, mean anything in themselves. What is significant about the large vote given the former socialist author is that they indicate a tremendous political change in heretofore conservative California.

Sinclair Former Socialist

While Mr. Sinclair left the socialist party in order to become a candidate for governor on the democratic ticket he does not appear to have charged his views regarding economic and political matters. Briefly the Sinclair program which the voters of California endorsed so strongly in the recent primary is as follows:

Pensioning every needy person over sixty, every blind person and every widow with children at the rate of $50 per month.

Exemption from taxation of all homes and ranches assessed at $3,000.

An inheritance tax which would take 50 percent of any personal bequests over $50.000 and 50 per cent of any estate over $250,000.

The state to rent or buy land and idle factories to provide work for the unemployed to "feed, clothe, and house with the products with one another's labor."

Unique Campaign

"Time," weekly news-magazine, reports on how Mr. Sinclair conducted his campaign. Thus:

"I Governor of California and How I Ended Poverty" was a booklet Candidate Sinclair put out. Besides telling about EPIC ("End Poverty in California") it gave a lot of all his books (The Jungle, The Metropolis, The Brass Check, Oil! etc.) It sold for 20c. Politicians laughed at such campaigning. By last week he had sold about 200,000 copies. He wrote other pamphlets. He started a weekly newspaper Epic News, carrying advertisements, priced 5c. Its circulation reached about 175,000 (Biggest vote he ever polled as a Socialist was about 60,000.) Rivals accused him of running not a campaign but publishing a racket. He replied that he had two bank accounts with $108.74 in one and $20.68 in the other, that his living and his cottage in Pasadena—with two fig trees in its dooryard—were only made secure by his more practical wife, Mary Craig Sinclair.

"No glad-hander, he stayed most of the time in his little white house, only emerging to campaign, to tell the public he was going to take the wild beast of greed by the beard; that EPIC was need to put the unemployed to work and take the burden of relief off the backs of the Tax Payers; that he was no radical, believed in Democracy, was abjured by Communists; that he was not to be confused with Sinclair Lewis; that upon election he would instantly pardon Tom Mooney. Lean, white-haired, hollow-eyed, he had no barkers to drum up audiences for him. Instead he charged admission fees, usually 25c, for his meetings, drew greater crowds than any other candidate."

Politicians Take Notice

Reactionary politicians of Minnesota and elsewhere ought to be able by this time to sense the revolt that is in the public mind everywhere. The outcome in Minnesota last June which showed the Farmer-Labor party much the strongest of the political parties in this state, undoubtedly made some impression on the political fossils representing big business in the state. Too many of them however, believe "that the vote polled by the Farmer-Labor candidates in June were given them because of the magnetic power Governor Floyd B. Olson." They ought to be pretty well disillusioned now, for the Sinclair program of California is at least as radical as that of the Farmer-Labor party, and Sinclair himself has been far out in front as an advocate of socialism for the past quarter of a century. He is perhaps tbe best known socialist writer of fiction in he world today. Obviously, genuine political progress is being made on all fronts these days.

Lawrence Hawthorne

Had a dream the other night,
And it gave me such a fright!
Dreamed a ship left you and me
On an island far at sea;
It was lonely, bleak and small—
No inhabitants at all;
Not so bad, until the day
Rescue boats took you away;
Someone said that, if I'd learn
To be friendly, they'd return—
Said that people seldom knew
Such delightful friends as you,
And that leaving me behind
Might impress it on my mind! . . .
Just a dream, but you can bet
It's a dream I'll not forget!

In the Rostrum

Dear Editor:

Now hat harvest is over we all know Fairly well how we fared in 1934. We will now be turning our minds to other channels of thought.

Ever since last summer, when under the auspices of the Rocksbury Community Club, for the benefit of the aspirants office and a justice to thepeople of the community an all-candidate demonstration was staged at Valhall in Ricksbury Township; at this gathering approximately six hundred enthusiastic people were more than pleased with the event and have ever since been pressing for a like demonstration at some time during the fall campaign.

We have decided to stage this Political Rally which will be similar to the one held last spring, to be held at Valhall Hall in Rocksbury Township on Sunday, October 7. At this time we are anticipating to invite all the candidates for the Governor's chair of the state; and we will give these distinguished and honorable gentlehen the privilege of saying anything in behalf, their party, and the office the seek. If these gentlemen cannot be on hand themselves, we will allow such candidates to choose whoever they wish to represent them at this Rally. We will livide the time approximately two and a half hours to the candidates who will be present at the date. At that time we are going to draw lots to see who speaks first and so on.

I am spending a proper notice to all these candidates for Governor informing them of our intensions, and requesting from them that they take it upon their shoulders to furnish us with a speaker for the occasion. From all the favorable comments and requests for this Political Demonstration we should have no trouble in having an audience of at least two thousand people. This All-Party Political Demonstration is unique in its set-up, but is staged for the benefit of the people who are interested in learning the actual facts in politics as it effechs that particular office of the Governor of our State.

This day is set aside in the Rocksbury Community for the benefit of all candidates seeking offiie. This day we, the people of Rocksbury Community invite all aspiants for whatever office to come to Valhall Hall to meet the voters and it also is a day set aside where we meet these candidates without the candidates necessarily spending a lot of time passing their cards around by driving from house to house. Again I want to say, this is a day for candidates and the voters alike to meet on eanother; and it is expected that every candidate will be here in person or a representative to respectfully solicit votes on whatever ticket or for whatever office.

There will be ample notice of this Rally in the coming issues of our weekly newspapers, and I am urging all the people interested to make it a point to set thos day aside and meet all the candidates and hear a debate by the candidates for Governor.

Yours for a sguare deal in our caming Political campaign.

Paul Engelstad.

Government to Buy Minnesota Sheep

St. Paul—The government is preparing to buy approximately 100,000 sheep in Minnesota at a cost of $200,000 before November 1, Paul E. Miller, state director in charge, revealed. It will pay $2 a head. In addition to the sheep it will buy about 200 Angora goats, paying at the rate of $1.40 a head. The same organizations that have been directing the cattle buying programs in the 37 drouth counties of the state will be in charge of the sheep buying. Only farmers in the designated drouth counties of the state will have the privilege of selling their sheep to the government in this buying campaign.

U. S. Credit is Put to Test in Deal.

Washington—The government put its credit to the test by offering to refund $1,774,758,500 in securities, part of them at a lower interest rate. The offer ended several weeks of speculation about the new financial program. It was taken as a refutation of the many theories that the government would inflate the currency to pay off the debt. Instead, the treasury offered new bonds for its outstanding obligations. If all the securities are exchanged it will save $12,500,000 yearly in interest charges.

Capitol News Review

by A. I. Harris

S. Paul Skahen, Commissioner of Securities has received information that a Boston concern is circularizing Minnesota with a finance sheet called "Popular Finance," presumably giving confidential information regarding investments. Gold Lode Mines, Inc., securities are being recommended for purchase. Persons receiving the circulars, prospectus and other printed material perfaining to Gold Lodes Mines, Inc., invariably receive long distance calls from high powered solicitors. The editor of "Popular Finance" is not licensed to engage in the business of selling securities in Minnesota and the securities of Gold Lode Mines, Inc., have not been register for sale.

Commissioner Skahen warns Minnesota investors against purchasing the above securities and condemns the methods of solicitation employed. It is warnings like these that will prevent the stealing of the horse before the barn door is locked.

Conservation Commissioner E. V. Willard's appeal to all political parties to get behind the proposed constitutional amendment which provides for the right of the state to exchange state lands for federal lands will prevent this important question from becoming a matter of partisan politics. All political parties should get behind this worth while measure, which failed of passage by a narrow vote the last time because the voter generally did not understand its import.

Knud Wefald, member of the Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission, is trying to bring about the continuation of the reduced railroad freight rates for hauling hay and feed into the drouth stricken sections of Minnesota to May 1, 1935. From September, last year, until June, this year, the railroads granted a reduction of 33 per cent in this rates, and from June until September, this year the reduction was 50 per cent. Mr. Wefald announces that this has meant a saving of approximately $500,000 to the farmers of Minnesota who have been compelled to ship in hay and feed for their livestock.

There are still four countids in Minnesota which up to last week had not reported a single conviction for a motor vehicle law violation to the drivers license bureau of the state highway department. State law requires local courts to report convictions of traffic violators. This is necessary to enable the license bureau to suspend or revoke licenses in serious cases, and to keep the court records on file. The counties from which no reports of convictions have been received were announced by Gil Carmichael, drivers license director, as being Traverse, Pine, Grant and Mahnomen.

The social serice of the Epicopal church has the following to say about the doctrine of rugged individualism and the co-operative commonwealth, which shows clearly the trend of modern enlightened church thought in this and other countries: "It is becoming increasingly evident that the conception of society as made up of autonomous, independent individuals, each free to seek his own ends, is as faulty from the view-point of economic realism as it is from the standpoint of Christian idealism. Our traditional philosophy of rugged individualism must be modified to meet the needs of a co-operative age." The Nothern Baptist church, at its Son Francisco convention, took a decided stand in favor vof the co-operatie commonwealth in the following language: "Ours is an age that would stand condemned by all the foremost teachers and prophets from the beginning of history—Jesus of Nazareth would ahve none of it—the co-operative commonewealth is practical on a world-wide basis."

Ostrich Egg "Steaks"

An ostrich egg is boiled by the Boer family for between two and three hours, and is shelled. "Steaks" are cut off it, and it is kept in a refrigerator. One ostrich egg lasts a week or so for a family. In the meantime, excess eggs are gathered fresh and eaten by slices, after having been hard boiled.

H. O. BERVE

Candidate for County Attorney

Announcement

At the suggestion of friends throughout the county I have filed as a Candidate for County Attorney of Pennington County. When I was a candidate for county attorney four years ago, I lost on a Tie Vote between myself and my opponent. The County Canvassing Board drew lots and my opponent was the lucky one in the drawing and was declared elected.

If elected I shall try to discharge the duties of the office with fairness and impartiality, and as economically as possible. The support and vote of all the voters of the county will be appreciated, and at this time I wish to request my friends throughout the county to take hold and give me their active support during the campaign.

Yours very truly,
H. O. BERVE

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT: Inserted by Paul A. Lundgren in his own behalf, for which the sum of $10.00 has been paid.

RE-ELECT

Paul A. Lundgren

County Attorney

I wish herewith to announce my candidacy for re-election to my second term as County Attorney. I shall appreciate your vote and support and give the following information in support of my candidacy:

PERSONAL—I was born on a farm in Sibley County forty years ago; was graduated from Winthrop High School in 1913; graduated from Gustavus Adolphus College in 1917; have had two terms of graduate work at the University of Minnesota and the University of South Dakota; was graduated from the Minnesota College of law in 1925 and admitted to practice in this State. I have had ten years of teaching experience, three of which were served as Superintendent of Schools and five as Department Head in the Minneapolis Roosevelt High School. Since July 1st, 1927, I have practiced law at Thief River Falls, the last four years of which I have served as County Attorney. I am a married man, home owner and taxpayer of this county.

RECORD—I have sought diligently to protect the rights of the state in all its criminal cases arising during my term of office. Their disposition in such abnormal times as the past three years has not always been an easy problem. Up to September 1st, 1934, 264 Criminal Cases have been brought into Court. Compare this with the preceeding term when there were but 143 cases.

I have devoted hundred of hours of my time to aid in the collection of delinquent taxes, as well as to establish a constructive plan of handling these delinquent lands. I have instituted more than four hundred attachments of rents from these lands, and now have three hundred fifty-four leases in force. Up to July 1st, 1934, more than $15,500.00 had been collected on these attachments. The 1934 cash rent leases total $10,490.00 and in addition thereto the county has thirty-six crop share leases which will bring the total collections to more than $25,000 during my term. During the preceding term there were only 9 attachments started, on which there was collected less than $500.00.

I have sought at all times to cooperate with the County Board and the various other County Offices, and have given freely of my time to the various agencies of relief.

I have practiced the strictest economy in office and have returned each year the $300.00 voted by the County Board for my contingent expense fund

I have undoubtedly made some mistakes. The only one, however, who makes no mistakes is he who does nothing. When I was elected I was new not only to the office, but to the County as well. Now, with a wider knowledge of the county and the work of the office, I can be of even greater service.

I therefore sincerely solicit your vote and support for a second term. I honestly pledge you my best efforts.

Announcement

I wish to announce that I have sold my entire interest in the Thief River Falls Forum and its equipment to R. M. Aalbu, who will continue the business. All accounts owing to the firm should be paid to Mr. Aalbu.

H. L. Schuster

I have purchased Mr. H. L. Schuster's interest in the Forum and will continue to publish the paper weekly under the same policies as previously, with my aim to enlarge and improve the paper. I assure our readers that I shall endeavor to give them the newsiest, and most interesting progressive paper that it is possible to publish. I trust that I shall merit continued good will and support.

Hundreds of Horses to Receive Treatment for Destruction of Parasites

TREATMENT RECOMMENDED BY U. S. DEPT. OF AGRICULTURE, AGRICULTURAL COLLEGES, AND VETERINARIANS

Treatment to Be Administered by Dr. L. R. Twete, Thief River Falls, Minnesota'

Campaign to exterminate Nose and Bot flies and worms [especially the Blood Worm which is frequently mistaken for SWAMP FEVER] in horses, colts, and mules is under way in Pennington, Red Lake, Polk, and Marshall Counties, according to C.H. Staggs, who has charge of this campaign.

Control of parasites of horses is satisfactory and worth while, according to owners of 200,000 head of horses in Iowa, over 137,000 in Illinois, and over 80,000 in Minnesota.

Treatment will be explained to each horse owner and furnished at a small cost per animal and will be administered by DR. L. R. TWETE at a small charge, also FREE TEETH EXAMINATION.

Horse owners who have not enlisted in this campaign should do so at once. Horses free of parasites have colic less frequently. They also require less feed and work better.

Wanted a man in every township to list horses for treatment in the above mentioned Counties. Address C. H. Staggs, Thief River Falls, Minn.

AT YOUR SERVICE

Wire around wire . . . tight twisted . . . a splice that will carry your telephone messages for years to come. Splicing wires is only a part of one of the jobs of providing telephone service . . . but it, like others, must be done well.

Linemen, engineers, builders, repairmen, testers, installers . . . nearly 275,000 persons throughout the country in scores of telephone jobs work together to provide the service you have and use.

Our Aim—to provide adequate, dependable and pleasing telephone service . . . and to do so at the lowest cost to the public consistent with fair treatment of employees and of the 850,000 men and women who have invested their savings in the Bell System.

farms of this country."

Senator Laura E. Naplin thanked the people of the community for the splendid support they gave her in the primary election as well as in the past elections. Referring to the farmer labor platform she stated that she is proud of it. It gives us something to work for, she said. Urging the women to get out and vote on election day she said, "Render unto Caesar that which is Caesar's and unto God that which is God's. When you go and vote you render to Caesar, or to the state."

Judge James E. Montague of the fourtenth judicial district gave a speech in which he told of the recent decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States in cases involving a division between human rights and property rights. "No man is safe until we make it safe for every man", he said, "and the wise man, is the man who sees the vision of the new day and helps to bring it about rather than to retard its progress." Apparently referring to the recent Townley uprising he said, "Every man should hessitate before he takes any step which would retard or upset the principles in which he professes to believe." Referring to large corporations and their power he said, "The time is past when any individual or group or corporation can use its resources against the public welfare.'

A snappy kittenball game was played during an intermission in the speaking program between a team of CCC boys from the camp on the Red Lake river in the east end of the county and a team composed of players from the local Bill's Eat Shop and Glueks teams resulting in a victory for the locals by a score of 5 to 10. The CCC boys garnered 12 hits and the locals 22 hits.

Fred C. Phroehl, receiver for closed state banks in this territory gave an exceptionally fiery and illuminating talk on the manipulation of money and credit and the far-reaching sphere of influence of the international and chain bankers. He scored W. E. Decker and his confederates of the Northwest Banco and their swindling of the public to the tune of millions of dollars in fake stock deals and traced the interwoven plottings of the firms of Kuhn-Loeb and company, Morgan and company and other international money powers thruout the history of years.

Senator R. T. Buckler, of Crookston, farmer-labor candidate for ninth district congressman scored the grain gamblers and the profiteers in the things that people must eat and wear. He cited the spread in price between the return paid the producers and the cost to the consumer for the necessities of ilfe and urged the adoption of cooperative and public ownership of monopolized industries to remedy the evil.

K. K. Solberg was his usual fiery self and kept the audience on the edge of the planks as she drove home barbs into the dead carcass of the republican part y. He also leveled some well directed shots at the democrats and Roosevelt's apparent acquiscence to the will of the international bankers. "I am a radical" he said, "and I've quit mincing with words. If the farmer-labor platform is socialistic or communistic, then I am a socialist or a communist," he stated. In closing he said, "Exercise the greatest power that God gave you, the right that your forefathers fought for, your citizenship. Vote."

Chardles Munn, speaker of the house of representatives and candidate for railroad and warehouse commissioner spoke for the first time in this community and made a fine impression on the audience. He is a sane, rational talker and drives home his points with conviction. Highlights from his talk are: "The railroads never paid a debt in 75 years and if rates are high it is because we must pay interest on an ever mounting debt structure. We are less than a year from starvation. We should build up a surplus to protect us against starvation rather than to destroy surpluses."

Knud Wefald, state railroad and warehouse commissioner spoke here for the first time in several years. The former congressman from this district gave a very lucid talk on the workings of the public utilities and his work as a commissioner of the railroad and warehouse commission and his efforts in behalf of regulatory measures. Referring to President Roosevelt he said, "I admire Roosevelt, because altho he doesn't know where he is going he refuses to turn back to the old order."

The farmer-labor club and the farmer-labor women's club conducted a refreshment stand on the ground and served free coffee & cream They did a thriving business in lunches and refreshments all afternoon and were sold out when the evening came. Erling Dahlen of this city furnished the amplifier system and the Land O' Lakes donated the use of a large truck which was used as a platform. H. Halland, secretary of the Pennington county association was chairman of the committee in charge and H. O. Berve was chairman of the day.

Compensation System For SERA Workers Is Being Inaugurated

A complete compensation organization has been formulated to cover all SERA employees in Minnesota, according to a bulletin issued this week by H. I. Frisbie District Engineer for SERA. This plan became effective September 1st, 1934. The compensation plan is based on self insurance plan and will cover injuries sustained in connection with employment on ERA projects resulting in, permanent, partially permanent injuries and fatalies that cover all compensable accidents to relief labor and, paid in whole or in part, by the State Emergency Relief Administration

There will be set aside by Director of Finance, State Emergency Relief Administration, and accumulated and held in the Accident Compensation Fund herein created, a sum of money equivalent to one and one-half per cent of the total SERA funds for labor on Emergency Relief Administration payrolls paid on such projects during the preceding month. There will also be set aside a sum of money equivalent to one and one-half percent of the total salaries of the Emergency Relief Adminisrative personnel, paid during the preceding month. This percentage will not include any computation against other labor costs.

The rules and regulations allow the injured employee to call a physician of his, of her, choice. This physician. after examination, immediately report his findings on a form for such purpose to the Division of Safety and Compensation. This Division will then authorize continued treatment if satisfied that disability is due to an injury received by the employee while in the performance of duty on ERA employment.

Compensation benefits are only extended in case of ijuries sustained while in the performance of duty on ERA employment, and not in cases of disease or illness of any kind.

Correction!

In the list of candidates seeking election on the Farmer-Labor ticket published in last week's Froum, the name of Harry H. Peterson, present Attorney General, was omitted due to an error in the press release. Mr. Peterson is a candidate for re-election to his present office, is one of our outstanding Farmer-Laborites. and has made a very fine record as Attorney General.

Death of the Rickshaw

The rickshaw, the East's most famous vehicle, is dying out, according to reports received from Ceylon. The bicycle and the car are driving it out of business, as well as good roads, which are now becoming as frequent as bad roads. In Ceylon there is also a movement afoot to put an end to the rickshaw traffic on the ground that it is degrading for one man to act as a beast of burden for another, and that no country in the East can attain respect in the eyes of the world so long as such conditions are tolerated. Today the rickshaw traffic is confined almost exclusively to tourists in such places as Colombo and Kandy, who still enjoy riding in so unusual a vehicle.

Most Private Planes in U. S.

The United States leads the world in the number of private airplanes. Last year there were more than 1,200 machines in the country. France had 1,387, but this included many used for instruction and owned by clubs. France has the largest number of commercial planes, according to population, one to every 100,000 inhabitants. The United States has one for every 500,000, Italy one for every 400,000 and Germany one for every 150,000.

Serious Gunshot Wound Makes Amputation of Leg Necessary

In an unfortunate mishap while out hunting last Sunday afternoon, Dr. O. G. Lynde, local physician, was accidently shot in the lower part of the leg, necessitating amputation below the knee in an operation at the University hospital, Minneapolis, on Tuesday morning.

Included in the group with Mr. Lynde were his cousin, Melvin Griffin of Ellendale, N. Dak., Dr. O. F. Melby and son Erling. The party had been hunting in a field ten miles east of Middle River, and were about to return to the car when the accident occured.

While Dr. Melby was testing the repeating mechanism of his gun preparatory to leaving the field, the gun accidently discharged at the same time which Dr. Lyndie walked in front of it, resulting in the tearing of a section of the bone in the lower part of his leg.

Dr. Lynde was immediately rushed to a local hospital where an emergency treatment was given him, but was taken to the University hospital on Monday.

Candidates for Governor Invited to Valhall Rally

Another All-Party political rally has been planned for Valhall, to be held on Sunday October 7th, Paul Engelstad announced this week. This time the rally will be devoted to the candidates for governor, and a special invitation has been extended to all candidates for that office to attend or send a representative to represent them at this event. The time will be equally divided among the speakers as equitable as posible Mr. Engelstad announced, and they may be sure that they speak to as large a crowd as it is possible to gather in Northern Minnesta.

Last spring during the primary campaign such an all-party rally was sponsored by the Rocksbury club and candidates from all parties availed themselves of the opportunity of speaking before the large audience that gathered. This time with the rally confined to candidates for governor, the crowd is expected to tax even the large grounds available at Valhall to capacity.

A violinist of renown, Miss Jane Dudley will appear as the first artist on a series of assembly programs to be provided by the Northwest Assemblies, Inc. at the Municipal Auditorium on Friday afternoon, Sept. 21, at 3 o'clock.

Miss Dudley won the Leopold Auer Scholarship in 1925, has studied in both New York and in Europe, and is a pupil of Cecil Burleigh, noted violinist and composer. She will present numbers by Stephen Foster, Clarence Cameron, Cecil Burleigh, Edward MacDowell, Maude Powell, Mrs. H. Beach and Albert Spaulding.

A small admission fee of 5 cents for students and 15 cents for adults will be charged.

Local Water Supply O. K., Says State Board of Health

In a preliminary check of the local filteration plant and of the water in the mains, O. E. Brownell, sanitary engineer with the division of sanitation of the state department of health, it is indicated that the city water supply is in good condition despite the low stage of the river.

Rocksbury Club Postpones Picnic Scheduled for Sun.

The picnic for Community Kittenball teams scheduled to be held at Valhall this Sunday has been postponed for one week, Paul Engelstad announced Wednesday. This action was taken to allow the hunting season to run its course unmolested, Mr. Engelstad said. Except for the chance in date the picnic will be carried thru as announced last week.

Lindbergh-for-Governor Executive Committee Issue Statement Scoring Townley's Tactics

The executive committee which had charge of the Lindberg for governor campaign in 1924 took A. C. Townley to task for starting a revolt on the Farmer-Labor ranks in the name of Charles A. Lindbergh, this week. Townley had nothing to do with the Lindberg campaign they state and they resent his efforts at this time to lend prestige to his campaign of abuse and slander in the name of the late Congressman Lindbergh.

The statement issued to the press by the committee follows:

To Editors:

The undersigned members of the Lindgergh-for-Governor Executive Committee, did not intend to enter into the controversy between Floyd B. Olson and the Committee of One Hundred and A. C. Townley, regarding the Governor's personnel policies, but we have been forced to note with amusement and disgust that A. C. Townley has departed from his alleged legitimate grievances, and is conducting a campaign of slander and abuse aimed at Floyd Olson, under the pretext of "carrying on for Lindbergh."

It was our privilege to conduct the campaign for Lindbergh for Senator in 1923 and Lindbergh for governor in 1924. At no time was Townley in evidence. He was never in Lindbergh's law offices or headquarters during both these campaigns, never to our knowledge wrote a letter and in no way assisted Minnesota's noted Congressman. In fact, it was the commor knowledge of Lindbergh supporters that Townley parted with Lindbergh because he could not make of Lindbergh a rubber stamp.

In view of all this, we view indignant resentment, the spectacle of one A. C. Townley, who rendered pioneer service in organization of the Northwest's progressive forces in the days of the Nonpartisan League, stooping in the name of the Great Commoner Lindbergh, to a campaign of low slander and abuse, directed at the nation's outstanding defender of the farmers and workers–Governor Floyd B. Olson.

FAMOUS PLAY TO BE PRESENTED ON SEPTEMBER 30TH

"Prisoner at the Bar" Will Be Presented by Cast of Local Talent

A new type of temperance campaign will be demonstrated in Thief River Falls Sunday evening, Sept. 30, when the state Anti-Saloon League presents the new drama, "Prisoner at the Bar" at the city auditorium. The meeting is being sponsored by the churches of the city and the play will be given by twenty-one local citizens assisted by Dr. R. N. Holsaple, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Minnesota, who will take the part of the judge in the play which will be in the nature of a murder trial in which the prisoner will be tried for the murder of his wife, while he was under the influence of liquor.

Dr. Holsaple was in the city this week making final arrangements for the big meeting and stated that the cast selected here is one of the very best they have been able to assemble in any town. He predicts that the auditorium will be crowded. "We have been gratified at the way the new drama has been received," siad Dr. Holsaple. "We have had crowded houses everywhere and usually have to turn away nearly as many people as are able to get in for the meeting, and on some occasions have had to repeat the play twice the same night in order to accomodate the crowds." 'Prisoner at the Bar' is the greatest temperance drama written since 'Ten Nights in a Barroom' was produced."

There will be no admission charge but a collection will be taken and the meeting will start at eigth o'clock.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE TO BE HELD HERE ON WEDNESDAY SEPT. 26

Teachers' Institute will be held in Pennington county on Wednesday, Sept., 26, A. C. Matheson, county superintendent of schools announced this week. The meeting will be held at the court house from 9 to 12 o'clock in the morning, and from 1:30 in the afternoon.

Miss Mayme J. Schow will be in charge, and all teachers are expected to be present. The program will be from mimeographed outlines consisting of the following: Study periods exercises, Literature for children, Rerent trends in teaching, Social Science Studies, The railroad problem, Primary seat work, Silent reading and work-type reading.

All teachers are requested to bring along a copy of "Adrift on an Ice-Pan" by Grenfell, says Mr. Matheson.

FRED C. PROHL WILL SPEAK AT GRYGLA RALLY SUNDAY

In an announcement today, Dr. J. E. McCoy of Grygla states that a Farmer-Labor rally will be held at the R. N. W. Hall home at Grygla on Sunday, September 23 at 2 o'clock. Fred C. Proehl of this city, whose addresses have brought forth so much favorable comment from audiences to whom he has spoken, will be the principal speaker, among several other speakers. A large turn-out is expected and all are cordially invited to attend.

ARRANGEMENTS ARE MADE FOR CLINIC SAT. 22

Crippled Children and Adults Will be Examined by Specialists.

Final arrangements are in progress this week for the Christmas Seal Orthopodic Clinic to be held here Saturday, Sept., 22. The Lincoln high school will be tranformed into a clinic with several examination departments arranged.

A group of local workers are being organized to take records and assist generally in the arrangements. Miss Eunice Lindgren, R. N., school nurse is in charge in cooperation with the Pennington County Public Health Association which is sponsoring the clinic.

It is expected that a number of children from surrounding counties will be brought here for examination.

In addition to the orthopodic physician who will make the examinations, representatives of the Gillette State Hospital for Crippled Children, the Minnesota Division of Re-education, and the Minnesota Public Health Association will be in attendance to assist in the day's program.

Examinations will start at nine a. m. and continue until four p. m.

Work Started on New Land O'Lakes Building

Excavation for the basement of the new addition to the Land O' Lakes plant here will be completed this week and concrete work started, Mr. B. O. Norby, manager of the plant announced Wednesday. Work is being rushed thru with the greatest possible speed in order to complete the building within a record time, Mr. Norby stated. It is hoped to have the new addition in service before the rush season in poultry and turkeys arrive, in order that other parts of the building can be cle ed of flour and feed and make room for feeding batteries.

Splendid Program Presented at PTA Meeting Friday Eve.

The informal reception given for the parents, teachers and friends at the municipal auditorium last Friday evening was well attended, according to Supt. of schools Morris Bye.

Miss Irma Springen led community singing, accompanied by Mrs. Thelma Holm Erickson, after which Mayor E. L. Tungseth offered an address of welcome to the guests, to which Mr. Bye responded. A piano solo, "Revolutionary Etude" by Chopin was presented by Mrs. Thelma Holm Erickson, following which Miss Eunice Lindgren, school nurse, spoke on "Getting a Child Ready for School." Werner Rasmussen brought the program to a close by playing an accordian solo.

Following the program, luncheon was served to the guests in the Civic and Commerce Club rooms.

Miss Helquist Announces Winter Pastime Project

The winter's recreational project sponsored by the Parent-Teachers Association will begin in earnest next week, states Miss Harriet Helquist, director of the activity. The activities to be included in the project will be dramatics, handicrafts, and athletics. Miss Helquist plans on beginning a story hour for the younger children on next Saturday to be held at the Carnegie Public Library. The project will continue all winter.

James Jackson of Stephen visited with old friends in the city today.

Local Radio Enthusiasts Form Club to Foster Experiments

A local radio club was organized September 5 with the purpose of further exploring the radio field. Credit for much of the present success of the club is due to C. W. Pope who presided at the early meeting of the club and who outlined a few projects on which the club will work. Gordon Hoel, local radio enthusiast and operator of short wave station W9RLK, was elected president of the club at an early meeting.

The purposes of the radio club are to eliminate the interference of radio reception, to better the understanding of commercial radio, and to organize and gain cooperation to further the radio activity in this territory.

The club meets regularly every Wednesday evening at Lincoln high school, with special meetings to be held in private homes throughout the winter. Every two weeks the members will take part in a field day, at which time transmitters and receivers will be put in actual operation for several miles around. Apparatus which is used at each meeting will be contributed by the members.

The next meeting of the organization will be on Wednesday, September 26, according to Gordon Hoel, president. Several talks will be given by members, and an advisory council of adult members will be elected. An invitation is extended to all prospective members and interested persons to attend.

The following constitute the present membership of the club: Art Johnson, William Kavanaugh, C. W. Pope, Gordon Hoel, Charles Haverlandt, Robert Mayor-Oakes, Erling Dahlen, Theodore Quale, Jr., Douglas Hess, Thomas Protz, Donald Anderson, Glenn Arhart, and Orville Gulseth and R. Kirkconnell of St. Hilaire.

Highway Dept. Announces New Bridge for Plummer

A new bridge will be built one mile north of Plummer on highway number 73, according to an announcement made by the state highway department this week.

The structure which will be of the plate girder type, one span of 65 feet, will cost $11,526. Contract has been awarded to Jos. Schmidt of St. James. Work is to begin next week.

Early Morning Visitor Crashes Thru Window at the Nordquist Home

"Well, what would you think if the kitchen window just splintered all around without any apparent reason?" Carl Norquist asked and the Forum reporter admitted he would be flabbergasted. "Well so was I," said Mr. Nordquist. It appears that Mr. Norquist just kindled the fire in the kitchen stove the other morning and turned to the table to glance at a newspaper, when the kitchen window just collapsed and splintered all over the kitchen floor. Mr. Nordquist turned to see what had happened by apparently nothing had happened excent that the window sure enough was teetotally splintered. Mrs. Norquist, in the other room inquired about the rumpus as might naturally be expected but Mr. Norquist could not explain it. He went outside to investigate and found nothing miss and no one about. Returning to the kitchen he swept up the glass and was scratching his head for an explanation when his wife called his attention to a partridge which came sauntering out from the bed in the adjoining room. The bird had flow thru the winaow with such velocity that it went thru the room and the opposie door, winding up under the bed. It had evidently been stunned by the impact for 20 minutes elapsed before it came forth to explain the situation.

HUNTERS REPORT GOOD BAGS WITH SEASON OPENING

State Fish and Game Commissioner Announces Dates for Other Birds

Seven hundred small game licenses have been issued since the opening of hunting season according to County Auditor H. L. Fowler.

Hundreds of hunters from all parts of the state have hunted in this vicinity this year, the hotels being filled to capacity every night as the parties came back to the city to spend the night and following forenoon. Good bags are reported, many getting the full limit.

With the taking of praire chickens or pinnated grouse and sharptail or whitebreasted grouse legal afternoons this week in 13 northern Minnesota counties, additional warden protection has been provided not only in the open counties but in counties that are closed where grouse are known to abound. Shooting of the two forms of grouse is permitted from 12 o'clock noon until sunset each day wit the season ending Monday, September 24.

"We are making every effort to see to it the chicken hunters will abide by regulations," Director Er[illegible] Swenson of the Game and Fish Comsion, said. "Wardens have been instructed to stop and search cars where it is certain hunters are included. Check of hunters will be made in the field and as they return from hunting sorties.

Six birds may be taken in any one day, 12 are allowed in possession and 18 for the season. Open counties are Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, Koochiching, St. Louis, Marshall, Polk, Pennington, Red Lake, Mahnomen, Clearwater, Beltrami and Itaska. The season opened Sunday at noon.

Mr. Swenson ruled that no mourning doves, upland plover or woodcock may be taken in any of the counties of the state during the year 1934.

THIEF RIVER SEED HOUSE INSTALLS MORE EQUIPMENT

Instalation of a molasses mixer has been completed at the plant of the Thief River Falls Seed House plant at the Soo tricks, recently.

This machine will be used in the manufacture of dairy feed, which will be placed on the market under the Hardy North brand which has won such widespread favor among the farmers of the northern part of the state.

The Hardy North brand of products were launched about two years ago with the introduction of poultry laying mashes. Since that time other produts have been added to the line from time to time until at the present time almost all of the standard gr in products are marketed under this brand. As is the case with other products marketed under this brand the new dairy feeds will be manufactured at the company's plant here from home grown grains.

Dowell, Superintendent of the Northwest School of Agriculture and president of the Red River Valley Dairymen's association. Dr. Dowell has recently returned from Washington, D. C. where he has been engaged by the United States Department of Agriculture, and will have an important message of interest to everyone in the Red River Valley.

NRS Reports Brisk Demand For Domestic Servants

The following placement figures for Pennington county were nnounced by Howard Davidson, local statistician of the National Reemployment Service for the week ending Sept. 15: 27 placements were made of which 15 were under the Public Works Administration, and 12 were private placements. Of the total, three women were placed. Mr. Davidson also stated that 138 placements were made in the district through the NRS.

There is a brisk demand for girls to do housework, and for men to do farm work, so large is the demand in fact, that the NRS office has been unable to fill the positions. Anyone interested should contact the National Reemployment office as soon as possible.

Several residents of Pennington county have been sent outside the county to be employed on PWA jobs; 5 persons being employed on the paving job at Mahnomen, and two persons on the graveling job at Roseau.

Mr. Davidson stated that the NRS office expects a call for skilled bridge men to work on the new bridge to be built one mile north of Plummer. This work will start some time this week, according to Mr. Davidson.

FIRE WIPES OUT NOME, ALASKA

Strong Wind Whips Blaze Over City as Inhabitants are Helpless.

Nome, Alaska—Nome, famous gold mining city, was destroyed by fire, and only two business buildings, including a hotel, and just a few residences in the northern part of the town were left standing.

The fire department building was destroyed, handicapping efforts of firemen and volunters, and dynamite was used in a futile effort to stop the flames.

Every grocery store was destroyed, and very little food was saved from the shelves of the stores. City officials were afraid a food shortage may impend within a few days. Officials estimate the fire loss at $1,000,000. The temperature had reached a low of 38, and a 22-mile east wind early in the day sent the fire out of control. The fire wiped out three business blocks and roared on into the nearby residental section, where home after home was destroyed. No effort by firemen or the city's 1,500 citizens seemed able to stop the angry flames, and as the afternoon advanced they stood by almost helpless.

The federal buildings, the Miners and Merchants bank, every mercantile establishment and the private residence in which the weather bureau is stationed were among the buildings lost. The Crescent hotel and the Lomen Commercial Co. establishments were the buildings left standing. After the fire, the 1,500 residents were virtually homeless, as the temperature again neared the freezing point. The government immediately stepped in to aid, and from Washington came orders for coast guard cutters in the Bering sea area, includng one at Dutch Harbor, to race to the stricken city's aid. Grant Jackson, president of the bank, reported he and his wife had lost about everything.

Famed throughout the north for its gold mining, Nome is a small city near Cape Nome, on the southern shore of the Seward peninsula. In 1900 its population was 12,488, but in recent years it has declined. Gold was first found there in June, 1898, and October 18, 1898, the Cape Nome mining district was organized. The postoffice was established in June 1899, and the town incorporated on April 9, 1901.

At this season of the year, the city's population is smaller than later in the fall, when prospectors and miners return from their mines and claims on the Seward peninsula,

U. S. Accuses Mellon of Evading Tax

Washington—The treasury and Andrew W. Mellon, for 11 years a treasury secretary, traded verbal blows over a new federal effort to collect $3,075,103 in taxes and fraud penalties from the Pittsburg multi-millionaire. The government filed with the board of tax appeals a petition asserting that Mellon, while still secretary of the treasury, began the execution of a scheme to evade his federal income taxes. Involved, it contended, were fictitious stock sales and other devices. Striking back, Mellon declared in a statement issued here that the move was made in order to save the treasury's face and to give some semblance of justification for its participation in the inept political maneuver of Attorney General Cummings last spring.

Soviet Russia in League of Nations

Geneva—Soviet Russia agreed to take a place among the select powers of Europe as a permanent member of the council of the league of nations. She was invited, in an invitation signed by 33 members, to join the league. It was announced that she had been elected by the council to fill one of the two vacant permanent seats in that body. They were made vacant by withdrawal of Germany and Japan from the league last year.

Jimmy McLarnin Regains Lost Title.

New York—Jimmy McLarnin regained the welterweight championship from the man he had lost it to several months ago—Barney Ross of Chicago. The decision, announced after a bloody 15-round fight in the Madison Square Garden bowl, was unpopular with most of the fans. Experts, too, agreed that the game little champion had earned at least a draw.

Reilly Gets 21 Months as Dillinger Aid

St. Paul—Pat Reilly, former mascot of the St. Paul American association baseball team, pleaded guilty in federal court to conspiracy to harbor John Dillinger in St. Paul and was given a sentence of 21 months and a $2,500 fine by Judge M. M. Joyce. He will serve the sentence in the new federal reformatory at El Reno, Okla.

Minn. 'U' Profs Outline Plan for JoblessInsurance

A national system of unemployment insurance, supplemented by emergency relief, as a means of minimizing the affects of future prolonged depressions, is outlined by four economists in a new book, "A Program for Unemployment Insurance and Relief in the United States", published Sept. 8, by the University of Minnesota Press.

The system provides for the building up of a national fund to be paid out to workers during periods of unemployment, and also to be used as a source of poor relief, and to maintain, thru judicious investment of the large sums involved a stabilizing influence on the purchasing power of the nation.

The insurance would be financed by contributions of both employers and employees; while relief funds would be contributed by state and federal governments.

Authors of the plan are Alvin H. Hansen, University professor of economics; Merrill G. Murrey, director of the Minnesota State Employment Service; Russell A. Stevenson, dean of the University school of business administration; and Bryce M. Stewart, director of research for Industrial Relations Councelors, Inc., of New York.

The program suggested represents the conclusions drawn from 4 years of research in Europe and the United States by two cooperating organizations, the Minnesota Employment Stabilization Research Institute, represented by Hansen, Murray, and Stevenson; and the Industrial Relations Councelors, represented by Stewart.

The authors point out that "No single program can be adequate to cope with the staggering problem of unemployment. Reductions in the hours of work, civil works or work relief, public works, unemployment insurance and relief—all are, and will be, necessary to meet adequately the needs of the unemployed."

Close Race for 4-H Health Championship

"The Healthiest group of 4-H club boys and girls we've examined"! This was the concensus of opinion of the group of twelve physicians and dentists who at State Christmas Seal headquarters in St. Paul last week selected Marjorie Bennett of Lowry, Pope county, and Raymond Merchant of Winsted, McLeod county, as Minnesota 4-H Club champions. These physicians, who have for several years chosen the boy and girl to represent Minnesota in Chicago at the 4-H contest for United States Championship, were high in their praise of the splendid physical condition of the boys and girls they examined according to Dr. E. A. Meyerding, executive secretary of the Minnesota Public Health Association who had charge of the examinations. The majority of the entrants had been selected by local physicians in previous county health contests.

Careful practice of important health habits which were emphasized in the 4-H club work, this year, showed results in the excellent condition of the boys and girls, the doctors pointed out. Special mention was made of marked improvement in posture and manner of walking in this group over the previous years. The contestants rated high in their vision and hearing tests, and many of them had been tuberculin tested, and were protected against smallpox and diphtheria.

Marjorie Bennett, the girl champion won the contest with a rating of 96.75 on her physical examination and a splendid record of daily health habits. Miss Bennett, who is 16 years old is five feet three inches tall and weighs 108 and one half pounds. Raymond Merchant, the boy champion had a score of 97.05, he is 17 years old, 5 feet five inches tall and weighs 129 pounds. Both plan to go to Chicago in December and hope to bring home the United States health champion titles.

Closest competitors for the first places in the Minnesota contest were as follows;

Ruth Brooks of Luverne, 96.35; Aurora Capistran of Crookston, 96.15; Jean Frik of Grand Rapids, 95.35, and Lillie Peterson of Kimbrae, 95. Placing second was last year's champion, Joseph Schlader of Grand Rapids with a score of 97. Other leaders were Edward Holmquist of St. Paul, 96.85; Ellsworth Ewry of Westbrook, 96.80; and Merion Somo of Harmony, 96.06.

All contestants have been invited to take part in a letter contest on "What I saw at Christmas Seal Headquarters."

Hitler Regime Seals Doom of Newspaperdom

Nuremberg (TIS)—The bold utterances of Dr. Dietrich, the Nazi party press chief, at the Nazi Party convention here concerning the function of the press in the Nazi state, as well as his attempt to minimize the collapse of German newspaperdom are believed by well-known facts. A comparison of the number of German dailies in 1932 and 1934 proves that the total has fallen from 2,703 to less than 2,000. The number of weeklies has decreased from 350 to approximately 220; all other publications have decreased correspondingly. The total of persons employed in editorial and other newspaper capacities is now less than 5,000 against 19,200 in 1932.

In direct contrast to the decline of the German press stands the colossal upward trend shown by the sales of foreign newspapers within Germany. The German, reading public is slowly realizing that its press is a docile and mute instrument in the hands of an unscrupulous dictatorship, and is therefore turning overwhelmingly to foreign newspapers.

Water Conservation Camps on Ottertail to be moved in Oct.

Three Minnesota drouth relief camps located at Breckenridge, Fergus Falls and Frazee on the Ottertail River, will be moved early in October to forested areas, according to advices from Washington Supervision of the the camps will be transferred from the State Division of Drainage and Waters to the Emergency Conservation Work unit of the State Division of Forestry and Fire Prevention.

New locations of the camps of 300 men each will be at Buckboard in the Rice Lake, Roy Lake area in Clearwater County, the old Pine Island camp near Big Falls in Koochiching County and at the Smaky Hill fire tower near Osage in Becker, County.

"The purpose of the camps along the Ottertail River was to conserve waters to relieve the crisis in depleted water supplies facing the cities of Breckenridge and Moorhead in Minnesota and Wapheton and Fargo in North Dakota," Walter S. Olson, Director of the Division of Drainage and Waters, said. "Cleaning out the river in critical places h s brought about a new flow of water. With adequate fall rains, sufficient water for human consumption and fire protection will be assured cities along the river for winter months.

Mud Lake Restoration Outstanding Duck Aid

"An outstanding accomplishment is the comment of Dr. Paul Hagen, Dr. Paul Hagen, Crookston, vice pres. of Crookston, Minn., vice pres. Izaak Walton League, when advised that actual physical improvement on the Mud Lake migratory bird nesting ground and refuge in Northwestern Minnesota is to be started this fall. Federal funds will be used to acquire land and perform necessary construction work with the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey in charge.

Rapid progress has been made in acquiring lands to be included in the 75,000-acre restoration project in acquiring lands to be included in the 75,000 acre restoration project because of "perfect cooperation by the state department of conservation, according to J. N. Darling, Bureau Chief.

Mr. Darling said that "one of the best angles of the Mud Lake Project is the way Commissioner E. V. Willard and members of the Game and Fish Division have tied in with perfect cooperation."

Initial work in the western part of the area effecting about 30,000 acres will include the two Olson Lakes and Kurike, Whiskey, Mud Greenstump and Elm Lakes where most of the development structures are needed.

Mr. Darling said that "in no state in the Union have I had such splendid demonstration of unselfish aid as I have had from Commissioner Willard and Director Erling Swenson of the Game and Fish Division."

Hartig Lauds Lundeen Action on Waterways

At the first meeting of this year's Lundeen for Congress Volunteer Committee, last night, in Minneapolis, Dr. Paul C. Hartig, Chairman of the Minneapolis Harbor Committee, ridiculed a criticism recently made by one of Lundeen's opponents at a meeting in Stillwater. Hartig declared: "Either he (the oponent) thinks the Capital of the United States is in Minnesota or he just can't comprehend the idea that a congressman actually remained on the job in Washington when Congress was not in session and when a political campaign was on in his home district."

Hartig stated that when the North Minneapolis Harbor delegation met with the Minnesota Congressmen last spring, Lundeen took the lead in urging support of that project. He stated: "The most encouraging support that the committee received in Washington was from Congressman Ernest Lundeen. At one of our meetings held in Washinton, Lundeen made a speech that was typical of the man.' Hartig quoted Lundeen as saying:

"Now, gentlement, either we are for this thing or we are against it. I am for it, and am willing to shake hands with everyone who will pledge his support."

"Then he (Lundeen) started around the room," Hartig said, "and before he got through he had everybody shaking hands and promising support. That's what we came to Washington for, and Lundeen did it in a minute and a half."

At a meeting of the Upper Saint Croix Improvement Association at Stillwater on September 18, Lundeen will report on the information he received on his recent Washington trip, concerning Dam No. 3 on the Mississippi, which will give a nine-foot channel to the City of Stillwater.

Repeal Helps Only Brewer and Bartender

By W. G. Calderwood

Stripped bare of pretense the fig! for repeal was conceived, financed an presented in the hope of profit and reduced taxes.

It is true that there were millions who voted against the eighteenth amendment who are attracted by the claims that would promote "true' temperance, the welfare of youth and respect for law. But such as were allured by these promises have discovered that these claims were a "front" to conceal the real motives of the leaders of the assult on the law. They have discovered that instead of promoting temperance, repeal has brought with it an orgy of drunkennes not hitherto approached since we entered the war in 1917. Parallel with this are the mounting traffic accidents and fatalities attributed to drink, thruout the nation.

The shocking debauchery of not only youth, but school children under repeal has become the shame of the nation, and it is so prevalent as to be almost common place. Neither during nor before prohibition has America ever seen enything approaching it.

Crime and contempt for law has become an international scandal, far beyond anything in the nation's previous history.

Thus, every alluring moral and social claim for repeal that attracted citizens of altrustic motives has turned to wormwood and ashes. And the sordid money motive that gave vitality to the movement has also proved to be a delusion and a snare. The estimate of duPont that beer alone would put $1,320,000,000 into the national treasury and save him more than $10,000,000 a year in taxes is but vapor. His taxes have been greatly increased since repeal. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the world's largest university announced impressively that "Congress could collect, by the lowest estimate, $1,500,000,000 in beverage revenue from the seventeen wet states." But this wild 'guestimate' is more than three times the total that now seems probable for the entire 48 states.

Repeal has more than failed in every moral and social objective and the hope of financial gain has vanished. Under it the people and the government lose. Only t he liquor seller profits.

Fire Tower Registeration Shows Tourist Increase

Grain in vacation travel in northern Minnesota this summer is reflected in registration periods maintained at the state fire lookout towers by the Division of Forestry and Fire prevention, George H. Bradley Director of the State Tourist Bureau, pointed out. Each person who climbs a tower is asked to register.

During August this year, 3,956 people registered at the Itaska State Park lookout tower as compared to 3,166 in August, 1933," Mr. Bradley said. "This increase in registration is true as most of the other lookout towers in northern Minnesota, indicating that vacationists are availing themselves in greater numbers of the recreational advantages offered in this sectioin of the state," Mr. Weaver said.

HOW 'A GREAT FINANCIAL EMPIRE' WAS BUILT

Desire to Influence Legislation

On May 23, 1934, during the course of the examination of J. Cameron Thomson, manager of the Northwest Bancorporation, a letter was introduced which stated that one of the purposes of the customer ownership campaign in obtaining a large number of stockholders, was particularly with reference to the effect it might have on possible legislation. Mr. Thomson denied that it was the policy of their corporation to attempt to influence legislation, and counsel for the Bancorporation strenuously abjected to any evidence regarding any interest in prospective legislation of any kind as being entirely beyond the scope of the commission's authority.

Mr. Watson, counsel for the commission, made the following statement in substance:

"I want to say to the commission this fact in connection with that question. It is very pertinent to this investigation. I expect to show and will show to this commission, by written proof, signed by officers of this corporation that there was behind the entire stock selling activities of this corporation a plan and a scheme by which they, Northwest Bancorporation, would attempt to obtain the control, in connection with another corporation, of the entire banking facilities of the northwest; that to do that, and to carry that out, a part of the plan was the exchange of their stock at valuations arrived at through manipulation on the market, paying exorbitant figures for banks. That then, in order to cover up the deficiency in the assets which would exist by reason of the payment of these tremendous prices, water was thrown in to the extent of 39 million dollars as we have already proven. After accomplishing the control of the banks, it became necessary to get some cash to carry out this plan and the same market manipulations resulted in the sale of the stock for cash. After that was obtained, in order to carry out this plan of obtaining control, it became necessary to get in a large number of people who would lose their money if the wishes of Banco and its officers were not followed, and the customer ownership campaign was put on for the purpose of furthering this scheme which they indulged in, and which was the true purpose, but not the purpose for which the people who bought stock assumed the corporation was existing; to assist the individuals in obtaining personal control they had a committee appointed in the very early stages of this corporation to devise methods and means by which these promoters could retain control of the management of this company, all of which points to this same thing. After getting these 11 or 12 thousand stockholders interested, they then took the next step, which was to foster legislation necessary to give them control of the banking resources of the Northwest, and to contribute to the personal aggrandizement of these officers, I will point out to this commission to show the relevancy of this, the specific legislation which they intended to foster thru this means. I will show to this commission, that they went into every town that did not have a bank and raised a clamor, for the passage of a branch banking bill; that was done and the customer ownership campaign was an integral part of that plan and scheme; not only did they go into all these bankless towns, but they dangled before these towns the proposition of a branch in case they could get the towns to support this legislation. I will name for this commission from letters, signed by officers of this corporation and initialed by this witness on the stand. the various legislators in the United States Senate whom they got to espouse that cause, and the methods by which hey did it. I will show this commission in writing, signed by officers of this corporation the names of the senators, and also the amount of money, belonging to the stockholders, that this group contributed to a fund to put over the scheme and plan. I will name the other parties that kicked in on the slush fund, including the Guardian Banking group of Detroit, Michigan, and prove it, in their own writing, signed with their own names. I will also show the amount that was paid to various people to carry that plan out, such as $25,000 a year retainers fees, and the rest of it, including the itemized expense lists that came out of the stockholders' money, all this dated back to the period when this committee was appointed to devise ways and means by which they could get control of this corporation. All of it is in writing, including the names of the senators and the amount spent for lavish entertainment in order to get this scheme thru, the letters by which they go all of the little bankless towns to go in on the scheme, and then I will connect it with this letter that has been introduced in evidence, that the particular purpose of the customer ownership campaign was to influence legislation. I say it is relevant and more than relevant."

Commissioner Skahen ruled the evidence relevant.

Watson Cites Reasons For Payment of Dividends Out of Capital

After the ruling of the Commisison, still further objections were made, and the statement that Mr. Watson had made as to the relevancy of this evidence was amplified in a further statement in which he said in substance:

"Might I say to the commission this has a very material bearing on the question of the sale of this stock, what I have outlined to the commission was the reason for the question it was not an offer of proof. Had I been going to make an offer of proof I would have detailed it. As I stated the reason is this: I intend to show the real purpose that laid back of all the facts that we have brought out, the reason why these dividends were paid out of capital, the reason wh this $39,000,000 of watered stock was necessary to be put on the books. I hook this up directly with the admission that was made in writing and identified by Mr. Thomson in connection with the customer ownership campaign, that one of the purposes and the word 'particularly' was used, 'particularly' was to effect legislation. I want to show, and I think I am entitled to show, what that legislation was, and the purpose that laid behind his whole plan and this whole scheme. I think I am entitled to show this, when they say that 'particularly they are trying to get the little men in the customer ownership campaign' during a time when their own auditors show a $4,461,000 loss for the year of this customer ownership campaign, and when they were putting out literature which led the public to believe that they were earning $3.20 a share on 1,600,000 shares, a slight difference of 9 million dollars between the truth and the representation. I an entitled to show, and this commission should be, and is, interested in knowing why these men went out and sold 150,000 shares of this stock at an average price of $30 a share to customers of their banks combing their savings accounts to get that money as one letter showed. What laid behind that, and what was the purpose in doing those things is relevant. Again, might I say this evidence will show one certain man who is a pubilc official of the United States gvoernment, and who was very heavily indebted to this corporation. Certainly the stockholders who had put in their money were entitled to have that debt collected, if possible, but for the purpose of what these promoters did in legislation it was recommended that they go easy with him on his debt because he was the best ally they could ever have in swinging senators and others to accomplish their ends.

To Rush Fish Rescue In Shallow Waters

The Minnesota Conservation Commission through the Division of Game and Fish is directing its attention to inland lakes of the state where water levels are abnormally low. Every effort is being made to rescue fish life from such waters before winter freezing weather sets in.

A survey of lakes that are unconditionally shallow at the present has been conducted for some time past by order of Director Erling Swenson George Weaver, in charge of rough fish removal, has personally conducted the survey.

"Most of the work in fish salvation is being done in lakes located in the southern, western and central parts of the state," Mr. Weaver said. "Rough fish removed are sold with the market showing a trend upward. Game fishes are transferred to nearby lakes where water conditions are satisfactory and where fish life will not

No Desirable Homestead Land Available in State

Although there are thousands of acres of federal lands scattered through many Minnesota counties still open for homesteading, most of this land is not suitable for farming, according to F. A. Wildes, Director of the Division of Lands and Minerals, Minnesota Department f Conservation.

"There seems to be a general impression that there are many valuable tracts of government land in entry," Mr. Wildes said. "This land in Minnesota available for homesteads is practically all marginal or submarginal, rocky or swampy, and is not fit for agricultural use.".

Persons seeking information regarding government land should apply to the U. S. Land Office, Washington, D. C., as no government land office is maintained in Minnesota.

Few Farmers Seek Aid From Frazier Moratorium Law

Minnesota farmers have shown little interest to date in the Frazier-Lemke mortgage moratorium law, a survey conducted by the Minnesota Farm Bureau reveals. County conciliators in 62 of Minnesota's 87 counties had reported to the Farm Bureau on September 15 that only 128 farmers had entered petitions to invoke the law. In 26 counties none has sought the aid of the bill. Pennington county is among the 26, H. O. Chommie conciliator for this county states.

When he urged President Roosevelt to sign the bill, A. J. Olson, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau, stressed the value of a "by-product' of the measure, it being his belief that mortgage holders would be less inclined to crowd farmers if the law were passed. The survey indicat that 39 foreclosure actions have been halted as a result of the law.

Court actions testing the constitutionality of the law have been started in three counties. The Minnesota Farm Bureau also will assist the assist in defense of the measure. The Farm Bureau also will assist anc farmer, without cost, with information in regard to the measure ano will outline the procedure to take in invoking it.

Observers believe that less than 5 percent of the farmers of Minnesota can use the law to advantage. The Farm Credit Administration has in the past 18 months relieved th mortgage pressure from thousands of Minnesota farmers, in carrying ou policies drawn by the Farm Bu S. Jones, Farm Bureau secretary. and allied farm organizations, says J.

Success of Modernization Plans Hinge on Cooperation of the Public

The public—home owners, financial executives and industrial men will determine the success of the Better Housing Program. The Federal Housing Administration provides the plan and works out the details; the remainder hinges upon the cooperation it receives from the rest of the nation.

With the launching of this immense plan, thousands of owners of homes and other buildings will be able to make necessary repairs, alterations and improvements on their property by taking advantage of the attractive loans made possible by the F. H. A. The loans may be obtained from local agencies collaborating with the government, for repairing, altering or improving exsisting buildings or the grounds.

Financial institutions will find the type of loan sponsored by the Federal Housing Administration to be one of the safest that can be made, since in very few cases, if any, will losses be greater than the amount insured by the Administration.

Industries more than a thousand strong are already showing an interest in the vast undertaking and asking how they can cooperate. They are urged to fit their plans as far as possible to those of the Federal Housing Administration, and above all, to maitain fair prices in the face of the great demands that is certain to come for building supplies and labor.

Review of AAA and Other Farm Legislation Planned in New N. S. A. Course

The Northwest School, which opens October 1, and closes the last day of March, will offer a number of courses dealing with the business side of farming. Superintendent A. A. Dowell will give one course in farm marketing thruout the school year. This will include a review of recent farm legislation together with a critical analysis of the agricultural adjustment administration program and other national legislation relating to the marketing of farm products. Work in comparative agricultural and farm management will be offered by Prof. R. S. Dunham, who is a graduate of the University of Illinois, with a master's degree from the University of Minnesota. This course will deal with the more important phases of farm management with emphasis placed on local as well as national problems.

A course in farm accounts will be offered by Prof. E. R. Clark, who graduated from the University of Wisconsin and later was granted a master's degree at the University of Minnesota. This course will include practical farm records and their application under conditions prevailing thruout the Red River Valley. Rural economics and rural sociology will be presented by Prof. R. J. Christgau, who is a graduate of the Central School of Agriculture and College of Agriculture, University Farm, St. Paul. Prof. Christgau is also director of athletics and coach of the boys' football and basketball teams.

The work in typewriting, office training and bookkeeping will be presented under the direction of Miss Fae Hughbanks, who has been a member of the Northwest School staff since the fall of 1926.

According to Dr. A. A. Dowell, farming and home making are becoming more complicated with each passing year. This is due to changes in the technique of production and to rapid changes in national and international laws and regulations. Every effort is being made to give the young men and women of Northwestern Minnesota the kind of training that will be valuable to them in their everyday work.

Wisconsin Co-op. Gronp is Organized

Eau Claire, Wis., Sept. 14—Organization of the Co-operative League of wisconsin was perfected here Thursday at a meeting of approximately 75 persons representing counties in all sections of the state.

The general aim of the league, as set forth in the by law is "to champion the cause of economic security and social welfare through the cooperative movement." Headquarters of the league will be at Eau Claire. William Campaigne of Spooner was named fist president of the organization.

Twilight in Higher Latitudes

Twilight ends when the sun is 18 degrees below the horizon. In low latitudes, because of the quickness with which the sun traverses the 18 degrees below the horizon, and because of the transparency of the atmosphere, there is little twilight. However, the higher the latitude the smaller the angle at which the sun's path meets the horizon and hence the longer it takes the sun to sink to the required distance.

No Desirable Homestead Land Available in State

Although there are thousands of acres of federal lands scattered through many Minnesota counties still open for homesteading, most of this land is not suitable for farming, according to F. A. Wildes, Director of the Division of Lands and Minerals, Minnesota Department f Conservation.

"There seems to be a general impression that there are many valuable tracts of government land in entry," Mr. Wildes said. "This land in Minnesota available for homesteads is practically all marginal or submarginal, rocky or swampy, and is not fit for agricultural use."

Persons seeking information regarding government land should apply to the U. S. Land Office, Washington, D. C., as no government land office is maintained in Minnesota.

Few Farmers Seek Aid From Frazier Moratorium Law

Minnesota farmers have shown little interest to date in the Frazier-Lemke mortgage moratorium law, a survey conducted by the Minnesota Farm Bureau reveals. County conciliators in 62 of Minnesota's 87 counties had reported to the Farm Bureau on September 15 that only 128 farmers had entered petitions to invoke the law. In 26 counties none has sought the aid of the bill. Pennington county is among the 26, H. O. Chommie conciliator for this county states.

When he urged President Roosevelt to sign the bill, A. J. Olson, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau, stressed the value of a "by-product" of the measure, it being his belief that mortgage holders would be less inclined to crowd farmers if the law were passed. The survey indicates that 39 foreclosure actions have been halted as a result of the law.

Court actions testing the constitutionality of the law have been started in three counties. The Minnesota Farm Bureau also will assist the assist in defense of the measure. The Farm Bureau also will assist and farmer, without cost, with information in regard to the measure and will outline the procedure to take in invoking it.

Observers believe that less than 5 percent of the farmers of Minnessota can use the law to advantage. The Farm Credit Administration has in the past 18 months relieved the mortgage pressure from thousands of Minnesota farmers, in carrying out policies drawn by the Farm Bu- S. Jones, Farm Bureau secretary. and allied farm organizations, says J.

Success of Modernization Plans Hinge on Cooperation of the Public

The public—home owners, financial executives and industrial men will determine the success of the Better Housing Program. The Federal Housing Administration provides the plan and works out the details; the remainder hinges upon the cooperation it receives from the rest of the nation.

With the launching of this immense plan, thousands of owners of homes and other buildings will be able to make necessary repairs, alterations and improvements on their property by taking advantage of the attractive loans made possible by the F. H. A. The loans may be obtained from local agencies collaborating with the government, for repairing, altering or improving exsisting buildings or the grounds.

Financial institutions will find the type of loan sponsored by the Federal Housing Administration to be one of the safest that can be made, since in very few cases, if any, will losses be greater than the amount insured by the Administration.

Industries more than a thousand strong are already showing an interest in the vast undertaking and asking how they can cooperate. They are urged to fit their plans as far as possible to those of the Federal Housing Administration, and above all, to maitain fair prices in the face of the great demands that is certain to come for building supplies and labor.

The Northwest School, which opens October 1, and closes the last day of March, will offer a number of courses dealing with the business side of farming. Superintendent A. A. Dowell will give one course in farm marketing thruout the school year. This will include a review of recent farm legislation together with a critical analysis of the agricultural adjustment administration program and other national legislation relating to the marketing of farm products. Work in comparative agricultural and farm management will be offered by Prof. R. S. Dunham, who is a graduate of the University of Illinois, with a master's degree from the University of Minnesota. This course will deal with the more important phases of farm management with emphasis placed on local as well as national problems.

A course in farm accounts will be offered by Prof. E. R. Clark, who graduated from the University of Wisconsin and later was granted a master's degree at the University of Minnesota. This course will include practical farm records and their application under conditions prevailing thruout the Red River Valley. Rural economics and rural sociology will be presented by Prof. R. J. Christgau, who is a graduate of the Central School of Agriculture and College of Agriculture, University Farm, St. Paul. Prof. Christgau is also director of athletics and coach of the boys' football and basketball teams.

The work in typewriting, office training and bookkeeping will be presented under the direction of Miss Fae Hughbanks, who has been a member of the Northwest School staff since the fall of 1926.

According to Dr. A. A. Dowell, farming and home making are becoming more complicated with each passing year. This is due to changes in the technique of production and to rapid changes in national and international laws and regulations. Every effort is being made to give the young men and women of Northwestern Minnesota the kind of training that will be valuable to them in their everyday work.

Wisconsin Co-op. Gronp is Organized

Eau Claire, Wis., Sept. 14—Organization of the Co-operative League of wisconsin was perfected here Thursday at a meeting of approximately 75 persons representing counties in all sections of the state.

The general aim of the league, as set forth in the by law is "to champion the cause of economic security and social welfare through the cooperative movement." Headquarters of the league will be at Eau Claire. William Campaigne of Spooner was named fist president of the organization.

Twilight in Higher Latitudes

Twilight ends when the sun is 18 degrees below the horizon. In low latitudes, because of the quickness with which the sun traverses the 18 degrees below the horizon, and because of the transparency of the atmosphere, there is little twilight. However, the higher the latitude the smaller the angle at which the sun's path meets the horizon and hence the longer it takes the sun to sink to the required distance.

TOWNLEY AND THE PATRONAGE EVIL

The Forum has devoted very little space to Mr. Townley in the past, much to that gentleman's chagrin, as we have noted on several occasions when he has visited this county on his various tours. We are going to give him less in the future. The methods used in attempting to secure our support of his candidacy for the congressional nomination left a rather dark brown taste in our mouth and caused us to oppose him to the full extent of our ability in the Ninth District convention at Erskine and afterwards when he would strongarm his way to an unofficial endorsement. We take some satisfaction in the fact that Pennington county cast 34 of the 37 votes by which he lost the endorsement.

That his latest "insurrection" and the balderdash he is dishing out to those whom morbid curiosity brings out to hear him is losing him the supporters he had left is apparent from the reports we get from various parts of the state. We have a letter before us from a friend in Kittson county who loyally and conscientiously supported Mr. Townley in the Erskine convention and later in the primary campaign. He says in part: "I guess you boys at Thief River Falls had A. C. Townley's number early last spring. He has lost everything that he may have ever had up here." The sentiment voiced in that letter is typical of expressions from erstwhile supporters of Mr. Townley in every community that we have contacted.

Nevertheless, there is some merit in Mr. Townley's criticism of the administration's appointments.They have been far from satisfactory to the rank and file of the Farmer-Labor association in many instances. There is no justification for placing republicans and democrats in administrative office. On the other hand, we refuse to take the governor to task for not making what is generally referred to as a "housecleaning." We can see scant justification for throwing one man out of a job to make room for another. There should be no argument about putting men and women who are thoroughly sold on the Farmer-Labor philosophy in key positions; executive offices where matters of policy and political philosophy are important. And there is no dearth of capable and conscientious people within the Farmer-Labor ranks. But there should be no reason for throwing stenographers, game wardens and grader men out on their ear because they happen to be holdovers from previous administrations and others in because they have been good literature distributors. Experience and efficiency should certainly be the first consideration in ALL cases.

We saw sometime ago that patronage is a reef on which the Farmer-Labor party will be wrecked, just as all other political parties of the past have been wrecked, unless the association takes steps to handle it properly. In view of the deplorable situations which have developed from time to time during the past year, we believe that the association can be depended upon to take steps to correct the evil just as soon as the present campaign is out of the way.

We have one advantage over other parties in that we have a rank and file organization, the vast majority of whom are not looking for spoils, but are conscientiously working for the building of a new society, based on equality and justice. With that spirit predominating we can not fail, regardless of whether we win, lose or draw in the forthcoming election. ,

ARE WE TO BE A SUBSIDIARY OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY?

The current issue of the Farmer-Labor Leader carries on the back page a cartoon depicting President Roosevelt and Governor Olson going the same way, arm in arm, under the same umbrella. We do not know whether Governor Olson has sanctioned that cartoon and the story it purports to tell or not. Offhand we would guess that he has not. We quite distinctly remember Governor Olson saying to the Farmer-Labor association in convention at Saint Paul, that while he enjoys working with the liberals, he is not a liberal. In his own words: "I am not a liberal; I am what I want to be. I am a radical." As we would interpret his words, we would say that while he is willing to help the liberals and work with them to ameliorate the deplorable conditions brought about by the chaotic capitalistic system, he is not too greatly concerned about "putting new patches on worn out pants". He IS concerned about rebuilding our social and economic system in a sane peaceful way; retaining our cherished American institutions; driving the money powers out of the high seats of our government, and bringing about the cooperative commonwealth with government of the people, by the people and for the people.

We know that the governor is an admirer of President Roosevelt and we have always assumed that he admired him for the same reasons that we admire him. For being a humanitarian; for being willing to try new methods—and for being a shrewd politician. We can not conceive Olson going in the same direction any more than we could ourselves travel with Roosevelt.

Roosevelt's outstanding accomplishment of eighteen months in office is building bigger and better soup kitchens and longer relief lines. With the possible exception of the Tennessee Valley Developement, for which Senator Norris is probably more entitled to credit than Roosevelt, he has not made one constructive achievement. The consumers have been taxed to pay the farmers a bonus for detroying surplusses. The country has been saddled with such an enormous bonded indebtedness that future generations will be forced to default of slave for the financial interests for decades. He has placed his O. K. on codes that give the large industries a highwayman's license. Members of his department of agriculture have spit the farmers in the face by calling the Farmers' Holiday association a bunch of "hoodlums" and General Johnson used the iron fist to break the back of the western labor organizations. Softspoken and conservative as the American Federation of Labor is known to be, he can't even get along with them, as the verbal battle of the last few days over the textile strike testifies. And this man was not only retained in office when he asked to be relieved, but had his salary doubled. Section 7a of the NIRA is treated with as much respect as Kaiser Bill's historic "scrap of paper". Mr. Sloan, chairman of the Cotton Textile Institute, the mill owners organization, is chairman of the cotton textile code authority, and if that isn't setting the wolf to watch the sheep we miss our surmise by a wide margin. At the present time he is actively engaged in fighting the strikers.

President Roosevelt has sitting high in his advisory committee, Barney Baruch and James Warburgh of the international banking group. His treasury department is controlled by the chain bank magnates and the closing of the First National Bank of this city is a monument to their power. No, we can not conceive Governor Olson traveling with President Roosevelt. If he is, then we are parting company with Olson.

We stand on the declaration of principles and the platform adopted by the Farmer-Labor association at St. Paul and are intensely interested in furthering that philosophy. We believe that the vast majority of the Farmer-Laborites would far rather go down to defeat on that platform than deviate the smallest degree from its principles and win. Furthermore, we believe that Governor Olson stands with the association and is thoroughly in accord with its platform. It is in sum and substance an official expression of his own convention keynote speech.

We are getting just a little fed up with the Leader's playing to Roosevelt. We object to being made a tail to be wagged by a democratic dog and think its about time that we turn our ammunition on the living, active defenders of capitalism; the democratic party and stop wasting it on the dead carcass of the republican party.

ABOUT INCITING TO MURDER

We receive a copy now and then of a tabloid sheet published in Minneapolis by a J. M. Near, who refers to himself, we assume quite appopriately as "The Old Man". The sheet bears the caption "The Saturday Press" and during the recent truck strike in Minneapolis, we noted it was all hot and bothered a la Minneapolis Journal and Tribune about communists. Which is entirely all right with us, we are not particularly well pleased with the tactics of the communists ourselves if the label is confined to the communists and not tacked on honest working men who happen to be fighting with their backs to the wall in defense of their homes and constitutional rights.

"The Old Man" literally takes the hide off the communists for "inciting to murder, trying to overthrow the government, and all the rest, which is quite well known to the average readers of the daily press. And more power to him for that.

BUT, after deploring the tactics of the communists we would expect that the deplorer should have an idealism just a trifle above the gutter snipe, gangster type. In other words, we would expect those who denounce inciting to riot and murder to exhibit a desire for settling affairs of state, and economic disputes by less violent methods .

However, in his spasm of the 8th "The Old Man" after denouncing the communists and devoting most of his available space to deploring their tactics, splashes a bold face indent on the middle of the page entitled "Meet 'Em Vigilantes!" and goes on to tell about a bus being used by organizers of the United Farmers League as a school on wheels. In bold caps the story states that this bus will soon pass thru Minnesota. Coupled with the exclamatory head the incitation to murder and violence is obvious.

We do no profess to know how much of a splash the Saturday Press makes. It probably doesn't amount to much. But knowing that the, Guilford, recently shot to death in Minneapolis is supposed to have been connected with it, it is easier to understand his violent death. There is something in the scripture about those who take to the sword shall perish by the sword, that the "red baiters" might well read and consider.

SON, REFUSE TO FIGHT!

By HELEN ANN MORTON
(St. Louis Co. Independent)

This article voices the united thought of Intelligent American motherhood:

Nine ten years ago during the horrible world war a little boy was born, his birhday being the same as our national Declaration of Independence. His arrival almost cost the life of his mother—but he was full compensation for all the agony endured.

The best years of life have been devoted to teaching him the truths of life and the rights of others. His mother has devoted herself to the worthwhile efforts outlined in the "School of Motherhood" published in last month's Humanity. Now he is a splendid young man, perfect in health and equipped with an alert mind and a kind, true heart. He stands on the threshold of life asking only the right to live according to the highest ideals and the purest and most honest purpose.

Now again the world trembles with the approach of war and bloodshed. Greedy capitalists lusting for grain, ambitious rulers thirsting for power, these threaten again to grab the youth of the world and convert their bodies into bloody cannon fodder

Have all these years been wasted and is my son to become only one of many millions of human trgets? No! A thousand times NO!

Life has been cruel in many ways and the utter futility of earnest endeavor has at times almost overwhelmed me. But always I have said to my aching heart: "It's all right—you have your wonderful son."

And now if he is snatched out of my arms and slaughtered by the terrible god of Greed—then I have surely lived in vain."

So I appeal to American mothers to unite their voices and declare that NEVER AGAIN shall our sons be dragged into ward by any cause or for any purpose whatsoever.

Every excuse for war is a fraud and pretense. If we would put and end to war we must train our boys to REFUSE TO FIGHT. That will abolish ALL wars.

GAS AND ALKY JUST DON'T MIX

(Tyler Journal)

Whether or not there is any direct connection between the first year of repeal and a marked increase in traffic accidents and deaths for 1934 may be debated, but the fact remains, nevertheless, that gasoline and alchohol just don't mix.

Saint Paul papers report, this week, the 50th traffic death for the year, and compare this with 34 at the same time last year. There may, or may not be a connection between that increase and the use of liquor, but the chances are that at least some of the drivers who figure in fatal accident are at least partly under the influence of liquor.

Science has demonstrated conclusively that if a man has taken liquor, he is much slower to react to an emergency than if he is normal. That fraction slows him up may, and often does, mean the difference between life and death.

SUBMIT TO FEAR.

(The Progressive)

No Hitler, Mussoline of Stalin in Europe weilds power like that of FEAR over the confused and suffering masses of the people. And throughout the world, fear whips millions into line—fear of the loss of jobs, of financial insecurity—fear for the welfare of loved ones. Retarding progress, this monster keeps reaction and ignoance enthronged. It lends its hand to the demagogic servants of special privilege. Only through knowledge, which progressive and liberal forces every where are striving to advance, can this spectre be banished and the way made clear toward a better life and human contentment and happiness.

Farmer-Labor Press Service

by Senator Henry G. Teigan

During the past week the Reactionary Press of the State has devoted considerable space to an alleged Revolt in the Farmer Labor Party, led by A. C. Townley, former head of the National Nonpartisan League.

As usual, the organs of special privilege seem more anxious to propagandize the voters than they are in giving real information to the public information to the public. The Townley Revolt, if it may be so termer, is not one-tenth as serious as the newspapers would have the people believe.

Undoubtedly Mr. Townley has had many friends among the Farmer-Labor workers who admired him for the great work he has done in times gone by. But this must not be taken to mean they are going to follow him, or any other person, or group of persons, in an effort to bring about the defeat of their own Farmer-Labor Administration.

Olson Great Governor

Farmer-Laborites are fully appreciative of the fact the Floyd B. Olson is the greatest Governor in the United States today. They know that he is the one Governor in America who is not in the service of Big Business and is at all times on the alert to serve the cause of the common man.

Moreover, Farmer-Laborites, regardless of their differences, realize full well that support of Mr. Townley means giving aid to the candidates of Big Business, John E. Regan and Martin A. Nelson.

Scurrilous Innuendo

One of the comtemptible bits of inuendo, disseminated by the politicians and press opposed to the Farmer-Labor Party, is that Governor Olson and President Roosevelt share responsibility for the shooting of Howard Guilford, scandal sheet editor in the City of Minneapolis. These charges are, of course, not made directly, for those spewing forth such libelous suggestions do not care to run a foul of the criminal statutes. Mr. Nelson, Republican nominee for governor, was the first of the gentlemen to throw forth the suggestion of the Governor's responsibility, and this was later followed by one from Senator Thomas D. Schall that Roosevelt's New Deal was implicated in the affair.

The charge made by Mr. Townley at Bemidji Monday evening that Governor Olson received large sums of money for appointing John P. Devaney chief justice and Julius J. Olson associate justice of the supreme court seems hardly worthy of consideration It is quite on a par with the charge that the Governor was implicated in the Guilford shooting. Thinking persons will of course, not be influenced by such wild charges and it is not unlikely that they will serve as a boomerang, aiding the Governor rather than harming him.

Townley's Elimination

As to Mr. Townley, it is apparent that the thing that grieves Farmer-Laborites most is not that his campaign— in case he should become a candidate for governor— will bring about the defeat of Governor Olson. This will not happen. What they are deeply concerned about is that Mr. Townley himself will obviously be eliminated from any further usefulness to the Progressive cause. This will be a source of regret to many of the old time Farmer-Laborites and especially to those who aided him in the building of the Non-partisan League in the stormy days of the war.

Farmer-Laborites thruout the state will not be swayed from their course by the Townley revolt, or by any other revolt of its kind. They will stay on the job and go down the line for Floyd B. Olson and the entire Farmer-Labor ticket.

Minute Sermons

By Dr. Crawford Grays

We'll never put things right by starting another wrong to right a wrong.

What can one covet more than to save a youth or maiden from the vicious influence of the beer business?

Having slain the prophets, the liquor business and the 'ad' business will now revive their profits.

What business ever was lucky enough to start with such powerful free publicity as the beer business?

Organized religion failed to stop the war, grafting in politics, robberies of the money changers, and return of beer. Isn't it about time we had a new deal in religion?

Beginning Apr. 7, 1933, with the legalizing of beer we were told there will not be so much drinking as in prohibition days, not so many young people drinking and speakeasies will be closed. Would God it were true.

VIEWS and REVIEWS

by
Ben C. Hagglund

We had been in conversation about the "new society"—the conservative country weekly editor and I. My contention was that a society could be built like a house, according to plans. His comeback was that in the case of the house, we knew what materials we were working with; but that human nature was darn poor material.

After mature consideration, I think that this attitude is an unjust criticism of human nature. We have never tried to build any society—so far, society has "just growed." Conscious planning of our social structure is a new thing, just in its infancy. The future holds out much promise.

When we speak of social planning, we think immediately of Russia There have been so many conflicting reports of this experiment in sociology that the average man does not know which to accept. In proof of this, I overheard this in a railway station: "I'd sooner take the word of a minister of the gospel than I would that of Communist; and all ministers who return from Russia say its all wrong."

While I am aware of the fact that Communists, like all human beings, may stretch a point, I am also aware that many ministers posses a strain of imagination. If Communists are prejudiced for the Russian plan, ministers are apt to be prejudiced directly against it, on account of the legal status of religion in that country.

For an impartial account of the whole matter, I recommend the books of Maurice Hindus "Humanity Uprooted," "Red Bread," and the rest.

A vagrant thought just came to me: Is there any significance in Upton Sinclair's initials?—The first thing Upton Sinclair will do if he is elected governor of California, is to free Tom Mooney. Tom has been in San Quentin for sixteen years now, on what is known to be a "frame-up" pure and simple. The star witness for the state confessed a couple years ago, to perjury; while numerous witnesses for the defense proved that Mooney was elsewhere when the bombing took place, for which he is held. With not a shred of evidence left, the State of California still holds its man. What Senator Borah termed "California's shame" has become the shame of the entire nation.

The Mooney case is a classic in labor history. A more timid man than Mooney would have subsided in silence long ago; a less innocent man would have been quelled by evidence against him. The State hasn't a leg to stand on—but still Tom Mooney remains in jail.

'EPIC' TO SWEEP POVERTY FROM LAND, SAYS SINCLAIR

By Frank L. Palmer
Federated Press Writer

The EPIC victory in California is just the beginning of a movement which will sweep the nation and give the millions of unemployed a chance to create the necessities of life while saving the farmer from poverty and the nation from collapse, Upton Sinclair believes.

He talked of his faith in an exclusive interview with federated Press as he drove to Hyde Park to meet President Roosevelt—and if he was concerned about the welcome he was to get or was displeased with the interview he gave no indication of it.

"Tell organized labor that the EPIC plan means taking the jobless off the labor market, with all that implies," Sinclair said. "In one of my meetings a worker asked me what I would do about strikes. 'After the EPIC plan is in effect your employer will not let you strike,' I said. Then to wipe the stunned look off his face, I explained:

"'When the boss sees that there are no unemployed at the gate looking for jobs, he will not let you strike,' I went on. 'He will throw his arm over your shoulder and say, "Old man, I have been thinking for a long time that you are worth 10c an hour more than you are getting. Will that be all right?"'

"Tell your farmer readers that the EPIC plan means that they will no longer watch food rot in their fields while they cannot pay their taxes. They will load that food onto trucks and send it to the city where they will get warehouse receipts for it. The same trucks will then pick up industrial produce and haul it back to the farms, the workers in the factories getting certificates of service for their products which they in turn can exchange for the farmers' food.

"I have asked over and over in my meetings why that will not work. I have shown that it is exactly the thing that the federal government is doing with the unemployed at the national capital and no one has been able to answer this question: 'Why is this plan red radicalism in California if it is the New Deal in Washington?'

"Tell the workers and farmers of the nation that we can change the slogan to 'End Poverty in Civilization' if they will just start the ball rolling in their communities. Tell them to organize EPIC clubs in their communities and get men elected committed to the simple plan of guaranteeing to the citizens of their state the right to a job, to a chance to make a living. Then we will exchange California fruit for Wyoming iron—and neither fruit grower nor iron miner need go hungry or depend on charity or relief."

Sinclair gives what he calls his campaign manager the credit for his sweeping victory. "I had the best campaign manager a candidate ever had—Grim Necessity," he says. "The unemployed and employed workers alike are desperate; so are the farmers and the businessmen—no one knows what is going to happen next. We give them a clear program—use the natural resources which are abundant, plus the mechanical resources which, are abundant, plus the man power which is abundant, to create the abundance which is our heritage.

"That is better than starving, and California, at least, is going to carry out that program. Even our enemies are convinced of that."

DRIVING AND DRINKING

If you must drink, don't drive. If you must drive, don't drink. That is the advice of the editor of "Westways Magazine" of the Automobile Club of Southern California. Since repeal, deaths from accidents in automoblies in eighty-six leading cities of the United States have averaged 110 more each month than in the same months of 1932-33. At the same time there has been no subtantial increase in the aggregate miles motorist have driven. If anything, the mile age is less. The Fifth Horseman in the automobile cavalcade is the drunk driver. Cars in the hands of the inebriate are deadlier than ever. Mars is a piker in comparison. America's Public Enemy No. 1 is the drunken driver!

UP the HILL

— by Lawrence Hawthorne

Life is pretty much a struggle up the hill,
And at times the going seems extremely slow.
Difficulties block the path ahead until
We don't know just what to do or where to go.
Yes, the way is often hard, but this is true:
We cannot afford to falter or to stop!
And men soon forget the hardships when they view
All the glories that await them at the top.

Life is pretty much a struggle up the hill,
But we seldom are compelled to climb alone;
There are cheerful hearts and friendly hands that will
Help us meet our problems as they meet their own.
So men learn cooperation! So they find
That their greatest satisfaction comes when they
Render service that is generous and kind—
When they help each other on the upward way!

The methods used in attempting to secure our support of his candidacy for the congressional nomination left a rather dark brown taste in our mouth and caused us to oppose him to the full extent of our ability in the Ninth District convention at Erskine and afterwards when he would strongarm his way to an unofficial endorsement. We take some satisfaction in the fact that Pennington county cast 34 of the 37 votes by which he lost the endorsement.

That his latest "insurrection" and the balderdash he is dishing out to those whom morbid curiosity brings out to hear him is losing him the supporters he had left is apparent from the reports we get from various parts of the state. We have a letter before us from a friend in Kittson county who loyally and conscientiously supported Mr. Townley in the Erskine convention and later in the primary campaign. He says in part: "I guess you boys at Thief River Falls had A. C. Townley's number early last spring. He has lost everything that he may have ever had up here." The sentiment voiced in that letter is typical of expressions from erstwhile supporters of Mr. Townley in every community that we have contacted.

Nevertheless, there is some merit in Mr. Townley's criticism of the administration's appointments.They have been far from satisfactory to the rank and file of the Farmer-Labor association in many instances. There is no justification for placing republicans and democrats in administrative office. On the other hand, we refuse to take the governor to task for not making what is generally referred to as a "housecleaning." We can see scant justification for throwing one man out of a job to make room for another. There should be no argument about putting men and women who are thoroughly sold on the Farmer-Labor philosophy in key positions; executive offices where matters of policy and political philosophy are important. And there is no dearth of capable and conscientious people within the Farmer-Labor ranks. But there should be no reason for throwing stenographers, game wardens and grader men out on their ear because they happen to be holdovers from previous administrations and others in because they have been good literature distributors. Experience and efficiency should certainly be the first consideration in ALL cases.

We saw sometime ago that patronage is a reef on which the Farmer-Labor party will be wrecked, just as all other political parties of the past have been wrecked, unless the association takes steps to handle it properly. In view of the deplorable situations which have developed from time to time during the past year, we believe that the association can be depended upon to take steps to correct the evil just as soon as the present campaign is out of the way.

We have one advantage over other parties in that we have a rank and file organization, the vast majority of whom are not looking for spoils, but are conscientiously working for the building of a new society, based on equality and justice. With that spirit predominating we can not fail, regardless of whether we win, lose or draw in the forthcoming election.

ARE WE TO BE A SUBSIDIARY OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY?

The current issue of the Farmer-Labor Leader carries on the back page a cartoon depicting President Roosevelt and Governor Olson going the same way, arm in arm, under the same umbrella. We do not know whether Governor Olson has sanctioned that cartoon and the story it purports to tell or not. Offhand we would guess that he has not. We quite distinctly remember Governor Olson saying to the Farmer-Labor association in convention at Saint Paul, that while he enjoys working with the liberals, he is not a liberal. In his own words: "I am not a liberal; I am what I want to be. I am a radical." As we would interpret his words, we would say that while he is willing to help the liberals and work with them to ameliorate the deplorable conditions brought about by the chaotic capitalistic system, he is not too greatly concerned about "putting new patches on worn out pants". He IS concerned about rebuilding our social and economic system in a sane peaceful way; retaining our cherished American institutions; driving the money powers out of the high seats of our government, and bringing about the cooperative commonwealth with government of the people, by the people and for the people.

We know that the governor is an admirer of President Roosevelt and we have always assumed that he admired him for the same reasons that we admire him. For being a humanitarian; for being willing to try new methods—and for being a shrewd politician. We can not conceive Olson going in the same direction any more than we could ourselves travel with Roosevelt.

Roosevelt's outstanding accomplishment of eighteen months in office is building bigger and better soup kitchens and longer relief lines. With the possible exception of the Tennessee Valley Developement, for which Senator Norris is probably more entitled to credit than Roosevelt, he has not made one constructive achievement. The consumers have been taxed to pay the farmers a bonus for detroying surplusses. The country has been saddled with such an enormous bonded indebtedness that future generations will be forced to default of slave for the financial interests for decades. He has placed his O. K. on codes that give the large industries a highwayman's license. Members of his department of agriculture have spit the farmers in the face by calling the Farmers' Holiday association a bunch of "hoodlums" and General Johnson used the iron fist to break the back of the western labor organizations. Softspoken and conservative as the American Federation of Labor is known to be, he can't even get along with them, as the verbal battle of the last few days over the textile strike testifies. And this man was not only retained in office when he asked to be relieved, but had his salary doubled. Section 7a of the NIRA is treated with as much respect as Kaiser Bill's historic "scrap of paper". Mr. Sloan, chairman of the Cotton Textile Institute, the mill owners organization, is chairman of the cotton textile code authority, and if that isn't setting the wolf to watch the sheep we miss our surmise by a wide margin. At the present time he is actively engaged in fighting the strikers.

President Roosevelt has sitting high in his advisory committee, Barney Baruch and James Warburgh of the international banking group. His treasury department is controlled by the chain bank magnates and the closing of the First National Bank of this city is a monument to their power. No, we can not conceive Governor Olson traveling with President Roosevelt. If he is, then we are parting company with Olson.

We stand on the declaration of principles and the platform adopted by the Farmer-Labor association at St. Paul and are intensely interested in furthering that philosophy. We believe that the vast majority of the Farmer-Laborites would far rather go down to defeat on that platform than deviate the smallest degree from its principles and win. Furthermore, we believe that Governor Olson stands with the association and is thoroughly in accord with its platform. It is in sum and substance an official expression of his own convention keynote speech.

We are getting just a little fed up with the Leader's playing to Roosevelt. We object to being made a tail to be wagged by a democratic dog and think its about time that we turn our ammunition on the living, active defenders of capitalism; the democratic party and stop wasting it on the dead carcass of the republican party.

ABOUT INCITING TO MURDER

We receive a copy now and then of a tabloid sheet published in Minneapolis by a J. M. Near, who refers to himself, we assume quite appopriately as "The Old Man". The sheet bears the caption "The Saturday Press" and during the recent truck strike in Minneapolis, we noted it was all hot and bothered a la Minneapolis Journal and Tribune about communists. Which is entirely all right with us, we are not particularly well pleased with the tactics of the communists ourselves if the label is confined to the communists and not tacked on honest working men who happen to be fighting with their backs to the wall in defense of their homes and constitutional rights.

"The Old Man" literally takes the hide off the communists for "inciting to murder, trying to overthrow the government, and all the rest, which is quite well known to the average readers of the daily press. And more power to him for that.

BUT, after deploring the tactics of the communists we would expect that the deplorer should have an idealism just a trifle above the gutter snipe, gangster type. In other words, we would expect those who denounce inciting to riot and murder to exhibit a desire for settling affairs of state, and economic disputes by less violent methods.

However, in his spasm of the 8th "The Old Man" after denouncing the communists and devoting most of his available space to deploring their tactics, splashes a bold face indent on the middle of the page entitled "Meet 'Em Vigilantes!" and goes on to tell about a bus being used by organizers of the United Farmers League as a school on wheels. In bold caps the story states that this bus will soon pass thru Minnesota. Coupled with the exclamatory head the incitation to murder and violence is obvious.

We do no profess to know how much of a splash the Saturday Press makes. It probably doesn't amount to much. But knowing that the, Guilford, recently shot to death in Minneapolis is supposed to have been connected with it, it is easier to understand his violent death. There is something in the scripture about those who take to the sword shall perish by the sword, that the "red baiters" might well read and consider.

SON, REFUSE TO FIGHT!

By HELEN ANN MORTON
(St. Louis Co. Independent)

This article voices the united thought of Intelligent American motherhood:

Nine ten years ago during the horrible world war a little boy was born, his birhday being the same as our national Declaration of Independence. His arrival almost cost the life of his mother—but he was full compensation for all the agony endured.

The best years of life have been devoted to teaching him the truths of life and the rights of others. His mother has devoted herself to the worthwhile efforts outlined in the "School of Motherhood" published in last month's Humanity. Now he is a splendid young man, perfect in health and equipped with an alert mind and a kind, true heart. He stands on the threshold of life asking only the right to live according to the highest ideals and the purest and most honest purpose.

Now again the world trembles with the approach of war and bloodshed. Greedy capitalists lusting for grain, ambitious rulers thirsting for power, these threaten again to grab the youth of the world and convert their bodies into bloody cannon fodder

Have all these years been wasted and is my son to become only one of many millions of human trgets? No! A thousand times NO!

Life has been cruel in many ways and the utter futility of earnest endeavor has at times almost overwhelmed me. But always I have said to my aching heart: "It's all right—you have your wonderful son."

And now if he is snatched out of my arms and slaughtered by the terrible god of Greed—then I have surely lived in vain."

So I appeal to American mothers to unite their voices and declare that NEVER AGAIN shall our sons be dragged into ward by any cause or for any purpose whatsoever.

Every excuse for war is a fraud and pretense. If we would put and end to war we must train our boys to REFUSE TO FIGHT. That will abolish ALL wars.

(Tyler Journal)

Whether or not there is any direct connection between the first year of repeal and a marked increase in traffic accidents and deaths for 1934 may be debated, but the fact remains, nevertheless, that gasoline and alchohol just don't mix.

Saint Paul papers report, this week, the 50th traffic death for the year, and compare this with 34 at the same time last year. There may, or may not be a connection between that increase and the use of liquor, but the chances are that at least some of the drivers who figure in fatal accident are at least partly under the influence of liquor.

Science has demonstrated conclusively that if a man has taken liquor, he is much slower to react to an emergency than if he is normal. That fraction slows him up may, and often does, mean the difference between life and death.

SUBMIT TO FEAR.

(The Progressive)

No Hitler, Mussoline of Stalin in Europe weilds power like that of FEAR over the confused and suffering masses of the people. And throughout the world, fear whips millions into line—fear of the loss of jobs, of financial insecurity—fear for the welfare of loved ones. Retarding progress, this monster keeps reaction and ignoance enthronged. It lends its hand to the demagogic servants of special privilege. Only through knowledge, which progressive and liberal forces every where are striving to advance, can this spectre be banished and the way made clear toward a better life and human contentment and happiness.

Farmer-Labor Press Service

by Senator Henry G. Teigan

During the past week the Reactionary Press of the State has devoted considerable space to an alleged Revolt in the Farmer Labor Party, led by A. C. Townley, former head of the National Nonpartisan League.

As usual, the organs of special privilege seem more anxious to propagandize the voters than they are in giving real information to the public information to the public. The Townley Revolt, if it may be so termer, is not one-tenth as serious as the newspapers would have the people believe.

Undoubtedly Mr. Townley has had many friends among the Farmer-Labor workers who admired him for the great work he has done in times gone by. But this must not be taken to mean they are going to follow him or any other person, or group of persons, in an effort to bring about the defeat of their own Farmer-Labor Administration.

Olson Great Governor

Farmer-Laborites are fully appreciative of the fact the Floyd B. Olson is the greatest Governor in the United States today. They know that he is the one Governor in America who is not in the service of Big Business and is at all times on the alert to serve the cause of the common man.

Moreover, Farmer-Laborites, regardless of their differences, realize full well that support of Mr. Townley means giving aid to the candidates of Big Business, John E. Regan and Martin A. Nelson.

Scurrilous Innuendo

One of the comtemptible bits of innuendo, disseminated by the politicians and press opposed to the Farmer-Labor Party, is that Governor Olson and President Roosevelt share responsibility for the shooting of Howard Guilford, scandal sheet editor in the City of Minneapolis. These charges are, of course, not made directly, for those spewing forth such libelous suggestions do not care to run a foul of the criminal statutes. Mr. Nelson, Republican nominee for governor, was the first of the gentlemen to throw forth the suggestion of the Governor's responsibility, and this was later followed by one from Senator Thomas D. Schall that Roosevelt's New Deal was implicated in the affair.

The charge made by Mr. Townley at Bemidji Monday evening that Governor Olson received large sums of money for appointing John P. Devaney chief justice and Julius J. Olson associate justice of the supreme court seems hardly worthy of consideration It is quite on a par with the charge that the Governor was implicated in the Guilford shooting. Thinking persons will of course, not be influenced by such wild charges and it is not unlikely that they will serve as a boomerang, aiding the Governor rather than harming him.

Townley's Elimination

As to Mr. Townley, it is apparent that the thing that grieves Farmer-Laborites most is not that his campaign— in case he should become a candidate for governor— will bring about the defeat of Governor Olson. This will not happen. What they are deeply concerned about is that Mr. Townley himself will obviously be eliminated from any further usefulness to the Progressive cause. This will be a source of regret to many of the old time Farmer-Laborites and especially to those who aided him in the building of the Non-partisan League in the stormy days of the war.

Farmer-Laborites thruout the state will not be swayed from their course by the Townley revolt, or by any other revolt of its kind. They will stay on the job and go down the line for Floyd B. Olson and the entire Farmer-Labor ticket.

Minute Sermons

By Dr. Crawford Grays

We'll never put things right by starting another wrong to right a wrong.

What can one covet more than to save a youth or maiden from the vicious influence of the beer business?

Having slain the prophets, the liquor business and the 'ad' business will now revive their profits.

What business ever was lucky enough to start with such powerful free publicity as the beer business?

Organized religion failed to stop the war, grafting in politics, robberies of the money changers, and return of beer. Isn't it about time we had a new deal in religion?

Beginning Apr. 7, 1933, with the legalizing of beer we were told there will not be so much drinking as in prohibition days, not so many young people drinking and speakeasies will be closed. Would God it were true.

VIEWS and REVIEWS

by
Ben C. Hagglund

We had been in conversation about the "new society"—the conservative country weekly editor and I. My contention was that a society could be built like a house, according to plans. His comeback was that in the case of the house, we knew what materials we were working with; but that human nature was darn poor material.

After mature consideration, I think that this attitude is an unjust criticism of human nature. We have never tried to build any society—so far, society has "just growed." Conscious planning of our social structure is a new thing, just in its infancy. The future holds out much promise.

When we speak of social planning, we think immediately of Russia There have been so many conflicting reports of this experiment in sociology that the average man does not know which to accept. In proof of this, I overheard this in a railway station: "I'd sooner take the word of a minister of the gospel than I would that of Communist; and all ministers who return from Russia say its all wrong."

While I am aware of the fact that Communists, like all human beings, may stretch a point, I am also aware that many ministers posses a strain of imagination. If Communists are prejudiced for the Russian plan, ministers are apt to be prejudiced directly against it, on account of the legal status of religion in that country.

For an impartial account of the whole matter, I recommend the books of Maurice Hindus "Humanity Uprooted," "Red Bread," and the rest.

A vagrant thought just came to me: Is there any significance in Upton Sinclair's initials?—The first thing Upton Sinclair will do if he is elected governor of California, is to free Tom Mooney. Tom has been in San Quentin for sixteen years now on what is known to be a "frame-up" pure and simple. The star witness for the state confessed a couple years ago, to perjury; while numerous witnesses for the defense proved that Mooney was elsewhere when the bombing took place, for which he is held. With not a shred of evidence left, the State of California still holds its man. What Senator Borah termed "California's shame" has become the shame of the entire nation.

The Mooney case is a classic in labor history. A more timid man than Mooney would have subsided in silence long ago; a less innocent man would have been quelled by evidence against him. The State hasn't a leg to stand on—but still Tom Mooney remains in jail.

'EPIC' TO SWEEP POVERTY FROM LAND, SAYS SINCLAIR

By Frank L. Palmer
Federated Press Writer

The EPIC victory in California is just the beginning of a movement which will sweep the nation and give the millions of unemployed a chance to create the necessities of life while saving the farmer from poverty and the nation from collapse, Upton Sinclair believes.

He talked of his faith in an exclusive interview with federated Press as he drove to Hyde Park to meet President Roosevelt—and if he was concerned about the welcome he was to get or was displeased with the interview he gave no indication of it.

"Tell organized labor that the EPIC plan means taking the jobless off the labor market, with all that implies," Sinclair said. "In one of my meetings a worker asked me what I would do about strikes. 'After the EPIC plan is in effect your employer will not let you strike,' I said. Then to wipe the stunned look off his face, I explained:

"'When the boss sees that there are no unemployed at the gate looking for jobs, he will not let you strike,' I went on. 'He will throw his arm over your shoulder and say, "Old man, I have been thinking for a long time that you are worth 10c an hour more than you are getting. Will that be all right?"'

"Tell your farmer readers that the EPIC plan means that they will no longer watch food rot in their fields while they cannot pay their taxes. They will load that food onto trucks and send it to the city where they will get warehouse receipts for it. The same trucks will then pick up industrial produce and haul it back to the farms, the workers in the factories getting certificates of service for their products which they in turn can exchange for the farmers' food.

"I have asked over and over in my meetings why that will not work. I have shown that it is exactly the thing that the federal government is doing with the unemployed at the national capital and no one has been able to answer this question: 'Why is this plan red radicalism in California if it is the New Deal in Washington?'

"Tell the workers and farmers of the nation that we can change the slogan to 'End Poverty in Civilization' if they will just start the ball rolling in their communities. Tell them to organize EPIC clubs in their communities and get men elected committed to the simple plan of guaranteeing to the citizens of their state the right to a job, to a chance to make a living. Then we will exchange California fruit for Wyoming iron—and neither fruit grower nor iron miner need go hungry or depend on charity or relief."

Sinclair gives what he calls his campaign manager the credit for his sweeping victory. "I had the best campaign manager a candidate ever had—Grim Necessity," he says. "The unemployed and employed workers alike are desperate; so are the farmers and the businessmen—no one knows what is going to happen next. We give them a clear program—use the natural resources which are abundant, plus the mechanical resources which are abundant, plus the man power which is abundant, to create the abundance which is our heritage.

"That is better than starving, and California, at least, is going to carry out that program. Even our enemies are convinced of that."

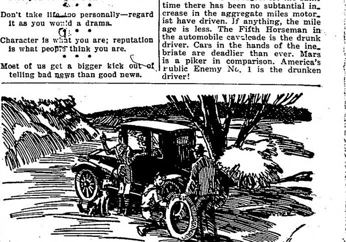
DRIVING AND DRINKING

If you must drink, don't drive. If you must drive, don't drink. That is the advice of the editor of "Westways Magazine" of the Automobile Club of Southern California. Since repeal, deaths from accidents in automoblies in eighty-six leading cities of the United States have averaged 110 more each month than in the same months of 1932-33. At the same time there has been no subtantial increase in the aggregate miles motorist have driven. If anything, the mileage is less. The Fifth Horseman in the automobile cavalcade is the drunk driver. Cars in the hands of the inebriate are deadlier than ever. Mars is a piker in comparison. America's Public Enemy No. 1 is the drunken driver!



UP the HILL

— by Lawrence Hawthorne

Life is pretty much a struggle up the hill,
And at times the going seems extremely slow.
Difficulties block the path ahead until
We don't know just what to do or where to go.
Yes, the way is often hard, but this is true:
We cannot afford to falter or to stop!
And men soon forget the hardships when they view
All the glories that await them at the top.

Life is pretty much a struggle up the hill,
But we seldom are compelled to climb alone;
There are cheerful hearts and friendly hands that will
Help us meet our problems as they meet their own.
So men learn cooperation! So they find
That their greatest satisfaction comes when they
Render service that is generous and kind—
When they help each other on the upward way!

Dragon Still Survives

Until the first two were captured in 1927, dragons were considered a mythical animal. The reference books so describe them. But an exploration of the jungle dot in the blue seas below Borneo and close to Java, rolled back the curtain of time to a hundred million years, perhaps, before the great flood. It revealed that the dragon, whose shadowy terror has lurked in the Asiatic mind for immemorial ages, whose legend is everywhere, from Ireland to the South pole, the earliest monster dreaded and hated by man, still survives in this remote spot.

THE picture was terrible, and Royal shuddered, thinking of the dreary hotel lobby and the three blocks of sleet and muck he'd have to walk through to get there. He hesitated, uncertain for a moment, and then settled back against the seat and closed his eyes. At least the theater was warm.

The chair shook, disturbing his doze, and he looked up irritably as a dim shape slid into a seat beside him. He had one glimpse of a white face and then, with no preliminaries at all, the girl produced a tiny handkerchief and proceeded to cry into it with quiet abandon.

Royal watched with a detached sort of interest, wondering idly if she had marked him as the victim for some lachrymose racket of which he had never heard. But after a while Royal reached out and took her hand in his own.

There was a frantic and unsuccessful tug, and then the girl turned a quick, startled glance toward the empty seats all around them.

"If you scream I'll turn you loose," Royal warned firmly. He let her consider that possibility for a moment, and went on: "You were crying, you know."

"I— It was because of the picture."

"It is a lousy picture. It almost moves me to tears, too."

There was another half-hearted tug to release her hand.

"You're laughing at me."

"On the contrary, I feel very much like crying with you. Perhaps if you'd tell me—"

"There isn't anything to tell."

"I thought perhaps there was a boy—"

"There is not!"

"—who at this very moment is being nice to some blond siren."

"Her hair was hennaed!"

"The color doesn't matter. She's a cat just the same."

"I'll never speak to him again."

"Serves him right for running away to dinner with a red headed siren when he could be with a swell—"

"Blond," she replied. "How did you know that he took her out to dinner?"

"Trust a woman like that to take him where she can wear her most becoming evening gown. They're probably at the Blue Bonnett right now."

"The Plaza!"

"What a coincidence! I wanted to go there tonight, but I detest dining alone." After a moment he went on, coaxingly: "You could go home and dress and I'd call for you in an hour."

By seeking out the exact spot that his companion seemed most careful to ignore, Royal recognized The Boy at once. He was a hefty twenty-one, no doubt played guard on his football team, and, Royal reflected, he was quite capable of making a battle ground of the restaurant.

"Now, Dorothy—"

"Betty."

"Now, Betty, you like me fine, and I am very fond of you. We can't have Oscar—"

"His name is Bill."

"We can't have Bill thinking you're eating your heart out for him. That's not the idea at all. I'm not such a bad looking duck myself, and— Stop looking at me as if I was your father."

Royal had to admit that she was doing a very good job of liking him. Her eyes were beginning to glow tenderly. It was their second dance together, and he was a little bit startled when an abrupt hand fell on his shoulder, and Bill stood with arms outstretched toward the girl, ignoring Royal.

"Sorry, Bub," Royal's voice was softly patronizing. "I haven't seen Betty in a long time."

Betty's answer stuck somewhere in her throat, and Royal executed a flourishing reverse step that left Bill blinking his atonishment.

After the dance Betty mumbled an incoherent excuse and slipped away. Left alone, Royal suddenly noticed that the red-headed girl had changed seats and now sat facing him.

The red-head was beautiful in a vital sort of way. She met his gaze across the dance floor, and there was a suggestion of a smile on her lips. Royal sighed deeply and made a feeble effort to bring his thoughts back into safer channels.

Confound Bill! If Betty would only hurry back and— No, if she would stay away a little longer, he would contrive in some way to meet the redhead. Bill was greeting a party across the room, and he could use their mutual friends as an excuse to speak to her.

At the worst, she could only ignore him. And she had already smiled at him! She smiled again when he stopped by her table, and because the shock of it left him strangely weak, he slipped into the chair facing her.

"Couldn't we make this a—er—party?" he managed to ask. "My—er—Betty and I, and you and Bill. You see, there are so many jolly things four can do."

"I'm afraid we can't," she answered. "You see, your—er—Betty is gone."

"Gone?"

"Yes, and so is Bill. They left together. I just saw them slip away."

Royal pondered that startling information for a moment.

"Gone, are they? Well, let's make it a party of two. There are so many jolly things two can do."

He did not hear her answer. He was thinking that one of the jolliest things he could do was to sit and look into her eyes.

Fish With Hands

A fish with hands was recently found in South Africa. It is a repulsively ugly fish, shaped like a deformed dog, and possessing four human hands instead of feet; it was washed up on the beach near the aquarium at East London, South Africa. It weighed between 8 and 10 pounds and was muddy brown in color; it had a long tail and a cylindrical body. The local authorities say that the description suggests that the fish was a member of the Sargassum family—an ugly weed-loving species, whose fins, in the course of evolutionary processes, have developed into hands.

The King's Bad Bargain

The king's bad bargain is the name bestowed on a civil servant who lives to enjoy his pension beyond the average limit, says Tit-Bits Magazine. According to statistics a male pensioner may expect to live fifteen years after retirement at sixty, while the average woman may hope to live until she is seventy-eight.

Two Sides

"There are two sides to every argument."

"That's true," said Senator Sorghum. "But an argument is like a coat. There's a wrong side and a right side."

Counting Them Up

Miss Pert—There are 300 reasons why I won't marry you.

Mr. Oldboy—Name them.

Miss Pert—Fifty years and 250 pounds.

Pants Pressed?

"Have you ever appeared as a witness before?"

"Yes, your honor."

"In what suit?"

"My blue serge."

It Soured Him

Sinkerton—Why do you argue so against compulsory education?

His Friend—My wife tried to make me learn how to cook my own meals.

Osseo—Many old-timers helped to celebrate this little community's eighty-second anniversary of its founding as the annual affair took place. Osseo was organized and founded in 1852.

Minneapolis—With more than 250 contestant and 1,000 blooms entered, the sixth annual show of the Minnesota Dahlia society ended at the L. S. Donaldson company store. Sixty varieties were shown.

Annandale—To offset the possible depletion of waterfowl and other game birds, Annandale sportsmen have set loose a crate of black pheasants as a step to maintain hunting prospects in this vicinity in the future.

Chaska—L. J. Miller, 63, retired business man, was taken for a ride, slugged and thrown from a car near here. He was rushed to the hospital but died later. Sheriff Frank Frende of Carver county put a man and woman who were riding with Miller, into jail.

St. Paul—Approximately 36,000 people in Minnesota had until Sept. 15 to pay their second half of the state income tax for 1933, C. E. Bashe, director of the state income tax bureau announced. A total of $619,000 was due the state on the second half of the taxes.

Detroit Lakes—Shot in a running gunfight with Sheriff H. L. Johnston of Becker county, Casper Hodgson, 20, of Gardner, N. D., who, authorities say, had stolen 50 automobiles in this vicinity lay in a local hospital in serious condition with five bullet wounds in his body.

Hibbing—Construction of a new camp at Thistledew lake and enlargement of the Perch lake camp may be the solution of the transient problem in this part of the state. According to present plans, both of the projects will be completed in six weeks, the new camp to provide accommodations for 200 men.

Minneapolis—One out of every eight persons in Minnesota is receiving direct relief and one out of every four farmers is getting feed relief because of the drouth, L. P. Zimmerman, deputy administrator of the SERA, declared. Approximately 75,000 families, or more than 330,000 persons, are now on direct relief, and 30,000 farm families, or 140,000 persons, are receiving drouth relief.

St. Paul—The biennial state budget will bear an increase of at least 10 per cent when it is presented to next state legislature, it was predicted by I. C. Strout, state budget commissioner. It was estimated that at least $41,000,000 will be needed for state activities for the two years beginning next July 1, and the total department requests may approximate as much as $44,000,000. The 1933 legislature appropriated $37,207,000 for the present biennium, although the various departments had presented requests for a toal of $44,793,000, from which more than $8,000,000 was cut by the budget commissioner.

Chaska—J. C. Templin, 41, treasurer of Benton township and president-cashier of the Farmers State Bank of Bongards, in Carver county, was charged with first degree grand larceny. The charge is based on alleged embezzlements estimated to reach $9,000. Township records also are missing. Most of the money, according to belief, was taken from the township fund. The alleged shortage were uncovered by Charles Wenzel, examiner in the state banking department. The banker disappeared the day Wenzel started his periodical audit. There will be no loss to either the bank or the township, however, as Templin was bonded.

Minneapolis—A large majority of Minnesota farmers who have signed corn-hog reduction contracts for 1934 favor continuing the corn-hog control program for 1935, according to a limited survey by the state AAA office at University arm.

St. Paul—More than 1,000 subsistence cows have been distributed among the relief farm families of Minnesota as part of the rural rehabilitation program of the state emergency relief administration, it was announced by Governor Floyd B. Olson, state administrator.

PREHISTORIC BEAST WAS MANY YEARS OLD

A hitherto unknown South American prehistoric animal of large size and most unusual physical characteristics, which appears to have been one of the greatest killers of its time, some 2,000,000 years ago, has been introduced to the scientific world.

The animal was discovered in the Argentinian province of Catamarca by Prof. E. S. Riggs while leader of the Marshall Field Paleontological expedition to Argentina, and the skulls and parts of skeletons of the species brought by this expedition are the only specimens known in the world to date. Like the well-known sabertooth tiger which died out a few thousand years ago, the new animal had long pointed tusks that must have made it a formidable attacker, but its further peculiarity lies in the fact that it carried its young in a pouch like such marsupial animals as the opossum and kangaroo. It has therefore been named marsupial sabertooth. It was larger than a modern mountain lion of North America. Its head was massive.

The sabertooth marsupial lived in South America long before the sabertooth tiger which represented the cat family in most parts of the world, reached that continent. Among the contemporary creatures of the world inhabited by the newly discovered fossil animal were the giant sloths and the armored glyptodents, upon which the sabertooth marsupial may have preyed.

Historic Old City

Lima, Peru, contains many magnificent private mansions of the old days, chief among which is the famous Torre-Tagle residence, the Foreign office. The University of San Marcos is the oldest institution of learning in the Americas, having been founded a century before Harvard. The National museum at Lima is one of the most remarkable institutions of its kind in the world, being equaled only by that at Cairo in displaying incidents of life and activity of ancient races.

FORD V-8
Wins the Nation

Piling up a towering lead over its nearest competitor, the Ford V-8 has proved itself the national favorite.

This is no straw vote or popularity guessing contest. It's a real trial before the greatest jury of all---the motor car buyers of America. And the only votes that count are SALES. What's the verdict?

FORD! No doubt or question. Here are the results, shown in nation wide new car registrations for the first seven months of 1934:

FORD V-8 $358,232
1st Nearest Competitor $335,608
2d Nearest Competitor $197,164

Here you see the gain over the same period last year of the popular FORD V-8 and the other two:

FORD V-8 124 per cent
2d Nearest Competitor 59 1-2 per cent
1st Nearest Competitor 16 1-2 per cent

No question of superiority. The buying public has been convinced. Get in line and own a real car which is for all purposes. FORD is the leader today—as it has always been. Let's look at the new car sales for the period 1929-1933 inclusive. In that time FORD sold over half a million more cars than its nearest competitor, over five times as many as the car in third place, and more than both other leading cars put together! There's PROOF of National preference. Votes from the folks who count—the ones who lay down good money for the car they want.

Ford V-8—Over a Million on the Roads Today!

DRIVE A NEW FORD V-8. We will be glad to place a car at your disposal—let you drive it wherever you want—up hills, over rough roads, in heavy traffic and on the open highway. Drive a FORD V-8 and know the motoring thrill that has made it America's most popular car.

At the first meeting of the Executive Council since the strike in Minneapolis, $60,000 was appropriated as a state supplement to Federal students aid. The state's contribution to needy college students will amount to approximately $10 per month per student, rising the amount the students get to $25 per month. The idea of the state contributiong to the education of needy students was original in Minnesota last year and enabled 2300 students to attend the University of Minnesota and colleges throughout the state who otherwise would be unable to do so. Last year $71,000 was appropriated but only $50,000 was expended.

"Perfect cooperation on the part of the Minnesota Department of Conservation in acquiring lands will make it possible to start improvement work this fall on the Mud Lake wild life restoration project in Northwestern Minnesota, J. N. Darling, chief of the U. S. Bureau of Biological survey, stated in Washington. Federal funds will be used entirely to procure lands and to construct development structures. "In no state in the Union have I had such splendid demonstration of unselfish aid," Mr. Darling said.

In a minority report of the Hennepin county grand jury signed by six members, other jurors were flayed for their tactics during the presentation of the State Securities Division against Northwest Bancorporation, which has been under investigation for almost a year. The minority report charged that certain members of the Grand Jury acted as "Attorneys" for Banco in the jury room and also said that certain members of the jury depended for their livelihood directly or indirectlly upon the Bancorporation. It further stated the report was submitted because the felt "grave miscarrage of justice has occured by reason of the action taken, and that the situation has brought about a condition which threatens to make of our laws a mockery and bring into disrepute the whole procedure of our criminal statutes."

Charges made by A. C. Townley, former North Dakota Non-Partisan Leaguer who has announced his candidacy for Governor, that $50,000 was the price of a seat on the Supreme Court of Minnesota and that more than that was paid the Governor by Chief Justice John. P. Devaney for his position, was met with a great deal of indignation on the part of all the Supreme Court Justices. In addition, Charles L. DeReu, who, Townley claimed, made the charges, indignantly denied that he had made such a statement. "All this talk about an offer being made to the Governor by Julius Olson and John Devaney is bunk. These are deliberate falsehoods," said DeReu. Another card house blown way.

Many road arguments will be settled by the traffic census taken by the state highway department recently on the trunk system. Reports of the individual checkers are now being assembled and studied at the central office of the department. No census was taken of highway traffic in 1933, because of lack of highway funds. This year the work was carried out as an ERA "white collar" employment project with federal funds. Besides revealing the amount of use motorists make of the main trunks, the new count will also show the travel on the new routes added to the state system. This information will guide the highway department in formulating a program for future improvements. Without an actual traffic count, groups interested in the development of certain roads frequently disagree as to the amount of traffic borne by various routes. Actual figures are the only means of settling such arguments.

To combat peat fires in the northern part of the state which have become more of a fire hazard this year than ever before because of the large quantities of hay being cut in the forests in Northern Minnesota,, $35,000 was given the Forestry Division by the Executive council at its last meeting.

Catspaw Lawsuit

From China comes this strange story of eastern justice. Four merchants acquired a supply of cotton, and to prevent damage by mice invested in a cat, each being the owner of one paw. When the cat met with an injury the owner of the damaged paw tied an oil-soaked bandage round the wound, but the animal went too near a fire and the bandage caught alight. The frightened cat scampered among the cotton bales which were soon in flames, and the owners of the three good paws sued the owner of the injured one for damages. The judge decided against them. The cat could not use the lame paw, he declared. Therefore, the three good paws had caused the damage, and the owners of these paws had to pay for the loss sustained by the owner of the bad paw!—Tit-Bits Magazine.

ELINOR BOTTELSON WED

Of interest to her many friends in this community is the marriage of Miss Elinor Bottelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bottelson, on Sunday, September 16 to George J. Warns Hunters to Know What They're Shooting

Because of the lag between the openings of the seasons on prairie chickens and pheasants this year, Erling Swenson, State Game and Fish Director, issued a caution and warning to hunters to "know what they are shooting before they pull the trigger."

"Don't take hen pheasants for prairie chickens. Good sportsmanship demands you to wait until sure before shooting," he said.

Shooting of prairie chicken (pinnated) grouse and white breasted (sharptail) grouse is permitted in 13 counies during 1934: Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, Kooching, St. Louis, Marshall, Polk, Pennington, Red Lake, Mahnomen, Clearwater, Beltrami and Itaska between September 2, in the hours between noon and sunset. Limits are 6 in any one day, 12 in possession at any one time and shall not exceed 18 birds for the season.

The season on ruffed grouse, quail and pheasonts opens October 20 and will last in some counties for 9 one-half days and others up to 16 one-half days.

NELSON SPEECH MOSTLY 'HOOEY' SAYS REGNIER

Farmer-Labor Campaign Head Points Out Weakness in Republican Keynote

Martin Nelson's keynote speech of Friday night is "nothing but a general condemnation against progressive principles advocated by the Farmer-Labor Party."

This was the statement of Senator Emil L. Regnier, Farmer-Labor campaign manager, in responce to a request for comment on the Republican gubernatorial candidate speech.

"There is nothing concrete in that speech," Senator Regnier said. "I personally think that it is nothing but one of those old essays which has been dug up out of the archives of some locked-up room which was used by the Republican party 50 years ago. It is a repetition of that same theory which has done nothing except to put the entire country in a state of chaos."

Senaor Regnier declared that "it is too bad" that Mr. Nelson did not discuss "the real principles for which the Republican party stood, instead of waging a tirade similar to that which has been waged by all reactionary leaders since time immemorial."

"It is nothing new," the Farmer-Labor spokesman said, "It is the same old deal of trying to pull the wool over the eyes of the people by using smoke screen tactics and much bunk."

Commenting further, Senator Regnier said: "Since after the death of Abraham Lincoln, the Republican party has always talked abobut the preservation of the home and the sanctity thereof, but with all of this talk, they saw fit only to serve the interests which drove thousands of common people out of their homes and bankrupt thousands of independent business men.

"As far as the farmer is concerned, there is no need for my commenting on that, because they themselves know what the Republican party has done for them under the splendid guidance of good old Andrew Melon, Herbert Hoover and Calvin Coolidge.

"Referring to labor, the Grand Old Party, for which Martin Nelson is the chief peddler of falsehoods and misrepresentations, has done nothing except establish soup lines from one end of the country to the other.

"Why doesn't Mr. Nelson tell the people that he stands for a return of Melonism, Hooverism and Coolidgeism, instead of beating around the bushes he does by waging a campaign of condemnation?"

WICK SHOW CO. RETURN FOR FALL ENGAGEMENTS

The well-known Arney Wick and his vaudeville company have returned to play several engagements in this territory before leaving for the West Coast in a few weeks. Mr. Wick is considered Norway's premier accordianist and comedian and the company's entertainments are always well-received. The company will play at Goodridge on Friday, Sept. 21 at Grygli on Saturday, September 22; and at Gatzke Saturday, September 29. Mr. Wick has announced that an all-new show will be given.

Highway Called "Autostrade"

The building of roads reserved for motorists originated in Italy, and the word "Autostrade," coined for these concrete speedways, is being adopted by other countries. At present there are more than 153 miles of Italian autostrade used for heavy lorry traffic and also for speedy private cars. The first of these was completed in 1925 in the neighborhood of Milan, and there are now other "motor-only" highways near Rome, Naples and Florence, the latest being between Padua and Venice. The longest autostrade connects Genoa, Turin and Milan and is nearly 70 miles in length, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. High-speed motor roads have been frequently suggested for this country, but so far the government has been opposed to their construction.

Freight Cars to Buyer's Door

Freight may be carried from the main line of a German railroad to the purchaser's door in the same car in which it was shipped. This is accomplished by means of movable trucks weighing eight tons. The trucks are placed against the railway track so that the car may be shunted off of the main line and towed directly to the purchaser's door. Curves are taken by turning the car's 16 wheels mounted on movable axles.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

A Real Hunger Strike

A big python at the St. Louis zoo has refused to eat a single meal since his arrival there some six years ago. This doesn't mean, however, that he hasn't had any food in that time. After the first two months refusal of food the curator decided to feed him by force and has continued to do so every six weeks since. On feeding day a crew of several men take the big snake from his cage and hold him while a length of fire hose is inserted in his throat through which 14 pounds of ground meat and bone is forced. Then the food is massaged along the body until it reaches the stomach where it is digested in about five days' time.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Man Prisoner in Clothes

After lying helpless in his frozen clothing for 25 days, a blacksmith of Hildesham, Germany, has recovered in a hospital. On his way home from Minden he fell into a stream and lost his bearings. Finding refuge in a shed he awoke the next morning to find his clothes frozen so hard he could not move. The shed was off the beaten path, and when he was found he weighed only 70 pounds, but still was breathing faintly. It was necessary to amputate one of his legs.

Pussy Stuck to Her Ship

When the drifter Cat's Eye sank after a collision with the Saltair near London recently, her crew of eight had to make a hurried climb for life to reach the Saltair's deck, but the Cat's Eye's mascot cat refused to desert the sinking vessel. After the ship went down the pussy was picked up by a tug.

President's Salary

George Washington, the first President, declined to accept a salary, being content to be reimbursed for his expenses. He kept a careful account the first year, and found that he had spent approximately 5,000 English pounds, the equivalent of $25,000 in American money. This led to fixing the salary at that amount.

DRY PLAY PACKS SHOW HOUSES IN NOR'WEST MINN.

Cast of 21 Local People Will Present "Prisoner at the Bar"

Word from Minneapolis, the headquarters of the Anti-Saloon League of Minnesota, indicates that interest in the new drama, "Prisoner at the Bar," to be given in the city auditorium at Thief River Falls next Sunday night, September 30th, continues to increase. The play was recently given a Moorehead to a packed house with a large number of people unable to get in. At Elbow Lake 800 were in attendance at Detroit Lakes 700 at Eagle Bend the play was put on twice the same evening to accommodate the crowd, and on a number of occasions it is reported that as many people were turned away as were able ot get in to see the play. Many people have stated that "it is the greatest temperance play written since "Ten Nights in a Barroom" was produced.

In the Second Dry War now being vigorously pushed by the Anti-Saloon League, "Prisoner at the Bar" is looked upon as the most outstanding feature of the educational campaign. It tells in a graphic way the story of the results of drinking. The drama is to be given here by 21 local citizens who will be assisted by Dr. R. N. Holsaple of Minneapolis, Superintendent of the state Anti-Saloon League. There will be no charge for admission but a collection will be taken. The doors of the city auditorium will open at seven o'clock and the meeting will begin at eight o'clock. The announcement from the state headquarters says "Come early, or stand up."

The cast of characters is as follows:

Judge, Dr. R. N. Holsaple.
States Attorney, Morris Bye.
Defendana, G. H. Mayer-Oakes.
Clerk of Court, W. G. Claffy.
Ralph Jones, prisoner, A. E. Carlson.
Court Bailiff, Andrew Bottelson.
Ed. Johnson, Sheriff, V. C. Noper.
Mrs. Grace Hall, Principal Witness, Mrs. J. M. Bishop.
Tom Hamlin, Fingerprint Expert, L. R. Lanning.
Dorothy Jones, Prisoner's Daughter, Marilyn Noper.
Jury: Roger Dooley, chairman; Mrs. H. L. Fowler, Mrs. E. O. Erickson, Mrs. A. Swanson, Miss Francis Cook, Mrs. Eli Rolland, Mrs. M. V. Evenson, H O Berve, Olaf Neset, B. O. Norby, Walter Smith, and Anton Hall.

GARNESS LUTHER LEAGUE TO MEET SUN. OCTOBER 7

The Garnes Luther League will meet at the Swan Walhoug home in Garnes township on Sunday, October 7th.

VIOLINIST GIVES FINE RECITAL AT FRIDAY MUSICALE

Fully justifying her reputation as a violinist of renown and ability, Miss Jane Dudley appeared in concert under the auspices of the Northwest Assemblies, Inc. at the municipal auditorium last Friday afternoon, displaying a brilliance of technique and mastery of execution which is seldom witnessed.

In Miss Dudley's selection of numbers were folk songs and dances of several countries, including a negro spiritual, "Nobody Knows the Troules I Have:" a negro folk dance; "Londonberry Air:" the first movement of Beethoven's "D Major Sonata," in which Miss Dudley was ably assisted by her accompanist, Mr. Larson; "The Swan," from "Carnival of the Animals," the story-telling suite by Saint-Saens; Fritz Kreisler's "Gypsy Girl;" followed by "Songs My Motehr Taught Me" (Dvorak) which introduced "The Bohemian Dance,, by Smetana.

During a brief intermission, Miss Dudley's accompanist, Mr. Larson, presented an interesting interpretation of "Romance" by Sibelius, and a novelty "Musical Clock" number, which gave evidence of his pianistic ability.

Concluding her concert, Miss Dudley played "The Rosary" by Ethelbert Nevin, and the National Hungarian dance called "Chardus.'

It Has been announced that the next program to be presented by the Northwest Assemblies, Inc. will be sometime in December.

Lawler Creamery Burns Notes and Mortgages

It was a gala celebration that was held a Lawler, Minnesota last week, the occasion being the burning of the notes and mortgage binding the Lawler Cooperative creamery. Miss Helquist Announces Girls' Activities Project

Miss Harriet Helquist, director of the girls activities under the ERA, has announced the following schedule for the recreational project:

'On Monday and Wednesday evenings there will be athletics from 7:15 to 8:15 o'clock in the Lincoln high school gymnasium for girls of junior high school age which include those in the 7th and 8th grades and the first year high school.

Playground work and handicrafts for all grades will be taken up from 4 to 6 p. m., on Mondays and Tuesdays at the Northrop school; on Wednesday and Thursday at the Washington school; and on Friday at the Knox school.

A story hour will be conducted by Miss Helquist in the auditorium of the Carnegie Public Library each Saturday from 11 to 12 a. m., for the children of the 1st, 2nd and 3rd grades, and for the 4th and 5th graders from 1:30 until 2:15. The south door entrance on First street will be used.

Gymnasium classes for tired housewives will be held on Monday mornings from 10:30 until noon.

It is Miss Helquist's ambition to stimulate an interest in a recreational room for girls, especially for the high school girls whose homes are not in the city. This room would contain recreational facilities such as ping-pong and bridge tables, etc., and would be a general rest room for girls.

COUNCIL WILL CONSIDER NEW ORDINANCE FRI.

New Zoning Ordinance Scheduled to Come Up for Consideration

Only routine business was transacted by the city council at its meeting on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Thune of the Pennington County Poultry asociation appeared before the council and requested the use of the auditorium for th annual poultry show on December 4—5—6 and 7. The request was granted.

Building permits were granted to L. S. Hess for remodeling to cost about $670; Leonard Hanson, also remodeling to cost about $200; and Justie Johnson a remodeling job to cost $100.

Olaf Winger appeared before the council and requested permission on behalf of a number of residents adjoining the block used by the city for tool sheds, to plant elm trees on the boulevard all around the block.

The city attorney was instructed to investigate and take whatever action he may deem necessary in regard to the disposition of buildings which were erected by the Land O' Lakes and Robertson Lumber company without building permits. Applications had been made in both instances but construction had gone forward as is often done without waiting for the council to take action on them. These applications were subsequently rejected on the ground that plans did not comply with the fire ordinances.

A petition was received from a group of residents of Atlantic and Horace avenues, requesting the removal of the so-called old Shirley barn on the grounds that it constitutes a fire hazard. The petition was tabled pending the disposition of a new zoning ordinance which will be given its first reading at an adjourned meeting to be held this Friday evening.

Mr. Messenger, recreational director of the ERA requested the use of the city auditorium for recreational projects during the winter months. He assured the council that his programs will be arranged so that they will not interfere with other activities. The request was granted.

Tax abatements requested by the following and recommended by the tax committee were granted: A. H. Akre, lots 4, Block 5, Highland addition from $1621 to $1200; Wm. J. Brown, personal property to $160; Albert Engen, personal property to $6 and a refund of $6.66.

The council recessed until Friday evening at which time the new zoning ordinance will be considered.

Messenger Announces Recreation Projects

At a meeting Tuesday evening, the city countil granted the recreational activities projects the use of the city auditorium on certain nights of the week, according to I. E. Messenger, district ERA recreational leader.

Mr. Messenger announces a meeting for Tuesday evening, October2, for all men interested in volleyball and basketball, on which evening leagues for both games will be organized.

There are seven people employed by the ERA on the Recreational Project in Pennington and Marshall Counties, which are combined as one district with J. S. Messenger as the district recreational leader.

Miss Harriet Helquist of this city is in charge of girl's activities, and athletics and dramatics for adults. Miss Helquist has already organized many classes in athletics, games, handicrafts, and is in the process of organizing classes in dramatics.

The director of the 4-H club work and rural community recreation in Pennington County is Miss Verna Becker, who will also work with handicraft and dramatics in the city. Miss Becker has been engaged on the 4-H club program since March, 1934.

R. Kirkconnel will direct the boys' and men's club work in Thief River Falls and the surrounding territory, also directing volleyball and archery.

In charge or the general recreational activities, athletics, games, handicrafts, etc., of Marshall county will be Erlad Johnson of Alvarado. Mrs. Harry Resendahl, of Warren will direct the 4-H club work of Marshall county, having previously worked on this program under the CWA. Miss Florence Ryden also of Warren will be in charge of the women's and girls' recreational program in Warren which includes athletics, games, and handicrafts.

Recent Rainfall Relieves Water Shortage, says NRS

Information from the local ERA office reveals that the caterpillar crews employed on the Red Lake river project have ceased operation; one crew being withdrown last Wednesday, and the other on Saturday. However, the CCC boys working on the project will continue indefinitely. It is reported that the rain of the past few days has helped the water situation immensely.

Dairymen Will Sponsor Meeting of Local Women

A special meeting for the Women of the community will be held Thursday, October 18 in connection with the Red River Valley Dairymen's convention on October 17 and 18. Miss Julia Newton of St. Paul will speak on "The Home in a New Era," and Miss Retta Beebe from the Northwest School of Agriculture will discuss culinary arts, in connection with which a demonstration will be given.

Further details will be given in a latter issue of the Forum.

Employment Conditions Apparently Good Here, State NRS Head Says

The district National Reemployment office of this city was visited this Monday by Dreng Bjornaraa, State Director of the NRS, who after inspection of the files and application cards in the local county office, commented on the small number of active cards in the files as compared to other offices in the state.

Mr. Bjornaraa stated, "This may be taken to be a direct indication of general conditions in this area, as we have found that there is a direct correlation between industrial conditions and the size of the active files in our offices thruout the state."

A comparison of the files of the local office with those of the first of the year, shows a startling decrease in the number of unemployed persons seeking employment.

Statistics for the week ending January sixth, 1934, shows that there were at that time 810 active cards in the files in Thief River Falls; on Saturday September 22, 1934, there were 218, an indication that 592 persons are now employed who were unemployed nine months ago. Reports on file in the local office of the National Reemployment Service, shows that more than 80 percent of these persons were placed on permanent jobs, that is, jobs lasting for a period of more than one month. In addition to the number placed on local jobs 38 persons have been placed on jobs outside the county.

In closing, Mr. Bjornaraa urged that a special effort be made to have persons who have registered but are still unemployed renew their registration cards so that they may be considered for early placement, and have persons who are not registered with their local Reemployment Service do so at once.

MANY VISITORS ATTENDED CLINIC HERE SATURDAY

Sixty-Four Disabled Persons Are Given Examination at Lincoln School

Sixty-four disabled persons of Pennington, Marshall, and Red Lake Counties and approximately 200 visitors attended the orthopedic clinic conducted at Lincoln High school Saturday, September 22, of which Miss Eunice Lindgren, city school nurse, was in charge as general chairman.

Dr. Henry Myhercing of the Mayo clinic of Rochester, Minnesota, represented the Minnesota Public Health Association and conducted the physical examinations, assisted by Miss Marie Pfeiffer, the medical secretary of the Gillette State Hospital for crippled children. Miss Alice Joslin also of the Gillette Hospital was the clinic nurse, and renewed the acquaintances of many former patients of the Gil-

PTA Will Meet on Monday Evening at Lincoln Schoo

The regular meeting of the Parent, Teachers Association will be held on Monday evening, October 1st at the Lincoln high school assembbly, Miss Ragna Steenerson, secretary of the organization announced this week.

Several numbers will be presented by the seventh grade chorus, including "Old Black Joe" by Foster, and "Stars of the Summer Night" by Woodbury. These will be directed by Miss Irma Springen, who will also direct the high school girls' glee club in the numbers, "Two Little Stars" by O'Hara, and "Nursery Rhyme Suite" by Custance.

M. W. Deputy, the president of the Bemidji State College will address the meeting, following which Miss Harriet Helquist will give a resume of the summer's activity of the PTA recreational project. The evening's program will be closed with a vocal solo, "A Winter Lullaby" (DeKouen) by Miss Alice Bredeson.

Following the program, there will be a business sesion and luncheon will be served.

It was announced that the Knox school had the highest ratio of parents and teachers at the September meeting, and will receive a subscription to the National Parent-Teachers magazine.

FLOYD B. OLSON WILL SPEAK AT DAIRYMEN MEET

Governor Olson, Einar Hoidale, and Others Will Address Festive Crowds

Definite assurance that he will be here to address the Red River Valley Dairymen's association at their convention in this city on October 18th at three o'clock p. m., was received by the Forum from Governor Floyd B. Olson on Tuesday.

The letter which was in reply to reply to requests from the farmer-labor asociation members of Pennington county that he include Thief River Falls in his itinerary of pre-election addresses, intimates that a similar request for his appearance at the annual Dairymen's meeting received from C. M. Pesek, secretary of the the dairymen's association, will make it possible to accede to both requests. Coming as it does coincident with the Progress celebration being staged by the citizens of Thief River Falls and the dedication of the new bridge spanning the Red Lake river here, it is expected that the event will bring to the city the biggest gala gathering in its history. Congressman Einar Hoidale will be the main speaker on Saturday the 20th.

The progress celebration will open on Wednesday with a giant illuminated parade, with floats, bands and drum corps. Special entertainment and dance at the auditorium will follow at which the Red River Valley Dairymen will be honor guests of the city.

The dairymen's convention will transact its business in session at the auditorium in the forenoon of Thursday, and there will be distribution of prizes, and short addresses beginning at 1:30 and continuing until the governor arrives at three o'clock. Dr. A. A. Dowell of Crookston, president of the association will preside thruout the day and the following will speak: W. E. Peterson of St. Paul, will speak on "Research in Dairy Husbandry"; and L. A. Gibson of Winnipeg, Dairy Commissioner of Manitoba. The Governor's address will start at three o'clock promptly as he is also scheduled to speak later in the day at Fergus Falls.

It is hoped that it will be possible to secure Highway Commissioner Elsberg to officiate at the dedication of the bridge, Morris Bye, chairman of the program committee stated yesterday and another outstanding speaker may be secured for this occasion also, Mr. Bye stated. The dedicatory ceremonies will take lace on Friday afternoon.

Einar Hoidale, democratic candidate for United States Senator will speak on the closing night of the celebration.

High School Students Will Observe Frances Willard Day

Rev. H. L. Sjogren will address the Lincoln high school assebly at eleven o'clock Friday morning, September. 28, which date is designated and observed as Frances Willard day by a state school law. The speakers and programs on this day are sponsored throughout the state by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE DRAWS UNPRECEDENTED NUMBER OF TEACHERS

A very interesting and instructive program was presented to the rural school teachers by Miss Mayme J. Skow of the state department of education at the institute for county teachers held on Wednesday at the court room, according t A. C. Matheson, county superintendent of schools.

The importance of temperance instruction which is now required by a state law was stressed by Mr. Matheson, and the local W. C. T. U., essay contest was explained and booklet and poster work displayed.

The rural teachers are to be highly commended on the fine spirit of cooperation and enthusiasm they displayed in planning their years work as there was almost perfect attendance in spite of the bad roads and inclement weather, Mr. Matheson stated.

Clenton Man Meets Death Under Truck

Oscar E. Peterson of Clenton, Minnesota, who has been employed in this vicinity, met a tragic death last Friday afternoon, Sept. 21, when getting off a traveling truck with intent to flag a truck bound in the opposite direction, he misstepped and fell under the wheels of the other truck. He met instant death, when his head was crushed by the wheels.

The tragedy occured 19 miles east of the city at 5:45 p. m. Mr. Peterson was born March 8, 1905, and made his home at Clenton to which the body was taken for burial.

Miss Helquist Announces Girls' Activities Project

Miss Harriet Helquist, director of the girls activities under the ERA, has announced the following schedule for the recreational project:

On Monday and Wednesday evenings there will be athletics from 7:15 to 8:15 o'clock in the Lincoln high school gymnasium for girls of junior high school age which include those in the 7th and 8th grades and the first year high school.

Playground work and handicrafts for all grades will be taken up from 4 to 6 p. m., on Mondays and Tuesdays at the Northrop school; on Wednesday and Thursday at the Washington school; and on Friday at the Knox school.

A story hour will be conducted by Miss Helquist in the auditorium of the Carnegie Public Library each Saturday from 11 to 12 a. m., for the children of the 1st, 2nd and 3rd grades, and for the 4th and 5th graders from 1:30 until 2:15. The south door entrance on First street will be used:

Gymnasium classes for tired housewives will be held on Monday mornings from 10:30 until noon.

It is Miss Helquist's ambition to stimulate an interest in a recreational room for girls, especially for the high school girls whose homes are not in the city. This room would contain recreational facilities such as ping-pong and bridge tables, etc., and would be a general rest room for girls.

COUNCIL WILL CONSIDER NEW ORDINANCE FRI.

New Zoning Ordinance Scheduled to Come Up for Consideration

Only routine business was transacted by the city council at its meeting on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Thune of the Pennington County Poultry asociation appeared before the council and requested the use of the auditorium for th annual poultry show on December 4—5—6 and 7. The request was granted.

Building permits were granted to L. S. Hess for remodeling to cost about $670; Leonard Hanson, also remodeling to cost about $200; and Justie Johnson a remodeling job to cost $100.

Olaf Winger appeared before the council and requested permission on behalf of a number of residents adjoining the block used by the city for tool sheds, to plant elm trees on the boulevard all around the block.

The city attorney was instructed to investigate and take whatever action he may deem necessary in regard to the disposition of buildings which were erected by the Land O' Lakes and Robertson Lumber company without building permits. Applications had been made in both instances but construction had gone forward as is often done without waiting for the council to take action on them. These applications were subsequently rejected on the ground that plans did not comply with the fire ordinances.

A petition was received from a group of residents of Atlantic and Horace avenues, requesting the removal of the so-called old Shirley barn on the grounds that it constitutes a fire hazard. The petition was tabled pending the disposition of a new zoning ordinance which will be given its first reading at an adjourned meeting to be held this Friday evening.

Mr. Messenger, recreational director of the ERA requested the use of the city auditorium for recreational projects during the winter months. He assured the council that his programs will be arranged so that they will not interfere with other activities. The request was granted.

Tax abatements requested by the following and recommended by the tax committee were granted: A. H. Akre, lots 4, Block 5, Highland addition from $1621 to $1200; Wm. J. Brown, personal property to $160; Albert Engen, personal property to $6 and a refund of $6.66.

The council recessed until Friday evening at which time the new zoning ordinance will be considered.

Messenger Announces Recreation Projects

At a meeting Tuesday evening, the city countil granted the recreational activities projects the use of the city auditorium on certain nights of the week, according to I. E. Messenger, district ERA recreational leader.

Mr. Messenger announces a meeting for Tuesday evening, October2, for all men interested in volleyball and basketball, on which evening leagues for both games will be organized.

There are seven people employed by the ERA on the Recreational Project in Pennington and Marshall Counties, which are combined as one district with J. S. Messenger as the district recreational leader.

Miss Harriet Helquist of this city is in charge of girl's activities, and athletics and dramatics for adults. Miss Helquist has already organized many classes in athletics, games, handicrafts, and is in the process of organizing classes in dramatics.

The director of the 4-H club work and rural community recreation in Pennington County is Miss Verna Becker, who will also work with handicraft and dramatics in the city. Miss Becker has been engaged on the 4-H club program since March, 1934.

R. Kirkconnel will direct the boys' and men's club work in Thief River Falls and the surrounding territory, also directing volleyball and archery.

In charge or the general recreational activities, athletics, games, handicrafts, etc., of Marshall county will be Erlad Johnson of Alvarado. Mrs. Harry Resendahl of Warren will direct the 4-H club work of Marshall county, having previously worked on this program under the CWA. Miss Florence Ryden also of Warren will be in charge of the women's and girls' recreational program in Warren which includes athletics, games, and handicrafts.

Recent Rainfall Relieves Water Shortage, says NRS

Information from the local ERA office reveals that the caterpillar crews employed on the Red Lake river project have ceased operation; one crew being withdrown last Wednesday, and the other on Saturday. However, the CCC boys working on the project will continue indefinitely. It is reported that the rain of the past few days has helped the water situation immensely.

Dairymen Will Sponsor Meeting of Local Women

A special meeting for the Women of the community will be held Thursday, October 18 in connection with the Red River Valley Dairymen's convention on October 17 and 18. Miss Julia Newton of St. Paul will speak on "The Home in a New Era," and Miss Retta Beebe from the Northwest School of Agriculture will discuss culinary arts, in connection with which a demonstration will be given.

Further details will be given in a latter issue of the Forum.

Employment Conditions Apparently Good Here, State NRS Head Says

The district National Reemployment office of this city was visited this Monday by Dreng Bjornaraa, State Director of the NRS, who after inspection of the files and application cards in the local county office, commented on the small number of active cards in the files as compared to other offices in the state.

Mr. Bjornaraa stated, "This may be taken to be a direct indication of general conditions in this area, as we have found that there is a direct correlation between industrial conditions and the size of the active files in our offices thruout the state."

A comparison of the files of the local office with those of the first of the year, shows a startling decrease in the number of unemployed persons seeking employment.

Statistics for the week ending January sixth, 1934, shows that there were at that time 810 active cards in the files in Thief River Falls; on Saturday September 22, 1934, there were 218, an indication that 592 persons are now employed who were unemployed nine months ago. Reports on file in the local office of the National Reemployment Service, shows that more than 80 percent of these persons were placed on permanent jobs, that is, jobs lasting for a period of more than one month. In addition to the number placed on local jobs 38 persons have been placed on jobs outside the county.

In closing, Mr. Bjornaraa urged that a special effort be made to have persons who have registered but are still-unemployed renew their registration cards so that they may be considered for early placement, and have persons who are not registered with their local Reemployment Service do so at once.

MANY VISITORS ATTENDED CLINIC HERE SATURDAY

Sixty-four disabled persons of Pennington, Marshall, and Red Lake Counties and approximately 200 visitors attended the orthopedic clinic conducted at Lincoln High school Saturday, September 22, of which Miss Eunice Lindgren, city school nurse, was in charge as general chairman.

Dr. Henry Myhercing of the Mayo clinic of Rochester, Minnesota, represented the Minnesota Public Health Association and conducted the physical examinations, assisted by Miss Marie Pfeiffer, the medical secretary of the Gillette State Hospital for crippled children. Miss Alice Joslin also of the Gillette Hospital was the clinic nurse, and renewed the acquaintances of many former patients of the Gil-

Following the program, there will be a business sesion and luncheon will be served.

It was announced that the Knox school had the highest ratio of parents and teachers at the September meeting, and will receive a subscription to the National Parent-Teachers magazine.

FLOYD B. OLSON WILL SPEAK AT DAIRYMEN MEET

Governor Olson, Einar Hoidale, and Others Will Address Festive Crowds

Definite assurance that he will be here to address the Red River Valley Dairymen's association at their convention in this city on October 18th at three o'clock p. m., was received by the Forum from Governor Floyd B. Olson on Tuesday.

The letter which was in reply to reply to requests from the farmer-labor asociation members of Pennington county that he include Thief River Falls in his itinerary of pre-election addresses, intimates that a similar request for his appearance at the annual Dairymen's meeting received from C. M. Pesek, secretary of the the dairymen's association, will make it possible to accede to both requests. Coming as it does coincident with the Progress celebration being staged by the citizens of Thief River Falls and the dedication of the new bridge spanning the Red Lake river here, it is expected that the event will bring to the city the biggest gala gathering in its history. Congressman Einar Hoidale will be the main speaker on Saturday the 20th.

The progress celebration will open on Wednesday with a giant illuminated parade, with floats, bands and drum corps. Special entertainment and dance at the auditorium will follow at which the Red River Valley Dairymen will be honor guests of the city.

The dairymen's convention will transact its business in session at the auditorium in the forenoon of Thursday, and there will be distribution of prizes and short addresses beginning at 1:30 and continuing until the governor arrives at three o'clock. Dr. A. A. Dowell of Crookston, president of the association will preside thruout the day and the following will speak: W. E. Peterson of St. Paul, will speak on "Research in Dairy Husbandry"; and L. A. Gibson of Winnipeg, Dairy Commissioner of Manitoba. The Governor's address will start at three o'clock promptly as he is also scheduled to speak later in the day at Fergus Falls.

It is hoped that it will be possible to secure Highway Commissioner Elsberg to officiate at the dedication of the bridge, Morris Bye, chairman of the program committee stated yesterday and another outstanding speaker may be secured for this occasion also, Mr. Bye stated. The dedicatory ceremonies will take lace on Friday afternoon.

Einar Hoidale, democratic candidate for United States Senator will speak on the closing night of the celebration.

High School Students Will Observe Frances Willard Day

Rev. H. L. Sjogren will address the Lincoln high school assebly at eleven o'clock Friday morning, September. 28, which date is designated and observed as Frances Willard day by a state school law. The speakers and programs on this day are sponsored throughout the state by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE DRAWS UNPRECEDENTED NUMBER OF TEACHERS

A very interesting and instructive program was presented to the rural school teachers by Miss Mayme J. Skow of the state department of education at the institute for county teachers held on Wednesday at the court room, according t A. C. Matheson, county superintendent of schools.

The importance of temperance instruction which is now required by a state law was stressed by Mr. Matheson, and the local W. C. T. U., essay contest was explained and booklet and poster work displayed.

The rural teachers are to be highly commended on the fine spirit of cooperation and enthusiasm they displayed in planning their years work as there was almost perfect attendançe in spite of the bad roads and inclement weather, Mr. Matheson stated.

Clenton Man Meets Death Under Truck

Oscar E. Peterson of Clenton, Minnesota, who has been employed in this vicinity, met a tragic death last Friday afternoon, Sept. 21, when getting off a traveling truck with intent to flag a truck bound in the opposite direction, he misstepped and fell under the wheels of the other truck. He met instant death, when his head was crushed by the wheels.

The tragedy occured 19 miles east of the city at 5:45 p. m. Mr. Peterson was born March 8, 1905, and made his home at Clenton to which the body was taken for burial.

Cash Farm Sales Hopeful Sign Says Land Bank Head

Confidence and cash are again flowing farmward. Along with wheat at $1.15, hogs above $7.00 and fat beef steers $8.00 to $9.00, the Federal Land Bank of Saint Paul reports numerous all-cash sales of farms for August, bringing to a climax the best season thus far and the best month it has had in the disposal of real estate in several years.

Several of these large cash sales in Minnesota, where in August more farms were sold than have been sold in any state of the 7th district for month was over 2 years.
The standing in cash sales for the month was:

Minnesota	60
Michigan	26
Wisconsin	17
North Dakota	14

"The cash sales are one of the most hopeful symbols of what we believe is a definite turn in the tide," says George S. Gordhamer, Vice-president and Treasurer of the Bank. "When we sell a 160-acre farm with fair buildings for $10,500 cash, that is a stride towards the days when it was an axiom of bankers that good farms were among the best investments that could be made. We have in the last few weeks made other all-cash sales including: one 160-acre farm for $4,500, another 95-acre farm for the same price, 120 acres for $7,200, an ordinary 80-acre piece for $2,300, and 174 acres in a good farming section for $12,000—these being all-cash sales completed in August."

Mr. Gordhamer said that in addition to these all-cash sales there were numerous instances lately when sums randing from $1,000 to $2,000 were paid at the time of sale by investors and farmers who were buying farms ranging in value up to $15,000 or more. The prices realized on these farms, he said, repesented the full value of the properties.

Citing the fact that the Land Bank had sold 117 farms during the month, bringing its total sales for the year thus far up to 594, he said the month's record and that of the season of 1934 are the best the Bank has made in several years. The August sales compare with 54 sold last August, and the 594 farms sold in August, and the 594 farms sold in 1934 compare with 336 sold in the first 8 months of 1933.

No Federal Subsistence Homesteads in Minnesota

Contrary to current rumors in many parts of the state, there are no federal or state projects of subsistence homesteads for placement of unemployed in Minnesota according to F. A. Wildes, Director of the Division of Lands and Minerals.

"The federal government is sponsoring such plans in several states, as an experiment, to assist in caring for thase on relief rolls or who are unemployed but to date no subsistence homesteads have been started in Minnesota," Mr. Wildes said. "The national program is under the direction of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

"A tentative site for a subsistence homestead project has been seleced at Austin in this state, but to date no definite plan of action has been approved. The Austin project will, no doubt, be designed to include part-time employees of a local packing plant and it is problematical whether or not any outside residents will be considered.

To Review Open Hunting Seasons, Safety, and Ethics

Officials of the Minnesota Department of Conservation and leaders among the state's sportsmen's organidations will issue messages of timely interest thruout the fall season. These messages will include seasonal regulations pertaining to the varous hunting periods such as open dates; daily, possession and season bag limits; counties in which shooting will be permitted and species of game birds protected.

The annual duck season opens Wednesday, October 3, at 12 o'clock noon and closes at sunset Sunday November 11, with shooting banned on Mondays and Tuesdays during this period. Taking of ringnocked pheasants, quail and ruffed grouse or native patridge will become legal in specified counties at noon Saturday, October 20, and will close in certain counties at sunset Sunday, October 28, and in the other open counties on Sunday, November 4, at sunset. The deer season opens for ten days on hursday, November 15.

Sportsmen are urged to ilsten in to these messages which are to be broad cast from station KSTP each Friday noon from 11:45 to 12:50 o'clock until the hunting seasons close.

Charles McFarlane, deputy director of the Division of Game and Fish, opened the series of broadcasts on Friday. Good sportsmanship and safe use of firearms in the field will also be stressed by speakers who are to follow on this series of broadcasts.

Ebony and Mahogany

The words ebony and mahogany correctly describe not tree but certain kinds of timber, writes G. R. Turner in the Kansas City Times. Each, in fact, is descriptive of a type of timber obtainable not from any one species of trees but from several unrelated species. Ebony, which is noted for its solidity and black color, is the heart wood of several such species and is artificially treated to create its black effect. Mahogany, likewise obtainable from several unrelated species, varies in color from a light golden yellow to a deep dark brown and depends upon elaborate polishing for its rich appearance.

Best Time to Buy Feeders is Now

The best time to purchase thin cattle for stocker and feeder purposes is in the Fall season when that class of cattle is available in largest numbers and widest selection as to quality and weight. That is the answer given by 86 out of 100 corn-belt farmers who were asked the question while on the South St. Paul market in recent weeks, according to the weekly bulletin issued by the Central Co-operative Association, livestock sales agency on that market.

Only 14 feeders favored purchasing cattle to feed later in the year or after the first of the year. Reasons given by them generally were that the market then would undoubtedly offer a big supply of half-fat, short-fed cattle forced back to market because of dwindling food supplies. Consequently they feel it will feel it will pay to wait until after the first of the year to make their purchases of cattle which can be finished on a good fattening ration within 60 to 90 days. Most of them admitted, however, that this would be more or less of a gamble.

Records of past years invariably show that the Fall of the year is the favored season in which to buy thin cattle. October and November have been the popular months. However, this year may be an exception since drouth conditions and feed shortage have hastened the marketing of western grassers, thus leaving the fall supply of stocker and feeder an uncertainty.

Purchasing of stocker and feeder cattle at the principal western markets during the last months has shown a marked increase over a year ago, reflecting the early marketing of this class of cattle as well as indicating confidence on the part of cattle feeders in the future market.

Shipment and feeder steers from four markets (South St. Paul, Chicago, Kansas City, and Omaha) during the months of July and August this year were 141, 163 head or 75 percent greater then the corresponding total last year. While numbers increased, the average weight of stocker and feeder cattle going to the country dropped to 719 lbs. compared with 738 last year.

Consistent with the general trend in stocker and feeder movement, countryward shipments of stock calves, cows and heifers also showed a substantial increase during the last two months. The combined movement of stock calves, cows and heifers from four markets during July and August this year at 68,193 head showed 5 per cent gain over the total for those months alst year.

The average price paid for stocker and feeder cattle at South St. Paul for July and August period was $3.54 per cwt., this year compared with $.37 per cwt. last year.

Milk Campaign Endorsed By Board of Health

St. Paul, September 18—When food prices go up one of the first items to suffer in the average diet as milk.

The Public Health Education of he Minnesoa State Medical Association today warns against restricting the milk ration of children and heartily endorses the campaign sponsored by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration to increase its consumption.

Healthy children need milk to drink three times a day besides the milk that is used in cooking in the opinion of the doctors. A pint of milk a day for each child is the very least that should be allowed in a properly balanced diet.

Once in a great while a child appears who has an allergic sensitivity to milk. Such a child is terribly handicapped because he must get all of the necessary calcium and other mineral salts, the vitamns and butter fats supplied in milk, from other less palatable and convenient sources, and often he dosen't get it.

Most children can drink all the milk they need. They like it too, if they do not like it, it is usually the fault of the adults in the family.

The campaign of the AAA to increase milk consumption among children is economically sound according to the medical viewpoint. But its greatest value, if it is successful, will be in he guarantee provided for better growth and health among American children.

Many of those who do not get their proper ration are not relief children points out. They are the children of foolish and indulgent parents and they eke out a miserable and nutritionally inadequate existence in the midst of plenty.

LOANS TO INDIANS

Emergency feed loans may be made to Indians by the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan office in Minneapolis, it is announced in that city. Such loans are approved by the Indian agent before being granted and checks, while made out to the Indians are sent through the agent. The Emergency Crop and Feed Loan office is now contacting agencies within its territory in Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota.

LAND BANK LOAN PAYMENTS

For the week of September 1 Minnesota led the other 3 states of the 7th Farm Credit district in loan payments for the week amounted to $84,287.

Wisconsin	19,42
Michigan	17,849

Mate Favorite Drink

Mate is the favorite drink of about 15,000,000 South Americans. It is made like any other tea, by steeping and boiling in water until the desired strength is reached.

Cattle Slaughter is a Record in August

"Cattle slaughter in the United States during the month of August hit a new record, while hog slaughter was light. Yet pork prices have dropped rather sharply recently and beef prices have advanced," says the weekly market bullletin issued by the Central Co-Operative Association of South St. Paul.

Recent declines in hog prices are felt to be a natural reaction after such an abnormal upward swing in prices during August. Also, the much publicized advance in pork prices apparently caused consumers to veer from pork and order more beef and other meats. At any rate, while pork has declined, other meats have found stronger demand.

Cattle slaughter in the United States during the past month amounted to 1,576,204 head, that figure including over a half a million drouth cattle. Even excluding the drouth cattle slaughter, August kill for the United States was among the largest on record for that month.

Hog slaughter, on the other hand, dropped to 2,641,187 head compared with 3,476,715 head in August last year. Total calf slaughter, (not including those from drouth relief areas) was about normal during August and total sheep and lamb slaughter at 1,523,328 head also was about normal for the past several years.

'U' Will Begin Its 65th Year On October 1

A decade younger than the state itself, which has just finished celebrating its seventy-fifth anniversary, the University of Minnesota will begin the sixty-fifth year of its life of service when classes reopen for the fall quarter on October 1.

As an institution of college ranking, the university first opened its doors in the fall of 1869, eigheen years after it was created by law in 1851. The intervention of the Civil War in the early sixties deferred the actual beginning of collegiate instruction during that turbulent decade.

No particular innovations are planned for the coming year, and the institution will continue to operate with due regard to the general economic situation, which has cut back its support to the figures of a deade ago, when enrollment was two-thirds of what it is today.

A considerable number of faculty members will be absent during the year, many of them on emergency government service, or semi-governmental duties, of various types. The larger number of these are from the College of Agriculture, but others have been drawn from such departments as econonmics, political esicnce, and education.

One new building, the second unit of Pioneer Hall, men's residence building, has been completed in time for the opening of the full quarter. A second, the Incoor Sports Building, will be finished by about Christmas. Both of these buildings were put up with assistance from the federal Public Works Administration, and were erected at this time because it would help give employment in the construction industries, but because they were much needed. A roof house, with offices and quarters for convalescents, has been built on top of the Students Health Service building, also with PWA assistance.

Registration and other preparatory steps will be conducted during the week of Sepember 24 to 28, with freshman registration on the first two days and the other aciviies of freshman week occupying the remaining days for members of the entering classes.

The opening football game, that with Norh Dakota State College of Fargo, will be played in Memorial Stadium on Saturday, September 29.

LAND BANK PAYS INTEREST TO BORROWERS IN ADVANCE

It may not be generally known (though some borrowers know it and are utilizing this opportunity) th the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul pays interest to its Land Bank borrowers who send in payments or more in advance. The rate is four per cent a year on the amount of the advance payment for the period of time it received prior to the date due, but no interest is allowed on fractional parts of a month or on payment for less than one installment. The Bank is receiving thousands of dollars in advance.

EMERGENCY FEED LOAN DEADLINE IS EXTENDED

It has been anounced by the Farm Credit Administration in Washingon that the date previously set, September 15, for discontinuing to receive applications for emergency loans, has been extended to December 31, in secondary drouth areas. These loans are not made through the regular loan channels of the Farm Credit Administration, such as the PCA's or Intermediate Credit Bank, but through the special emergency agencies set up for that purpose.

First Christian Community

In 1832 while two missionaries, Rev. John J. Shipherd and Philo P. Stewart were on their knees in prayer, there came to the mind of Reverend Shipherd the outline of a plan to procure a large tract of land on which to establish a Christian community. According to the plan, a Christian school was to be the center, and by a solemn covenant the people were to pledge themselves to the spread of the kingdom of God. This is what is now Oberlin college, in Ohio.

UNDER some scrub pines, the cowboy and the sheriff sat. Quietly. Companionably.

The cowboy fanned himself with his sombrero, then finally wiped his face with a bandanna whose color seemed to give the mercury fresh impetus. "Gosh, ain't it hot!"

"I'll say. Le's go swimmin'."

"Later, maybe . . . afterwards."

"Afterwards?" The sheriff seemed a bit slow on the uptake, due perhaps to the heat, perhaps to a recent surfeit of blueberry pie. The sheriff loved good things to eat, and in consequence his shining badge rode on the topmost curve of a series which made his stomach.

"Sure. Afterwards. You know after we check up on the map and decide about things."

"Oh, yeah," the sheriff knew now; and knowing, forgot about the second helping of pie, forgot even a few degrees of the sultry August heat. "Gee, yes . . . You got the map?"

"I should say so. Right here, boy," slapping a greasy pocket; then, with a careful glance up at the overhanging branches and down the railroad tracks to the far horizon, bringing from the same pocket a worn scrap of paper.

Together they pored over it, eyes and hands twitching with eagerness.

"You see the mark—kind of a dagger, like? That's where the stuff's buried. You follow this trail," a grimy forefinger showed the way, "through Devil Man's Hollow, past Skeleton Rocks, 'til you come to a pine 'thout branches, shaped like a cross. They hung a nigger there once. . . ."

A cold wind blew through the August heat. "Gee," said the sheriff, "what'd he do?"

"He was after the gold, too. That's why they hung him. But they did other things to him first." The long look which passed between them was too heavy with terror for the comfort of words. "So you can see how careful we got to be."

"S'pose they should get after us?" A sheriff's badge is evidently no guarantee as to the stoutness of heart beneath it.

"Let 'em!" The cowboy patted both pockets suggestively. "They don't call me Two-Gun Riley for nothin'!

"We'll meet here tomorrow night," he went on—"It's the dark o' the moon now—and start out. And when we come back, with the doubloons and the gold caskets an' them long strings o' pearls big as marbles . . . boy!"

"Boy!" echoed the sheriff, who saw no sense in straining after originality.

The cowboy's face became gravely calculating. "Now we're goin' to need money for this, Bill. There's things to be bought—grub an' tools and such. We'll pool what we got and then I better take charge of it. You know what happened last time, when you had the money."

The sheriff looked doubtful; but his slower wits were no match for the other's keen gray eyes. Besides, a certain crimson memory brought his cheeks almost to the boiling point. He turned his pockets inside out and put their specie yield into the cowboy's hand.

"Okay . . . And it's settled that when we get to Spaniards' Rest, we pick our spots, and the one that finds the chest first, keeps it? The other one has to help him bring it back, but he can't claim nothin'!"

"That's what we said."

"Then there's jus' one more thing, Bill."

"What is it?" asked Bill, in a carefully toneless voice which promised nothing.

"Why, about Milly. You know that the guy who gets the gold oughtta get the girl. It'd be just like Milly to stick by the man that loses—she's that way. But you and me know that wimmin need clothes and jewels 'n' things. So I think we ought to protect Milly from herself; fix it up so the one who finds the treasure gets Milly, and the other one fades outta the picture."

"Mmm," said the sheriff, "but suppose I get it? Would you be willin' to clear out and leave me Milly?"

"Sure!" the other assured him, with a large, free gesture which indicated how far he was prepared to go. "You bet I will. Why, Bill, I won't never see Milly again, if you get the treasure."

But the stress which he put on the last words overreached itself. The sheriff was pricked to suspicion.

"Yeah," he sneered, "if I get the treasure. And prob'ly you got it fixed some way so there's no chance o' my gettin' it. I know you, Jim Riley. You're too darned smart. I ain't gonna promise nothin'."

"All right," said the cowboy, "all right for you, Billy Thomas. The expedition's off. I was lettin' you in on this because you was my pal—but you ain't any more. I'll just go alone and have all the treasure for myself."

In a single decisive move the cowboy returned the map to his pocket and fastened the flap. Then he took a sucker from another pocket and applied his tongue to its gummy brown surface.

The sheriff began to cry. "I'm sick of this game," he wailed, "I want my penny back and my head aches and—"

"Aw, be your age," the other sneered at him. "Ain't you most nine? Well, here's your penny then, crybaby! Now scram!"

Clutching his penny, the sheriff scrammed. . . . Should you have stayed to shoot it out with Two-Gun Riley, almost eleven and known as a desperate hombre?

Indians Had Dice Games

The Ohio Indians played a game of dice which they invented themselves. Their dice were made of pits of wild plums, oval-shaped and smooth, black on one side and white or yellow on the other. They put the dice in a small wooden bowl, which they shook vigorously, as they called for the color they wanted to turn up. They then threw the dice to the ground and counted the colors.

Spar Varnish

Spar varnish, used to protect such surfaces as table tops from spilled liquids, takes its name from the original purpose for which it was made: to protect masts and spars of ships from the effects of moisture and salt air. The name "spar varnish" is applied to all long-oil varnishes which are tough, elastic and resistant to moisture.

HOW 'A GREAT FINANCIAL EMPIRE' WAS BUILT

"I am going to name that man, and prove the extent of his indebtedness which was waived to carry out thier purposes before we get through. That was stockholders' money. I claim, that this evidence will show that this company was managed with reckless disregard to the rights of investors, and that its true purpose was the personal aggrandizement of these few promotors, in the management, who had appointed the committee to find out, and devise means and ways to retain their control. I say that all these things prove conclusively the real reason for the things they have done in connection with stock seals. This wasn't a corporation for the benefit of stockholders, I don't claim that, this was cooperation where the chairman of the board could charge off his own slow note and continue to draw $45,000 a year notwithstanding, and they could walk out and get a U. S. official to aid their plans and go easy on the money he owed, so as to influence senators and other—I say this is most relevant to show whether this company was managed for the benefit of stockholders, and whether its true purpose in conection with the sale of its stock, and the manipulation on the market, was what the public thought it was, and what these men who were attempting to retain control and voting to charge their notes off, led the public to believe it was. I will go further and say this: I will produce in here in this written testimony the proof to show just what I have said was that purpose, namely: To get all of these, the financial institutions controlling the liquid wealth of this state under their domination and control regardless of the rights of the 11 or 12 thousand people who were taken in particularly to the effect legislation. I have a right to show that the legislation was which they were intending to carry out, and that it was the purpose behind the customer ownership campaign. It is a very vital part of this examination."

Dayton Moves to Clinch Control

To prove his contention that the whole scheme and plan, in connection with the stock sale by Northwest Bancorporation, was to enable these few people, who had seized control through their investment of $1,000 at the inception of this company to gain control of the liquid wealth and banking facilities of this state of Minnesota, Mr. Watson then introduced the following very relevant testimony: The minute book of the board of directors of Northwest Bancorporation, which had been marked Exhibit 15, on page 96, was introduced and showed a meeting of the board of directors held on June 28, 1929, less than six months after the promoters had voted themselves into office on the strength of their 20 shares of stock, at this meeting George Dayton, one of the directors moved: "That a committee of five be appointed by the president E. W. Decker to consider the advisability and means of insuring the retention of the management control of the corporation, such committee to report back to the executive committee or board of directors." E. W. Backus seconded the motion, whereupon the vote being taken, the same was unanimously carried. Mr. Thomson admitted the record was correct and that such a motion was made and such a committee appointed.

"Q. That action was officially taken?

"A. The record is just as you state."

The evidence, therefore, up to this point, shows: That E. W. Decker, Theodore Wold, W. A. Durst, H. D. Thrall, D. R. West, R. E. MacGregor, and the other parties named, had entrenched themselves in positions of power in the corporation; that in order to retain this control they appointed a committee to devise the ways and means by which they could do so.

The plan of the promoters as outlined by the state, seems to have been:

1. To organize the corporation and before any stockholders were taken in other than themselves, to obtain the domination of its affairs through the investment of their original $1,000.

2. To devise means to retain this control after the corporation had obtained control of the original four banks.

3. To have this corporation then get control through the northwestern territory and especially in Minnesota, of "key banks in key communities."

4. In order to obtain the control of "key banks in key communities" to use stock of the Northwest Bancorporation in which these individuals were in practical control, in lieu of money.

5. By manipulation of the market to make stock certificates appear to be of greater value than cash, because of the appearance of speculative possibilities.

6. To accumulate a large number of stockholders, "particularly for the influence they might have on future legislation."

7. After obtaining that large number of stockholders who might influence legislation, to then obtain authority to establish branch banks throughout the key communties in which the key banks were located.

With this accomplished, the Northwest Bancorporation would be in practical control of the banking resources in the territory and the promoters would be in control of the corporation.

John Bull's Pillow Is Full of Duck Feathers

Three thousand tons of duck feathers are required every year to fill Britain's pillows. They come from China; no other land could supply this quantity of down.

Whether the fondness of the Chinese for duck led to the breeding of the trillions of birds, or it was the ease with which ducks flourish in the rice swamps, remains a conundrum, but duck down with its small quills is the ideal filling for pillows.

Chinese collect their feathers in so primitive a manner that imported bales contain almost a third part of sand. When this has been removed, the feathers are chemically purified, then graded into large, coarse feathers, known as quills and used for manure, feathers of ordinary size, and, finally, the softest down. Small supplies also arrive from the continent. Elderdown costs about 42s. per pound, and its use is largely a matter of sentiment, because the ordinary white down of commerce can scarcely be improved upon for making pillows and cushions.

To Discuss Minnesota's National Forest Future

Status of Minesota's two national forests, the Superior and the Chippewa, with reference to future work of the Civilian Conservation Corps will be discussed in Duluth September 27-29, according to E. V. Willard, Commissioner of Conservation. Forest supervisors, rangers and camp superintendents from these two national forests and the Chequamegon of Wisconsin will meet.

"Correlation of fish and game management and recreational phases of forestry endeavor will be included in the comprehensive program," Mr. Willard said.

Aspen trees, once neglected by foresters and lumbermen are on the upward trend in the Lake States region, says the United States forest service. While aspens or "popple" as they are often collectively termed, are considered as rather soft, weak members of the forest family, they now are recognized as Nature's first gesture to quickly restock after a fire, and when the stand is not too dense, the popples become the nursery crop for growths of white and Norway pine.

Before the northwoods was cut and burned, aspens were inconspicuous, and all of the enormous area of aspens in the Lake states have followed the fires. In Michigan there are 5,000,000 acres alone of popple. While of prime value for game birds and deer, aspens do have commercial use as well. The wood is odorless and serves best for food containers, enters in match-making and is used for excelsior, while the better grades may be used for interior finishing of homes.

The seeds of the aspens are so light that it take two or three million to make a pound. Consequently, they are carried long distances by the wind, and germinate almost immediately if they fall on moist ground. Aspens are rapid-growing and short-lived. Few reach the age of one hundred years.

London Minister Finds Hymns Sung Blindly

I have often wondered, writes Very Rev. Dr. C. A. Allngton, dean of Durham, in the London Daily Telegraph, whether it is conservatism or sheer apathy which causes religious people to acquiesce so meekly in the curious words which are put into their mouths in church.

I am not thinking of hymns, for they are certainly improving, but of some of the Psalms which are occasionally quite meaningless. (Nor should it be forgotten that the semicolon after the sixth verse of the Benedictus causes us to demonstrate how little we think what we are singing.)

The prayer book version of the Psalms is a wonderful effort of genius, and it is difficult to be grateful enough to Coverdale for writing it, or to those who preferred it to the later version; but Coverdale was not infallible and his task was at times beyond him.

I will take only two instances from one of the best known Psalms, the sixty-eighth—"Let God arise"—and will first ask my readers what meanings they conceive to attach to the words, "Though ye have lien among the pots yet shall ye be as the wing of a dove"?

The verse is a reproach addressed to the Israelites who prefer peace to honor—"Will ye lie between the sheepfolds?"—and compares, apparently, their slothful ease with that of the dove, who basks in the sunshine, content with her own loveliness.

The other verse is that which catches the attention of every schoolboy—about "the company of the spearman and the multitude of the mighty, scattered abroad among the beasts of the people." Poor Coverdale must have frankly confessed that he was out of his depth.

Natural Ventilation

The most perfect ventilation system on earth is a natural phenomenon. Throughout th four seasons the temperature in the great Carlsbad, New Mexico, caverns does not vary by the fraction of a degree, and the air is equally fresh and dry in every section of the caves. How the air is fed into the cave has yet to be explained. The caverns never have been explored to their limits, and the location of the intake is still a mystery.

WHAT, NO SCHOOL BOOKS?

A recent editorial in the St. Paul Daily News affects us strangely. It appears from the editorial in question that there are thousands of children in school in St. Paul unable to procure their textbooks. The number has tripled over a year ago the News says. "The situation is nothing short of a disgrace, and ways and means should be found immediately to remedy the situation," they assert. The St. Paul department of education is without the necessary funds to supply the need the News tells us.

Perhaps some of you readers think that the News is inconsistent in wanting the need for school books taken care of now, because they had such paroxysms of horror when the farmer-labor platform declared for the printing of textbooks by the state to be distributed to the children without cost. However, such is not the case. We are sure the News would be quite well satisfied to have free textbooks distributed to the children providing someone could be allowed to make a profit out of the transaction somewhere. If the Farmer-Labor association had stated in its platform that the state shall purchase textbooks from the American Book company and distribute them free to the children the News would have given its consent with pious unction.

There is dire need of textbooks in St. Paul, and the News would favor a public subscription; a tax levy; or any other method of supplying the need providing a plute or other could garner a rakeoff in the deal. But for the state to publish them and distribute them—ah! that would be socialism, and that isn't good for us.

THE RIGHT TO STRIKE.

Speaking of strikes, Kay Jackson in his booklet "Let's Have More Action" says:

What about the present general strike, called in 1929 by capitalists? (Not by "capital," as certain people would have us believe, but by CAPITALISTS!)

Imagine, if you can, laborers being permitted to close schools and hospitals, to withhold pay from teachers and other semi-public employees, to forcibly keep twelve to fifteen million able and willing workers tr mping the streets for five long years in a vain search for work But this strike of capitalists has done all of that ,and is doing it today! Picture, if you can, laborers arbitrarily keeping production of factory and farm down to a mere fraction of their capacity, year after year, throughout a period of nation-wide poverty! This strike of capitalists has done that, and is doing it today! Conceive ,if you can, laborers holding out until the government or society guaranteed them a "fair return" upon their labor, though by thus holding out they bankrupted tens of thousands of farmers and small business men and threatened the solvency of scores of cities and states—of the Federal government itself! Capitalists are still holding out for a "fair return" upon their capital, while failures and bankruptcies keep on multiplying. Yau ask for proof? If the government could guarantee these striking capitalists just any profit at all, their strike would be broken within ten days and the United States would be on the highboard to complete recovery within a month-

It seems that his point is well taken. Workingmen are criticized severely for picketing, and shot, clubbed and mayhemmed for attempting to enforce their strike, and the Farmers' Holiday association has been criticized, clubbed and beaten because they attempted to keep farm produce off the market and for stopping evictions and forclosures, but their critics are never heard to criticize the capitalists for their strike, nor do they join "Vigilante" groups to force them to allow their money to go to work without "a fair return."

It seems that we have singular lapses of memory—would the Times kindly tell us when R. W. Hitchcock of Hibbing was a state senator as they stated last week?

ADMINISTRATION HAS SPENT LESS
Renville County Journal

There are still a few country weeklies and a handful of would-be politicians in Minnesota that have the audacity to say that the present state administration is extravagant and that they are spending more tax money than any other previous administration. They blame the Farmer-Labobr administration for an increase in the tax levy on real property, but they fail to state that Minnesota taxes have been reduced $7,306,647 in the past five years, or during the time Governor Olson has held office.

We must admit that the tax rate on property is higher this year than it was last year or five years ago, but there is a reason. Decreased revenue from taxes other than on property, has made it necessary to increase the property tax levy as the legislature has not provided any other way for the state to meet its obligations. The revenue from the other state taxes has been less each year on account of the depression, and the loss has been added to the tax burden of the property owner.

This arrangement of applying the added burden to the property owner is not just. While big business gets a cut in their taxes by way of decreased earnings, the farmer, homeowner and small business man, who is also hit by the depression, is given an increase in his tax levy. But that is the situation. With a legislature that is not Farmer-Labor, the fight to shift the burden to the large financial interests has been in vain. Important changes in the tax laws of the state will be made along these lines if the next legislature is Farmer-Labor. In the past, there has never been a Farmer-Labor majority in either house and it is the legislature that makes the laws.

But, remember this, that in spite of the fact that the state property levies have gone up, for which the administration is not responsible, the cost of state government has been decreased over seven million dollars. Figures to verify this may be found in the bi-annual report of the state auditor.

BOOSTING AND BUSTING
(American Guardian)

The difference between the Square Deal of Roosevelt the First and the New Deal of Roosevelt the Second is that the former tried to save Capitalism by busting monopoly and failed, while the second is trying to save it by boosting monopoly—and won't.

[illegible] of the United States [illegible] which by the way was a strong [illegible] national administration is one of the defendants in charges of wholesale frauds and embezzlement in connection with activities of the now defunct federal farm board. Out of the $5,000,000,000 revolving fund of the agricultural marketing act which was supposed to help the farmers, it is charged that $451,814,000 was misappropriated.

How in heck did they come to overlook the small balance? Concealing profits of only $451,814,000 on which a tax of $112,952,500 is now due is also incorporated in the charges. That 113 million dollars had to be collected from the honest taxpayers in our fair country. This is only a sample of what your former administration stood for, and they now stand ready to spend these millions to defeat our present state and national administration, and thereby again secure that control that would enable them to hi-jack the honest taxpayers' money out of our state and national treasuries.

WHY DO THEY REMAIN
(Minneapolis Labor Review

Why are those reactionary Republicans, Joseph Chapman, John W. Barton and C. T. Jaffray kept in high salaried positions under a new deal Democratic administration?

This is a question for Congressman Hoidale.

How can he get out and look Democrats in the eyes and ask them to vote for him when he keeps these reactionaries who are hostile to the workers and organized labor and who are out and out Republicans on the job?

Washington is going to hear some more about this trio of tyros and to keep hearing until they are ousted and more progressive and fair minded persons appointed in their places. Washington is going to hear about it and something is going to be done about it we imagine despite all that Hoidale the Democrat can do to protect these Republican friends of his.

THE PUBLIC INTEREST
(St. Paul Daily News)

A test of the public right to dam a river as against the alleged interests of a private power company is soon to be made in the courts.

Suit has been started by the Prudential Light & Power Co. to restrain the state conservation commission from proceeding with plans to dam or otherwise change things on the Otter Tail river in order to conserve water for that section of the state..

The full facts, no doubt, will be brought out in court in due time. But if it appears that the public improvements are soundly planned and likely to attain their purpose, the question ought to be easy to decide.

One reason we are in the present mess is that we have permitted private interests to run riot with natural resources.

IT WAS THE REPUBLICAN PARTY THAT PLUNGED THE STATE INTO HEAVY DEBT
(Madison Independent)

The Farmer-Labor party is being made the victim of an unfair criticism in the matter of the expense of the state government, and most people are too anxious to believe everything they read. We are hearing so much about the $119,024,119 the state owes and we are going to hear a lot more about it before the campaign is over. Thirty-six millions of that amount is in highway bonds and loans from the state revenue fund under the reign of Charley Babcock, and sixty-six millions are in the rural credits department, a child of the republican administration, designed for the purpose of permitting the bankers to unload a lot of farm land at boom prices. That accounts for a greater part of the debt, enough to make quite a different view in the mind of a far-minded man. It is easy to juggle figures to make the other fellow look like a thief or a spendthrift, but it is easy to juggle them back again. The greater part of the state's debt was unloaded on to the governor when he assumed office four years ago. We have that debt to pay, so let's pay it but if you want to cry about it, why not cry to the people who put you in the hole.

BLOOD MONEY
(Pope County Tribune)

An investigation is going on in Washington D. C. that will be far reaching in information that is being uncovered. This investigation, under the chairmanship of Senator Nye of North Dakota, is delving into the activities of the munition makers who know no boundary in war or peace.

Information has come to light that in one year the Du Pont Co. of Delaware, manufacturers of powder, chemicals and othe munitions, did a business of $1,245,000,000. The stockholders received a hundred per cent dividend on the stock for this year. Their net profit increased almost 1000 per cent. The Du Pont Co. still protested against paying a tax of $13,157,000 to the government. This is only a record of one company.

The investigation at Washington shows that the munition makers the world over have been instrumental in sowing the seeds of war and that they are busy at the same bloody mission today. These people who manufacture the arms that nations use in warfare do not care how much misery and suffering war brings so long as they can make money for themselves. These investigators in Washington have brought out the facts that muniion makers in England sold arms to Germany and the same was true with munition makers in Germany selling arms to England. If profits can be taken out of war, wars will cease, because it has been proven that wars have been brought on by propaganda instigated by the munition makers of the world.

OUR MILLIONAIRE CROP
(St. Paul Daily News)

It is something of a shock to learn that there are in Minnesota today some 293 millionaires and 409 citizens possessing $500,000 or more.

Yet that is the estimate of a financial organization in New York which makes it a business of keeping track of such matters.

No doubt the report will be challenged by those suspected of being in that class. Certainly after all the moaning which has been heard since 1929, one would hardly expect to find more than, say, half a dozen millionaires still at large.

Publication at this time of such "evidence" of wealth remaining intact after the ravages of the depression will, no doubt, be deplored by its possessors. It may well encourage further "unsound" economic doctrines of the kind which are being increasingly assailed by Liberty leagues and other organizations.

But the existence of this wealth certainly proves that this state is yet a long way from being a part of the great northwest desert as recently alleged by an eastern magazine.

by Senator Henry G. Teigan

Old party groups have evidently become resigned to the reelection of Floyd B. Olson for governor. There is little doubt to, that they have given up hope of electing any of the state officials. What they are now setting out to do is to secure control, if possible, of one or both houses of the legislature.

Farmer-Laborites are not so much concerned over the outcome in the House. They have a feeling that they will have comparatively little difficulty in electing a majority of Farmer-Laborites and liberals to the lower boyd. They are however, it must be admitted, not so sanguine as to victory in the Senate. While theold party margin in the 1933 session was not large, it was sufficient to obstruct the Governor's program in many ways and to hold the lines for Big Business in general.

Seven Senators Get Zero

It is well that the voters of the state should know something of the record of their senators. They can better judge their qualifications and their eligibility for reelection when they know how they have performed in the past.

Of the old Senators who are seeking reelection, seven according to the record published in the Farmer-Labor Leader some time ago, received zero marks. These senators are:

Elmer E. Adams of Otter Tail, Milton C. Lightner of Ramsey, Claude McKenzie of Sibley, D. D. Murphy of Faribault, A. J. Rockne of Goodhue, William L. Roepke of Rice and E. D. Smith of Pope.

As stated above, these seven senators are candidates for reelection. It is only reasonable to conclude that if reelected they will continue to perform in the 1935 sesssion as they have performed during the past two sessions.

Others Bat Near Zero

Then there is another group of senators whose records are quite on a par with those who received the zero rating. They and their percentage rating are as follows:

C. E. Adams, St. Louis, 13%; Wm. B. Anderson, Hennepin, 13%; H. H. Bonniwell, McLeod, 25%; Roy Crowley, Watonwan, 25%; Blake Fisk, Wabasha, 15%; H. C. Hanson, Carlton, 15%; H. A. Larson, Fillmore, 15%; Grovernor D. McCubrey, Clay, 25%; Robert G. Marshall, Hennepin, 23%; Chas. N. Orr, Ramsey, 23%; Geo. H. Sullivan, Washington, 20%; J. V. Weber, Murray, 20%; and Walter P. Wolfe, Hennepin, 23%.

The workers in the Farmer-Labor movement who are desirous of aiding the party in electing a Farmer-Labor Legislature would do well to familiarize themselves with the record and program of the senators and representatives who are now candidates for reelection. The administration is highly desirous of electing a progressive legislature with as high a percentage of Farmer-Laborites as it is possible to elect.

EDUCATION GAINS WITHIN USSR PERMIT MORE SELF RULE AND FEWER DEGREES
By Walter Duranty
In New York Times

MOSCOW.—It is hard to determine whether the new spirit in the Soviet Union is a spontaneous growth from the improved position at home and abroad or whether it represents a fundamental change of policy. The truth probably lies midway between the theses.

As in the case of literature, the growth of the new spirit is encouraged by a modification of policy, and this modification is to some degree inpired by the growth of the new spirit.

Better Life Has Been Earned

During the past five years of struggle the Soviet pepole have had little entertainment and they have been somewhat short of food. That was the price they paid for rapid industrialization and the far more sweeping and more fundamental reform of their agriculture in the change from individualist to collective farming.

So now it may be reported that here is a double process going on. The nation has earned its bread and circuses and wants them, and the leaders want the nation to have them.

It seems that this process began at the Communist party congress in January of last year, which probably was the most important in the exciting and tumultous history of the Soviet State—the most important, that is, if one believes, as the writer believes, that agrarian reform was the biggest thing in the hisory of the Bolshevist revolution.

Stalin Diagnosed Trouble

Last year's congress met at the moment when the struggle was at its peak. The nation's nerves were strained to the verge of breaking. During the previous three month there had been talk of a "new New Economic Policy" and concessions to peasant obstinancy, wihch 12 years before had defeated even Lenin.

But when the congress met, M. Stalin showed himself a true leader of men. Instead of weakening about the peasants, he surveyed the facts of the case with clarity and realism worthy of Lenin and decided that what was wrong was not the collective farm system as such bbut the way the collective system was being run—that is, bad management or lack of management.

Political Sections Introduced

To meet this defect there were instituted political sections of tr stations as guiding and directive agencies for the collective farms. The shortage of consumers goods was countered by the promise—now being fullfiled—that the second Five-year Plan would produce them.

Simultaneously there were introduced two new "control commissions," as they are called. And here was the real birth of the new era of the USSR.

From Discipline to Understanding

The tractor political sections—a few weeks later paralleled by railroad political sections—and the new control commissions approached the problem of training, educating and discipling the backward Russi masses—which is the fundamental problem that the Bolsheviki have faced from the outset—in a new and different way. Henceforth it was no longer a matter of order from above but guidance side by side.

It is necessary to visualize the Russian people as an unruly child who is sent to school—a child who is strong and passionate, not stupid, but ignorant, reckless and resentful of authority.

At first he rebels, but then he gradually begins to realize that the discipline and training to which he is being subjected has a purpose and value There comes a period when he not only obeys orders willingly but begins to understand why they are given to him.

Rise In Intelligence Seen

And there and then his teachers know that orders as such are no longer imperative, and aid, advise and guidance can now be introduced. In short, this child is growing up.

And that is what is happening to the Russian people. The cardinal ture of the political sections of the collective farms and the railroads and of the new control commissions is that they help and advise. They teach to the masses to do things for themselves.

This process of what one now may venture to call "comradely instru tion" has stood since January of last year in the centre of the party line and is being carried on thruout the Communist party organizations. In Moscow the Communist groups now include upward of 40% of the population, from adult party members to Young Pioneers.

This phrase of the party line finds its most successful expansion in the Red Army.

SMUGGLERS ARE BUSY WITH ALCOHOL

Heavy smuggling of alcohol in July is reported by the U. S. Treasury Department, which express the opinion that bootleggers are purchasing alcohol minus the import tax and blending it with a small amount of whiskey. This theory is borne out, say the officials, by the fact that the seizures of liquor reported by the Customs Bureau during the last two months have been greater in amount than the totals seized during the entire years of 1931 and 1932, although slightly under the alcohol figure for the fiscal year of 1933.

It is admitted the bootleg liquor business is "still a lucrative profession". Seizures of beer have fallen off in recent years, according to the Treasury Department's statement.

VIEWS and REVIEWS
by
Ben C. Hagglund

Being a writer consists in dressing up the other men's thoughts to make them look like your own. The fact is these's nothing new under the Sun, and Shakespere, who said that, stole all his ideas. His pilfered ideas shine than they did under the tutelage of their originators.

* * * *

In the realm of economic writing, this rule still holds good. Dozens of economic Jeremiahs and John-the-Baptists have sprouted, and died—and been forgotten. The human being has a very short memory which all aids the writer immensely, for when he steals an idea from an obscure source, he need not cover his tracks so thoroughly. The pages of Karl Marx and Henry George team with quotation, and we do not know how many sentences were reproduced without the source being given.

Anyway, the world knows Marx and George as two great economists—what does it matter if they got their ideas from others? Those others got them from someone else again. Max Mullur, the famous linguist, says that Sanscrit (the oldest known language) contains all the basic concepts that now exist, which only means that there's nothing new under the sun.

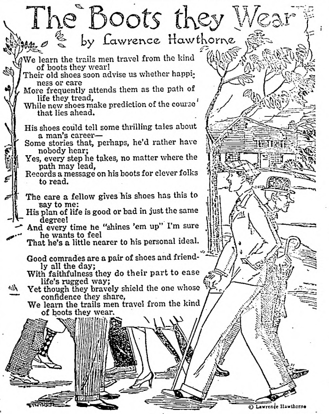
* * * *

The fact is, men have dreamed and written of freedom and Utopia since earliest history. The Utopia myth is a growth, which has been added to in every age. Nicolai Lenin, leader of the Russian proletariat, dreamed of Anarchism (not Communism, as a great many believe) where perfect peace prevailed, governmental barriers were down, and there was only one country—the World. The first step toward that goal, as he saw it, was revolution and the dictatorship of the proletariat. Lenin drew heavily on Karl Marx for his ideas; and Karl Marx is indebted to Jean Jacques Rousseau, Friedrick Nietzsche, and others.

In this country a score or more of political factions claim to have the Big Idea; but they can all be traced back to something else. It is possible, however, that the United Staees may evolve some distinctly American form of Utopia, based on the Utopias of other countries. Whatever we will get here, we will deserve.

An Early Water Clock

In 807 A. D. Haroun al Raschid, king of Persia, presented to Charlemagne what was perhaps the masterpiece of water clocks. Made of gold and bronze, the hours were represented in this clepsydra by twelve small doors, each of which opened at the appropriate hour. With the opening of the doors out rolled small balls which fell on a brass drum beneath. The eye could tell the time by the number of doors opened, while the ear could listen to the number of falling balls.



The Boots they Wear
by Lawrence Hawthorne

We learn the trails men travel from the kind of boots they wear!
Their old shoes soon advise us whether happiness or care
More frequently attends them as the path of life they tread,
While new shoes make prediction of the course that lies ahead.

His shoes could tell some thrilling tales about a man's career—
Some stories that, perhaps, he'd rather have nobody hear;
Yes, every step he takes, no matter where the path may lead,
Records a message on his boots for clever folks to read.

The care a fellow gives his shoes has this to say to me:
His plan of life is good or bad in just the same degree!
And every time he "shines 'em up" I'm sure he wants to feel
That he's a little nearer to his personal ideal.

Good comrades are a pair of shoes and friendly all the day;
With faithfulness they do their part to ease life's rugged way;
Yet though they bravely shield the one whose confidence they share,
We learn the trails men travel from the kind of boots they wear.

WHAT, NO SCHOOL BOOKS?

A recent editorial in the St. Paul Daily News affects us strangely. It appears from the editorial in question that there are thousands of children in school in St. Paul unable to procure their textbooks. The number has tripled over a year ago the News says. "The situation is nothing short of a disgrace, and ways and means should be found immediately to remedy the situation," they assert. The St. Paul department of education is without the necessary funds to supply the need the News tells us.

Perhaps some of you readers think that the News is inconsistent in wanting the need for school books taken care of now, because they had such paroxysms of horror when the farmer-labor platform declared for the printing of textbooks by the state to be distributed to the children without cost. However, such is not the case. We are sure the News would be quite well satisfied to have free textbooks distributed to the children providing someone could be allowed to make a profit out of the transaction somewhere. If the Farmer-Labor association had stated in its platform that the state shall purchase textbooks from the American Book company and distribute them free to the children the News would have given its consent with pious unction.

There is dire need of textbooks in St. Paul, and the News would favor a public subscription; a tax levy; or any other method of supplying the need providing a plute or other could garner a rakeoff in the deal. But for the state to publish them and distribute them—ah! that would be socialism, and that isn't good for us.

THE RIGHT TO STRIKE.

Speaking of strikes, Kay Jackson in his booklet "Let's Have More Action" says:

What about the present general strike, called in 1929 by capitalists? (Not by "capital," as certain people would have us believe, but by CAPITALISTS!)

Imagine, if you can, laborers being permitted to close schools and hospitals, to withhold pay from teachers and other semi-public employees, to forcibly keep twelve to fifteen million able and willing workers tr mping the streets for five long years in a vain search for work But this strike of capitalists has done all of that ,and is doing it today! Picture, if you can, laborers arbitrarily keeping production of factory and farm down to a mere fraction of their capacity, year after year, throughout a period of nation-wide poverty! This strike of capitalists has done that, and is doing it today! Conceive ,if you can, laborers holding out until the government or society guaranteed them a "fair return" upon their labor, though by thus holding out they bankrupted tens of thousands of farmers and small business men and threatened the solvency of scores of cities and states—of the Federal government itself! Capitalists are still holding out for a "fair return" upon their capital, while failures and bankruptcies keep on multiplying. Yau ask for proof? If the government could guarantee these striking capitalists just any profit at all, their strike would be broken within ten days and the United States would be on the highboard to complete recovery within a month-

It seems that his point is well taken. Workingmen are criticized severely for picketing, and shot, clubbed and mayhemmed for attempting to enforce their strike, and the Farmers' Holiday association has been criticized, clubbed and beaten because they attempted to keep farm produce off the market and for stopping evictions and forclosures, but their critics are never heard to criticize the capitalists for their strike, nor do they join "Vigilante" groups to force them to allow their money to go to work without "a fair return."

It seems that we have singular lapses of memory—would the Times kindly tell us when R. W. Hitchcock of Hibbing was a state senator as they stated last week?

ADMINISTRATION HAS SFENT LESS
Renville County Journal

There are still a few country weeklies and a handful of would-be politicians in Minnesota that have the audacity to say that the present state administration is extravagant and that they are spending more tax money than any other previous administration. They blame the Farmer-Labobr administration for an increase in the tax levy on real property, but they fail to state that Minnesota taxes have been reduced $7,306,647 in the past five years, or during the time Governor Olson has held office.

We must admit that the tax rate on property is higher this year than it was last year or five years ago, but there is a reason. Decreased revenue from taxes other than on property, has made it necessary to increase the property tax levy as the legislature has not provided any other way for the state to meet its obligations. The revenue from the other state taxes has been less each year on account of the depression, and the loss has been added to the tax burden of the property owner.

This arrangement of applying the added burden to the property owner is not just. While big business gets a cut in their taxes by way of decreased earnings, the farmer, homeowner and small business man, who is also hit by the depression, is given an increase in his tax levy. But that is the situation. With a legislature that is not Farmer-Labor, the fight to shift the burden to the large financial interests has been in vain. Important changes in the tax laws of the state will be made along these lines if the next legislature is Farmer-Labor. In the past, there has never been a Farmer-Labor majority in either house and it is the legislature that makes the laws.

But, remember this, that in spite of the fact that the state property levies have gone up, for which the administration is not responsible, the cost of state government has been decreased over seven million dollars. Figures to verify this may be found in the bi-annual report of the state auditor.

BOOSTING AND BUSTING
(American Guardian)

The difference between the Square Deal of Roosevelt the First and the New Deal of Roosevelt the Second is that the former tried to save Capitalism by busting monopoly and failed, while the second is trying to save it by boosting monopoly—and won't.

[illegible] Barr[illegible] President of the United States [illegible]hamb[illegible] of [illegible]omme[illegible], which by the way was a strong [illegible] of our [illegible] national administration is one of the defendants in charges of wholesale frauds and embezzlement in connection with activities of the now defunct federal farm board. Out of the $5,000,000,000 revolving fund of the agricultural marketing act which was supposed to help the farmers, it is charged that $451,814,000 was misappropriated.

How in heck did they come to overlook the small balance? Concealing profits of only $451,814,000 on which a tax of $112,952,500 is now due is also incorporated in the charges. That 113 million dollars had to be collected from the honest taxpayers in our fair country. This is only a sample of what your former administration stood for, and they now stand ready to spend these millions to defeat our present state and national administration, and thereby again secure that control that would enable them to hi-jack the honest taxpayers' money out of our state and national treasuries.

WHY DO THEY REMAIN
(Minneapolis Labor Review

Why are those reactionary Republicans Joseph Chapman, John W. Barton and C. T. Jaffray kept in high salaried positions under a new deal Democratic administration?

This is a question for Congressman Hoidale.

How can he get out and look Democrats in the eyes and ask them to vote for him when he keeps these reactionaries who are hostile to the workers and organized labor and who are out and out Republicans on the job?

Washington is going to hear some more about this trio of tyros and to keep hearing until they are ousted and more progressive and fair minded persons appointed in their places. Washington is going to hear about it and something is going to be done about it we imagine despite all that Hoidale the Democrat can do to protect these Republican friends of his.

THE PUBLIC INTEREST
(St. Paul Daily News)

A test of the public right to dam a river as against the alleged interests of a private power company is soon to be made in the courts.

Suit has been started by the Prudential Light & Power Co. to restrain the state conservation commission from proceeding with plans to dam or otherwise change things on the Otter Tail river in order to conserve water for that section of the state..

The full facts, no doubt, will be brought out in court in due time. But if it appears that the public improvements are soundly planned and likely to attain their purpose, the question ought to be easy to decide.

And there and then his teachers know that orders as such are no longer imperative, and aid, advise and guidance can now be introduced. In short, this child is growing up.

And that is what is happening to the Russian people. The cardinal ture of the political sections of the collective farms and the railroads and of the new control commissions is that they help and advise. They teach to the masses to do things for themselves.

This process of what one now may venture to call "comradely instru tion" has stood since January of last year in the centre of the party line and is being carried on thruout the Communist party organizations. In Moscow the Communist groups now include upward of 40% of the population, from adult party members to Young Pioneers.

This phrase of the party line finds its most successful expansion in the Red Army.

The FIRESIDE PHILOSOPHER
By ALFRED BIGGS

When in doubt ask your conscience.

If you're honest there is no need to mention it.

Don't clutter your mind with useless information.

Try to make your interest in life grow with your years.

You can't measure education by its earning capacity.

Anticipate the stupidity of others and make provision for it.

It is easier to disarm opponents with the truth than with deceit.

Santa Barbara

There is in the state of Chihuahua a deserted village that was once the capital of northern Mexico, embracing all the territory that is now Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and parts of Utah and Colorado. Its name is Santa Barbara.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

SMUGGLERS ARE BUSY WITH ALCOHOL

Heavy smuggling of alcohol in July is reported by the U. S. Treasury Department, which express the opinion that bootleggers are purchasing alcohol minus the import tax and blending it with a small amount of whiskey. This theory is borne out, say the officials, by the fact that the seizures of liquor reported by the Customs Bureau during the last two months have been greater in amount than the totals seized during the entire years of 1931 and 1932, although slightly under the alcohol figure for the fiscal year of 1933.

It is admitted the bootleg liquor business is "still a lucrative profession". Seizures of beer have fallen off in recent years, according to the Treasury Department's statement.

VIEWS and REVIEWS
by
Ben C. Hagglund

Being a writer consists in dressing up the other men's thoughts to make them look like your own. The fact is these's nothing new under the Sun, and Shakespere, who said that, stole all his ideas. His pilfered ideas shine than they did under the tutelage of their originators.

* * * *

In the realm of economic writing, this rule still holds good. Dozens of economic Jeremiahs and John-the-Baptists have sprouted, and died—and been forgotten. The human being has a very short memory which all aids the writer immensely, for when he steals an idea from an obscure source, he need not cover his tracks so thoroughly. The pages of Karl Marx and Henry George team with quotation, and we do not know how many sentences were reproduced without the source being given.

Anyway, the world knows Marx and George as two great economists—what does it matter if they got their ideas from others? Those others got them from someone else again. Max Mullur, the famous linguist, says that Sanscrit (the oldest known language) contains all the basic concepts that now exist, which only means that there's nothing new under the sun.

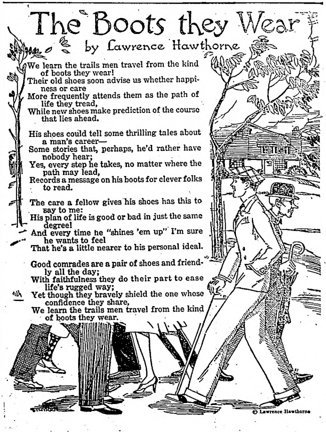
* * * *

The fact is, men have dreamed and written of freedom and Utopia since earliest history. The Utopia myth is a growth, which has been added to in every age. Nicolai Lenin, leader of the Russian proletariat, dreamed of Anarchism (not Communism, as a great many believe) where perfect peace prevailed, governmental barriers were down, and there was only one country—the World. The first step toward that goal, as he saw it, was revolution and the dictatorship of the proletariat. Lenin drew heavily on Karl Marx for his ideas; and Karl Marx is indebted to Jean Jacques Rousseau, Friedrick Nietzsche, and others.

In this country a score or more of political factions claim to have the Big Idea; but they can all be traced back to something else. It is possible, however, that the United Staees may evolve some distinctly American form of Utopia, based on the Utopias of other countries. Whatever we will get here, we will deserve.

An Early Water Clock

In 807 A. D. Haroun al Raschid, king of Persia, presented to Charlemagne what was perhaps the masterpiece of water clocks. Made of gold and bronze, the hours were represented in this clepsydra by twelve small doors, each of which opened at the appropriate hour. With the opening of the doors out rolled small balls which fell on a brass drum beneath. The eye could tell the time by the number of doors opened, while the ear could listen to the number of falling balls.



The Boots they Wear
by Lawrence Hawthorne

We learn the trails men travel from the kind of boots they wear!
Their old shoes soon advise us whether happiness or care
More frequently attends them as the path of life they tread,
While new shoes make prediction of the course that lies ahead.

His shoes could tell some thrilling tales about a man's career—
Some stories that, perhaps, he'd rather have nobody hear;
Yes, every step he takes, no matter where the path may lead,
Records a message on his boots for clever folks to read.

The care a fellow gives his shoes has this to say to me:
His plan of life is good or bad in just the same degree!
And every time he "shines 'em up" I'm sure he wants to feel
That he's a little nearer to his personal ideal.

Good comrades are a pair of shoes and friendly all the day;
With faithfulness they do their part to ease life's rugged way;
Yet though they bravely shield the one whose confidence they share,
We learn the trails men travel from the kind of boots they wear.

Market Comment

South St. Paul, Sept. 25:—Lamb trade ruled steady today following Monday's lump, bulk natives selling at $6.25, throwouts $3.50-4.00. A sizable string of 25 cars of range lambs sold late Monday at $6.25 with the feeder end at $5.65. Most native ewes are going to killers at $2.00 down, best rangers $2.25.

Lights and butcher hogs sold 10-15c lower than Monday, sows steady. Better 210-300 lbs. butchers cleared at $9.50-6.65, most 160-200 lbs. $5.75-6.60, 140-160 lbs. $4.50-5.75, 110-140 lbs. $3.00-4.50 or better, good sows $5.50-6.60, feeder pigs largely $1.50-2.50.

General cattle trade is reflecting a draggy and weak to lower undertone, with grain-feds and cutter cows least affected due to scarcity. A few medium to good fed yearlings brought $5.00-7.50, some mediumweight steers reaching $9.25. Grassy slaughter steers brought $2.50-4.25, butter kinds $5.50 and above. Grain-fed heifers sold at $6.00-8.00, grassers $2.00-3.75, short-feds to $5.00 or more. Beef cows earned $2.25-4.00, low cutters $1.50-2.25, bulls $2.00-v.00, good to choise vealers $5.00-7.00 or better. Common to medium stock steers brbooght $2.50-3.25, better sorts $4.00-5.00, some fancy finishing steers around $6.10.

Historic Old City

Lima, Peru, contains many magnificent private mansions of the old days, chief among which is the famous Torre-Tagle residence, the Foreign office. The University of San Marcos is the oldest institution of learning in the Americas, having been founded a century before Harvard. The National museum at Lima is one of the most remarkable institutions of its kind in the world, being equaled only by that at Cairo in displaying incidents of life and activity of ancient races.

Capitol News Review

During the last month certain types of child labor not regulated by codes, but in conflict with the high standards set by the child labor laws of Minnesota were brought to the attention of local courts. One night club proprietor and two walkathon managers were fined for using children as entertainment features. The Division of Women and Children, State Industrial Commission, is charged with the responsibility of enforcement of the Minnesota minimum wage law. Minnesota is one of 16 states which thus protects the wage rights of minors. In carrying out this responsibility a wage adjustment of $375 was secured during the last month for a minor boy who was employed for one year contrary to the state minimum wage law.

Current reports of extravagance in the spending of funds of the division of Game and Fish circulated at the instigation of a disgrunted office seeker, are so vile and so without foundation that they should receive but passing notice in the face of a $101,000 saving effected during the past fiscal year in the operating expenses of the division. During the fiscal year 1932-33, the operating expenses of the Game and Fish division were $501,000. This amount was cut down in the fiscal year 1933-34 to $399,000. If this is extravagance, then this so-called, self-designated conservation leader of the state is a wild-eyed hyena.

Had it not been for the effective work of the State Department of Agriculure in eradicating grasshoppers in the Red River Valley in 1931, farmers there would not be enjoying the temporary prosperity that dominates the Valley this year. At least that is what agricultural experts say. They point out that the grasshopper plague of 1931 was a serious one, and if nothing had been done at the time, the pests would have increased to such alarming numbers that by 1934 there would have been little wheat to sell at $1.10 a bushel.

Such prosperity as is now being witnessed in the Red River Valley does not mean that the problems of the farmer have been solved, but points emphatically to the weakness of our system, While farmers in the Red River Valley prosper, thousands of other farmers thruout the north west are in a dire condition of want. The condition of farmers in Minnesota this year is an elucidation of rugged individualism under the present capitalistic system—a few prosper from the miseries of the many. However, farmers do not begrudge their more fortunate contemporaries in the Red River Valley, but look forward to the day when government, through the right kind of legislation, will give to agriculture its proper place in the economic sun.

During the past week the Securities division of the Department of Commerce under Commissioner S. Paul Skahen has caused the arrest of two oil promotors, and the suspension of one dealer's license, in connection with its drive against illicit and unlawful stock sales in this state. One of the parties arrested was L. G. Marcus, president of the Marcus Oil Company. A warrant was issued for Marcus May 30, 1934, on the compliant of Kenneth Haycraft, Chief Investigator. Marcus at that time was just completing a round-the-world tour. The Securities Department, in co-operation with the country and authorities, planned to arrest Marcus when he stepped off the boat in New York. However, someone tipped off the promoter and he left the round-the-world boat at the Barbadoes in the British West Indies. There followed a wide-spread man hunt through several British possessions, and in the State of Texas, which ended in the arrest of Marcus last week. He was released on $5,000 bail, pending trial. The other party arrested was Frank Teachout of Montana. Teachout was apprehended following an investigation which disclosed the sale by him of some $50,000 worth of stock to people in or near Minneapolis The oil lands were supposed to be located in Montana. The charge against Teachout was the sale of unregistered securities. The dealer's license of Wm. S. Jenkins, Jr. was suspended and Jenkins ordered to show cause why his license should not be revoked because of his connection with the illegal sale of interest in oil and gas lands,

The Commissioner of Securities desires to warn the public that there are a number of individuals in the state who are offering for sale and selling leases in oil and gas lands and also so-called royalties and that it is practically impossible to catch up with these salesmen unless the public cooperates. The Commissioner desires that all those who are approached for the purchase of oil and gas leases or royalties communicate with the department and ascertain whether or not the securities offered have been registered and whether or not offering is licensed as a dealer, broker or agent before making any such investment.

Proof of the charges made by State Senator Emil L. Regnier, Campaign manager of the Farmer-Labor party, that funds were being solicited from federal employees by state democratic candidates for political purposes, was supplied when employees of the Federal Seed Loan corporation office in Minneapolis complained to Washington that letters were being sent them asking contributions to the coming political campaign. At the time it was pointed out that ostensibly the letters of appeal were headed "To Supporters of The New Deal," yet the funds were for the use of John Regan who violently opposed the nomination of the New Deal president at Chicago in 1932.

The Reason

"WELL, how do you like that leg?" asked Dr. Jeff Barnes.

"It's a fine leg for the shape it's in," admitted Gay Nelson dryly, twisting the member delicately and moving the numb toes slowly as the heavy bandages dropped off. "Now," she demanded gravely, "how much longer?"

"It will be a month before you can leave the hospital," Doctor Barnes announced firmly.

"Oh, darn!" Gay exclaimed in petulant disappointment.

"I know a better word than that," laughed Doctor Barnes at her impatience.

"I know the same word," retorted Gay sarcastically, never giving him a look.

Doctor Barnes was distinguished for his success in bone surgery, his good looks, and his unshakable belief in "a reason for everything."

He noted the flicker of pain in her lifted eyes as he added:

"I know you are weary of the hospital and of—us all."

He tried to make the "us" very impersonal and, failing, added quietly:

"But you will not be lame. Not even a limp! I promise."

Gay managed a white smile.

"That's great! Heaven knows a newspaper woman needs good legs."

"I presume the waiting will be the worst part of the cure. For one of your nervous temperament. Tediously exhausting. . . ."

There was a great fascination about this Gay Nelson, the doctor reasoned as he departed. She was like fleeting sunshine on a winter day.

Fleeting! That was the word and it stung him with a sudden cruel realization. In four weeks she would leave Trinity hospital and he'd never see her again. Neither would he ever be able to forget her.

"I'd like to take you out to your first dinner," he ventured one evening as the last week of her stay waned into 48 hours. As silence greeted his invitation he urged, "Just to celebrate our joint production. You have helped immeasurably in your recovery. I'm proud of your case of bone surgery."

"Who said I'd be hungry?" she groaned dourly. "The way I feel now I never want to even look at food. When I do, I can pay for my own. And I never dine out with married men unless they want to be interviewed."

Gay's eyes were clear blue ice, as she gathered strength at his teasing smile and went on:

"After what you've seen and heard, you'd hardly expect me to sit and listen patiently to another man's story of a wife who could not understand him. You'll live through the experience without identifying scars, if all your patients are like me, Doctor Barnes. You'll live to learn, too,"—with a deep chuckle, "that your wife understands you—even better than you suspect."

The veiling lashes wavered and she was looking full at him with eyes suddenly hard.

"I guessed all this," she said with a quiet conviction, "when I noticed how your suits and ties matched your hair and eyes. No one but a woman, a woman who loved you, would have thought of that."

"But you did notice?" he laughed softly in triumph, his eyes lighting in combat.

"Noticing is my job," she retorted. Then she turned on him hotly.

"Men know only two types of women—the drudge and the butterfly. The drudge they accept and endure. The butterfly they pity and protect. Take it from me, the butterfly has all the luck. Nothing is expected of her, and," a flash of thin expressive fingers, "she puts out exactly that—nothing!"

"But can't you see or won't you acknowledge," the man continued, honestly convinced of his cause, "that its so confounded repressing having your life routined to hours? Even your amusements to schedule. It makes a man rebel, turn outlaw, from very resentment to rule."

"And then that man tries to express that freedom with—some other woman," laughed Gay dryly.

"Oh, I can't expect you to understand," he returned heatedly. "You've had humanity burned out of you. Why you'd even be afraid to take a flyer in happiness."

"Yes," she answered calmly.

Doctor Barnes rose indignantly.

He could have sworn afterward that he saw two tears on the pale mocking face just in the violet shadows of her eyes.

He hurried back to the hospital next morning, sick from that fleeting obsession that had haunted him all night.

"But," said the nurse with a puzzled look at his inquiry, "I thought, of course, you knew, Doctor Barnes. Miss Nelson left yesterday at noon."

Doctor Barnes answered firmly, hastily, "Oh, I see."

In the hospital office he found a note from Gay. A signed check was enclosed ready for him to write in the amount of his fee. Something between a sob and a curse burst from his lips as he read her farewell dig. A dig that pierced his stupid bachelor's heart:

Jeff:

Your egotism will of course demand some explanation for my flight without an address. The answer is quite simple. A clever man would have known.

Proposed Amendments to the Constitution of Minnesota

To be submitted at 1934 General Election

STATE OF MINNESOTA, LEGAL DEPARTMENT

HARRY H. PETERSON
Attorney General

St. Paul, Minnesota, May 1, 1934

Honorable Mike Holm,
Secretary of State,

Dear Sir:

In compliance with the provisions of Section 46 of Mason's Minnesota Statutes of 1927, I herewith furnish you a statement of the purpose and effect of all proposed amendments to the Constitution of the State of Minnesota which are to be submitted to the electors of said state at the general election in 1934, in accordance with certain acts adopted by the 1933 legislature.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 1.

By th adoption of Chapter 430, Laws 1933, the legislature has proposed an amendment to Section 1, Article 16, of the State Constitution. This section now reads as follows:

"There is hereby created and established a trunk highway system, which shall be located, constructed, reconstructed, improved and forever maintained as public highways, by the State of Minnesota. The said highways shall extend as nearly as may be along the following described routes, the more specific and definite location of which shall be fixed and determined by such boards, officers or tribunals, and in such manner, as shall be prescribed by law, but in fixing such specific and definite routes there shall not be any deviation from the starting points or terminals set forth in this bill, nor shall there be any deviation in fixing such routes from the various villages and cities named herein, through which such routes are to pass.

During the last month certain types of child labor not regulated by codes, but in conflict with the high standards set by the child labor laws of Minnesota were brought to the attention of local courts. One night club proprietor and two walkathon managers were fined for using children as entertainment features. The Division of Women and Children, State Industrial Commission, is charged with the responsibility of enforcement of the Minnesota minimum wage law. Minnesota is one of 16 states which thus protects the wage rights of minors. In carrying out this responsibility a wage adjustment of $375 was secured during the last month for a minor boy who was employed for one year contrary to the state minimum wage law.

Current reports of extravagance in the spending of funds of the division of Game and Fish circulated at the instigation of a disgrunted office seeker, are so vile and so without foundation that they should receive but passing notice in the face of a $101,000 saving effected during the past fiscal year in the operating expenses of the division. During the fiscal year 1932-33, the operating expenses of the Game and Fish division were $501,000. This amount was cut down in the fiscal year 1933-34 to $399,000. If this is extravagance, then this so-called, self-designated conservation leader of the state is a wild-eyed hyena.

Had it not been for the effective work of the State Department of Agriculure in eradicating grasshoppers in the Red River Valley in 1931, farmers there would not be enjoying the temporary prosperity that dominates the Valley this year. At least that is what agricultural experts say. They point out that the grasshopper plague of 1931 was a serious one, and if nothing had been done at the time, the pests would have increased to such alarming numbers that by 1934 there would have been little wheat to sell at $1.10 a bushel.

Such prosperity as is now being witnessed in the Red River Valley does not mean that the problems of the farmer have been solved, but points emphatically to the weakness of our system, While farmers in the Red River Valley prosper, thousands of other farmers thruout the north west are in a dire condition of want. The condition of farmers in Minnesota this year is an elucidation of rugged individualism under the present capitalistic system—a few prosper from the miseries of the many. However, farmers do not begrudge their more fortunate contemporaries in the Red River Valley, but look forward to the day when government, through the right kind of legislation, will give to agriculture its proper place in the economic sun.

During the past week the Securities division of the Department of Commerce under Commissioner S. Paul Skahen has caused the arrest of two oil promotors, and the suspension of one dealer's license, in connection with its drive against illicit and unlawful stock sales in this state. One of the parties arrested was L. G. Marcus, president of the Marcus Oil Company. A warrant was issued for Marcus May 30, 1934, on the compliant of Kenneth Haycraft, Chief Investigator. Marcus at that time was just completing a round-the-world tour. The Securities Department, in co-operation with the country and authorities, planned to arrest Marcus when he stepped off the boat in New York. However, someone tipped off the promoter and he left the round-the-world boat at the Barbadoes in the British West Indies. There followed a wide-spread man hunt through several British possessions, and in the State of Texas, which ended in the arrest of Marcus last week. He was released on $5,000 bail, pending trial. The other party arrested was Frank Teachout of Montana. Teachout was apprehended following an investigation which disclosed the sale by him of some $50,000 worth of stock to people in or near Minneapolis The oil lands were supposed to be located in Montana. The charge against Teachout was the sale of unregistered securities. The dealer's license of Wm. S. Jenkins, Jr. was suspended and Jenkins ordered to show cause why his license should not be revoked because of his connection with the illegal sale of interest in oil and gas lands,

The Commissioner of Securities desires to warn the public that there are a number of individuals in the state who are offering for sale and selling leases in oil and gas lands and also so-called royalties and that it is practically impossible to catch up with these salesmen unless the public cooperates. The Commissioner desires that all those who are approached for the purchase of oil and gas leases or royalties communicate with the department and ascertain whether or not the securities offered have been registered and whether or not offering is licensed as a dealer, broker or agent before making any such investment.

Proof of the charges made by State Senator Emil L. Regnier, Campaign manager of the Farmer-Labor party, that funds were being solicited from federal employees by state democratic candidates for political purposes, was supplied when employees of the Federal Seed Loan corporation office in Minneapolis complained to Washington that letters were being sent them asking contributions to the coming political campaign. At the time it was pointed out that ostensibly the letters of appeal were headed "To Supporters of The New Deal," yet the funds were for the use of John Regan who violently opposed the nomination of the New Deal president at Chicago in 1932.

You'll live to learn, too," with a deep chuckle, "that your wife understands you—even better than you suspect."

The veiling lashes wavered and she was looking full at him with eyes suddenly hard.

"I guessed all this," she said with a quiet conviction, "when I noticed how your suits and ties matched your hair and eyes. No one but a woman, a woman who loved you, would have thought of that."

"But you did notice?" he laughed softly in triumph, his eyes lighting in combat.

"Noticing is my job," she retorted. Then she turned on him hotly.

"Men know only two types of women—the drudge and the butterfly. The drudge they accept and endure. The butterfly they pity and protect. Take it from me, the butterfly has all the luck. Nothing is expected of her, and," a flash of thin expressive fingers, "she puts out exactly that—nothing!"

"But can't you see or won't you acknowledge," the man continued, honestly convinced of his cause, "that its so confounded repressing having your life routined to hours? Even your amusements to schedule. It makes a man rebel, turn outlaw, from very resentment to rule."

"And then that man tries to express that freedom with—some other woman," laughed Gay dryly.

"Oh, I can't expect you to understand," he returned heatedly. "You've had humanity burned out of you. Why you'd even be afraid to take a flyer in happiness."

"Yes," she answered calmly.

Doctor Barnes rose indignantly.

He could have sworn afterward that he saw two tears on the pale mocking face just in the violet shadows of her eyes.

He hurried back to the hospital next morning, sick from that fleeting obsession that had haunted him all night.

"But," said the nurse with a puzzled look at his inquiry, "I thought, of course, you knew, Doctor Barnes, Miss Nelson left yesterday at noon."

Doctor Barnes answered firmly, hastily, "Oh, I see."

In the hospital office he found a note from Gay. A signed check was enclosed ready for him to write in the amount of his fee. Something between a sob and a curse burst from his lips as he read her farewell dig. A dig that pierced his stupid bachelor's heart:

Jeff:

Your egotism will of course demand some explanation for my flight without an address. The answer is quite simple. A clever man would have known.

Proposed Amendments to the Constitution of Minnesota

To be submitted at 1934 General Election

STATE OF MINNESOTA.
LEGAL DEPARTMENT

HARRY H. PETERSON
Attorney General

St. Paul, Minnesota, May 1, 1934

Honorable Mike Holm,
Secretary of State,

Dear Sir:

In compliance with the provisions of Section 46 of Mason's Minnesota Statutes of 1927, I herewith furnish you a statement of the purpose and effect of all proposed amendments to the Constitution of the State of Minnesota which are to be submitted to the electors of said state at the general election in 1934, in accordance with certain acts adopted by the 1933 legislature.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 1.

By th adoption of Chapter 430, Laws 1933, the legislature has proposed an amendment to Section 1, Article 16, of the State Constitution. This section now reads as follows:

> "There is hereby created and established a trunk highway system, which shall be located, constructed, reconstructed, improved and forever maintained as public highways, by the State of Minnesota. The said highways shall extend as nearly as may be along the following described routes, the more specific and definite location of which shall be fixed and determined by such boards, officers or tribunals, and in such manner, as shall be prescribed by law, but in fixing such specific and definite routes there shall not be any deviation from the starting points or terminals set forth in this bill, nor shall there be any deviation in fixing such routes from the various villages and cities named herein, through which such routes are to pass.

ADDITIONAL ROUTES.

Whenever, either by reason of the creation of a new county, or by reason of the change of the county seat of any existing county, any city or village not a county seat at the time of the adoption of this amendment is lawfully constituted the county seat of any county, the legislature is authorized to add to the trunk highway system such additional routes connecting such newly constituted county seats with other county seats and other points in the state.

When after at least seventy-five (75) per cent of the total number of the miles of the routes embraced in the trunk highway system hereinbefore specified shall have been constructed and permanently improved, the legislature shall have authority to add new routes to such trunk highway system; provided, however, that no such new routes shall be added until and unless the funds available for the construction, improvement and maintenance of such additional routes shall be sufficient therefor in addition to the construction, improvement and maintenance of the several routes hereinbefore specifically described."

If amended as proposed by the legislature this section will read exactly the same as it now reads except that the last paragraph now appearing in this section will be omitted therefrom, and in the place of and instead of the paragraph so omitted will appear a paragraph which reads as follows:

"The legislature shall have authority to add new routes to such trunk highway system. All new routes added to the trunk highway system by act of the legislature during the session of 1933, are hereby ratified and confirmed. Provided, however, that no such new routes shall be added after the adoption of this amendment, until and unless at least seventy-five (75) per cent of the total number of the miles of the routes embraced in the trunk highway system heretofore created and established either by Article 16 of the Constitution of the State of Minnesota or by the legislature under and pursuant to said Article 16 shall have been constructed and permanently improved."

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose and effect of this amendment is to ratify and confirm the establishment of all new routes added to the trunk highway system by the 1933 legislature, and to give the legislature unrestricted authority to add new routes to the trunk highway system after seventy-five (75) per cent of the total number of the miles of the routes established by Article 16 of the State Constitution and established by the legislature acting pursuant thereto prior to the time this amendment was proposed, have been constructed and permanently improved.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 2.

By the adoption of Chapter 441 of the Laws of 1933, the legislature has proposed an amendment to Section 10 of Article 9 of the State Constitution. This section now reads as follows:

"The credit of the state shall never be given or loaned in aid of any individual, association or corporation, except as hereinafter provided. Nor shall there be any further issue of bonds denominated 'Minnesota State Railroad Bonds,' under what purports to be an amendment to section ten (10) of article nine (9) of the Constitution, adopted April 15, 1858, which is hereby expunged from the Constitution, saving, excepting and reserving to the state, nevertheless, all rights, remedies and forfeitures accruing under said amendment. Provided, however, that for the purpose of developing the agricultural resources of the state, the state may establish and maintain a system of rural credits and thereby loan money and extend credit to the people of the state upon real estate security in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by law, and to issue and negotiate bonds to provide money to be so loaned. The limit of indebtedness contained in section 5 of this article shall not apply to the provisions of this section, and the purposes for which the credit of the state or the aforesaid municipal subdivisions thereof may be given or loaned as herein provided are declared to be public purposes."

If amended as proposed by the legislature this section will read as follows:

"The credit of the state shall never be given or loaned in aid of any individual, association or corporation, except as hereinafter provided. Nor shall there be any further issue of bonds denominated 'Minnesota State Railroad Bonds,' under what purports to be an amendment to Article 9, Section 10 of the Constitution, adopted April 15th, 1858, which is hereby expunged from the Constitution, saving, excepting and reserving to the state, nevertheless, all rights, remedies and forfeitures accruing under said amendment. Provided, however, that for the purpose of developing the agricultural resources of the state, the state may establish and maintain a system of rural credits and thereby loan money and extend credit to the people of the state upon real estate security in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by law, and to issue and negotiate bonds to provide money to be so loaned. The limit of indebtedness contained in Section 5 of this article shall not apply to the provisions of this section, and the purposes for which the credit of the state or the aforesaid municipal subdivisions thereof may be given or loaned as herein provided are declared to be public purposes.

The legislature may authorize the taxing of any lands, title to which is acquired by the state through the operation of such system of rural credits, during the period such lands are held by the state, and for the assessment thereof for benefits arising from improvement, and may provide for the payment of such taxes and assessments out of the operation of such system of rural credits. In lieu of such taxation the legislature may appropriate to the school districts, towns, counties, cities, villages and boroughs in which such lands are located sums of money not exceeding the amounts which would have been realized by such governmental subdivisions from the assessments against or taxation of such lands if privately owned."

It will be noted that the present Section 10 of Article 9 remains unchanged as the first paragraph of the proposed amendment but that a second paragraph is added to said section.

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose of the proposed amendment is to give the legislature the power to do one of two things which it now lacks the constitutional power to do; namely: first, to authorize the taxing of any land, and the assessment of benefits for improvements against any land, which the state has acquired and owns or may acquire and own through the operation of the system of rural credits and to provide for the payment of such taxes and assessments out of the funds of the Rural Credit Department; or, second, to appropriate to the counties, towns, school districts, cities, villages and boroughs in which are located lands acquired and owned by the state under the rural credit acts sums of money not exceeding the amounts which would be realized by said governmental subdivisions from the taxation of such lands and from the assessment of benefits against such lands if owned by private persons.

Under the Rural Credit Act the state has become the owner of thousands of farms located in various counties of the state. As our State Constitution now stands, such land, being owned by the state, cannot be taxed. It naturally follows that other land within the same taxing district must pay higher taxes.

Likewise, the legislature does not now have the power to appropriate to the counties, towns, school districts, cities, villages and boroughs any funds of the Rural Credit Department to reimburse them for losses suffered by them because large areas of land acquired by the state under the rural credit law thereby have been removed from the tax rolls.

The effect of the passing of this amendment, if the power thereby given is acted upon by the legislature, will be to make good to these local subdivisions, in whole or in part, the loss they now suffer because they cannot tax rural credit land.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 3.

By the adoption of Chapter 442 of the Laws of 1933, the legislature has proposed an amendment to Section 1 of Article 9 of the State Constitution. This section now reads as follows:

"The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away. Taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects, and shall be levied and collected for public purposes, but public burying grounds, public school houses, public hospitals, academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning, all churches, church property and houses of worship, institutions of purely public charity, and public property used exclusively for any public purpose, shall be exempt from taxation, and there may be exempted from taxation personal property not exceeding in value $200, for each household, individual or head of a family, as the legislature may determine: Provided, that the legislature may authorize municipal corporations to levy and collect assessments for local improvements upon property benefited thereby without regard to a cash valuation, and provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect, modify or repeal any existing law providing for the taxation of the gross earnings of railroads."

If amended as proposed by the legislature, this section will read as follows:

"The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away. Taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects, and shall be levied and collected for public purposes, but public burying grounds, public school houses, public hospitals, academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning, all churches, church property and houses o. worship, institutions of purely public charity, public property used exclusively for any public purpose, shall be exempt from taxation, and there may be exempted from taxation personal property not exceeding in value $200, for each household, individual or head of a family, and household goods and farm machinery, as the legislature may determine:

Provided, that the legislature may authorize municipal corporations to levy and collect assessments for local improvements upon property benefited thereby without regard to a cash valuation, and provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect, modify or repeal any existing law providing for the taxation of the gross earnings of railroads."

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose and effect of this amendment is to grant to the legislature, in addition to the power now granted by said section to exempt personal property, the authority to exempt from taxation, such household goods of each household, and such farm machinery of each farm, as it may see fit. By the present Section 1 of Article 9 the legislature is granted the authority to exempt from taxation unspecified personal property not exceeding in value $200 for each household, individual, or head of a family.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 4.

By the adoption of Chapter 443 of the Laws of 1933 the legislature has proposed an amendment to Article 8 of the State Constitution. This amendment will not add to or alter any existing section of the Constitution, but will add a new section to be known as Section 8 of Article 8. The proposed amendment reads as follows:

"Any of the public lands of the state, including lands held in trust for any purpose, may, with the approval of a commission consisting of the governor, the attorney general and the state auditor, be exchanged for lands of the United States and other privately owned lands as the legislature may provide, and the lands so acquired shall be subject to the trust, if any, to which the lands exchanged therefor were subject, and the state shall reserve all mineral and water and water power rights in lands so transferred by the state."

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose and effect of this amendment is to authorize the legislature to provide for exchanging any of the public lands of the state for lands of the United States and land privately owned, such exchanges to be made with the approval of a commission consisting of the governor, the attorney general and the state auditor. Such exchanges of land cannot now be made because the State Constitution does not permit the legislature to authorize the sale of school lands, state swamp lands and state internal improvement lands except by public sale. One immediate purpose in granting such authority is to make it possible for the state to acquire compact areas of land for forestry and other conservation purposes by exchanging land outside of such conservation areas for lands of the United States and privately owned lands within such areas.

The amendment requires that all mineral rights, water rights and water power rights in lands so transferred by the state shall be reserved. The land so acquired will become subject to the same trust, if any, as the land disposed of. For example, if school land is given in exchange, the land received will become school land.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 5.

By the adoption of Chapter 444 of the Laws of 1933, the legislature proposed an amendment to Section 1 of Article 9 of the State Constitution. At present Section 1 of Article 9 reads as follows:

"The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away. Taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects, and shall be levied and collected for public purposes, but public burying grounds, public school houses, public hospitals, academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning, all churches, church property and houses of worship, institutions of purely public charity, and public property used exclusively for any public purpose, shall be exempt from taxation, and there may be exempted from taxation personal property not exceeding in value $200, for each household, individual or head of a family, as the legislature may determine: Provided, that the legislature may authorize municipal corporations to levy and collect assessments for local improvements upon property benefited thereby without regard to a cash valuation, and provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect, modify or repeal any existing law providing for the taxation of the gross earnings of railroads."

If amended as proposed by the legislature, said section will read as follows:

"The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away. Taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects, and shall be levied and collected for public purposes, but public burying grounds, public school houses, public hospitals, academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning, all churches, church property and houses of worship, institutions of purely public charity, and public property used exclusively for any public purpose, shall be exempt from taxation, and there may be exempted from taxation personal property not exceeding in value $200, for each household, individual or head of a family as the legislature may determine. Academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning shall be construed to mean the property actually and exclusively used in the instruction and housing of the students thereof, and residences on the campus actually occupied by instructors of such institutions. Provided, that the legislature may authorize municipal corporations to levy and collect assessments for local improvements upon property benefited thereby without regard to a cash valuation, and provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect, modify or repeal any existing law providing for the taxation of the gross earnings of a railroad."

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose and effect of this amendment is to mention specifically and define definitely the property of academies, colleges, universities and seminaries of learning which shall be exempt from taxation. The present Section 1 of Article 9 provides that academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning shall be exempt from taxation, but does not specifically state what property of such institutions shall be tax exempt. If the proposed amendment is adopted the only property of said educational institutions which will be exempt from taxation under this section will be the property actually and exclusively used in the instruction and housing of the students thereof and residences on the campus actually occupied by instructors of such institutions.

Yours respectfully,
HARRY H. PETERSON
Attorney General.

EDITORIAL

THERE has lately been a disgusting amount of to-do throughout the land over the personality and exploits of a certain motion picture actress. To those concerned chiefly, as we all should be with the higher and finer things of life, this woman's undulating hips, indecent exposure, and vulgar expressions can only be revolting.

Her popularity and her possible influence upon feminine manners, moreover, constitute a menace to home life in this country. American women during the past few years have learned to maintain a slender and modest appearance. If this trend is reversed, we gravely fear the effect upon standards of decency and right living.

J. LUCIAS DOAKES,
Editor.

Blanktown, March 26, 1934.

My dear Mr. Editor Doakes:

I have just finished reading what you wrote in your paper about "a certain motion picture actress," and feel called upon to take my pen in hand.

Now, Mr. Doakes, you're a big important man and I'm only a woman who keeps house and tries to be a good wife. But when you say that this lady does no good in the world, only evil, I have to protest. I know different.

My Timothy and I have been married for twenty years and we're both forty-one now. Well, a woman, you know, hasn't all of her girlish charms at that age, and a man just about then seems to get some kind of funny romantic notions like he had at twenty. At least, that's how it was with Tim and me. I guess he began to look at me a little critically, or something, and saw that I wasn't quite the slender damsel he longed for.

Anyhow, pretty soon I heard rumors that he was running around with some red-headed woman who wore a size 14 and looked the same from all angles. I never saw her, but that was the description I got from the people who are always glad to let you know about such things.

I didn't do anything because I didn't know anything to do. He kept right on, going out oftener and staying away longer all the time. Finally I began to think it would have to end in a divorce or separation, which would also have been the end of life for me.

Then, one night he said, "Let's go to a movie." We always did that when he wasn't stepping out. He didn't seem to like being alone with me for an evening any more. So we went down to the Superba without bothering to find out first what was there. Well, it turned out to be a picture with this actress you wrote about. I'd never even heard of her before, and I don't think Tim had.

When it was over he said, "Let's stay for the second show." We did, and then half the night Tim kept me awake raving about her. That, he said, was the way a woman should look and be.

Next day I thought a lot about it and suddenly got an idea. I hunted around, found my corset, and put it on under the slinkiest dress I had. The effect was pretty good, and even better after I'd cut four inches off the gown's neck in front. The curves were really surprising, but I won't go into details that wouldn't interest you.

When Tim came in that night, I was standing by the fireplace in the corset and the dress and about a dollar's worth of dime store jewelry and with my hair piled up curly-like. He just stopped dead and stared for about half a minute. Then he almost jumped across the room and said, "Good gosh, honey, you sure look like a million! Don't think I was slow seeing it, but you floored me so I couldn't think what to say."

"Oh, that's all right," I told him, trying to wiggle around a little, "I like a guy what takes his time."

Well, that's about all. Tim's stopped going out, and he wants to take a second honeymoon this summer. I guess I've written an awful lot about things that don't concern you, but I wanted you to know that the lady you called a wrecker of homes actually saved one.

Yours very truly,
MRS. T. O. M.

ANNOUNCEMENT

March 27, 1934.

Mr. J. Lucius Doakes, editor-in-chief of the Courier, has been granted an indefinite leave of absence due to the delicate condition of his wife following her recent arrest and subsequent removal to the Psychopathic hospital.

Mrs. Doakes, it is alleged, placed in a local post box two parcels containing homemade bombs, one addressed to a famous screen star, and the other to Mrs. Timothy O. Martin of this city.

The publishers of the Courier feel certain that this unfortunate incident will prove to have been all a ghastly mistake. It is their firm belief that Mrs. Doakes, charming and petite titian-haired leader in Blanktown's social activities, would have been quite incapable of this outrage. Moreover, absolutely no motive for the act has been discovered.

Am. Leg. Aux. Installs New Officers Thurs.

The officers installed are as follows: [illegible], Mrs. Claude Evenson; 1st [illegible], Mrs. Carl Hovie; 2nd [illegible], Mrs. A. C. Matheson; [illegible], Mrs. Alex [illegible], Finance, Mrs. J. S. Steen; [illegible], Mrs. C. M. Haug; Sargent-at-arms, Mrs. S. J. Anderson.

The following committee appointments were made: Membership, Mrs. [illegible] 1st and 2nd captains, Mrs. [illegible], Mrs. Roy Ericson; Publicity, Mrs. Carl Hovie; Rehabilitation and Child Welfare, Mrs. T. P. Anderson, Mrs. George Boken, Mrs. C. M. Haug, Mrs. Victor McLeod of Goodridge, and Mrs. Myles Jackson of St. Hilaire; Memorial, Mrs. C. A. Bloomquist; Forget-me-not, Mrs. A. C. Matheson; National Registered Captain of Girl Scouts, Mrs. B. O. Norby; Joint Custodians, Mrs. E. O. Taxeraas, Mrs. J. Doken.

The executive committee will be composed of Mrs. Claude Evenson, Mrs. Carl Hovie, Mrs Alex Campbell, Mrs. Oscar Smith, Mrs. C. M. Haug, Mrs. Leonard Hanson, and Mrs. T. P. Anderson.

The evening's entertainment included two piano solos by Miss Dellys Ericson, and community singing led by Miss Irma Springen.

After Mrs. T. L. Stickney's address whic emphasized rallies, rehabilitation work, and membership, the auxiliary unit presented her with a lovely gift. The out-going officers, Mrs. Oscar Smith and Mrs. L. V. Johnson were also presented with gifts from the unit. Mrs. Claude Evenson was recipient of a gift from the Eaglet Patrol of the Girl Scouts, of which she was captain in the past year.

Mrs. Oscar Smith was appointed by Mrs. Stickney as Ninth District Rehabilitation chairman.

Guests for the evening who accompanied Mrs. Stickney were Mrs. Alvin H. Jenson and Mrs. A. Sorum, both of Crookston. Out-of-town members present were: Mrs. H. Sande and Mrs. I. Brink, both of St. Hilaire.

Hostesses were: Mrs. C. M. Haug, chairman, Mrs. E. O. Taxeraas, Mrs. J. Dokken, Mrs. O. Czerny, Mrs. Roy Ericson, Mrs. G. Reiersgaard and Mrs. A. M. Senstad.

The next regular meeting of the local unit of the American Legion Auxiliary will be on Thursday evening, October 4th, at 8 o'clock at the Legion club rooms in the auditorium.

Many Visitors Attend Clinic

An interesting feature of the clinic was the presence of Miss Pearl G. Kennings of St. Paul, who represents the Minnesota Association for crippled children. Miss Kennings holds the position as visiting teacher for crippled adultes in the hondicrafts and arts, visiting the patient in his own home once a month and teaches him handicraft. After the patient's work has been completed ,Miss Kennings makes arrangements for selling the products at the best possible price and returns the money to the patient. In other words, crippled adults throughout the state of Minnesota will have an opportunity to do something worth-while financially as well as something to keep them occupied and happy. This is a new permanent plan sponsored be the Minnesota Association for Crippled Children.

Mr. Harry J. Johnson, assistant director with the Minnesota Department of Re-education for disabled persons, and his assistant, Donald H. Nottage, psychological examiner of the Department of Re-education, also attended the clinic. Mr. Johnson interviewed all patients who, due to their disability, seemed to present a problem of unemployment or unhappy living conditions which could be remedied by re-education in some vocation.

Guests at the Clinic were Miss Cordelia Wilkon, nurse investigator of Red Lake County, Miss Zelma Peterson, nurse investigator of Marshall County, Dr. A. M. Smith of the St. Luke's Hospital, and Dr. Bernard of the Oakland Park Sanitorium.

Assisting Miss Lindgren with arrangements for the clinic were Mrs. Alfred Skarstad, Mrs. A. M. Smith, Miss Adele Holmstrom, and Miss Martha Storholm. Lunch was served to the patients throughout the day by the Thief River Falls Woman's Club.

This clinic was one of the largest of the orthopedic clinics which has been held in the state, and served as a wonderful opportunity for disabled persons to secure vocational guidance, medical assistance, and encouragement. It is well to remember that the Christmas seals which will be on sale during the month of December, pay the expenses of this clinic as well as the expenses which were incurred during the tuberculin testing of the local high school students last winter. The disbursement of the Christmas Seal money is easy to understand when one considers how extensively it has been used in our own community.

FARWELL PARTY

A large group of friends and the Woman's Missionary Society of the Augustana Lutheran Church gathered at the home of Rev. H. L. Sjogren last Thursday afternoon in honor of Senator Laura Naplin, being in the nature of a farewell party. Mrs. Naplin was the recipient of a lovely gift from her friends presented her by Miss Agnes Sjogren. At the conclusion of the afternoon luncheon was served by Mrs. Sjogren, Mrs. Oscar Peterson, and Miss Agnes l Longren.

FOR SEN. LAURA NAPLIN.

A group of approximately 30 friends and members of the W. C. T. U. gathered at the home of Senator Laura E. Naplin Thursday evening, the occasion being in the form of a farewell party as Mrs. Naplin left Sunday for St. Paul where she will be employed in the state capitol. The evening was spent in various contests, games and community singing, after which luncheon was served by the guests. As a token of remembrance Mrs. Naplin was presented with ar imported WCTU pin of mother of pearl.

Senator Naplin and her daughter Arloine were entertained at a six o'clock dinner at the home of Mrs. Thorn H. Nelson on Thursday evening.

Grafton Again Trims Locals in First Game

For the fifth consecutive year, the Lincoln high school Prowler eleven were defeated by the Grafton squad in a football game at Lincoln field on Saturday afternoon, the score being 30 to 0.

Neither team scored in the first quarter, but beginning in the second quarter the Grafton eleven crossed the Prowler goal for five touchdowns in the remaining quarters.

Whalen, outstanding athlete of track and football on the Grafton team, did most of the scoring for his team. The Prowlers displayed strong powers of defence, while Captain Tom Fuller, Wayne Kielty, Jim VanPelt, and Arnt Wold were the key men on the team.

Afttr having their fighting spirits aroused, the Prowlers have high hopes of "bringing home the bacon" in the game with East Grand Forks which will be played off Friday afternoon, September 28, at the Lincoln field.

Constitution Is In No Danger; Lundeen

Speaking before the student body of Edison High School, Minneapolis at the request of the school's board of governors of Thursday, September 20 Congressman Ernest Lundeen called attention to the present day view of the Constitution as an instrument to protect human rights above property rights. Following are portions of his speech:

"If anyone wants to do something for the unemployed or part-time unemployed, or to establish a system of old age pension legislation, he is called socialist or communistic. Many people are worried about the Constitution. I am convinced that we do not have to worry about the American constitution or the American flag. When all this legislation has been put into effect, the American ffag will still be flying, and the American Constitution will still stand.I believe that the American Constitution is flexible —that it will fit in with the forward movement of the great American nation. We do not need to think that the Constitution is so rigid that it is going to break. The Constitution will uphold social legislation.

"If you do away with unemployment in this country, give jobs to the people out of work, you will not have radicalism. When property rights and human rights conflict, I believe the American Constitution will protect human rights against property rights."

Congressman Lundeen expressed his deep interest in education and his opposition to retrenchment in education and the cutting of teachers' salaries. He predicted that in future years, "after the panic is over," a new problem would arise: that of deciding whether emergency legislation should remain on the statute books and become permanent.

Malcolm Skoglund Has Close Call in Wreck

Malcolm Skoglund of Roseau, Minnesoa, brother of Ted and Edna Skoglund of this city, escaped with his life in a near-catastrophe last Thursday evening near Roseau. While driving at a high speed the panel truck for the Skoglund Cleaning establishment of Roseau, Mr. Skoglund lost control of the car, resulting in his being forcibly thrust through the roof of the car to the telephone wires above, breaking them and landing on the ground 14 feet below sustained only a slightly fractured skull and bruises. He was unconscious for over a day however.

The truck continued to rool over and over, finally coming to a stop in a smashed and battered heap. A passing motorist assisted Mr. Skoglund to a Roseau hospital, where, according to the last reports, he is said to be recovering nicely..

Am. Leg. Aux. Installs New Officers Thurs.

The newly elected officers of the local American Legion Auxiliary were installed at a regular meeting last Thursday evening by Mrs. T. L. Stickney of Crookston, the ninth district president of the Auxiliaries.

The officers installed are as follows: [illegible], Mrs. Claude Evenson; 1st [illegible], Mrs. Carl Hovie; 2nd [illegible], Mrs. A. C. Matheson; [illegible] and Historian, Mrs. Alex Campbell, Finance, Mrs. J. S. Steen; [illegible], Mrs. C. M. Haug; Sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. S. J. Andersen.

The following committee appointments were made: Membership, Mrs. C. Caldis; 1st and 2nd captains, Mrs. E. Nelson, Mrs. Roy Ericson; Publicity, Mrs. Carl Hovie; Rehabilitation and Child Welfare, Mrs. T. P. Anderson, Mrs. George Baken, Mrs. C. M. Haug, Mrs. Victor McLeod of Goodridge, and Mrs. Myles Jackson of St. Hilaire; Memorial, Mrs. C. A. Bloomquist; Forget-me-not, Mrs. A. C. Matheson; National Registered Captain of Girl Scouts, Mrs. B. O. Norby; Joint Custodians, Mrs. E. O. Taxeraas, Mrs. J. Doken.

The executive committee will be composed of Mrs. Claude Evenson, Mrs. Carl Hovie, Mrs Alex Campbell, Mrs. Oscar Smith, Mrs. C. M. Haug, Mrs. Leonard Hanson, and Mrs. T. P. Anderson.

The evening's entertainment included two piano solos by Miss Dellys Ericson, and community singing led by Miss Irma Springen.

After Mrs. T. L. Stickney's address whic emphasized rallies, rehabilitation work, and membership, the auxiliary unit presented her with a lovely gift. The out-going officers, Mrs. Oscar Smith and Mrs. L. V. Johnson were also presented with gifts from the unit. Mrs. Claude Evenson was recipient of a gift from the Eaglet Patrol of the Girl Scouts, of which she was captain in the past year.

Mrs. Oscar Smith was appointed by Mrs. Stickney as Ninth District Rehabilitation chairman.

Guests for the evening who accompanied Mrs. Stickney were Mrs. Alvin H. Jenson and Mrs. A. Sorum, both of Crookston. Out-of-town members present were: Mrs. H. Sande and Mrs. I. Brink, both of St. Hilaire.

Hostesses were: Mrs. C. M. Haug, chairman, Mrs. E. O. Taxeraas, Mrs. J. Dokken, Mrs. O. Czerny, Mrs. Roy Ericson, Mrs. G. Reiersgaard and Mrs. A. M. Senstad.

The next regular meeting of the local unit of the American Legion Auxiliary will be on Thursday evening, October 4th, at 8 o'clock at the Legion club rooms in the auditorium.

Many Visitors Attend Clinic

An interesting feature of the clinic was the presence of Miss Pearl G. Kennings of St. Paul, who represents the Minnesota Association for crippled children. Miss Kennings holds the position as visiting teacher for crippled adultes in the handicrafts and arts, visiting the patient in his own home once a month and teaches him handicraft. After the patient's work has been completed ,Miss Kennings takes arrangements for selling the products at the best possible price and returns the money to the patient. In other words, crippled adults throughout the state of Minnesota will have an opportunity to do something worth-while financially as well as something to keep them occupied and happy. This is a new permanent plan sponsored be the Minnesota Association for Crippled Children.

Mr. Harry J. Johnson, assistant director with the Minnesota Department of Re-education for disabled persons, and his assistant, Donald H. Nottage, psychological examiner of the Department of Re-education, also attended the clinic. Mr. Johnson interviewed all patients who, due to their disability, seemed to present a problem of unemployment or unhappy living conditions which could be remedied by re-education in some vocation.

Guests at the Clinic were Miss Cordelia Wilkon, nurse investigator of Red Lake County, Miss Zelma Peterson, nurse investigator of Marshall County, Dr. A. M. Smith of the St. Luke's Hospital, and Dr. Bernard of the Oakland Park Sanitorium.

Assisting Miss Lindgren with arrangements for the clinic were Mrs. Alfred Skarstad, Mrs. A. M. Smith, Miss Adele Holmstrom, and Miss Martha Storholm. Lunch was served to the patients throughout the day by the Thief River Falls Woman's Club.

This clinic was one of the largest of the orthopedic clinics which has been held in the state, and served as a wonderful opportunity for disabled persons to secure vocational guidance, medical assistance, and encouragement. It is well to remember that the Christmas seals which will be on sale during the month of December, pay the expenses of this clinic as well as the expenses which were incurred during the tuberculin testing of the local high school students last winter. The disbursement of the Christmas Seal money is easy to understand when one considers how extensively it has been used in our own community.

FARWELL PARTY

A large group of friends and the Woman's Missionary Society of the Augustana Lutheran Church gathered at the home of Rev. H. L. Sjogren last Thursday afternoon in honor of Senator Laura Naplin, being in the nature of a farewell party. Mrs. Naplin was the recipient of a lovely gift from her friends presented her by Miss Agnes Sjogren. At the conclusion of the afternoon luncheon was served by Mrs. Sjogren, Mrs. Oscar Peterson, and Miss Agnes Longren.

FOR SEN. LAURA NAPLIN.

A group of approximately 30 friends and members of the W. C. T. U. gathered at the home of Senator Laura E. Naplin Thursday evening, the occasion being in the form of a farewell party as Mrs. Naplin left Sunday for St. Paul where she will be employed in the state capitol. The evening was spent in various contests, games and community singing, after which luncheon was served by the guests. As a token of remembrance, Mrs. Naplin was presented with an imported WCTU pin of mother of pearl.

Senator Naplin and her daughter Arloine were entertained at a six o'clock dinner at the home of Mrs. Thora H. Nelson on Thursday evening.

Grafton Again Trims Locals in First Game

For the fifth consecutive year, the Lincoln high school Prowler eleven were defeated by the Grafton squad in a football game at Lincoln field on Saturday afternoon, the score being 30 to 0.

Neither team scored in the first quarter, but beginning in the second quarter the Grafton eleven crossed the Prowler goal for five touchdowns in the remaining quarters.

Whalen, outstanding athlete of track and football on the Grafton team, did most of the scoring for his team. The Prowlers displayed strong powers of defence, while Captain Tom Fuller, Wayne Kielty, Jim VanPelt, and Arnt Wold were the key men on the team.

Aftr having their fighting spirits aroused, the Prowlers have high hopes of "bringing home the bacon" in the game with East Grand Forks which will be played off Friday afternoon September 28, at the Lincoln field.

Sanders Club Will See Movie Show Thurs. Oct. 4

Free movies including geographic educational motion pictures and several comedies will be sponsored by the Sanders 4-H club in the East Sanders schoolhouse, District 73, on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock October 4th. Mr. Hathaway will present the movies in behalf of the local Red Owl store.

The Hazel 4-H club will sponsor the exhibition at the Gerardy school house in Wyandotte on Wednesday Oct. 3. This club also will serve lunch after the program.

Constitution Is In No Danger; Lundeen

Speaking before the student body of Edison High School, Minneapolis at the request of the school's board of governors of Thursday, September 20 Congressman Ernest Lundeen called attention to the present day view of the Constitution as an instrument to protect human rights above property rights. Following are portions of his speech:

"If anyone wants to do something for the unemployed or part-time unemployed, or to establish a system of old age pension legislation, he is called socialist or communistic. Many people are worried about the Constitution. I am convinced that we do not have to worry about the American constitution or the American flag. When all this legislation has been put into effect, the American flag will still be flying, and the American Constitution will still stand. I believe that the American Constitution is flexible —that it will fit in with the forward movement of the great American nation. We do not need to think that the Constitution is so rigid that it is going to break. The Constitution will uphold social legislation.

"If you do away with unemployment in this country, give jobs to the people out of work, you will not have radicalism. When property rights and human rights conflict, I believe the American Constitution will protect human rights against property rights."

Congressman Lundeen expressed his deep interest in education and his opposition to retrenchment in education and the cutting of teachers' salaries. He predicted that in future years, "after the panic is over," a new problem would arise: that of deciding whether emergency legislation should remain on the statute books and become permanent.

Malcolm Skoglund Has Close Call in Wreck

Malcolm Skoglund of Roseau, Minnesoa, brother of Ted and Edna Skoglund of this city, escaped with his life in a near-catastrophe last Thursday evening near Roseau. While driving at a high speed the panel truck for the Skoglund Cleaning establishment of Roseau, Mr. Skoglund lost control of the car, resulting in his being forcibly thrust through the roof of the car to the telephone wires above, breaking them and landing on the ground 14 feet below sustained only a slightly fractured skull and bruises. He was unconscious for over a day however.

The truck continued to rool over and over, finally coming to a stop in a smashed and battered heap. A passing motorist assisted Mr. Skoglund to a Roseau hospital, where, according to the last reports, he is said to be recovering nicely.

VOLUME THREE NUMBER 26 — THIEF RIVER FALLS, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA. — THURSDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1934

ORDINANCE TO ZONE THE CITY GETS READING

Season's Coal Contracts Are Let to O'Hara and McLaughlin

An ordinance with respect to the proposed zoning of Thief River Falls into an industrial, a commercial, and a residential district was read at the city council meeting Friday, September 28.

This is "An ordinance for the purpose of promoting health, safety, order, and general welfare, by regulating the use of land, the location and the use of buildings on lots, and the density of population in the city of Thief River Falls."

The proposed industrial area will include the section between Atlantic and Davis Avenue, and also part of the area south of First street between Knight Avenue and the river. Included in the commercial district is the section between First and Fourth streets and Knight and Atlantic avenues. The remainder of the city will be designed as the residential district.

Other clauses and provisions are included in the ordinance and should it be adopted, it would be enforced by the city fire marshall.

After considering several bids for supplying coal for the city buildings, the council awarded the contract for supplying approximately 125 tons of screenings at $8.50 per ton to the O'Hara Fuel and Ice Company. The bid from the Red Lake Ice and Fuel Company for approximately 100 tons of Pocahontas lump coal at $9.50 per ton was approved.

Harry Hendrickson was designated by the council as lineman for the water and light department of the city at a salary of $110. per month, as prescribed by a salary resolution.

NRS STATISTICS SHOW PLACEMENTS IN AUG. AND SEPT.

According to a statistical report issued this week by the district office of the National Reemployment Service, over 400 workers were placed on farms thru five offices in district No. 1 during August and September. The distribution of placements made by the five county offices are as follows: Roseau 32, Marshall 133, Pennington 79, Red Lake 61, and Polk 111.

The majority of the 400 placements were for harvesting and threshing and vegetable pickers. Placements also included dairy hands, general farm workers, herdsmen and hay hands.

These figures represent only the number of placements actually confirmed by the farmer. Many have not yet reported whether or not they have hired the labor referred them by the NRS office and they are urged to do so at once.

Local workers were given first opportunity for the openings and, when not available, workers from the drouth areas were sent out.

In addition to the actual placing of the farm labor, the reemployment offices have given out valuable information thru their clearance system saving the unemployed workers much time and travel.

Grand Jury Indicts Rush McAllister for Criminal Assault After Hearing

After hearing the testimony of 25 witnesses, the county grand jury returned an indictment on criminal assult charge Wednesday afternoon against Rush McAllister in connection with the death of Mrs. McAllister on March 18. Arraignment of McAllister was set for Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

In court, Monday the case of Thomas Ellefson vs. William Sandeen was dismissed as was the case of Rush McAllister vs. Julien Provencher and the cases of the state of Minnesota vursus Oliver Ronning, Achie Vraa and James H. Cross. Edward and Albin Holmgren pleaded not guilty to a second degree grand larceny charge in connection with the Borchert-Hill Motor Company, last winter.

Mrs. Thelma Holm Erickson will be the accompanist for the musical numbers.

PROWLERS DOWN THE EASTSIDERS IN FAST GRIDIRON TILT FRIDAY

The East Grand Forks eleven went down to defeat by the Lincoln high school Prowlers, 7-0 in a closely contested game last Friday.

No scoring was done in the first quarter by either team. In the second play in the second quarter, the Prowlers scored a touchdown with a pass from Van Pelt to Capt. Fuller, the latter carrying the ball over the line. This was followed by Bradley kicking an extra point. Neither team made any headway in the third and fourth quarters altho East Grand Forks came back strongly in the fourth quarter.

The next game on the Prowler schedule is a tilt with Warren on Friday, Oct. 5, at 3:30 p. m. on the local gridiron at Lincoln Field.

INSULL, UTILITY KING FACES JURY IN TRIAL ON U. S. MAIL FRAUD

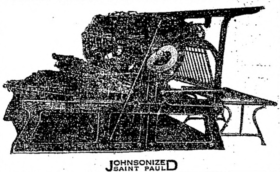
Afer the temporary seating of the jurors in the federal court trial of Samuel Insull and his 16 co-defendants, in Chicago this week the government and defense attorneys began a rigid questioning of them.

Insull is charged with using the United States mails to defraud thousands of investors who bought $143,000,000 in stocks in his Corporation Securities Company by promising a six to eight per cent return, when the company was in truth operating at a loss.

Among the sixteen defendants implicated with Insull are Stanley Field, banker and nephew of the late Marshall Field, Chicago merchant; Harold Leonard Stuart and Chas. J. B. Stuart, president and vice president, respectively of Halsey Stuart and Company, nationally known banking house.

The jury is composed of farmers and small businessmen.

THE FORUM INSTALLS NEW PRESS



A Babcock press with attached Omaha folder was installed in the Forum shop last week. The new machine, upon which this issue is printed was rebuilt in the shops of C. I. Johnson Manufacturing company at St. Paul and was erected here by their machinery erector, Geo. Gruner.

The new press will cut down the press time required to print the Forum on the present basis of circulation by about six hours and will in addition fold the papers ready for addressing. The Diamond two page we formerly used had no folder and the hand folding required several hours employing four persons.

PACKED HOUSE SEE DRY PLAY HERE SUNDAY

Local Cast Show Histrionic Abilily in Gripping Court Scene

Indicative of the interest aroused in this vicinity by the anti-saloon drama "Prisoner at the Bar," was the fact that it was presented to a packed auditorium last Sunday evening.

The drama was given by 21 local citizens, assisted by Dr. R. N. Holsaple of Minneapolis, superintendent of the state anti-saloon league. Outstanding in their characterizations were Morris Bye as the state's attorney, G. H. Mayer-Aakes as the defendant, W. G. Claffy as the clerk of court, A. E. Carlson as the prisoner, Andrew Bottelson as the court bailiff, V. C. Noper as the sheriff, Mrs. J. M. Bishop as the principal witness, L. R. Lanning as the fingerprint expent, and Marilyn Noper as the prisoner's daughter. Included with Roger Dooley is chairman on the jury were eleven other local people.

LA FOLLETTE PARTY LEADS REPUBLICANS

Madison, Wis., Oct. 2. The new Progressive party, headed by the La Follette brothers, polled 60,094 votes less than the Democrats and 13,036 votes more than the Republicans in the September 18 primary, an unofficial tabulation by the secretary of state Monday showed. The contests for gubernatorial nominations drew the largest number of votes, 562,607. The division was as follows: Democrat, 222,306; Progressive, 162,212; Republican, 149,179, and Socialist, 28,913.

Olson Charges Regan Is Using 7 Sets of Figures

Lake City, Minn. — Governor Floyd B. Olson, in a recent address at Lincoln church, 10 miles south of here, charged that John E. Regan, his Democratic opponent for the governorship, has "used seven different sets of figures in his attacks on the financial record of the Farmer-Labor administration of Minnesota." More than 1,000 people from the adjacent farming community heard the talk.

After pointing out that the last legislature at his direction reduced appropriaions by 7,000,000, the governor said:

"If the charges of our Democratic and Republican opponents are true it is up to them to see that somebody is put in jail. If they can prove that we spent more than we appropriated, the law clearly offers them that course. But the fact is that they cannot make good their charges in actuality we have reduced expenditures."

Governor Olson attacked the sources of the campaign funds of the Republican party.

"These wealthy interests that are contributing to the Republican campaign fund," he said, "are doing so in the expectation that favors will be returned. They cast this bread upon the water in the hope that it will be returned by the truckload."

Bemidji Teachers College President Addressed P T A

M. W. Deputy, president of the Bemidji State Teachers College was the principal speaker at the regular meeting of the Parent-Teachers association Monday evening, speaking on "Education in a Changing World." Mr. Deputy advocated that education be adapted to the changing conditions of today and that the children should be trained to meet these conditions.

A resume of the summer's activities of the P. T. A. girls' recreational project was given by Miss Harriet Helquist, who was in charge of the activity. Musical selections were supplied by the seventh grade chorus and the high school girls' glee club under the direction of Miss Erma Springen, Miss Alice Bredeson also sang a solo.

Three delegates were elected to represent the PTA association at the district Parent-Teachers convention at Erskine on October 12. Those elected were Mrs. Theodore Quale, Mrs. Fred Protz, and Mrs. Albert Swanson. Chosen as delegate to the state PTA convention at Albert Lea was Mrs. T. C. Orme with Mrs. Gaston Ward as alternate.

H. J. Olson of Muskegon, Michigan visited at the C. H. Helquist home on Sunday.

FARMERS UNION HEAD TO SPEAK HERE TUES. EVE.

Robert Miller, President Of Minnesota Unit Will Address Farmers

Robert Miller, State President of the Minnesota Farmers' Union will speak at the Old Elks Hall in this city on Tuesday evening, October 9th, at eight o'clock.

One of the foremost men in the farm organizations of the state, Mr. Miller is a liberal, progressive battler for the producers and will deliver a message to the farmers of the county which is of vital importance to them.

The Farmers' Union is a bona fide farmer organization which only farmers can join, and which operates cooperative stock yards, oil companies, and grain elevators throut North Dakota, Montana and Minnesota.

Mr. Miller was the convener of the Minnesota conference of the Continental Congress which was held in Minneapolis in August, 1933. He is a fiery speaker and farmers will find it well worth their time to come and hear him.

Admission is free, and the public is invited to attend. A special invitation is extended to the farmers.

ROCKSBURY CLUB ALL-PARTY RALLY SUNDAY OCT. 7th

All Candidates Are Invited To Come and Meet The Voters

The All-Party rally sponsored by the Rocksbury Community club will be held at Valhall Sunday, Oct. 7th, and arrangements are under way to accomodate one of the largest gatherings ever assembled at Valhall according to Paul Engelstad, president of the club.

Mr. Engelstad states that he has assurance that some one to represent the different parties has been made. This rally is a "New Deal" in politics; one in which the Rocksbury Community club has undertaken to play the host to all candidates, regardless of party or political affiliation; one in which fair play and sound cooperation by the voters and taxpayers will save money, and time for all concerned, Mr. Engelstad said.

Several musical selections will be provided by the St.Hilaire band, and other entertainment will also be presented in order to balance the program. A refreshment stand will be maintained by the Rocksbury club.

All interested candidates and citizens are cordially invited to attend this rally, Mr. Engelstad stated.

Entries for the Butter Contest to be Held at Dairyman's Meet Break Records

Premier Mussolini of Italy may not attend the Red River Vally Dairymen's convention here on the 17 and 18, but he will know all about it anyway, according to C. M. Pesek, secretary of the association. Inquiries about the activities of the organization have come to him from all over the world, Mr. Pesek states, and cites in particular one coming from the "Institut International d' Agriculture" of Villa Umberto, Rome, Italy. The inquiring organization is preparing a special publication on dairy research and request information from the Red River Valley group.

Mr. Pesek states that the butter contest has broken all previous records for number of entries. Tubs of butter for the competition have arrived from all parts of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and North Dakota. In addition, several samples have been received from Manitoba Canada, submitted for judging purposes. Over 120 entries have arrived at the local creamery.

One of the features of the convention will be a milking contest for the Milkmaids Championship of the Red River Valley. Five cows are wanted for this event which will be staged in front of the city auditorium at one o'clock on Thursday. Anyone interested in supplying the bovines should communicate with Stuart McLeod at the local Land O' Lakes plant. They must hold enough milk to keep a real "she woman" milkmaid busy for not less than three minutes, Mr. McLeod says.

A complete program of the entire convention will appear in next week's Forum.

Mesdames Pederson And Caldis are Auxiliary Hostesses

There will be a regular meeting of the Legion Auxiliary in the Legion club rooms on Thursday, October 4, and plans for the fall festival will be discussed. Hostesses will be Mrs. P. G. Pederson, and Mrs. J. Caldis.

Don't forget that the membership drive is on. How long will it take us to go over the top?

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Thompson and son Howard of Kelvington, Sask., Canada are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Fossum. Mrs. Thompson is a sister of Mrs. Fossum's.

Brick Work Is Started On New Land O'Lakes Addition

Cement work on the new addition to the Land O' Lakes plant has now been completed, and carpenters are laying the first floor joists. Brick work has also begun, in the hope of completing the new building before the rush season in poultry and turkeys arrives.

WOMEN'S SESSION TO HEAR NOTED SPEAKERS THURSDAY OCT. 18

Governor Floyd B. Olson will address the women of the community at a special meeting on Thursday October 18, in the Civic and Commerce rooms following his speech in the main auditorium.

Others scheduled to speak at this special women's meeting are Miss Julia Newton, specialist in Home Economics from the University of Minnesota, who will speak on "The Home in the New Era", and culinary arts will be explained by Miss Retta Bede of the Home Economics department of the Crookston Agricultural College.

Community singing will be led by Mrs. V. C. Noper, and piano selections will be rendered by Mrs. Mildred Engen Hamilton. Mrs. Lee Beebe of St. Hilaire will preside as chairman of the afternoon's program.

Engineers and Public Officials Will Meet

The attendance of the county engineers, and county assistant engineers under the ERA, county board members, city and village officials is desired at a meeting to be held Friday, October 5, at 10 A. M. for a general discussion of the ERA work program, according to an announcement this week by H. I. Frisbie, 3rd district engineer under the State Emergency Relief Administration.

Farmer-Labor Women Will Sponsor Radio Social Saturday Eve.

The Thief River Falls Farmer-Labor Women's club will sponsor a social at the court room Saturday evening. A radio will be installed and tuned in on Governor Floyd B. Olson's keynote speech which will be delivered in the St. Paul auditorium that evening beginning at 9 o'clock. The social which starts at 7:30, will also feature talks by Judge James E. Montague of Crookston, Representative W. E. Day of Bagley, Representative J. O. Melby of Oklee, and H. O. Berve. Fred C. Proehl and Paul A. Harris of this city.

The ladies of the club will serve a lunch after the program, and the public is invited to attend. There will be no charge.

Bird Expert Talks To Grade Children Mon.

The city grade school children were addressed on Monday, October 1st at the auditorium by J. P. Jensen of Dassel, Minn., an authority on birds. Mr. Jensen gave an interesting and highly informative talk illustrated by mounted specimens of birds.

SEN. SHIPSTEAD WILL DEDICATE BRIDGE OCT. 19

Highway Commissioner N.W Elsberg Will Also Participate In Cerimonies

Governor Floyd B. Olson will address the Red River Valley Dairymen's Association at the auditorium on Thursday afternoon, October 18 in connection with the Decade of Progress celebration which will be held in this city October 17 through the 20.

United States Senator Henrik Shipstead will speak on the dedicatory program of the new bridge on Friday, October 19, and H. W. Ellsberg, state highway commissioner will also be present.

Of unusual interest will be the illuminated parades on Wednesday evening, October 17 and on Saturday, October 20, featuring the Thief River Falls municipal and high school bands, the Thief River Falls American Legion Auxiniarly drum corps, the St. Hilaire and Holt bands, the Bagley drum corps, and floats entered by the different business and community organizations.

The second day of the celebration will be devoted mainly to the convention program of the dairymen, including features such as a butter judging contest and a Red River Valley championship dairymaid's milking contest at 1 p. m. in front of the auditorium.

An indoor circus will offer entertainment during the last two days of the celebration, and outstanding orchestras have been engaged to furnish dance music all four evenings.

DISTRICT P T A WILL MEET AT ERSKINE OCT. 12

Mesdames Quale, and Protz And Albert Swanson Are Delegates

Delegates and members of the 16th district Parent-Teacher Association will meet at Erskine on Friday, October 12 for an annual district convention, which will include representatives from Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake and Polk counties. The three delegates representing the local PTA will be Mrs. Theodore Quale, Mrs. Fred Protz, and Albert Swanson.

Included on the program of speakers are Mrs. E. L. Baker, state president of the PTA, Mrs. C. L. Roe of Washington, D. C. who is the national field secretary, Dr. Esther McGinnis who is connected with the Child welfare department of the University of Minnesota, and Mr. Beck of the Bemidji state teachers college.

Musical selections will be offered by the Erskine juvenile band, glee club, and community orchestra, and the Odin male chorus of Fertile.

Miss Harriet Helquist of this city will speak on the recreation period, and Mrs. Andy Williamson and Miss Barbara McLaughin also of this city will present a brief skit Agroup of Pennington county 4-H tion of their club work.

Mrs. B. O. Norby, chairman of district 16, urges everyone interested in children to attend this meeting, as it is a chance to meet, talk over problems and inspire each other to another year of effort in behalf of the children.
in behalf of the children.

Relief funds amounting to $18,700 have been paid during the past six months by the Pennington county relief office, in addition to $2,000 for non-relief labor, according to a statement made this week by Orville E. Olson, poor overseer.

Mr. Olson said that taking the average for the country, the federal government contributes 60 per cent of relief funds, the state 15 per cent and the local units of government contribute 25 per cent.

An effort has been made, Mr. Olson said, to get all clients to give work in exchange for relief granted them, and practically all recipients of aid have done this. Of the total amount advanced during the six months ending Sept. 1 for relief, $11,288 is represented by work projects.

The local relief office records show a total of 168 relief cases last March, 295 in June and 196 in August, the last number including 165 families. The majority of the cases are in and adjoining Thief River Falls, only a few residents of the rural area receiving aid.

A consultation is held with each family once a month regarding its budget and other related matters.

"Putting Up With It" Days Gone With Housing Act Advantages

The outworn habit of "putting up with what we have" should disappear under the housing plan. Women are ever so weary of looking at the old front porch, wishing for a new one, sighing and saying, "We'll just have to put up with it" Those dreary "puttin up with it days" may be discarded to the everlasting joy of the whole family

Such a variety of things can be done to the interior and exterior of the house under the flexible provisions of the repairing and reconditioning section of the National Housing Act which is now operating, that every home may add something new now.

Borrowing money for home repairs is a comparatively new idea to American home owners. Loans for all movable things are common but not so for those things that become a permanent part of the home. Under the new government plan it is practical to do this and economical to borrow enough money to make all the needed repairs and improvements.

First things come first with the practical American housewife and those things will be given immediate attention—those leaky roofs, torn or dangerous stairway treads. fire hazards, etc. The same budget which provides for these essentials may be enlarged to include some other needed repairs that have been so long neglected—that floor for the attic or partition for the basement. Making all these improvements, purchasing all the needed new equipment with one loan, effects an appreci ble saving over the old method of doing each little job or making each little purchase seperately.

Federal Inspectors Condemning Cream

District No. 8 of the Minnesota Cream Quality Improvement Committee, which has been organized because of the activities of the Federal Government in making a strenuous campaign in the improving of quality from the farm, met at Crookston, Thursday, September 27th, to formulate plans to help the dairy men in this district improve their quaility so as not to be condemned by the Federal Government Inspectors.

The Committee is comprised of: C. M. Pesek Crookston State dairy and Food Dept.; R. J. deWaard Crookston Assn. of Centralizers; Julius Lerud, Twin Valley, Minn. Assn. of Local Crys.; S. L. Hauge, Bagley, Minn. Cry. Oprs. & Mgrs. Assn.; P. Storwick, Red Lake Falls, N. W. Creamery Owners Assn.; B. J. Ommodt, Thief River Falls, Land O' Lakes Creameries, Inc.

A vigorous educational campaign is to be conducted throughout this territory. Another meeting is planned at Thief River Falls, in connection with the Red River Valley Dairymen's Association Annual Convention, where Mr. Leonard Hauske, representing the State Committee has been asked to speak on this subject.

The following is an article appearing in the "Dairy Record" of this week, which illustrates the importance of quick action on the part of all interested in dairying in this territory, and which brings before the dairymen the importance of adhering strictly to the regulations as set forth by the Federal Government:

"Inspectors of the federal Food and Drug Administration announced that the Administration's work up to this time was merely forerunner of what was to come and that severity will be the rule when they 'come around again.'

Despite that leniency, no less than 14% of one St. Paul creamery's receipts for a day were ordered condemned this week while in several other creameries the seizures ran as high as 10%.

Two squads of inspectors are still in Minnesota, one of them is making a flying trip inspection through the northern part of the State, while the second group is calling on creameries in the southern half."

Saar Commission Weighs Plebiscite Dangers

Saarbruecken (TIS)—The rapidly mounting political tension in the Saar Territory is watched with alarm by the government commission as well as by the anti-Nazi press. After months of ceaseless Nazi propaganda and provocations, a climax was reached in the recent Hitler mass demonstration at Coblenz, just outside the Saar frontiers..

While Hitler's claim of a 99% vote are dismounted, it is feared that even the control of the Saar plebiscite will meet with serious complications. Circles close to the Saar commission speak of a plan to seal all ballot boxes immediately after the closing of the pols and to send them in specially protected railroad cars to Geneva where they will be opened and counted by the League authorities. After the count all ballots will be destroyed so as not to give the winning side a chance to retaliate against its political foes.

Highway Patrolmen Take Pistol Trophy

Competing against the best police marksmen in Minnesota, the state highway patrol Team No. 1, won the event trophy in the state pistol and revolver championships recently conducted at Fort Snelling. The patrol officers' score was 992 out of a possible 1000. The team was made up of Lawrence Thrun of Moose Lake, former state individual champion, Richard Pursley, Garnet Hall and Sylvester Porter. A second highway patrol team made up of Arthur Ousley, William Soderstrom, Ed. Cummings, and Henry Sorby, finished fifth with a score of 888. Municipal, federal and state marksmen competed.

Flax Cultivated in Stone Age

The cultivation and preparation of flax is among the most ancient of industries, traces of their existence during the stone age being preserved to this day. It was grown 4,000 or 5,000 years ago in Mesopotamia.

"My People Are Destroyed For Lack of Knowledge"

By W. G. Calderwood

The people of the United States voted for repeal in the belief that repeal would improve conditions, economically, socially and morally. Suppose that Postmaster General Farley and the rest of the repealists had gone before the voters and said:

"If you vote repeal, there will be an immediate and shocking increase in drunkenness and the evils that are inseperable from it.

"There will be appaling debauchery of women, youth and high-school students, filling the press with stories of shame and sorrow.

"The alcoholic wards of our city hospitals will again be filled with men and women suffering from delirium tremens and our "liquor cure" institutions will be unable to accomodate the inebriates who go to them for help.

"In spite of a decrease in registration of automobiles and in consumption of gasoline, traffic accidents and fatalities will climb to new high records. Drunken driving will be multiplied thruout the nation in spite of the new mechanical safety devises and intensive safety "drives" all over the nation.

"The taxes which will be automatically repealed by the adoption of prohibition will be promptly reenacted by congress and revenue from liquor will be largely absorbed in a futile attempt to enforce the law.

"Bootleggers and bootlegging will increase and the Federal Director of Alcohol Control will be compelled to confess that moonshiners are making more booze than the legalized distilleries.

"The liquor traffic, which promises that it will observe and obey any reasonable regulations will run rampant over every pledge and flout every restriction. The results will be so scandalous, revolting, and disgusting that thousands of honest repealists will turn against the measure, and states and localites which voted strongly for repeal will support local and state prohibition by overwhelming majorities."

If Farley and the other repealists had told the true results of repeal as already proven, repeal could not have carried a single state.

New Manual For School Safety Use

An announcement, from those most keenly interested in the public safety education movement in Minnesota, of the completion of a manual designed to be used as a textbook on public safety in junior high and high schools of the state was made today by W. F. Rosenwald, chairman of a special committee on safety education in schools, which supervised and directed the preparation of the manual. It is designed to make safety consciousness permeate the dairy activities of students, Mr. Rosenwald, who is chief maintenance engineer of the state highway department, indicated.

Four objectives mhich governed the selection of material for the manual are stated as follows: "to develop habits of personal safety and a consciousness and responsibility for the safety of others, to acquaint students with the rules of the road, to develop respect for community regulations and enforcement officers, and to develop knowledge of common causes of accidents and wyys to prevent accidents."

Further information, in the statement released on this subject, indicates the manual now in process of being printed will be made available to all teachers in junior high schools and high schools, and be placed in libraries of those schools, through the cooperation of the state department of education.

Moths Are Productive

Like all pests, the common clothes moth is tenacious of life. In the course of research, the authors state, it was found that one female deposited as many as 221 eggs. Specimens which were actually starved for four months during the larval, pupal, and chrysalis stages emerged, nevertheless, as active moths at the end.

Swenson, Surber At Montreal Meetings

Minnesota's Department of Conservation was represented by Erling Swenson, Director of Game and Fish, and Dr. Thaddeus Surber, Superintendent of Fish Propagation for the Division, at the annual convention of the International Association of Game, Fish and Conservation Commissioners recently held in Montreal, Canada. Both also attended meetings of the American Fisheries Society held in connection.

Director Swenson and Dr. Surber report a successful convention with latest methods of wild life restoration and conservation discussed by nationally recognized authorities.

Drouth Seriousness Reflected In Leases

An index of the serious effects of the prolonged drouth in certain parts of Minnesota may be had from the fact that up to September 15, a total of 135,000 acres of state trust fund lands had been leased for hay and pasture purposes. That this figure will be materially increased before the season ends and winter sets in is a foregone conclusion, according to F. A. Wildes, Director of the Division of Lands and Minerals.

"In 1933, when lack of rainfall began to make itself felt, our division leased 56,000 acres of public lands to alleviate critical feed conditions for Minnesota livestock, Mr. Wildes said, "In normal years the demand for hay stumpage and pasture on state-owned lands runs to only a few thousand acres per year.

"Late this past spring, a serious shortage of pasture became apparent in many southern and western Minnesota counties. Our entire field force was set to work scouting for suitable areas for pasture and hay. It developed early that there was scarcely enough available areas to meet the needs of stricken farmers of the state and on leases were issued for stock from outside Minnesota.

"All suitable areas, whether state-owned or not, were reported to federal agencies with an estimate of the number of heads of stock such areas were capable of sustaining. The state reserved the right to lease all state lands within such areas. As a result many thousands of cattle and other livestock were quartered on such state-owned lands.

"With most farmers limited in funds, the rental was placed at only ten cents per acre for the year. Acreage so leased was limited to actual needs as far as possible. As the drouth continued, the demand for hay stumpage and pasture increased and our efforts were doubled to meet the crisis in the most economical way posible."

High Labor Official Is Dismissed

DRESDEN (TIS)—The recently announced "purge" of the German Labor Front by its leader, Dr. Ley is in full swing. One of the latest and most prominent victims is Dr. Brueckner, a high official in the Ministry of Labor and Nazi head of the federation of workers' sick and death benefit fund organizations as well as of all other similar bodies thruout Germany. A number of his aides have also been dismissed.

Land Bank Helps 55 Minnesota Farmers Buy Back Farms

Nine years ago a settler up in Minnesota's peaty soils made a loan on his 10-acre farm, that he was able to carry along until last year, when combined financial and crop setbacks cut short his plans for a home via the foreclosure route.

But today, because of a feature of the Emergency Farm Mortgage Act of 1933, this settler, now past 70 years of age, is again in possession of his farm. He has repurchased the farm with funds obtained on a Commissioner's loan through the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul. The buildings had got out of repair—how could it be otherwise in the period of hard years?—but the stones from the fields had been neatly piled up, and there was some tiling to bring into use the best of the soil.

This settler, now too old to work the farm himself, will be helped by his son, who has moved onto the place with him, and who has a clerical position which will help tide over the tough spots until the farm can produce some income again.

Perhaps most of the owners of farms on which mortgages had been forclosed do not realize that congress has provided means for them to borrow funds for repurchasing their farms, but some of them do and up to the beginning of September there had been 55 such repurchases effected in Minnesota, covering a total of 8,300 acres valued at more than $312,000.

All together in the states of Minnesota, Michigan, Wisconsin and and North Dakota there had been 208 farms recovered by their former owners, who had lost them through foreclosure and had given up hope of getting them back. These farms make a combined area of 36,000 acres and are valued at more than $971,000.

45 German Cities In State Of Distress

HAMBURG (TIS)—Despite the constantly proclaimed Nazi victories in the German employment battle, more and more cities are forced to surround themselves with barriers against the influx of unemployed labor. Until now 45 German cities have been declared "in a state of distress' which means that unemployed workers from other parts of the country can no longer establish their residence there. Similarly, all non-residents who are unemployed will no longer be supported by social welfare agencies. Among the large cities affected are Bochum, Dortmund, Breslau, Kiel, Erfurt, Altona, Dusseldorf, Solingen, and other industrial cities.

Let's Have a Committee!

Presiden Roosevelt has settled the cotton texile srike. In fourteen mimeographed pages he has solved the problems of this industry. There are many interesting things in this report. First, the employers never agreed to accept it. Second even the President didn't agree to be bound by it. Yet upon completion of this masterly collection of useless words Roosevelt ordered the strikers back to work and killed the strike.

Taking our facts solely from this report we have analyzed below the demands of the strikers and the "solution" proposed by the committee which Roosevelt feels settled all issues.

Srike Demands and Answers

Demand

1. 6 hour day, 5 day week and same pay for 30 as for 40 hours at present.

Answer

1. Recommend that the Departmen of Labor and the Federal Trade Commission shall investigate and make their findings available. Then a hearing should be held to see if these conditions can be sustained.

Demand

2. Abolition of the stretch-out by limiting the number of machines that a worker shall run.

Answer

2. Recommend that the President shall call a hearing to propose an amendment to the code to provide for another national board to set up local boards to hear complaints. The national board shall study and make recommendations for amendment of the code to provide for a plan to regulate the stretch-out system.

Demand

3. Reinstatement of all employees discharged for union activities.

Answer

3. Recommend that complaints be heard by Textile Labor Relations Board.

Demand

4. Recognition of the union.

Answer

4. Not mentioned in the report.

Demand

5. Establishment of an official board to arbitrate disputes.

Answer

5. Another board shoud be appointed, but its authority and methods for enforcing its decisions are not given.

One of the principal reasons for this strike was the absolute failure of the National Recovery Administration, The Cotton Textile Code Authority, The Cotton Textile Industrial Relations Board and all the other committe and boards created to regulate this industry. The U. T. W. refused to have anything more to do with any of them as they all had the same failing—no backbone. There is not a single instance recorded in which any of these committees had ever told an employer "you cannot do that" and then enforcing their ruling. Yet Roosevelt feels that just a few more boards will fix up everything. That was also Hoover's way of dodging issues. After four years he was given a mandate to go to China, to go to England or to go anywhere else. Maybe Franklin can't remember back that far.

Of course to be absolutely fair to F. D. R. we must admit he can be definite when he wants to. Twice since the code the employers asked for a twenty-five per cent shut-dawn. They got it each time and they didn't have even one public hearing nor a single investigation board.

Forum advertising is bargain news.

How "A Great Financial Empire" Was Built

Synopsis of Testimony Developed in the Hearings On The Northwest Bancorporation

Change Front as to Group and Banks

In the early stages of the corporation much stress was laid by the officials and those promoting Northwest Bancorporation on the group banking plan as being entirely different from branch banking. Loud opposition, to any form of branch banking was continually voiced by these promoters, and the public was assured that the individual units of the group were to retain their corporate entirely, remain under local management, and that they were not a branch banking institution. When the organization had progreessed, however, to the point where the large number of stockholders had been taken in, "particularly for their influence on legislation," the situation assumed a different aspect. The key banks in the key communities were then under control, the officials, including Mr. Thomson, of the Northwest Bancorporation, had a sudden change of heart. "The trend of the times had changed" and to the astute minds of these individuals, branches reaching out from the key banks in to the key territories which they served, became a necessity in order to "serve the people." However, stress was not laid upon the fact that these branches would also drain the banking wealth of the community into the key banks of which they were branches, and which they were branches, and which key banks were in turn dominated ond controlled by the holding company, which these individuals at the request of George Dayton had appointed a committee tc determine the advisabiliy and the ways and means by which management control in their own hands could be retained.

The manner in which branch banking was to be authorized by the congress of the United States proved one of the high-lights of the investigation. Mr. Thomson was asked:

"Q. I will ask you if it isn't a fact that your corporation sent to Washington a man by the name of Gardner Perry in connection with matters of legislation pending in Washington during 1930 and 1931

"A. He was during a part of 1932. I think he was in 1932, he certainly was during a part of 1933."

The hearing also developed that there were various chain banking institutions who had obtained key banks in key communities and who likewise were no longer favorable to the group banking plan, but saw the possibilities in branch banking.

Advances Money for Legislative Work

Mr. Thomson was asked in respect to Mr. Perry:

"Q. He was there, was he not, representing yourselves. Likewise the Marine Midland Corporation of Buffalo, the First Bank Stock Corporation of Minneapolis, the First National Association of Atlanta, the Wisconsin Bank Shares of Milwaukee, the Old Colony Associates of Boston, the Financial Instituions or Portland, the U. S. National of Portland, the First Securities Corporation of Syracuse, the Shawmut Association of Boston, the Hamilton National of Chattanooga, the Marine Mancorporation of Seattle, the Old National Corporation of Spokane and the Guardian Group of Detroit?

"A. (By Thomson) * * * he certainly was there and certainly was advising them from time to time on progress of legislation and they certainly contributed a part of his expenses.

"Q. And your company, the Northwest Bancorporation, advanced the money until it could be collected, didn't it?

"A. I should assume that would be true, yes."

It seems, according to Mr. Thomson's testimany, that in June 1933, there was a meeting of all these chain bankers at Niagara Falls, New York, at which a certain amount of money was raised to assist in having congress authorize branch banking. That they were interested very much in obtaining branch legislation was very much in obtaining branch banking legislation was shown by a letter from Mr. Perry to Mr. Thomson dated July 10, 1932, and introduced as Commission's Exhibit 90-C, in which Mr. Perry in writing of Senator Carter Glass, who had introduced the Glass-Steagall Bill, said: "I understand that the senator is getting some special information together for virulent speech, and I am taking him down tomorrow a number of the editorials which have recently come out on branch banking which Jim Walsh (one of the chain bankers) has gone over with him and also suggest to the senator that this will be good ammunition for the Congressional Record."

It appears from the testimony introduced that the people connected with the Northwest Bancorporation and with the other chain banking groups that were mentioned, were very close to Senator Glass, at least the letters of Gardner B. Perry would so indicate. It likewise seems that they were quite close to the confidential adviser to the banking committee of the senate, one Parker Willis. The record discloses several confidentiol conferences. In a letter from Mr. Perry to Mr. Thomson, dated March 15, 1933, he stated that it only needs backbone to put through the branch banking legislation and I am sure that he will help in pressing this cause."

Sinclair Planks 'Busted' In Compromise With Democratic Machine

Sacramento, Cal.—By dropping his advocacy of old-age pensions, state-owned factories and communal farms, and changing the tax exemption of $3,000 on homes to the more modest figure of $1,000, Upton Sinclair succeeded in winning the support of the California Democratic organization for what was left of his "Epic" plan. The vote of the convention was 113 to 4, after William G. McAdoo and George Creel accepted the Sinclair plan as "modified."

George P. West, special correspondent for the New York Times reports that "Sinclair has developed since the election a tact that is amazing to those who knew him in other years as personnally amiable but publicly intransigent to the last degree."

Milen Dempster, candidate for the governorship on the Socialist ticket, has issued a statement pointing out that "the watering down Sinclair has already given his own program is just a beginning. By joining hands with the capitalistic Democratic party, Sinclair has turned his back on the prospect of helping to build a strong workers' movement without which it is impossible to 'end poverty in California' or anywhere else." Mr. Dempster said.

Highway Employment Reaches 4000 Men

The maintainance division of the state highway department is now employing 4,990 men on part time compared with an employment of 2,000 men on full time at this season in 1932, according to an official announcement by the department.

In 1932 the maintenance division with 2,000 full-time employees was caring for 6,700 miles of roads. This year the department is caring for more than 11,000 miles of highways with 4,000 part-time men. In other words, 65 per cent more mileage is being maintained without a corresponding increase in the total amount of labor. Owing to the severe unemployment situation, the department has simply spread its payroll among more workers by limiting the number of hours each man can be on the payroll in a given month.

Other employment by the department in July, 1934, including all construction contracts and direct labor jobs, but excluding maintenance, was approximately 10,000 persons. In July, 1932, the department's employment outside of maintenance work was 11,400.

"In discussing employment," said Commissioner Elsberg, "it should be remembered that the primary purpose of the federal government in giving Minnesota emergency funds for road construction was to provide as many jobs as possible. Federal regulations for construction are deliberately drawn up to increase the number of men at work by insistence on hand labor methods as much as practical."

Urge Fall Plans For New Houses

While the new building feature of the National Housing Act—that portion embracing the insurance of mortgages and establishment of national mortgage associations—probably will not become operative before the early part of next year, the Federal Housing Administration is actively engaged in laying the groundwork for this broad program. Administration offivials are urging those contemplating new work to consult with architects and builders this fall.

A family biulding a house must have in cash at least 29 per cent of the total value of the house and which is owned free and clear. Mortgage loans made on new and existing homes, to be approved for insurance, are limited to a maximum of $16,000 representing not more than 80 per cent of the appraised value. They are to be amortized over a period of not more than 20 years.

Marriage in Japan

There is no religious element in the Japanese wedding ceremony except the reference to ancestor-worship in the girl's name being expunged from her family line and then placed under the protection of the ancestors of her husband. The state has nothing to do with marriages except to require a police registration similar to that required for a birth or a death. This certificate costs 15 cents. All that is required to end an unsatisfactory marriage is the consent of the families involved—and another 15-cent registration.—Upton Close, in Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Huge Ralry At St.Paul Auditorium To Feature Olson's Keynote Speech

Plans were completed this week for the huge rally in the St. Paul auditorium where Governor Floyd B. Olson will deliver his keynote address from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m., Saturday, Oct. 6th.

Governor Olson will be introduced by Senator Emil L. Regnier, state Campaign manager, who also will introduce all other state Farmer-Labor candidates, who will be seated on the stage.

A musical program will precede the speaking program. Governor Olson will speak over a four-station radio hook-up from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. His address will be carried over WCCO, Minneapolis and St. Paul; WEBC, Duluth; WDAY, Fargo, and WNAX, Yankton, S. Dak.

The Farmer-Labor party together with the All-Party Olson organization, is sponsoring the rally.

Governor Olson's speaking engagements for the balance of the campaign will be announced following the keynote address, Senator Regnier said.

Corn-Hog Vote Taken This Week

Nineteen thirty-four is twice an election year for Pennington county farmers—at least for those who have signed corn-hog reduction contracts.

With the election of candidates for county, state and federal offices only one month away, political matters naturally loom large in the public mind, but from Oct. 1, to Oct. 3, of this week, at least, politics will be forgotten while the corn-hog signers gather in community meetings and cast their ballots for or against continuing the corn-hog reduction program in 1935.

Similar elections will be held in every important corn and hog raising county thruout the United States this week and next, and the results will be used by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in deciding whether or not the reduction program shall be continued for another year.

The question on which corn-hog signers will vote are as follows:

Do you favor an adjustment program dealing with corn and hogs in 1935?

Do you favor a one-contract-per-farm adjustment program dealing with grains and livestock to become effective in 1936?

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration explains that the first question deals only with the principle of production adjustment, without regard to any specific program. A 1935 program, however, would probably follow the general plan of the 1934 program and would include adjustment payments on both corn and hogs. Such payments would probably be somewhat larger for corn acreage reduction and materially less for hog reduction than they were in 1934. Contracted acres could be used without restrictions for any hay, pasture, forage, fallow or woodlot purpose. "Basic" crops (corn, wheat, barley, rye, flax and grain sorghums) would not be produced upon contracted acres. The reduction from the 1932-33 base would not be greater than that required in 1934 and might be less.

The second question involves using a single contract covering all basic crops grown on an individual farm, instead of seperate contracts for individual crops. It might or might not include control over livestock production.

Chairmen of the comunity corn-hog committees have charge of the community elections. Before taking the ballot, they explain the feed and livestock situation to give producers the facts before they decide whether or not the control program is to be continued.

After the election, the community chairmen will forward the results to the county chairman, who will tabulate the county results and forward them to the state A A A headquarers at University Farm, St. Paul. There the state results will be tabulated and sent on to Washington.

Anton Dybvig Passes Away Wednesday September 26th

At the age of 66 years, Anton Andreason Dybvig passed away at his home Wednesday, Sept. 26 at 12:03 following an illness of only a few days.

Mr. Dybvig was born in Tronheim, Norway, on November 7, 1867, and came to this country when a young man. He remained in Boston for some time, later coming to Minnesota where his marriage to Miss Laura Caroline Hanson took place at Sundal, Minnesota on November 18, 1897. In 1902 they moved to this city where Mr. Dybvig was employed with the Winton Nichols lumber company, and later with the ter Prichard Lumber Co. with which latter company he has been connected with for about fifteen years. He was a member of the Trinity Lutheran church and the Tronheim Lag.

Surviving Mr. Dybvig are his wife; five sons, Harry of International Falls, Clarence of Beaumont, Texas, Norman of St. Paul, Alfred of Fargo, and Donald of this city; and three daughters, Mrs. Ralph Thomas of Winnebago, Mrs. Rodney Kalbfleisch of Bemville, Kentucky.

Funeral services were held from home Saturday afternoon at 1:30 and from the Trinity Lutheran church at 2:00 o'clock. Interment was made in the Greenwood cemetery.

THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA
Official Paper of Pennington County
MEMBER NORTH STAR PRESS ASS'N.

Published Thursday of each week by the FORUM PUBLISHING COMPANY
R. M. Aalbu, Editor. Bernice Berge, City Editor

Citizens State Bank Building,
Thief River Falls, Minnesota

Subscription, $1.00 a year in the United States

"Entered as second-class matter, April 27, 1932, at the post office at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, under Act of March 3, 1897."

With this issue, the Forum steps up in size from six to seven columns. We hope that our readers and friends will like the new size. We also hope that we may be pardoned if we are inclined to be just a little bit "chesty" over the growth that has been ours since we started out with the little mimeograph sheet two and a half years ago.

We feel that we owe a great deal to the people of the community who have so loyally and staunchly stood by us with their support, both moral and financial. To them and their efforts is due the credit for the expansion which has been made possible from time to time. It belies the statement made to us by a newspaperman, shortly after we launched the Forum when he said that to publish a people's newspaper is a thankless task. We have not found it so. The expressions of commendation that has come to us during these past two and a half years have been very gratifying, and the fact that five hundred new subscribers have been added to our list during the past five months should be living proof that they have not been "spoofing" us.

We believe that this support has come to us because we have refused to compromise with corruption; because we have adhered to our ideals, and fought for our principles. We believe that our readers have appreciated our battles for the cause of the common man; the farmers and the workers, and a bigger, and broader, and fuller life for those who toil.

At this time, we renew our covenant with our readers. We shall continue to publish the very best and newsiest paper that is possible to produce with the facilities at our command. We shall continue to hew to the line for good government, clean morals, high ethics, justice and equality for all the people, so far as our understanding gives us to see that line, in order that we may if possible, leave this world a little better for our children than it has been for the present generation. That, after all, should be the zenith of every good citizen's ambition.

STEALING AN AUDIENCE

The republicans are apparently hard put to secure an audience that is willing to listen to their campaign speeches. On last Sunday evening the drys of the community presented the play, "Prisoner at the Bar" at the local auditorium. The play which is a mighy fine play was ably presented by the cast of over twenty local people. The churches of the city and the drys of all political opinions took hold with a will to put it over in the best possible way. To say hat they succeeded is to our minds putting it mildly.

When therefore, Mr. Holsaple of the Minnesota Anti-Saloon League under whose direction the play was presented, took occasion after the play was over, to give a republican speech and announce endorsement of Sageng for congress in the ninth district it created not only a little consternation but also a great deal of resentment in the hearts of a large part of the audience as well as with many members of the cast of Farmer-Labor political views who are conscientious drys, and are, and have been for a great many years, ardent workers in the dry cause. Mr. Holsaple's slurring referrence to the governor was decidedly unjustified and uncalled for.

We can inform Mr. Holsaple that we make no apologies for our stand on the liquor question. We are as conscientious in furthering the dry cause as he is and we can further inform him that he has not found beer, liquor nor cigarette advertising in the Forum but that he will find some of these at least in our republican contemporary. Neither needs the party with which we affiliate make any apologies for its actions anent the liquor question. We have offered the only sensible solution of the issue, while we may point out that if prohibition was debauched, he will have to lay the blame on the republican party, for they were in complete power in the nation and in the state, the greatest part of the time it was on the statute books.

We are no less convinced of the evils of liquor now than we were before Mr. Holsaple made his insulting remarks, but we deplore that great humanitarian cause such as the dry cause must be brought into disrepute by incidents such as took place last Sunday evening.

HELPING THE DOG OVERTAKE HIS SHADOW

A brand new scheme for overcoming the depression is being offered by a brand new organization. The "Old Age Revolving Pensions, Inc.," of California would have the goverment levy a general sales tax and use the proceeds to pay to all citizens an old age pension of two hundred dollars a month upon reaching the age of sixty years, with the provisions that they must first; refrain from further labor, business or profession for gain; and second, spend the entire two hundred dollars each month.

The sponsors argue that by thus withdrawing from the labor, business and professional ranks, all who have reached the age of sixty, there will be more opportunities for those under sixty. This contention is of course logical. They contend that the spending of the huge sum of money each month which would thus be made not only possible, but arbitrary, would provide a market for goods which would insure a return of prosperity. And, it probably would do just that. But, who in heck wants a return of prosperity? What we want is security. And the plan would not bring security, not even for those who are to get the two hundred dollars a month. The little nigger in the woodpile; "profits" would take care of that.

Yes, we would have a return of prosperity. Smoke would belch forth from factory chimneys once more. Again there would be clanking of machines and derricks now rusting in idleness. Laborers would hustle to work again in the murky twilight of the morning and trudge wearily homeward at the close of the day. Employers would rave and tear their hair in their battles for more men, more raw materials, more orders. Wages would go up. Salaries would "kite". Stocks and bonds would soar. Prices would skyrocket. The pensioners, who were at first hard put to spend their two hundred iron men each month would eventually worry about making it stretch out for their supply of smoking tobacco and magazines. The "insiders" would again "cash in" and the lambs would "cash out" and we would have another 1929, a la Dr. Coue, bigger and better than ever.

For the law of interest and dividends is inexorable. If a few financiers are to be allowed to give nothing for something the rest of the people will be giving something for nothing, and sooner or later their something will be exhausted again and they will have nothing to give for nothing something, or anything, and here we be again.

MAKING VOTES FOR ROOSEVELT
(St. Paul Daily News)

One of the best campaigners these days for Franklin D. Roosevelt is Herbert Hoover.

The latter's magazine articles, his book, "The Challenge to Liberty", and his personal encouragement of individual revolters against the new deal as exemplified in the case of the fighting Illinois banker who refuses to come into the federal deposits insurance corporation, are all calculated to react in favor of the president.

Not that Mr. Hoover, of course, is not entitled to have his say. But in his case a lot of Americans will recall that he had his chance to meet the economic problems of the day—and they voted him a flat failure. Criticism and active opposition from him now that the immediate danger of collapse has been removed by the courage and activity of the man who took the reins of government from his own nerveless hands is hardly calculated to command much public attention or respect.

We find it hard to weep over Mr. Hoover's picture of "regimented" industry shackled and chained by bureaucracy. In the first place industry asked for most of this regulation itself—at least to the extent of trying to prevent ruinous competion and boost prices. Its complaints are largely directed against those protective measures designed to save the consumer and the employe from being entirely overlooked.

Sec. Wallace has the right words for it when he retorts that instead of there being too much government in business, "if the full truth were ever known about the way governmental influence has been used by great corporations, public indignation would know no bounds."

Our tariffs, our ship subsidies, even our munition manufacturing and sale (as is now being demonstrated) are but a few examples of the extent to which business is, and has been, making use of government.

President Roosevelt was optimistic enough to declare Thursday evening that more and more Americans are beginning to do their own thinking and to form their own opinions, regardless of propaganda, gossip, rumors and other "aids." If he is right, they will regard the emergence of Herbert Hoover from retirement as largely political—and not very good, politics at that.

WHY COMPLAINT FROM INDUSTRY?
(Stephen Messenger)

Poor's Manual and other calculators declare that wage costs are not making for any setback in corporation profits. Standard Statistics reports that for 506 companies in the first six months of 1934 aggregate net earnings totaled $480,572,000, with $157,579,000 for the corresponding period of 1933, an increase of 204.9 per cent.

A tabulation published in the August issue of National City Bank examines the half yearly reports of 350 companies, which report combines net profits, less deficits, saw an improvement of 220.2 per cent.

Such data underline the assertion of the President in his August 9th speech at Green Bay, Wisconsin, that "manufacturing enterprises in overwhelming numbers are comparing the black ink of many years gone by."

YEAH, WHO WON THE WAR?
(Waseca Herald)

One of the most brazen statements made at a U. S. senate investigation in a long time was that made last week by one of the heads of the Dupont powder trust. When he could find no reasonable excuse for his company's part in the international conspiracy to make hundreds of millions of dollars profit on war materials he dug up the old German scarecrow which proved a great aid to himself and other profiteers in wartime. It worked splendidly then but it won't work now. The American people today know how they were fooled. His statement that his firm saved this country from becoming a German province was both false and ludicrous. The world knows now that it was the big munition makers and international financiers who were the real factors in bringing on and prolonging the big war. DuPont doesn't even give any credit to the American "Doughboys" who were fighting and dying in the trenches, while he and his fellow crooks were piling up their millions. The chances are, however, that he won't have such an exalted opinion of himself when the Senate committee gets through with its investigation.

R. W. Hitchcock, editor of the Hibbing Thibune and member of the state legislature, is now the publicity chairman for the Republican party in Minnesota. In that capacity he is accusing Governor Olson with spending a lot of the taxpayers money. Mr. Hitchcock knows better than that. He knows that the governor of the state cannot appropriate a single dollar for any purpose, or increase the expenditures of the state's money without the consent of both House and Senate of the state legislature. While Mr. Hitchcock is professing so much love for the taxpayers of the state, he should develop fondness for the taxpayers of his home community. A flag pole has been erected on the Hibbing school grounds that cost the taxpayers of that community $40,000.—Mille Lacs County Times.

OLD FRIENDS FORGET
(Northern Minn. Leader)

The folks that John Haugen, who heads the All-Party Olson for Governor committee, used to trail with previously do not like him and they are paying their respects to him in no uncertain manner. We feel sorry for John. He stayed by the GOP too long as it was. We well remember the time he asked us to come into the Republican party and help clean it so that it could be of service to the people. He has now tired of that job himself. Mr. Haugen is a pretty good scout and too straight a shooter for the branch banking and special privileged crowd. More later on.

Views and Reviews
BY
Ben C. Hagglund

A picuresque radical is Bishop Galion, Ohio. As a fervent, if narrow, sectarian in the Methodist and Episcopalian ministry, he worked wonders in his chosen field. He became Archdeacon of Ohio and Bishop of Arkansas in rapid succession.

Then, at the age of seventy, he accidently met up with Charles Darwin's "Origin of Species" and Karl Marx's "Das Kapital." The two books wrecked his old universe and created a new one for him. He began preaching the gospel in the new light; was tried for heresy and convicted, although the review court of the church could not tell him what his crime was or what his punishment would be; and excommunicated. Bishop Brown defied them to prove that he had committed heresy by preaching the Gospel in the light of Darwin and Marx. The challenge went unaccepted.

"Jesus Christ is a symbol of the working class," Bishop Brown maintains, thus coming very clo to the Rev. Bousk White's ideas. On the front cover of Brown's "COMMUNISM—AND CHRISTIANISM" appears the challenging manifesto: "Banish Gods from the Skies and Capitalists from the Earth and Make the world safe for Industrial Communism." In this respect Bishop Brown went way beyond Rev. Bouck White.

Brown is a great positivist—he is much surer of gaining the Co-operative Commonwealth than you or I—his tfaih is childlike but firm.

Geo. T. Pickett, fiery manager of Llano cooperative colony in Louisiana, coined a classis phrase: "Making a heaven on earth is a hell of a job." Pickett's Utopia is a nation filled with Llano colonies, where goods could be exchanged freely between groups, without benefit of the middlemen.

Others have also realized the character of a job like this. One cannot always be nice about it. Even Nicolai Lenin, when he saw the excesses of revolution, realized that it was but a transitory sage—the birth pains of a new world, as it were.

Strange as it may seem, Lenin's Utopia was Anarchism, not communism. He always maintained that Communism was one stage on the way to the cooperative commonwealth (only he didn't use that term).

Let me add another "Believe it or Not": Abraham Lincoln (you know Abe) was also an anarchist. He s id, "There is no man good enough to govern me against my will." And, if you take this statement about the necessity of changing government when its purpose has been fulfilled, you begin to think he was a danged revolutionist, too. Figure it out for yourself.

J. A. Kiderlen, of Mount Vernon, Wash., running for Senator on the "Equal Freedom" platform, observes: "I contend it is better to work and vote for what I want and get it than to work and vote for what I do not want, and get it." If a million people would feel the same way, we would begin to get some place.

The Liberal Digest

MINNESOTA FARM INCOMES HAVE DECLINED 71 PER CENT SINCE 1920, REPORT REVEALS
By the Farmer-Labor Educational Bureau

—o—

When the Scandinavians, Germans and Finns, and other pioneers first settled in Minnesota, they were attracted because the fertile land promised good crops and the expansion of industry to the West promised good markets. This immigration into Minnesota started over 80 years ago at a time when conditions in the old countries were not so good and when our Middle West promised a permanent economic security.

Certainly at that time these early pioneers seemed justified in their belief that here they would find greater comfort and happiness. The fact that these farmers left their native countries to till the soil of Minnesota, because of the promised Utopia, is important in view of the events which followed.

These early immigrants came from their native countries with the finest traditions of hard work and thriftiness. Throughout the last 80 years, the farmer has proven himself the most frugal and hardest Minnesota worker. He has produced more and finer products, and has increased his efficiency. Yet he found that steadily, year by year, the harder he worked the less he had to show for it. Ever since he had started farming, something was gradually tearing away the foundation of his security. To day the hard working farmer is broke—and on top of that is charged against him a debt which he can never pay back!

What happened?

Just this. Using figures from the United States Department of Agriculture, the Minnesota farmer has been steadily going into debt at the rate of $1 per acre, for the last 80 years.

Each year, for 80 years, the farmer in Minnesota has had another dollar of debt added to each acre of his land. This is the average rate of indebtedness, taking in all Minnesota farms.

Economic forces beyond his control, have operated without mercy against the provider of food. A force which he could not see or feel was gradually robbing him of his possessions. If he once enjoyed comfort and happiness, he now has lost it. Today there is nothing but insecurity for the farmer.

This did not happen a short time ago. It started happening long ago, and continued gradually. The recent depression merely forced the farmer to see his hopeless plight as he had never seen it before.

This bulletin will show how the farm debt developed and what the present situation is. Only the most authentic and reliable facts and figures will be used, and mostly United States government statistics. More detailed information may be obtained by request.

Farm debts are a national problem but wherever possible, Minnesota figures are shown. The facts are explained first, then the reasons.

The Mortgage Burden

The United States department of agriculture reports that in 1910, the farm mortgage debt in the United States was 3 1-3 billion dollars In 1928, it was 9½ billion dollars. At the end of 1933, the total is 8½ llbiion dollars. The debt has almost tripled in the last 23 years.

Note that this total debt decreased by 1 billion dollars from 1928 to 1933. This does not mean a relief in the debt burden. It simply means that thousands of farmers were "relieved" entirely by forced soles and foreclosures during this present depression They were relieved of this much total debt by having their land taken away from them.

Adding to the 8½ billion dollar debt on hand, the short term and personal debt of farmers, at the present there is a total form debt of over 12 billion dollars. To illustrate, the enormity of th debt, this amount represents three times as much gold as contained in the Unied States treasury today.

From these figures it can readily be seen that the farm debt has steadily piled up regardless of the fact that during the period from 1910 to 1928 there were several boom periods, and for the greatest periods of time, general business conditions were normal. The greatest depression in that period was in the two years 1920 and 1921, when the total farm income dropped from 16 billion dollars to seven billion dollars—a decrease of more than half in two years! At the end of 1933, farm income was down to 6 billion dollars, a total decrease of 63% since 1920. In other words, today the national farm income is only 37% of what it was in 1920. The farmers have lost almost two-thirds of their income.

For Minnesota our figures are taken from the Minnesota Division of agricultural economics in conjunction with the United States department of agriculture. These estimates show that in the same period from 1920 to 1933, net income from farms in Minnesota dropped from 150 million dollars to 43 million dollars, a decrease of 71% in farm income. In the same period fram mortgage debts in Minnesota increased from 455 million dollars to 560 million dollars, an increase of 19%.

Review of Facts

The year 1920 started a severe farm depression from which the farmers have not yet recovered. This is the reason for starting the figures at 1920.

In review of what has happened from 1929 to 1933:

Minnesota farm income dropped 71% and Minnesota mortgage debts went up 19%.

This terrible loss of income beginning in 1920 is the real seat of the farmers' trouble. It is the big reason for the piling up of his debt.

In these circumstances, the farmer acted as any other person would. When his income dropped, he borrowed to keep going. Then as his debts piled up to the point of foreclosure on his land, he frantically produced more than an honest effort to pay back. When he produced more, prices went down and he had still less total income. This procedure can hardly be called "mismanagement" on the part of the farmer.

Remember, that although the greatest loss of income and increase of debt was after 1920, farmers have been going into debt at the rate of $1 per acre per year, for the last 80 years. An unjust and unfair economic system has robbed the farmer ever since farming started here No matter how hard he worked, or how much he tried to save, each year the farmer had less than the year before.

"Empathy"

The term "empathy" is used as the equivalent of the German einfuehlung, which is difficult to translate. It is modeled on the word sympathy and used with special, but not exclusive, reference to esthetic experience. The most obvious example is that of the actor or singer when he feels the part he is performing or reading or studying. Similarly with other works of art. One may, by a kind of introjection, "feel oneself into" what one observes or contemplates.

FARMER-LABOR PRESS SERVICE
By
Senator H. G. Teigan

The most important political news during the past week was that regarding the primary election in the State of Wisconsin. In that primary election a new third party came into existence. Its showing was indicative of strength.

Perhaps no progressives in the nation are better able to judge of the showing made by the new Progressive Party of Wisconsin than are the Farmer-Laborites of Minnesota. In Minnesota the Farmer-Labor Party has been in existence since 1918. Judged by the record that the Farmer-Labor Party of Minnesota has made in past primary elections it must be admitted that the Progressive Party of Wisconsin has made its political debut in a way indicative of great strength.

Progressives Run Strong

The returns as we have them from the reports of the Associated Press shows that the folloing vote was cast for the three political parties with about 125 precincts of the 2916 in the state unreported:

Democratic	215,000
Progressive	156,000
Republican	147,000

The leading nominees for the office of Governor of the three parties and their votes are as follows:

Democrat A. Schemedeman	161,549
Progressive P. LaFollette	148,795
Republican Howard Green	83,408

The newspapers, including the Associated Press, attempting to propagandize the people of the nation on the outcome in Wisconsin. "LaFollette Vote Lightest in Wisconsin" was a headline in the Chicago Herald-Examiner. This was followed by "Governor Schmedeman Polls 179,946 On New Deal Platform; Callahan Leading For Senate." Similar heads appeared in daily papers of the Twin Cities and elsewhere. The Associated press propagandized the people on the "overwhelming majority" that Governor Albert G. Schedeman had received and that "The Democrats made a better showing than either the Republicans or Progressive Party."

In an editorial which appeared in the Chicago Tribune last Sunday the showing of the Progressives was, of course, minimized. The LaFollettes are making the most of the primary" says the Tribune, "but they are namely disappointed at the showing of the new party."

Now, let us see whether the showing of the Wisconsin Progressives was a poor one.

Campaign with Minnesota F-L

In 1930 the Farmer-Laborites of Minnesota polled a total of 75,000 votes in the June Primary of that year. The Republicans polled a primary vote of 477,816 votes. At the general election, however, the Farmer-Labor nominee for Governor, Floyd B. Olson, polled 473,154 to 289,528 for his Republican opponent.

It is, of course, true that the vote for Governor was not entirely indicative of party strength. For that reason it is well to use the vote cast for another office. At the general election of 1930, Fred Miller, Farmer-Labor nominee for Govertreasurer, polled 271,286 to 375,946 for his Republican opponent. At the same election the Democratic nominee for state treasurer recived 77,894 votes. In 1932 in the Minnesota primary elevtion results were as follows: Republican 267,000; Farmer-Labor 157,008; Democrat 105,919.

Strong Gains Over Primary

At the general election the returns were: Floyd B. Olson, Farmer-Labor, 522,438; Earle Brown, Republican, 334,081; John E. Regan, Democrat, 169,859.

While the Farmer-Labor nominees for other state offices did not fare as well as did the candidate for governor, the average vote cast by the Farmer-Labor party candidates was greater than that cast for either one of the old political parties. The Farmer-Labor party won the offices of governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, railroad and warehouse commissioner, and five of the nine congressmen, all elected at large.

The Farmer-Labor party has not polled a heavy vote in primary elections due to the fact that there have been comparatively few contests for nomination. The real fight has not been at the primary, but at the general election. The same was true in the recent Wisconsin primary election. As far as the writer knows, there was only one contest for state office and that was for the office of governor. Phillip LaFollette, former governor, was opposed by an unknown candidate who received less than one-twentieth of the vote cast for that office.

"Phil" Pleased With the Showing

Wisconsin progressives may justly feel jubilant over the showing made. "The result is highly encouraging to every progressive in Wisconsin and in America" says Phillip LaFollette, "the progressives showing is all the more unusual because there was no real fight for the two major offices on the Progressive ticket, because many of the local offices in the various counties were uncontested and because the voters in the primary was barred from splitting his ticket."

With a united front there should be little difficulty experienced by Wisconsin Progressives in making a clean sweep at the November election. Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., will undoubtedly be re-elected United States senator, and it looks to me as tho his equally illustrous brother will be elected governor. It may be stated too, in this connection that all is now well in the Democratic camp. The supporters of William B. Rubin, who opposed Schmedeman for the gubernatorial nomination, are not at all likely to give their votes to the latter in view of the bitter campaign waged upon the Schmedeman administration by Rubin and his friends.

All omens point to Progressive victory in the Badger state on November 6th.

Minute Sermons
By Dr. Crawford Grays

With progressive light, understanding and rational changing in ideas and ideals it is but reasonable that there should be a change of emphasis in religious teaching. The nationalisms, traditions, old theologies and creeds back of our present tragic church situation should be displaced with a new emphasis relative to internationalism, modern revelation of science and industry and a Christian attitude of living.

Any change from our present religious system, which is a relic rather that utility, that teaching and practice of Christianity would be at least basically sound for so-called Christian churches to adopt.

Belleek Porcelain

The luster of the polished mother-of-pearl and the fragility of egg shell brittleness make Belleek porcelain easy to recognize. Belleek is manufactured in northern Ireland in the little town which bears its name and holds the distinction of being the only chinaware made in the Emerald Isle. It is considered a highbrow when classed with other porcelains.

When You Need a Friend
by Lawrence Hawthorne

When days 're dark an' the clouds hang low,
An' the road is rough an' long;
When problems face you on every hand,
An' your plans have all gone wrong;
When troubles come, an' your luck looks bad,
An' you don't know what t' do—
Oh, then it is that you understand
What a true friend means t' you!

When times 're good, an' you're feelin' fine,
An' the sun is shinin' bright;
When every day brings you some new joy,
An' the world is quite all right,
You're glad t' know that your friends 're near
An' will join you in your fun—
But you never learn what a true friend is,
Till your troubles have begun!

A lot o' folks treat you mighty well
While you have the cash t' spend,
But pass you by with a careless nod
When you really need a friend;
They fail you then, as they always will
In the time o' deep distress,
An' turn t' one who can do no harm
To their pride an' selfishness.

I've had my share o' the ups-an'-downs
That we all must meet in life,
But every time I have suffered loss
Or encountered care an' strife,
Some friend has come with a cheerin' smile
An' has helped me see it through—
Has brought relief in the time o' need,
As our true friends always do.

We believe that our readers have appreciated our battles for the cause of the common man; the farmers and the workers, and a bigger, and broader, and fuller life for those who toil.

At this time, we renew our covenant with our readers. We shall continue to publish the very best and newsiest paper that is possible to produce with the facilities at our command. We shall continue to hew to the line for good government, clean morals, high ethics, justice and equality for all the people, so far as our understanding gives us to see that line, in order that we may if possible, leave this world a little better for our children than it has been for the present generation. That, after all, should be the zenith of every good citizen's ambition.

STEALING AN AUDIENCE

The republicans are apparently hard put to secure an audience that is willing to listen to their campaign speeches. On last Sunday evening the drys of the community presented the play, "Prisoner at the Bar" at the local auditorium. The play which is a mighy fine play was ably presented by the cast of over twenty local people. The churches of the city and the drys of all political opinions took hold with a will to put it over in the best possible way. To say hat they succeeded is to our minds putting it mildly.

When therefore, Mr. Holsaple of the Minnesota Anti-Saloon League under whose direction the play was presented, took occasion after the play was over, to give a republican speech and announce endorsement of Sageng for congress in the ninth district it created not only a little consternation but also a great deal of resentment in the hearts of a large part of the audience as well as with many members of the cast of Farmer-Labor political views who are conscientious drys, and are, and have been for a great many years, ardent workers in the dry cause. Mr. Holsaple's slurring referrence to the governor was decidedly unjustified and uncalled for.

We can inform Mr. Holsaple that we make no apologies for our stand on the liquor question. We are as conscientious in furthering the dry cause as he is and we can further inform him that he has not found beer, liquor nor cigarette advertising in the Forum but that he will find some of these at least in our republican contemporary. Neither needs the party with which we affiliate make any apologies for its actions anent the liquor question. We have offered the only sensible solution of the issue, while we may point out that if prohibition was debauched, he will have to lay the blame on the republican party, for they were in complete power in the nation and in the state, the greatest part of the time it was on the statute books.

We are no less convinced of the evils of liquor now than we were before Mr. Holsaple made his insulting remarks, but we deplore that great humanitarian cause such as the dry cause must be brought into disrepute by incidents such as took place last Sunday evening.

HELPING THE DOG OVERTAKE HIS SHADOW

A brand new scheme for overcoming the depression is being offered by a brand new organization. The "Old Age Revolving Pensions, Inc.," of California would have the goverment levy a general sales tax and use the proceeds to pay to all citizens an old age pension of two hundred dollars a month upon reaching the age of sixty years, with the provisions that they must first; refrain from further labor, business or profession for gain; and second, spend the entire two hundred dollars each month.

The sponsors argue that by thus withdrawing from the labor, business and professional ranks, all who have reached the age of sixty, there will be more opportunities for those under sixty. This contention is of course logical. They contend that the spending of the huge sum of money each month which would thus be made not only possible, but arbitrary, would provide a market for goods which would insure a return of prosperity. And, it probably would do just that. But, who in heck wants a return of prosperity? What we want is security. And the plan would not bring security, not even for those who are to get the two hundred dollars a month. The little nigger in the woodpile; "profits" would take care of that.

Yes, we would have a return of prosperity. Smoke would belch forth from factory chimneys once more. Again there would be clanking of machines and derricks now rusting in idleness. Laborers would hustle to work again in the murky twilight of the morning and trudge wearily homeward at the close of the day. Employers would rave and tear their hair in their battles for more men, more raw materials, more orders. Wages would go up. Salaries would "kite". Stocks and bonds would soar. Prices would skyrocket. The pensioners, who were at first hard put to spend their two hundred iron men each month would eventually worry about making it stretch out for their supply of smoking tobacco and magazines. The "insiders" would again "cash in" and the lambs would "cash out" and we would have another 1929, a la Dr. Coue, bigger and better than ever.

For the law of interest and dividends is inexorable. If a few financiers are to be allowed to give nothing for something the rest of the people will be giving something for nothing, and sooner or later their something will be exhausted again and they will have nothing to give for nothing something, or anything, and here we be again.

MAKING VOTES FOR ROOSEVELT
(St. Paul Daily News)

One of the best campaigners these days for Franklin D. Roosevelt is Herbert Hoover.

The latter's magazine articles, his book, "The Challenge to Liberty", and his personal encouragement of individual revolters against the new deal as exemplified in the case of the fighting Illinois banker who refuses to come into the federal deposits insurance corporation, are all calculated to react in favor of the president.

Not that Mr. Hoover, of course, is not entitled to have his say. But in his case a lot of Americans will recall that he had his chance to meet the economic problems of the day—and they voted him a flat failure. Criticism and active opposition from him now that the immediate danger of collapse has been removed by the courage and activity of the man who took the reins of government from his own nerveless hands is hardly calculated to command much public attention or respect.

We find it hard to weep over Mr. Hoover's picture of "regimented" industry shackled and chained by bureaucracy. In the first place industry asked for most of this regulation itself—at least to the extent of trying to prevent ruinous competion and boost prices. Its complaints are largely directed against those protective measures designed to save the consumer and the employe from being entirely overlooked.

Sec. Wallace has the right words for it when he retorts that instead of there being too much government in business, "if the full truth were ever known about the way governmental influence has been used by great corporations, public indignation would know no bounds."

Our tariffs, our ship subsidies, even our munition manufacturing and sale (as is now being demonstrated) are but a few examples of the extent to which business is, and has been, making use of government.

President Roosevelt was optimistic enough to declare Thursday evening that more and more Americans are beginning to do their own thinking and to form their own opinions, regardless of propaganda, gossip, rumors and other "aids." If he is right, they will regard the emergence of Herbert Hoover from retirement as largely political—and not very good, politics at that.

WHY COMPLAINT FROM INDUSTRY?
(Stephen Messenger)

Poor's Manual and other calculators declare that wage costs are not making for any setback in corporation profits. Standard Statistics reports that for 506 companies in the first six months of 1934 aggregate net earnings totaled $480,572,000, with $157,579,000 for the corresponding period of 1933, an increase of 204.9 per cent.

A tabulation published in the August issue of National City Bank examines the half yearly reports of 350 companies, which report combines net profits, less deficits, saw an improvement of 220.2 per cent.

Such data underline the assertion of the President in his August 9th speech at Green Bay, Wisconsin, that "manufacturing enterprises in overwhelming numbers are comparing the black ink of many years gone by."

YEAH, WHO WON THE WAR?
(Waseca Herald)

One of the most brazen statements made at a U. S. senate investigation in a long time was that made last week by one of the heads of the Dupont powder trust. When he could find no reasonable excuse for his company's part in the international conspiracy to make hundreds of millions of dollars profit on war materials he dug up the old German scarecrow which proved a great aid to himself and other profiteers in wartime. It worked splendidly then but it won't work now. The American people today know how they were fooled. His statement that his firm saved this country from becoming a German province was both false and ludicrous. The world knows now that it was the big munition makers and international financiers who were the real factors in bringing on and prolonging the big war. DuPont doesn't even give any credit to the American "Doughboys" who were fighting and dying in the trenches, while he and his fellow crooks were piling up their millions. The chances are, however, that he won't have such an exalted opinion of himself when the Senate committee gets through with its investigation.

R. W. Hitchcock, editor of the Hibbing Tribune and member of the state legislature, is now the publicity chairman for the Republican party in Minnesota. In that capacity he is accusing Governor Olson with spending a lot of the taxpayers money. Mr. Hitchcock knows better than that. He knows that the governor of the state cannot appropriate a single dollar for any purpose, or increase the expenditures of the state's money without the consent of both House and Senate of the state legislature. While Mr. Hitchcock is professing so much love for the taxpayers of the state, he should develop fondness for the taxpayers of his home community. A flag pole has been erected on the Hibbing school grounds that cost the taxpayers of that community $40,000.—Mille Lacs County Times.

OLD FRIENDS FORGET
Northern Minn. Leader

The folks that John Haugen, who heads the All-Party Olson for Governor committee, used to trail with previously do not like him and they are paying their respects to him in no uncertain manner. We feel sorry for John. He stayed by the GOP too long as it was. We well remember the time he asked us to come into the Republican party and help clean it so that it could be of service to the people. He has now tired of that job himself. Mr. Haugen is a pretty good scout and too straight a shooter for the branch banking and special privileged crowd. More later on.

Views and Reviews

A picuresque radical is Bishop Galion, Ohio. As a fervent, if narrow, sectarian in the Methodist and Episcopalian ministry, he worked wonders in his chosen field. He became Archdeacon of Ohio and Bishop of Arkansas in rapid succession.

Then, at the age of seventy, he accidently met up with Charles Darwin's "Origin of Species" and Karl Marx's "Das Kapital." The two books wrecked his old universe and created a new one for him. He began preaching the gospel in the new light; was tried for heresy and convicted, although the review court of the church could not tell him what his crime was or what his punishment would be; and excommunicated. Bishop Brown defied them to prove that he had committed heresy by preaching the Gospel in the light of Darwin and Marx. The challenge went unaccepted.

"Jesus Christ is a symbol of the working class," Bishop Brown maintains, thus coming very clo to the Rev. Bousk White's ideas. On the front cover of Brown's "COMMUNISM AND CHRISTIANISM" appears the challenging manifesto: "Banish Gods from the Skies and Capitalists from the Earth and Make the world safe for Industrial Communism." In this respect Bishop Brown went way beyond Rev. Bouck White.

Brown is a great positivist—he is much surer of gaining the Cooperative Commonwealth than you or I—his tfaih is childlike but firm.

Geo. T. Pickett, fiery manager of Llano cooperative colony in Louisiana, coined a classis phrase: "Making a heaven on earth is a hell of a job." Pickett's Utopia is a nation filled with Llano colonies, where goods could be exchanged freely between groups, without benefit of the middlemen.

Others have also realized the character of a job like this. One cannot always be nice about it. Even Nicolai Lenin, when he saw the excesses of revolution, realized that it was but a transitory sage—the birth pains of a new world, as it were.

Strange as it may seem, Lenin's Utopia was Anarchism, not communism. He always maintained that Communism was one stage on the way to the cooperative commonwealth (only he didn't use that term).

Let me add another "Believe it or Not": Abraham Lincoln (you know Abe) was also an anarchist. He said, "There is no man good enough to govern me against my will." And, if you take this statement about the necessity of changing government when its purpose has been fulfilled, you begin to think he was a danged revolutionist, too. Figure it out for yourself.

J. A. Kiderlen, of Mount Vernon, Wash., running for Senator on the "Equal Freedom" platform, observes: "I contend it is better to work and vote for what I want and get it than to work and vote for what I do not want, and get it." If a million people would feel the same way, we would begin to get some place.

MINNESOTA FARM INCOMES HAVE DECLINED 71 PER CENT SINCE 1920, REPORT REVEALS
By the Farmer-Labor Educational Bureau

—o—

When the Scandinavians, Germans and Finns, and other pioneers first settled in Minnesota, they were attracted because the fertile land promised good crops and the expansion of industry to the West promised good markets. This immigration into Minnesota started over 80 years ago at a time when conditions in the old countries were not so good and when our Middle West promised a permanent economic security.

Certainly at that time these early pioneers seemed justified in their belief that here they would find greater comfort and happiness. The fact that these farmers left their native countries to till the soil of Minnesota, because of the promised Utopia, is important in view of the events which followed.

These early immigrants came from their native countries with the finest traditions of hard work and thriftiness. Throughout the last 80 years, the farmer has proven himself the most frugal and hardest Minnesota worker. He has produced more and finer products, and has increased his efficiency. Yet he found that steadily, year by year, the harder he worked the less he had to show for it. Ever since he had started farming, something was gradually tearing away the foundation of his security. To day the hard working farmer is broke—and on top of that is charged against him a debt which he can never pay back!

What happened?

Just this. Using figures from the United States Department of Agriculture, the Minnesota farmer has been steadily going into debt at the rate of $1 per acre, for the last 80 years.

Each year, for 80 years, the farmer in Minnesota has had another dollar of debt added to each acre of his land. This is the average rate of indebtedness, taking in all Minnesota farms.

Economic forces beyond his control, have operated without mercy against the provider of food. A force which he could not see or feel was gradually robbing him of his possessions. If he once enjoyed comfort and happiness, he now has lost it. Today there is nothing but insecurity for the farmer.

This did not happen a short time ago. It started happening long ago, and continued gradually. The recent depression merely forced the farmer to see his hopeless plight as he had never seen it before.

This bulletin will show how the farm debt developed and what the present situation is. Only the most authentic and reliable facts and figures will be used, and mostly United States government statistics. More detailed information may be obtained by request.

Farm debts are a national problem but wherever possible, Minnesota figures are shown. The facts are explained first, then the reasons.

The Mortgage Burden

The United States department of agriculture reports that in 1910, the farm mortgage debt in the United States was 3 1-3 billion dollars In 1928, it was 9½ billion dollars. At the end of 1933, the total is 8½ llbiion dollars. The debt has almost tripled in the last 23 years.

Note that this total debt decreased by 1 billion dollars from 1928 to 1933. This does not mean a relief in the debt burden. It simply means that thousands of farmers were "relieved" entirely by forced soles and foreclosures during this present depression They were relieved of this much total debt by having their land taken away from them.

Adding to the 8½ billion dollar debt on hand, the short term and personal debt of farmers, at the present there is a total form debt of over 12 billion dollars. To illustrate the enormity of th debt, this amount represents three times as much gold as contained in the Unied States treasury today.

From these figures it can readily be seen that the farm debt has steadily piled up regardless of the fact that during the period from 1910 to 1928 there were several boom periods, and for the greatest periods of time, general business conditions were normal. The greatest depression in that period was in the two years 1920 and 1921, when the total farm income dropped from 16 billion dollars to seven billion dollars—a decrease of more than half in two years! At the end of 1933, farm income was down to 6 billion dollars, a total decrease of 63% since 1920. In other words, today the national farm income is only 37% of what it was in 1920. The farmers have lost almost two-thirds of their income.

For Minnesota our figures are taken from the Minnesota Division of agricultural economics in conjunction with the United States department of agriculture. These estimates show that in the same period from 1920 to 1933, net income from farms in Minnesota dropped from 150 million dollars to 43 million dollars, a decrease of 71% in farm income. In the same period fram mortgage debts in Minnesota increased from 455 million dollars to 560 million dollars, an increase of 19%.

Review of Facts

The year 1920 started a severe farm depression from which the farmers have not yet recovered. This is the reason for starting the figures at 1920.

In review of what has happened from 1929 to 1933:

Minnesota farm income dropped 71% and Minnesota mortgage debts went up 19%.

This terrible loss of income beginning in 1920 is the real seat of the farmers' trouble. It is the big reason for the piling up of his debt.

In these circumstances, the farmer acted as any other person would. When his income dropped, he borrowed to keep going. Then as his debts piled up to the point of foreclosure on his land, he frantically produced more than an honest effort to pay back. When he produced more, prices went down and he had still less total income. This procedure can hardly be called "mismanagement" on the part of the farmer.

Remember, that although the greatest loss of income and increase of debt was after 1920, farmers have been going into debt at the rate of $1 per acre per year, for the last 80 years. An unjust and unfair economic system has robbed the farmer ever since farming started here No matter how hard he worked, or how much he tried to save, each year the farmer had less than the year before.

"Empathy"

The term "empathy" is used as the equivalent of the German einfuehlung, which is difficult to translate. It is modeled on the word sympathy and used with special, but not exclusive, reference to esthetic experience. The most obvious example is that of the actor or singer when he feels the part he is performing or reading or studying. Similarly with other works of art. One may, by a kind of introjection, "feel oneself into" what one observes or contemplates.

FARMER-LABOR PRESS SERVICE
By
Senator H. G. Teigan

The most important political news during the past week was that regarding the primary election in the State of Wisconsin. In that primary election a new third party came into existence. Its showing was indicative of strength.

Perhaps no progressives in the nation are better able to judge of the showing made by the new Progressive Party of Wisconsin than are the Farmer-Laborites of Minnesota. In Minnesota the Farmer-Labor Party has been in existence since 1918. Judged by the record that the Farmer-Labor Party of Minnesota has made in past primary elections it must be admitted that the Progressive Party of Wisconsin has made its political debut in a way indicative of great strength.

Progressives Run Strong

The returns as we have them from the reports of the Associated Press shows that the folloing vote was cast for the three political parties with about 125 precincts of the 2916 in the state unreported:

Democratic	215,000
Progressive	156,000
Republican	147,000

The leading nominees for the office of Governor of the three parties and their votes are as follows:

Democrat A. Schemedeman 161,549
Progressive P. LaFollette 148,795
Republican Howard Green 83,408

The newspapers, including the Associated Press, attempting to propagandize the people of the nation on the outcome in Wisconsin. "LaFollette Vote Lightest in Wisconsin" was a headline in the Chicago Herald-Examiner. This was followed by "Governor Schmedeman Polls 179,946 On New Deal Platform; Callahan Leading For Senate." Similar heads appeared in daily papers of the Twin Cities and elsewhere. The Associated press propagandized the people on the "overwhelming majority" that Governor Albert G. Schedeman had received and that "The Democrats made a better showing than either the Republicans or Progressive Party."

In an editorial which appeared in the Chicago Tribune last Sunday the showing of the Progressives was, of course, minimized. The LaFollettes are making the most of the primary" says the Tribune, "but they are namely disappointed at the showing of the new party."

Now, let us see whether the showing of the Wisconsin Progressives was a poor one.

In 1930 the Farmer-Laborites of Minnesota polled a total of 75,000 votes in the June Primary of that year. The Republicans polled a primary vote of 477,816 votes. At the general election, however, the Farmer-Labor nominee for Governor, Floyd B. Olson, polled 473,154 to 289,528 for his Republican opponent.

It is, of course, true that the vote for Governor was not entirely indicative of party strength. For that reason it is well to use the vote cast for another office. At the general election of 1930, Fred Miller, Farmer-Labor nominee for Govertreasurer, polled 271,286 to 375,946 for his Republican opponent. At the same election the Democratic nominee for state treasurer recived 77,894 votes. In 1932 in the Minnesota primary elevtion results were as follows: Republican 267,000; Farmer-Labor 157,008; Democrat 105,919.

Strong Gains Over Primary

At the general election the returns were: Floyd B. Olson, Farmer-Labor, 522,438; Earle Brown, Republican, 334,081; John E. Regan, Democrat, 169,859.

While the Farmer-Labor nominees for other state offices did not fare as well as did the candidate for governor, the average vote cast by the Farmer-Labor party candidates was greater than that cast for either one of the old political parties. The Farmer-Labor party won the offices of governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, railroad and warehouse commissioner, and five of the nine congressmen, all elected at large.

The Farmer-Labor party has not polled a heavy vote in primary elections due to the fact that there have been comparatively few contests for nomination. The real fight has not been at the primary, but at the general election. The same was true in the recent Wisconsin primary election. As far as the writer knows, there was only one contest for state office and that was for the office of governor. Phillip LaFollette, former governor, was opposed by an unknown candidate who received less than one-twentieth of the vote cast for that office.

"Phil" Pleased With the Showing

Wisconsin progressives may justly feel jubilant over the showing made. "The result is highly encouraging to every progressive in Wisconsin and in America" says Phillip LaFollette, "the progressives showing is all the more unusual because there was no real fight for the two major offices on the Progressive ticket, because many of the local offices in the various counties were uncontested and because the voters in the primary was barred from splitting his ticket."

With a united front there should be little difficulty experienced by Wisconsin Progressives in making a clean sweep at the November election. Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., will undoubtedly be re-elected United States senator, and it looks to me as tho his equally illustrous brother will be elected governor. It may be stated too, in this connection that all is now well in the Democratic camp. The supporters of William B. Rubin, who opposed Schmedeman for the gubernatorial nomination, are not at all likely to give their votes to the latter in view of the bitter campaign waged upon the Schmedeman administration by Rubin and his friends.

All omens point to Progressive victory in the Badger state on November 6th.

Minute Sermons
By Dr. Crawford Grays

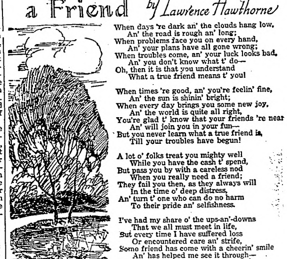
With progressive light, understanding and rational changing in ideas and ideals it is but reasonable that there should be a change of emphasis in religious teaching. The nationalisms, traditions, old theologies and creeds back of our present tragic church situation should be displaced with a new emphasis relative to internationalism, modern revelation of science and industry and a Christian attitude of living.

Any change from our present religious system, which is a relic rather that utility, that teaching and practice of Christianity would be at least basically sound for so-called Christian churches to adopt.

Belleek Porcelain

The luster of the polished mother-of-pearl and the fragility of egg shell brittleness make Belleek porcelain easy to recognize. Belleek is manufactured in northern Ireland in the little town which bears its name and holds the distinction of being the only chinaware made in the Emerald Isle. It is considered a highbrow when classed with other porcelains.

When You Need a Friend
by Lawrence Hawthorne



When days 're dark an' the clouds hang low,
An' the road is rough an' long;
When problems face you on every hand,
An' your plans have all gone wrong;
When troubles come, an' your luck looks bad,
An' you don't know what t' do—
Oh, then it is that you understand
What a true friend means t' you!

When times 're good, an' you're feelin' fine,
An' the sun is shinin' bright;
When every day brings you some new joy,
An' the world is quite all right,
You're glad t' know that your friends 're near
An' will join you in your fun—
But you never learn what a true friend is,
Till your troubles have begun!

A lot o' folks treat you mighty well
While you have the cash t' spend,
But pass you by with a careless nod
When you really need a friend;
They fail you then, as they always will
In the time o' deep distress,
An' turn t' one who can do no harm
To their pride an' selfishness.

I've had my share o' the ups-an'-downs
That we all must meet in life,
But every time I have suffered loss
Or encountered care an' strife,
Some friend has come with a cheerin' smile
An' has helped me see it through—
Has brought relief in the time o' need.
As our true friends always do.

FARM and MARKET

BY

R. A. Trovatten, Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture Dairy and Food

The statistical division of the Minnesota Department of Agriculture is now preparing figures for this year's crop production. These figures will no tbe ready until on about the first of the year. However, it is agreed by all that the drouth has cut a deep slash in the farm production; so deep that many farmers have little or nothing to fall back on for the coming winter.

* * * *

The old saying; "When somebody loses, somebody else gains," is manifested strongly this year in Minnesota. While many farmers in various sections thruout the state are in dire want, farmers in the Red River Valley are riding on a wave of temporary prosperity. This prosperity can be attributed solely to the fact that the Valley has a crop while other parts of the Northwest have been burnt out, with the consequent higher prices for agricultural commodities. When one considers that wheat is selling at $1.10 to the farmer this year as compared with 26 cents or thereabouts last year, it is easy to analyze the situation.

* * * *

The present temporary prosperity in the Red River Valley does not by any means indicate that the problems of the farmers have been solved. Something else will have to be done and that will have to be done by the government—there is no other agency equal to the task. The heavy fall rains bring good cheer for next year's outlook. Perhaps the drouth is broken and in 1935 the Lord will bless all farmers with an abundance; that coupled with the work of friends of the farmers in the government give hopes of a change of picture next year. Farmers will not forget their friends in the government, particularly the Governor of Minnesota, who is a national leader in behalf of the farmer's struggle for a price parity.

CAPITOL NEWS REVIEW

Southwestern Minnesota received its first big conservation project as a result of action taken by the State Executive Council when last week it authorized $10,000 appropriation to be used, with a large federal grant, in establishing a permanent recreational area at beautiful Lake Shetek in Murray county.

Transient camps with 200 men will be established and a park created on the east side of the lake with a road to be constructed across the lower section where narrows are formed by two points coming into close contact. The lake will serve as a recreational grounds for thousands of southwestern Minnesota residents. The project has been urged by Governor Olson and the Conservation Commission.

Plans for the establishment of a cooperative sausage factory at Kettle River which may expand into a cooperative packing plant on the Danish plan were announced as completed by Department of Agriculture officials. Details of the plan were not revealed.

An accounting of his stewardship and the announcement of his plans for the future will be given the people of the State of Minnesota by their Governor, Floyd B. Olson, on October 6 when he will deliver his "keynote" address over a four-station hook-up from 9 to 10 p. m. A meeting will be held in the St. Paul Auditorium and it is before this gathering that the address will be delivered. The radio stations will be WCCO, Minneapolis-St. Paul; WEBC, Duluth; WDAY, Fargo, and WNAX, Yankton, Suoth Dakota.

Since its enforcement squadron went to work on February 10, the office of state liquor control commissioner has made 270 arrests for liquor law violations. Of this number 140 convicted bootleggers paid fines and 15 went to jail. Some 50 cases tSill await court action. David R. Arndel, liquor control commissioner, expressed dissatisfaction with fines as punishment for illegal booze vendors and advocated stiff jail sentences.

Last week was a busy one for the state bureau of criminal apprehension under supervision of Melvin C. Passolt. Three murderers were caught one who committed his crime in 1925 as were four burglars, one bank absconder and a bank bandit. With the capture of the bank bandit, Mr. Passoit announced that an Omaha bank gang operating in southern Minnesota has been practically wiped out, four others of the mob being in Stillwater.

Two more idle factories in Minnesota have been opened by the federal government—a mattress and a meat canning factory. The operation of these facories will not in any way interfere with private business; unemployed are put to work manufacturing products which are distributed to the needy, thereby affording a two-fold method of relief. It was pointed out that the mattress factory is of extreme importance; hundreds of Minnesota children are sleeping upon floors, upon dirty old clothes or other unsanitary bedding material—all for lack of inability of the parents to provide mattresses for their children's beds. The opening of the factories by the government is a huge lump to swallow on the part of those who are opposed to the opening of idle factories. Of course, such persons prefer to uphold the sanctity of rugged and monopolistic business rather than attend to the welfare of our children.

To the layman the indictment of 20 Northwest Bancorporation officers and former officials would seem entail only the gathering and presentation of evidence. Several years of hard work, however, was necessary to bring the case to a head. First a bill had to be passed by the legislature providing funds for such an investigation. Evidence had to be gathered in the face of opposition from those involved. A lengthy hearing had to be conducted with witnesses and corporation attorneys resorting to obstructionist tactics at every turn. Than it had to be presened to a Hennepin grand jury, which refused to take action. Finally, a district judge, reviewing the evidence, was satfiisfied of at least a prima facie case and issued warrants and complaints. The case now has to be fought out in court where it is hoped the truth will be established in the interest of both public and the accused.

"Youth is ready for the journey along life's highways, but it has no place to go," Governor Olson told the people of Minnesota in a radio speech recently. The chief executive severely denounced the present system under which more boys and girls are on the road as tramps, sleeping under bridges, flipping trains and begging meals at back doors, than France called to the army last year." He went on to cite figures to show that employment of college and high school has been steadily on the decline since 1929 and said that the only way that more than one out of a hundred high school graduates in Minnesota could get jobs was through pull or personal influence.

Taxpayers will pay $92,000 of the Oliver Mine corporation taxes in the school district of Mountain Iron, according to a loan made the school district by the State Investment Board. The Board which consists of Attorney - General Harry H. Peterson, State Treasurer Julius A. Schmall, State Auditor Stafford King, and Governor Olson, was forced to loan the school district of Mountain Iron that amount to keep it going until the mining paid its taxes. Suit is pending the payment of the taxes by the Oliver Mining Company, subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, which owns the Mountain Iron mine, frequently called the most valuable iron mine in the world. The loan was made to the school district by the purchase of bonds which will be paid up as soon as the company pays its taxes. The case was a concrete example of the reason why the tax rate of Minesota seems high in the face of a sharp decline in governmental expenditures.

Culmination of a long legislative battle led by Governor Olson for $5,000,000 in state relief funds to be taken from liquor tax receipts was realized last week when the State Executive Council approved three large flood control projects, which will result in expenditure of about $1,500,000 in federal funds and less than $400,000 in state relief funds. The projects approved were the Lac qui Parle Whetstone and Cottonwood river developments. As a result hundreds of men will receive employment and the communities assured of a water supply as well as a permanent conservation improvement.

Because of the tremendous importance to the state of the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing, Attorney-General H. Peterson is making preparations to appear in Washington to argue the case when it appears before the Supreme Court. He has asked the Attorney-General of the United States to be allowed to appear and to file a brief in support of the bill, so vital to mid-west farmers.

Under fire for "political extravagances" the Department of Administration and Finance made public the payroll for the years 1929, 1930, and 1934. In August, 1929, the entire payroll of the department was $4,596.31. The enire payrol in August, 1930, was $4, 179.81. In August, 1934, the entire payroll was only $3,821.83 or about $674. less than under the so-called "frugality" regime of the Governor's predecessor.

In answer to the questioning of a group of insurance men as to whether or not the state intends to take over all lines of insurance, Governor Olson replied that he contemplated no such move. The insurance field is largely occupied by cooperative companies, the Governor stated in a letter to Clyde Helm, secretary of the Insurance Federation of Minnesota, and therefore there is no necessity for the state to intervene. The Governor stated, however that he did not believe in state social insurance such as maternity, Mother's and Old Age Pensions and Workmen's compensation. The letter said that he was forced to the conclusion that the state must take over Workmen's compensation insurance by the fact that many working men and women in Minnesota were deprived of some $400,000 awarded them by the legal tribunals of the state, through the failure of some private insurance carriers of workmen's compensation.

LIQUOR DEALERS OPPOSE PRICE CUTTING

At a meeting called recently by the newly-organized National Federation of Retail Liquor Dealers, a code was advocated for the retail liquor business, "setting fair minimum prices to eliminate unfair price cutting."

Through its counsel, former state senator Thomas I. Sheridan of New York, the federation already has filed a tentative code in Washington, and the meeting was held to enlist the interest of retailers in preparation for the code hearing. Mr. Edward P. Mulrooney, chairman of the New York State Liquor Authority, put himself on record as favoring not only a retail code but "anything that will make your business a wholesome one."

"Whether liquor is legal or illegal," said Mr. Mulrooney, "there will always gravitate towards it a certain number of undesirables or criminals, if you will. You can regulate your own business and eliminate many of them."

THE READER'S ROSTRUM

Dear Editor:

I am just reminding you of the all-party political rally which will be held at Valhall in Rocksbury township on P. Engelstad's farm, Sunday October 7.

The Rocksbury Community Club in sponsoring this Rally is making it possible for the Voters and Candidates alike to have one day set aside for the supreme purpose of getting aquainted. On this day the Candidates for office regardless of party or political affiliation are cordially invited.

This Political Rally is a New Deal in politics. The Rally is sponsored for the purpose of eliminating waste in campaigning. Every other year, or at least during the year that a Candidate has to seek his election, you find the countryside literally covered with Candidates running from house to house peddling their innocent compaign cards. This is a great deal of wasted time, energy, and takes up much of the time that should be rightfully used to perform the duties in the office which a Candidate is elected. In many cases by this old style scouring campaign method often there has been more votes lost than gained, and in every case a great deal of energy and money wasted.

Personnally I am frank to admit that I dislike having Candidates calling at my house just for the unnecessary reason of handing me a card. In the first place I am too busy with my work, and in the second place this visit by a candidate trying to urge a citizen to vote for him invariably finds the voter expressing himself that he will vote for him at election time. This promise is only a gentlemer alibi in order not to hurt the candidate's feelings; but after all may have left a bad impression in this particular citizen's mind concerning the practicability of a man who is willing to waste a great deal of public energy and personal funds for political gadding. Instead of all this a much more sensible idea, it seems to me, is the one presented by the Rocksbury Community Club; that, of allowing one day for the supreme purpose of meeting and getting acquainted with candidates. This day is a friendly day of competitive campaigning, where all candidates in whatever party or political affiliation are equally protected under the same flag by the same constitution and all seeking votes of the same citizenry in this locality.

So in closing I just wish to say this, make October 7 your cooperative political campaign day and come to this Rally with an open mind, welcome all candidates regardless of office or party affiliations. Let this be one day that we agree not to blindfold ourselves by party affiliation; but instead come open-minded, give a glad hand to all Candidates. Observe one of the most unique and impressive educational political rallies ever witnessed.

Yours for a more enlightened citizenery at the coming election.

Tied Knots, Clues That Often Help Solve Crimes

Mysterious crimes are full of knots for investigators seeking their solutions, and it is knots, but of a different kind, that often aid in clearing up these mysteries, especially if there is a "string" to them.

Criminologists have fonnd that knots in rope, cord or string connected with a crime furnish such valuable clews to the identity of criminals that such evidence is as carefully preserved as fingerprints. Persons in such occupations as textile workers, sailors and bundle-wrappers, as well as those in other vocations, from force of habit, tie knots of a particular kind. Not only can an expert tell an occupational knot, but he can also tell something of the person who tied it. He knows if the knot is right or left-handed, and he studies it for additional kinks or twists often put in by force of habit by the person making the knot. In such instances, a detective may build a conclusive case against a suspect by merely asking him to tie a knot in a piece of twine.

Cattlemen and those accustomed to horses, for example, often use the Texas bowline; lumbermen and truckmen, the timber hitch; physicians, the surgeon's knot; farmers, the Tom Fool's knot, and seamen use several distinctive kinds of knots. The textile worker ties a still different kind of knot which is called the weaver's knot.

Bat Not Rodent

The bat, though it somewhat resembles rats and mice in appearance and its nocturnal habits, does not belong to the order of rodents which includes them. Bats form an entirely separate order of mammals, the Chiroptera, distinguished by the wing or membrane which extends from the body to the ends of the feet. Our bats are all insectivora, while many species of the Old world feed on fruits.

Tundra

Tundra is the cold, desert, treeless plains which form the Arctic lowlands of Europe and Asia. The name is also generally applied to a similar area in North America. The word is of Russian origin and means a marshy plain. The prevailing low temperatures are consequent on high latitude and proximity to the frozen northern ocean and result in very scanty vegetation.

Location of Navy Yards

United States navy yards are located at Portsmouth, N. H.; Boston, Mass.; Brooklyn, N. Y.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Washington, D. C. (naval gun factory); Norfolk, Va.; Charleston, S. C.; Mare Island, Calif.; Bremerton, Wash., and Pearl Harbor, T. H.

King of Belgians

The title King of the Belgians was decided upon when the kingdom was established, soon after the revolt of the Belgian people from the Netherlands. It emphasizes the constitutional character of the state and lays stress on the people whom the sovereign governs.

Some Presidents Served While Parents Survived

Four fathers and eight mothers had the singular pleasure of seeing their sons serve as Presidents of the United States.

Jesse Grant served as postmaster under his son, U. S. Grant, and his mother lived for fourteen years after his Presidency and died two years before he did.

Calvin Coolidge was administered his oath of office by his father, John Coolidge. Zachary Taylor's father was living when he went to the White House, as was John Quincy Adams' father, the former President, John Adams. George Washington's mother was alive at the time of his inaugural and so was Mrs. Susanna Adams, mother of John Adams. Mrs. Nelly Madison was living at the time her son, James, became the nation's executive, and Mrs. Jane Polk outlived her son, James Polk.

The mothers of James A. Garfield and William McKinley attended the inaugurations of their sons, as did Mrs. James Roosevelt on March 4, 1933, when her son took the country's helm.

Free and Easy

Sans souci is from the French and means without care, free and easy, and it is the name Frederick the Great gave to the royal palace he built near Potsdam in 1747. Mme. Sans Gene was the nickname of the wife of Lefevbre, duke of Dantzic, one of Napoleon's marshals. She started out life as a washerwoman and while her husband was in the ranks, during the Napoleonic wars, she followed the army from camp to camp. Fame and fortune came the couple's way and they entered the court circle. Though she was a kind, pleasant woman, her lack of etiquette made her the laughing stock of the court and earned her the nickname, which still clings to her and means "without constraint."

Part of Roman Empire

The countries now known as Great Britain, Belgium, Netherlands, France, Austria, Hungary, Switzerland, Luxemburg, San Marina, Liechtenstein, Albania, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Monaco, Italy, Bulgaria, Greece, Turkey, Syria, Mesopotamia, Palestine, Egypt, the borderlands of northern Africa touching the Mediterranean sea, and Spain and Portugal were included in the Roman empire at the height of its power.

Illiteracy Figures

There is no fair comparison of intelligence, which is very different from literacy. Even with regard to literacy, so far as the different countries are concerned, statistics are unreliable as they are based on different methods used in the various countries. Germany, Holland, Switzerland and the Scandinavian countries have practically no illiteracy. It was announced in 1931 that illiteracy in Russia had been reduced to 25 per cent. The illiteracy figure for the United States (persons of ten or over) is 4.3; for Great Britain (married persons), 0.34; France, 8.2; Poland, 24.2.

Veterinarian Answers Bang's Disease Queries

Farmers' questions about the Bang's disease eradication program in Pennington county, are answered by Dr. W. J. Fretz, federal veterinarian, St. Paul, as follows:

What is Bang's disease?— It is a disease of cattle frequently causing slinking of calves, shrinkage in milk production, failure to re-breed and udder diseases.

What are the purposes of the Bang's disease eradication program?— To get rid of cattle reacting to the blood test for this disease and to reduce cattle numbers in keeping with the administration's efforts to adjust production to effective demand.

Must every cattle owner take a part in this program?— No, everyone may decide for himself whether or not to enter.

What must I do to take part in this program?— Sign a contract with the government. Forms may be obtained from your county agent or from your county or community Bang's disease eradication committees

Who will make the tests?— A veterinarian approved by the State Livestock Sanitary Board.

How many times will my herd be tested?— At least once. A second test may be made if the chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry so directs.

Who pays for these tests?— The Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Your only expense will be the cost of materials for disinfecting your premises after diseased cattle have been removed. For the average farm, this cost should not exceed $3.

Does the government pay any indemnity for diseased cattle that are sold?— Yes, the federal government will pay cash indemnities of not more than $20 for grade cattle and not more than $50 for purebred animals. The owner of reacting acttle will receive this indemnity plus the net market returns. The sum of the indemnity and the market return of any animal, however, may not exceed the appraised value. No indemnity will be paid on grade bulls or on grade or pureberd heifers less than six months old.

Example 1:

If the appraised value of a grade animal is $50 and the check received by the owner thru the sale of the animal is $20, then the difference between the appraised value and the carcass is $30, and the maximum indemnity paid would be $20. The total the owner would receive under this example is $40.

Example 2:

Where the appraisal on a grade animal is less than the total ot salvage and maximum indemnity.

If the appraisal value of the animal is $35, and the check received by the owner thru the sale of the animal is $20, then the difference between the appraised value and the carcass is $15. The maximum indemnity paid would be $15. The total the owner would receive under this example is $35.

Highway Engineers Fast Eliminating Road Piers

Dangerous center piers where highways pass underneath railroad tracks will soon be almost eliminated from Minnesota's 11,000 mile trunk road system, according to an announcement by the State Highway department.

When work now under contract or definitely included in the current construction program has been completed, only five center piers will remain on trunk routes, it was said by N. W. Elsberg, highway commissioner.

"Center piers have frequently figured in fatal automobile accidents, and it is the policy of the department to eliminate them as rapidly as possible as a safety measure," Mr. Elsberg said. "This is one purpose for which federal funds are being used. In the past year the department has removed center piers at eleven locations, and three more removals are on the program for this winter. Only five center piers will then remain on the system."

Watering will Save Trees in Drouth Period

Much of the loss from winter killing and drouth injury to street and lawn trees can be avoided, according to T. M. McCall, horticulturist at the Northwest School at Crookston by timely watering of the trees now. The proper watering of drouth stricken lawn trees requires the replenishing of the subsoil supply. Either one of the two methods can be employed to get water to the feeding roots of trees and shrubs, namely: surface of sub-surface watering.

Surface or overhead watering of trees and lawns is the system most commonly used about the cities and villages where water can be secured under pressure. In general, where water is used in sufficient abundance to make a perfect lawn, then the trees and shrubs when given like amounts from the surface, will also thrive but where lawns are maintained by the dust sprinkling method, whereby one-tenth of an inch or less of water is applied at a time and at irregular intervals, the grass may survive but no water reaches the roots of trees or shrubs located in the subsoil. If the subsoil is dry under the trees, then a succession of surface watering is necessary to get an adequate supply to the tree roots. A cultivated circular area one foot in width around the base of the tree makes a convenient basin to fill when watering the lawn under the tree. The feeding roots of the tree, however, extend out generally as far as the branches of the top; hence, this outer ring of feeding roots must receive water.

The sub-surface method of watering dry subsoils is generally most satisfactory when prompt action is necessary to save the trees. Commercial subsurface irrigation systems can be installed or vertical tiles can be conveniently placed about the trees and shrubs if something of the more permanent type is desired. For emergency subsurface irrigation, from four to six post holes can be bored out among the feeding roots; for large trees, these holes should be from two to three feet deep and should be filled repeatedly until the subsoil is moist.

Profesor McCall states that rainfall sufficient to revive lawns will not be adequate to give trees and shrubs sufficient water for good winter protection. A few tests holes about the grounds will tell the story of the subsoil moisture supply.

What are the purposes of the Bang's disease eradication program?— To get rid of cattle reacting to the blood test for this disease and to reduce cattle numbers in keeping with the administration's efforts to adjust production to effective demand.

Must every cattle owner take a part in this program?— No, everyone may decide for himself whether or not to enter.

What must I do to take part in this program?— Sign a contract with the government. Forms may be obtained from your county agent or from your county or community Bang's disease eradication committees

Who will make the tests?— A veterinarian approved by the State Livestock Sanitary Board.

How many times will my herd be tested?— At least once. A second test may be made if the chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry so directs.

Who pays for these tests?— The Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Your only expense will be the cost of materials for disinfecting your premises after diseased cattle have been removed. For the average farm, this cost should not exceed $3.

Does the government pay any indemnity for diseased cattle that are sold?— Yes, the federal government will pay cash indemnities of not more than $20 for grade cattle and not more than $50 for purebred animals. The owner of reacting acttle will receive this indemnity plus the net market returns. The sum of the indemnity and the market return of any animal, however, may not exceed the appraised value. No indemnity will be paid on grade bulls or on grade or pureberd heifers less than six months old.

Example 1:

If the appraised value of a grade animal is $50 and the check received by the owner thru the sale of the animal is $20, then the difference between the appraised value and the carcass is $30, and the maximum indemnity paid would be $20. The total the owner would receive under this example is $40.

Example 2:

Where the appraisal on a grade animal is less than the total of salvage and maximum indemnity.

If the appraisal value of the animal is $35, and the check received by the owner thru the sale of the animal is $20, then the difference between the appraised value and the carcass is $15. The maximum indemnity paid would be $15. The total the owner would receive under this example is $35.

Highway Engineers Fast Eliminating Road Piers

Dangerous center piers where highways pass underneath railroad tracks will soon be almost eliminated from Minnesota's 11,000 mile trunk road system, according to an announcement by the State Highway department.

When work now under contract or definitely included in the current construction program has been completed, only five center piers will remain on trunk routes, it was said by N. W. Elsberg, highway commissioner.

"Center piers have frequently figured in fatal automobile accidents, and it is the policy of the department to eliminate them as rapidly as possible as a safety measure," Mr. Elsberg said. "This is one purpose for which federal funds are being used. In the past year the department has removed center piers at eleven locations, and three more removals are on the program for this winter. Only five center piers will then remain on the system."

Watering will Save Trees in Drouth Period

Much of the loss from winter killing and drouth injury to street and lawn trees can be avoided, according to T. M. McCall, horticulturist at the Northwest School at Crookston by timely watering of the trees now. The proper watering of drouth stricken lawn trees requires the replenishing of the subsoil supply. Either one of the two methods can be employed to get water to the feeding roots of trees and shrubs, namely: surface of sub-surface watering.

Surface or overhead watering of trees and lawns is the system most commonly used about the cities and villages where water can be secured under pressure. In general, where water is used in sufficient abundance to make a perfect lawn, then the trees and shrubs when given like amounts from the surface, will also thrive but where lawns are maintained by the dust sprinkling method, whereby one-tenth of an inch or less of water is applied at a time and at irregular intervals, the grass may survive but no water reaches the roots of trees or shrubs located in the subsoil. If the subsoil is dry under the trees, then a succession of surface watering is necessary to get an adequate supply to the tree roots. A cultivated circular area one foot in width around the base of the tree makes a convenient basin to fill when watering the lawn under the tree. The feeding roots of the tree, however, extend out generally as far as the branches of the top; hence, this outer ring of feeding roots must receive water.

The sub-surface method of watering dry subsoils is generally most satisfactory when prompt action is necessary to save the trees. Commercial subsurface irrigation systems can be installed or vertical tiles can be conveniently placed about the trees and shrubs if something of the more permanent type is desired. For emergency subsurface irrigation, from four to six post holes can be bored out among the feeding roots; for large trees, these holes should be from two to three feet deep and should be filled repeatedly until the subsoil is moist.

Profesor McCall states that rainfall sufficient to revive lawns will not be adequate to give trees and shrubs sufficient water for good winter protection. A few tests holes about the grounds will tell the story of the subsoil moisture supply.

Dignity of the Monkey

Jud Tunkins says evolution hasn't lessened the dignity of the monkey who tosses coconuts instead of shooting bullets and whose shamelessness is the least inexpensive.

Rev.Calloway Dies in Minneapolis Hospital

A former resident of this city, Rev. Richard K. Calloway passed away Monday, Sept., 24 in a Minneapolis hospital. Rev. Calloway was born in England on May 3, 1855, coming to the United States in 1887. He retired from the ministry in 1909 after 25 years of service and has made his home with a son in Minneapolis for the past number of years. His wife has preceded him in death. Surviving are three sons, Percy, Craven, and Max one daughter, Mrs. C. Milbrath; and four grandchildren all of Minneapolis. Rev. J. B. Smith officiated at services from the Erickson and Lund chapel at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, Sept. 27 and interment was made in Greenwood cemetery.

True "White-Man" Held to Be Genuine Albino

The only true "white men" are albinos. Others of the white race carry small amount of black pigment which is found in the negro races, and some of the yellow pigment of the orientals. Albino men lack pigment in the skin and in the hair and eyes. The hair is pure white, and the eyes show tiny little blood vessels that make them look pink.

"Albinos," says a Cornell authority, "have been known to occur among the black races. One type is known in certain black families in Jamaica, where black and white spotting causes large blotches on the skin."

He further notes that some traits both in men and animals are governed by sex. Where one sex normally shows a certain trait and the other does not, it is said to be sex-linked. He gives as examples the beard in man, horns in male deer, and more brilliant plumage in certain birds. Each sex, he says, can apparently transmit these traits of the other sex, but it cannot develop them under normal conditions.

"Although men show red-green color blindness more often than women, a color-blind man will never hand it down to his sons. It goes only to his daughters, and through them to grandsons and granddaughters. If the son of a color-blind man develops color-blindness," the scientist points out, "we can be reasonably sure that he got the trait, not from his father, who showed it, but from his mother, in whom the trait was hidden."

Our Social Abuses

Most of our social abuses will only be remedied by an improved sense of justice and humanity.

"Nagging" Defined

A definition of the term "nagging" was propounded by Quebec's chief justice in the hearing of a domestic case at Montreal. "Nagging," he said, "is a constant reiteration of an unpleasant truth."

Congestion in Java, China

The statement is often made that there are more people to the acre, or square mile, in Barbados than in any other country, but it is not accurate. There is greater congestion in Java and in China.

The Glass Fish

The scientific name of the glass fish most generally used is Ambassis lala. Ichthyologists have changed the name to Ambasis raga, but the former is still best known among aquarists. The fish reaches a length of two inches and is so transparent that the bone structure and internal organs are clearly visible as it swims in a tank. There is a yellowish sheen to the body, but this does not interfere with the transparency.

Murder of Famous Chief Resulted in Many Deaths

One of the most inexcusable murders in the history of our contact with the Red race, cites a writer in the Cleveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer, was the killing of the famous Chieftain Cornstalk. Having gone to the American camp at Point Pleasant in West Virginia on a friendly visit to bring about peace between the two races, he was held prisoner by the officers. While thus detained, a prowling Indian in the vicinity killed a white man. The soldiers, hearing this, rushed upon Cornstalk—also his son Ellinipsico and Black Hawks, who were imprisoned there—and in revenge cruelly murdered them. This destroyed the only hope of reconciliation and peace between the white settlers south of the Ohio river and the Indian tribes north of it. Occurring in 1777, this was followed by a succession of wars, forays, and murders down to the battle of Fallen Timbers in 1794, during which many thousands of white men, women and children, and many thousands of the Red race perished at each other's hands, all of which might have been averted by peace had not the beloved Cornstalk been murdered.

Edison and Rheumatism

Thomas Edison's painstaking methods are shown by his experience with rheumatism. He asked the physicians if all possible combinations of drugs had been tried to dissolve the uric acid crystals that cause rheumatism. When the doctor replied, "I suppose not," the Ohio wizard was determined to try for himself. He put a few of these crystals in the bottom of each of several thousand glass tumblers, and into each tumbler he poured a solution of every known drug. After three days he found that the crystals in five of them had dissolved. Throwing the other drugs away, he took these five to the physician and said, "There are the drugs you ought to use for rheumatism. To find out how to do a thing is to try everything you can think of."

Proof of Leatherlips' Guilt

Back in 1810 the Indian Chief Leatherlips was tomahawked by his own tribesmen on a charge of practicing witchcraft. After the chief was struck on the head and lay for a while in the agonies of death, the tomahawk-wielding executioner directed the attention of those present to the drops of sweat gathering on the dying Indian's neck and face, remarking with exultation that this was conclusive proof of Leatherlips' guilt.

Direct Taxes

Direct taxes are paid at first hand by the owner of the thing taxed. Real estate and income taxes are examples of direct taxes. Indirect taxes are those where it is recognized from the beginning that the individual who pays in the first instance usually passes on the charge to some one else who may again pass it on until it finally reaches the subject who bears the burden.

Made a Poor Guess

Only a quarter of a century ago, the greatest economic geologist America has ever produced announced in the Encyclopedia Britannica that California "had indications of petroleum but could never become a commercial producer."

Rattlesnakes' Fangs Are Like Hypodermic Needles

The poisonous fangs of rattlesnakes look very much like harmless teeth growing one on each side of the top of the upper jaw, but a drop or two of the deadly venom is usually death to the victim, says a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The fangs are sharp as needles and behind them are the little cups that hold the poison. The whole arrangement works with the swift effectiveness of a hypodermic needle. The fangs puncture the skin of the victim and the poison cups empty their deadly liquid.

Their young are born alive, instead of being hatched from eggs, as the young of most snakes are. And, instead of being born in spring, in the north they're born in the autumn, and the poor baby snakes starve all winter, but the little banded rattlers live so listlessly deep down among the rocks that they don't seem to need food.

The old tale that you can cut a snake in two pieces and its tail won't stop wiggling until sundown is a "fish story." But there is one thing about a rattlesnake which is almost as remarkable as the yarn about the living tail—and that is the indestructible nature of its poison fangs.

You can cut out these terrible weapons, but if you think you've disarmed the old rattler, you're mistaken. For he simply pushes out a new pair of fangs, just as sharp, just as deadly, as the first. You can cut off this pair, and there will come another, for the wily old snake keeps a long row of fangs in reserve.

Labor Is Foundation of All That Is Worth While

Labor is the foundation of all wealth and there is nothing of any worth in the world that has not been made valuable by the labor of man. Timber in the forests and ore in the ground represent potential wealth and they only become actual when the labor is applied to prepare them for public consumption. Money is merely a convenient medium by which labor or service may be easily exchanged for current needs or may be accumulated for future use.

The value of service varies according to the law of supply and demand, but the measuring stick must remain constant if there is to be any uniform standard for measuring service or its products. To have a fluctuating standard of value measurement would be just as absurd as changing the length of the ordinary yardstick from time to time so that when one purchased a yard of cloth it would be all wool a yard and a half wide today and only a yard wide tomorrow. No one would know from day to day how much cloth to purchase for his garments.

St. Peter's and the Vatican

St. Peter's was erected on the traditional site of the martyrdom of St. Peter, approximately June 29, A. D. 67. The Emperor Constantine in 322 erected a small chapel with the altar immediately over the body, which had been exhumed and buried with much ceremony. In 323 he commenced the building of the great basilica in the form of a cross, which endured until the Fifteenth century. In 1450 Pope Nicholas V commenced the present building, and this has continued to the present time. The building was dedicated in 1626 after 44 popes had participated in its improvement. The Vatican is a palace originally the residence of Pope Symmachus, from 498 to 514 A. D.

Progress of Philip Sheridan

When the Civil war broke out Philip H. Sheridan, a newly made captain, wrote this to a friend: "Who knows? Perhaps I may have a chance to earn a major's commission." He jumped clear over the ranks of major and lieutenant colonel to colonel, then brigadier general and major general and finally he was appointed general of the United States army. At the head of the cavalry he was to General Grant what Marshal Murat was to Napoleon.

First Envelopes Made in U. S.

Envelopes were first made in 1839 by a Mr. Pierson of New York city in a little store on Fulton street. The first envelope machine patent was granted January 23, 1840, to J. K. Park and C. S. Watson of New York. The first practical envelope folding machine that was successful commercially was patented January 21, 1853, by Dr. Russell L. Harris of Worcester, Mass. Window envelopes were devised by Thomas Callahan, patented June 10, 1902.

Founding the Epworth League

The Epworth league was founded in Cleveland, Ohio, May 15, 1889, by a group of five societies of Methodist young people. No particular individual seems especially identified with the founding. The league takes its name from Epworth parish in England, where John Wesley, founder of Methodism, was born. It has grown rapidly, is represented in both the Methodist Church North and South and has branches in a dozen foreign countries, including China. There are 30,000 chapters and 2,000,000 members.

Built the Pyramids

Strictly speaking, the Pyramids are really glorified graves! They were built to be tombs for Egyptian kins of the fourth dynasty. The Great Pyramid was built about the year 4700 B. C. by Khufu (or Cheops). This pyramid is 150 feet higher than St. Paul's cathedral and weighs about 6,840,000 tons.

The pyramids are a solid mass of stonework and contain at the center one or more tomb chambers, reached by long galleries.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Books Were Whipped

During colonial days, books which offended were publicly punished by being whipped or burned or both, writes L. V. Monasterial, Manila, Philippine Islands, in Collier's Weekly. One such case occurred in Boston in 1754 when the hangman burned in the middle of King street a pamphlet which criticized a court. About the same time another book was sentenced "to be publickly whipt with forty stripes, save one, and then burnt."

Number Thirteen

Various theories of the origin of the superstition surrounding the number thirteen are advanced, but probably the one most widely circulated is that it arose from the fact that thirteen persons sat down to the last supper with Christ, just before the betrayal by Judas. The superstition that Friday the thirteenth bodes evil to mankind is explained by the fact Friday became feared as the day of the crucifixion.

Cathedral Statues Clothed

Statues in the cathedral in Malaga, Spain, wear real clothing and jewelry. There stands the mascot of Spain's Catholic kings, "Our Lady of the Victories," an old carved wooden image of the Virgin. The carving is very human in appearance and it is exaggerated by being robed in actual clothing. It is the custom in Malaga to put clothing on all religious statues.

Homesickness

Homesickness sometimes becomes so intense that the sufferer not only loses all desire to eat and sleep but develops a melancholia which leads to insanity and death. In fact, army medical officers recognize it, in extreme cases, as a disability which warrants a furlough, or even a discharge, in order to save a soldier's life.—Collier's Weekly.

"Liverwing"

In preparing a fowl for roasting for the tidbit known many years ago as "liverwing," the heart and liver were removed. The heart was securely tucked under the left wing and the liver under the right wing. In cooking, the flavor of the liver was imparted to the right wing. This was then considered a delicacy, worthy of offering to an honored guest.

Famous Golden Spike

At the junction of the two roads that formed the first transcontinental railway, a golden spike was presented by California and was driven into a specially prepared tie by officials of the two roads with silver sledges. The ceremony took place May 10, 1869, at Promontory Point, Uath, and immediately after the ceremony the golden spike was withdrawn and an iron one substituted. It is in the museum of Leland Stanford university. Leland Stanford was one of the railroad officials who wielded the silver sledges.

The Glass Fish

The scientific name of the glass fish most generally used is Ambassis lala. Ichthyologists have changed the name to Ambasis raga, but the former is still best known among aquarists. The fish reaches a length of two inches and is so transparent that the bone structure and internal organs are clearly visible as it swims in a tank. There is a yellowish sheen to the body, but this does not interfere with the transparency.

Rattlesnakes' Fangs Are Like Hypodermic Needles

The poisonous fangs of rattlesnakes look very much like harmless teeth growing one on each side of the top of the upper jaw, but a drop or two of the deadly venom is usually death to the victim, says a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The fangs are sharp as needles and behind them are the little cups that hold the poison. The whole arrangement works with the swift effectiveness of a hypodermic needle. The fangs puncture the skin of the victim and the poison cups empty their deadly liquid.

Their young are born alive, instead of being hatched from eggs, as the young of most snakes are. And, instead of being born in spring, in the north they're born in the autumn, and the poor baby snakes starve all winter, but the little banded rattlers live so listlessly deep down among the rocks that they don't seem to need food.

The old tale that you can cut a snake in two pieces and its tail won't stop wiggling until sundown is a "fish story." But there is one thing about a rattlesnake which is almost as remarkable as the yarn about the living tail—and that is the indestructible nature of its poison fangs.

You can cut out these terrible weapons, but if you think you've disarmed the old rattler, you're mistaken. For he simply pushes out a new pair of fangs, just as sharp, just as deadly, as the first. You can cut off this pair, and there will come another, for the wily old snake keeps a long row of fangs in reserve.

Labor Is Foundation of All That Is Worth While

Labor is the foundation of all wealth and there is nothing of any worth in the world that has not been made valuable by the labor of man. Timber in the forests and ore in the ground represent potential wealth and they only become actual when the labor is applied to prepare them for public consumption. Money is merely a convenient medium by which labor or service may be easily exchanged for current needs or may be accumulated for future use.

The value of service varies according to the law of supply and demand, but the measuring stick must remain constant if there is to be any uniform standard for measuring service or its products. To have a fluctuating standard of value measurement would be just as absurd as changing the length of the ordinary yardstick from time to time so that when one purchased a yard of cloth it would be all wool a yard and a half wide today and only a yard wide tomorrow. No one would know from day to day how much cloth to purchase for his garments.

St. Peter's and the Vatican

St. Peter's was erected on the traditional site of the martyrdom of St. Peter, approximately June 29, A. D. 67. The Emperor Constantine in 322 erected a small chapel with the altar immediately over the body, which had been exhumed and buried with much ceremony. In 323 he commenced the building of the great basilica in the form of a cross, which endured until the Fifteenth century. In 1450 Pope Nicholas V commenced the present building, and this has continued to the present time. The building was dedicated in 1626 after 44 popes had participated in its improvement. The Vatican is a palace originally the residence of Pope Symmachus, from 498 to 514 A. D.

Progress of Philip Sheridan

When the Civil war broke out Philip H. Sheridan, a newly made captain, wrote this to a friend: "Who knows? Perhaps I may have a chance to earn a major's commission." He jumped clear over the ranks of major and lieutenant colonel to colonel, then brigadier general and major general and finally he was appointed general of the United States army. At the head of the cavalry he was to General Grant what Marshal Murat was to Napoleon.

First Envelopes Made in U. S.

Envelopes were first made in 1839 by a Mr. Pierson of New York city in a little store on Fulton street. The first envelope machine patent was granted January 23, 1840, to J. K. Park and C. S. Watson of New York. The first practical envelope folding machine that was successful commercially was patented January 21, 1853, by Dr. Russell L. Harris of Worcester, Mass. Window envelopes were devised by Thomas Callahan, patented June 10, 1902.

Founding the Epworth League

The Epworth league was founded in Cleveland, Ohio, May 15, 1889, by a group of five societies of Methodist young people. No particular individual seems especially identified with the founding. The league takes its name from Epworth parish in England, where John Wesley, founder of Methodism, was born. It has grown rapidly, is represented in both the Methodist Church North and South and has branches in a dozen foreign countries, including China. There are 80,000 chapters and 2,000,000 members.

Built the Pyramids

Strictly speaking, the Pyramids are really glorified graves! They were built to be tombs for Egyptian kins of the fourth dynasty. The Great Pyramid was built about the year 4700 B. C. by Khufu (or Cheops). This pyramid is 150 feet higher than St. Paul's cathedral and weighs about 6,840,000 tons.

The pyramids are a solid mass of stonework and contain at the center one or more tomb chambers, reached by long galleries.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Books Were Whipped

During colonial days, books which offended were publicly punished by being whipped or burned or both, writes L. V. Monasterial, Manila, Philippine Islands, in Collier's Weekly. One such case occurred in Boston in 1754 when the hangman burned in the middle of King street a pamphlet which criticized a court. About the same time another book was sentenced "to be publickly whipt with forty stripes, save one, and then burnt."

Number Thirteen

Various theories of the origin of the superstition surrounding the number thirteen are advanced, but probably the one most widely circulated is that it arose from the fact that thirteen persons sat down to the last supper with Christ, just before the betrayal by Judas. The superstition that Friday the thirteenth bodes evil to mankind is explained by the fact Friday became feared as the day of the crucifixion.

Cathedral Statues Clothed

Statues in the cathedral in Malaga, Spain, wear real clothing and jewelry. There stands the mascot of Spain's Catholic kings, "Our Lady of the Victories," an old carved wooden image of the Virgin. The carving is very human in appearance and it is exaggerated by being robed in actual clothing. It is the custom in Malaga to put clothing on all religious statues.

Homesickness

Homesickness sometimes becomes so intense that the sufferer not only loses all desire to eat and sleep but develops a melancholia which leads to insanity and death. In fact, army medical officers recognize it, in extreme cases, as a disability which warrants a furlough, or even a discharge, in order to save a soldier's life.—Collier's Weekly.

"Liverwing"

In preparing a fowl for roasting for the tidbit known many years ago as "liverwing," the heart and liver were removed. The heart was securely tucked under the left wing and the liver under the right wing. In cooking, the flavor of the liver was imparted to the right wing. This was then considered a delicacy, worthy of offering to an honored guest.

Famous Golden Spike

At the junction of the two roads that formed the first transcontinental railway, a golden spike was presented by California and was driven into a specially prepared tie by officials of the two roads with silver sledges. The ceremony took place May 10, 1869, at Promontory Point, Uath, and immediately after the ceremony the golden spike was withdrawn and an iron one substituted. It is in the museum of Leland Stanford university. Leland Stanford was one of the railroad officials who wielded the silver sledges.

New Log Cabin Tavern to Open on Wednesday

The formal opening of the Log Cabin Tavern will be held on Wednesday the first day of the Decade of progress celebration.

Adjoining the Palm Garden Cafe by a wide archway, the Tavern will be operated by Martin Bothun owner and manager of both places Beer will be served in the Tavern but not in the Palm Garden Cafe, says Mr. Bothun.

Wall decorations in the tavern portray scenes of outdoor life while the sky will be reproduced in the ceiling. The booths and bar are furnished in knotty pine carrying out the out-of-door spirit. A realistic log cabin will be reproduced in the rear of the room, and light fixtures are in lantern style.

Large Crowd Attends Rocksbury Rally Sun.

Approximately 700 persons attended the All-Party Political Rally under the auspices of the Rocksbury Community Club at Valhall on Sunday, October 7.

Fred C. Proehl of the bank examiner's office, defended the Farmer Labor party while Martin O Brandon, candidate for Congress upheld the Democratic platform, each speaking 25 minutes. The Republican party was not represented. Also addressing the gathering were Representative, J. O. Melby, Representative W. E. Day who are candidates to succeed themselves as representatives; Mr Jones of Gonvik who is a candidate for representative; and Paul Harris, who is a candidate for state senator.

High tribute was paid to the Rocksbury Community Club by Judge M. A. Brattland who spoke briefly and commended the club for its efforts at fair play and sound thinking in sponsoring this "New Deal" in politics.

BONDS OVER 4½% CALLED IN BY COUNTY BOARD

Refinancing of County Debt Will Save the Taxpayers Much Money

The re-bonding of the present debt of Pennington County was considered at a meeting of the county commissioners on Tuesday October 9.

All bonds bearing more than 4½% interest are being called in and will be taken up with the issue to the state, which will bear 4½% interest. This will not increase the county debt, but will affect a saving on interest on the present debt. The bonds that are now out, bear from 5½% to 6% interest.

Proceedings have been begun to obtain a loan from the state to refinance this county debt. Under the law which this re-financing is affected, it is mandatory for the county to go on a cash basis.

An 8,000 foot motion picture entitled "Modern Sweden" will be shown at the Sons of Norway hall Monday evening, October 15 at 8 o'clock. Featured with the picture will be Siri Andersson Thelin, Swedish singer, who will sing Swedish and English selections garbed in the costume dresses of her native country.

Mr. and Mrs. Thelin are natives from the province of Skane and are touring the country with these films which show the beautiful Northland of Europe. The picture will have English titles and the Thelins will make other explanatory remarks regarding the scenes shown. The pictures have been acclaimed in principal cities and will have a widespread appeal to the many local residents whose ancestry hails from the Northland country.

"This Isn't the First Depression and It Won't Be the Last," Says John Regan

"This is not the first depression and it won't be the last," John E Regan, democratic candidate for governor said addressing a crowd of seventy people at the Civic and Commerce club rooms in the auditorium Wednesday afternoon.

In opening his talk he scored the republicans for dishonesty in the conduct of the so-called daily newspaper poll being conducted in the state. "This poll is conducted by the same group that has dictated the policies of this state so long," he said, and they are furnishing the money to stage this fake." He ridiculed the idea of Meeker county and Itaska county being cited as giving Nelson a majority. "You couldn't pry Meeker county away from Olson with a pickaxe," he stated.

The biggest problem is your tax problem, he stated and suggested that all taxes should be taken off real estate. He stated that the tax levy of the state has risen from 20 million in 1912 to 136 million in the last year. He accused the Olson administration of being promiscuous spenders and stated that the state taxes have risen enormously during Olson's terms. He invited his listeners to ask questions if they so desired. After he had concluded, Fred C. Proehl of this city asked him what sum the state has levied during the past years naming several in succession. Mr Regan however was unable to enlighten him. He admitted however that there are 76 million dollars of state taxes delinquent out of the 136 which he claims the state has levied.

Mr. Proehl challenged him to debate taxes and banking but Mr. Regan sidesteped. Mr. Proehl repeated his challenge and informed him that he would be willing to have Mr. Regan take his best democrat and best republican in the state to help him.

D. P. O'Neil, who was present interposed that he would be willing to debate Mr. Proehl on socialism anytime. "Who said anything about socialism?" Mr. Proehl retorted. "I repeat my challenge I'll debate on taxes and banking anytime anyplace and you can take along the best republican to help you if you want to," he said. His challenge remained unaccepted.

Butter Contest Draws Largest No. of Entries in History of Assn.

Dairymen Complete Plans For Biggest Convention in Groups History

M. at which Pres. A. A. Dowell will preside, and L. Hauske will present an address in "The Federal Cream Quality Campaign." There will also be election of officers.

A dairymaids milking contest will take place Thursday afternoon at one o'clock in front of the auditorium, and addresses in the auditorium by Governor Olson, W. E. Peterson of the University of Minnesota, and L. A. Gibson of Winnipeg, dairy commissioner of Manitoba, Canada will feature the afternoon program.

There will be a special session for the women on the same afternoon in the Civic and Commerce Rooms of the auditorium, with Mrs. Lee Beele presiding chairman. Miss Julia O. Newton of St. Paul and Miss Reta Bede of the Northwest Agricultural school at Crookston will speak to the women Community singing will be led by Mrs. V. C. Noper, and Mrs. Mildred Engen Hamilton will present a piano solo.

The evening session will open with a concert by the municipal band under the direction of S. P Orwoll. Dr. A. A. Dowell of Crookston, superintendent of the Northwest School of agriculture will deliver the president's address and A. H. Lauterback, chief of the dairy division in the U. S. Department of Agriculture will also speak.

Winners of the butter judging contests will be announced by B J. Ommodt, and Stuart McLeod will present awards to the winners of the dairymaid's milking contest C. M. Pesek will announce the winners of the Red River Valley butter contests, and R. A. Trovatten of St. Paul, the state commissioner of agriculture, dairy and food will present the awards.

The final day's convention will close with a dance at the auditorium supplied by Harry Turner and his orchestra of Bismark, N. Dak.

Complete convention program will be found on page 2.

Robert Miller, president of the Minnesota Farmers' Union spoke to a small crowd at the Old Elks hall Tuesday evening, explaining the aims and the accomplishments of his organization. Thirty per cent of the grain arriving on the Chicago market is handled by the Farmers' Union Mr. Miller said and the organization handles about one fourth of all the grain raised in the nation.

He called attention to the insane system of marketing which the farmers must sell under, by a demonstration with five men beginning with the manufacturers., thru the jobber, the wholesaler the retailer and winding up with the farmer consumer. Each takes from the other a fixed price and put their hands into the next man's pocket to extract that fixed price, Mr Miller, explained, except the farmer, he is on the end of the line. Complete the circle by putting the farmer's hands into the manufacturers' porket to extract a fixed price for his commodities and it will be a circle and no longer a chain with the farmer on the whip-end, Mr. Miller said.

He told of a trip thru the east and recounted the sights of misery and of the "dumpground" city in the vicinity of Philadelphia.

A group of eleven signed up a list for the purpose of organizing a Farmers' Union local in this county.

Mr. Miller is a very forceful speaker and his descriptive word pictures were exceptionally well received by he audience.

Plummer PTA Elects Officers Thursday

Court Disposes of Three Cases Since Mon. Morn

To the grand jury indictment charge of criminal assault against him, Rush McAllister this week entered a plea of not guilty in connection with the death of his wife last spring.

The petit jury returned a verdict in the amount of $211. including damages to T. T. Ose, in the case resulting from a car deal of Ose vs. John T. Bowers and Bessie K. Bowers.

In the case of the Northern Credit Company vs. A. C. Olson and J. H. Hermanson, the jury returned a verdict for the defendant amounting to $106.

The case of the state vs. Martin Bothun began this morning, dealing with the condemnation proceedings for the new bridge.

The district court was adjourned this afternoon at 3 o'clock until 10 a. m. November 8.

Women's Club Will Meet on Saturday

The Woman's Club will have a luncheon in the basement of the Community church at 1 o'clock Sat. Oct. 13 with the luncheon being served by groups 1 and 2 of the Community church Ladies' Aid.

A. E. Carlson of the high school faculty will address the group, and a report of the state woman's clubs convention held at Fergus Falls last week will be given by Mrs. W. W. Prichard, Jr., who attended as a regular delegate from the local club.

Musical numbers will include community singing led by Mrs. H. L. Sjogren, selections by the Lincoln high school girls' trio, and a vocal solo by Mrs. O. F. Mellby. Plans are also being perfected to include a surprise feature on the program.

MAYOR'S VETO OVERRIDDEN BY CITY COUNCIL

Council Moves to Acquire Tax-Delinquent Property for Park Purposes

The city of Thief River Falls is now the owner of a portion of Block 38 of the original town site of Thief River Falls, and the city council at its regular meeting Oct. 9 determined to acquire the balance of the property for park purposes The city engineer has been instructed to make a survey of the proposed improvements, together with the names of the owners of each parcel, and submit this to the city council. The city attorney has been instructed to take the necessary preparations and bring the condemnation proceedings in order to acquire the balance of the property.

Building permits were granted by the city council to the following: to H. O. Berve for rebuilding and alternation of his residence at the estimated cost of $600; to the Prichard-Oen Grain Co., to erect a warehouse at $1,000.; to Mrs. R. G. BONDS OVER 4½% CALLED IN BY COUNTY BOARD

The re-bonding of the present debt of Pennington County was considered at a meeting of the county commissioners on Tuesday October 9.

All bonds bearing more than 4½% interest are being called in and will be taken up with the issue to the state, which will bear 4½% interest. This will not increase the county debt, but will affect a saving on interest on the present debt. The bonds that are now out, bear from 5½% to 6% interest.

Proceedings have been begun to obtain a loan from the state to refinance this county debt. Under the law which this re-financing is affected, it is mandatory for the county to go on a cash basis.

An 8,000 foot motion picture entitled "Modern Sweden" will be shown at the Sons of Norway hall Monday evening, October 15 at 8 o'clock. Featured with the picture will be Siri Andersson Thelin, Swedish singer, who will sing Swedish and English selections garbed in the costume dresses of her native country.

Mr. and Mrs. Thelin are natives from the province of Skane and are touring the country with these films which show the beautiful Northland of Europe. The picture will have English titles and the Thelins will make other explanatory remarks regarding the scenes shown. The pictures have been acclaimed in principal cities and will have a widespread appeal to the many local residents whose ancestry hails from the Northland country.

"This Isn't the First Depression and It Won't Be the Last," Says John Regan

"This is not the first depression and it won't be the last," John E Regan, democratic candidate for governor said addressing a crowd of seventy people at the Civic and Commerce club rooms in the auditorium Wednesday afternoon.

In opening his talk he scored the republicans for dishonesty in the conduct of the so-called daily newspaper poll being conducted in the state. "This poll is conducted by the same group that has dictated the policies of this state so long," he said, and they are furnishing the money to stage this fake." He ridiculed the idea of Meeker county and Itaska county being cited as giving Nelson a majority. "You couldn't pry Meeker county away from Olson with a pickaxe," he stated.

The biggest problem is your tax problem, he stated and suggested that all taxes should be taken off real estate. He stated that the tax levy of the state has risen from 20 million in 1912 to 136 million in the last year. He accused the Olson administration of being promiscuous spenders and stated that the state taxes have risen enormously during Olson's terms. He invited his listeners to ask questions if they so desired. After he had concluded, Fred C. Proehl of this city asked him what sum the state has levied during the past years naming several in succession. Mr. Regan however was unable to enlighten him. He admitted however that there are 76 million dollars of state taxes delinquent out of the 136 which he claims the state has levied.

Mr. Proehl challenged him to debate taxes and banking but Mr. Regan sidesteped. Mr. Proehl repeated his challenge and informed him that he would be willing to have Mr. Regan take his best democrat and best republican in the state to help him.

D. P. O'Neil, who was present interposed that he would be willing to debate Mr. Proehl on socialism anytime. "Who said anything about socialism?" Mr. Proehl retorted. "I repeat my challenge I'll debate on taxes and banking anytime anyplace and you can take along the best republican to help you if you want to," he said. His challenge remained unaccepted.

GOV. FLOYD B. OLSON

Robert Miller, president of the Minnesota Farmers' Union spoke to a small crowd at the Old Elks hall Tuesday evening, explaining the aims and the accomplishments of his organization. Thirty per cent of the grain arriving on the Chicago market is handled by the Farmers' Union Mr. Miller said and the organization handles about one fourth of all the grain raised in the nation.

He called attention to the insane system of marketing which the farmers must sell under, by a demonstration with five men beginning with the manufacturers., thru the jobber, the wholesaler the retailer and winding up with the farmer consumer. Each takes from the other a fixed price and put their hands into the next man's pocket to extract that fixed price, Mr. Miller, explained, except the farmer, he is on the end of the line. Complete the circle by putting the farmer's hands into the manufacturers' porket to extract a fixed price for his commodities and it will be a circle and no longer a chain with the farmer on the whip-end, Mr. Miller said.

He told of a trip thru the east and recounted the sights of misery and of the "dumpground" city in the vicinity of Philadelphia.

A group of eleven signed up a list for the purpose of organizing a Farmers' Union local in this county.

Mr. Miller is a very forceful speaker and his descriptive word pictures were exceptionally well received by he audience.

GOVERNMENT MILK COWS FOR DISTRESSED FAMILIES

An adequate supply of fresh milk, cream and butter is being provided needy families by the State Emergency Relief Administration through its division of rural rehabitation.

The method devised, according to an announcement by L. P. Zimmerman, deputy administrator, is to make milk cows from the government-purchased subsistence herds available for farm families not owning any dairy cattle themselves, although possessing sufficient feed.

Already, 1000 cows in groups of from one to three, have been placed at the disposal of farmers eligible to this kind of assistance, on condition that no sale be made of the dairy products. All must be consumed in the individual households. Should a beneficiary of this cattle distribution wish to acquire title to the cows loaned, the division of rural rehabilitation offers such an opportunity either through purchase for cash, when possible, or in kind or by performing work on approved SERA project.

School Pupils Taught Principle of Safe Driving

Beginning this fall, pupils in Minnesota's high schools will learn the maxims of traffic safety from a special manual, prepared by the division of safety, (State Emergency Relief Administration), it has been announced by L. P. Zimmerman, deputy administrator.

This topic of study is included in a course which aims to bring about a greater degree of traffic security, by impressing upon the potential drivers of the near future that many automible accidents can be avoided by careful driving.

C. H, Zealand, director of the SERA safety division, explains that in the preparation of the manual, valuable assistance was rendered by the state department of education as well as by leaders in school and college circles.

Mayor Hoan Vetoes Free Speech Gag on Communists

Milwaukee Oct, 8.—Mayor Daniel W. Hoan, Socialist, has vetoed a resolution passed at the last meeting of the common council asking the county board to prohibit Communist meetings and speeches at Red Arrow park.

The resolution, sponsored by the non-partisan group in the council sought this prohibition on the ground that, as the park had been named in honor of a division of troops in the World war, Communistic speeches at the place were out of place.

Socialist aldermen fought the resolution on the ground that freedom of speech was one of the fundamental rights accorded to the people of this nation and that denying that right on the plea of patriotism would be hypocrisy.

In vetoing the resolution, Mayor Hoan also points out that it is discriminatory since it "seeks to deny rights and privileges to one class of our citizens not deied tc all."

OLSON ALL-PARTY GROUP PUSHES STATE CAMPAIGN

Organization Work is Completed in All Counties; Workers Report A Fine Response

Minneapolis, Oct. 10—A vigorous campaign for the re-election of Governor Floyd B. Olson is being carried into every county of the state by the Olson for Governor All-Party Volunteer committee, which has its state headquarters here.

The organization work is now completed in all counties. District vice-chairmen have been named and county chairmen have been selected, according to John H. Hougen of Minneapolis, state chairman of the Olson for Governor All-Party Committee.

"Our workers in the field," Mr. Hougen said, "are reporting an enthusiastic response from the voters to Governor Olson's campaign for re-election. People who in the past have been in different political camps are rallying to the all-party movement for Governor Olson because they realize that he is the only gubernatorial candidate in this campaign who has the interests of the common people at heart. They know that the reactionary leadership in the old parties in this state has nothing to offer them.

"I, myself, have been a Republican, but it has become apparent that we can expect no progressive measures from that party in this state—only a continuation of the old deal. Therefore I am devoting every effort, as are all other members of the all-party organization to bring about the re-election of Governor Olson, confident that by his re-election will the people of Minnesota be protected against the inroads of the predatory combinations of wealth that have so long played a dominant role in this state."

COMMODITY PRODUCTION UNDER WAY FOR NEEDY

The number of State Emergency Relief Administration enterprises utilizing relief labor to manufacture commodities for use by Minnesota needy, will be brought to three with the establishment, Oct. 15, of a mattress factory in St. Paul, it was announced by L. P. Zimmerman, deputy administrator.

A canning project in St. Paul and a mattress plant in Minneapolis comprise the remainder of these undertakings launched to date. The Minneapolis project is in rented quarters in a part of the Strong-Scott building at 413 So. 3rd st., and the equipment of the St. Cloud Products Association was leased to handle the canning.

It is estimated that each of the Minneapolis and St. Paul factories will finish 88 mattresses daily, and that together they will furnish work for 200 persons monthly, while 400 persons a month are required for the canning job. The production of mattresses may gradually be raised to a total of 150 for each plant. A proposed Duluth plant will have an output of one-half of that figure. All the manufacturing processes are hand labor.

In excess of 20,000 head of government cattle are being slaughtered in St. Paul, Duluth and Fergus Falls. From these points the processed meat is to be transported to St. Cloud for canning, at the rate of 21,000 one-pound tins a day. operations to continue until a total of 800,000 tins of the processed beef are ready.

Distribution of the commodities among the needy will be supervised by the SERA relief workers in the various counties.

STATEMENT TELLS HOW 'U' CHOSE RELIEF STUDENTS

Federal and State Rules Observed. Larger Sums to Those Not Living at Home

Because three thousand applications were received for approximately one thousand appointments as federal aid students at the University of Minnesota in the fall quarter, Dean Malcolm M. Willey, assistant to the president, has issued a statement describing the methods of selection and reasons for accepting those who were appointed. He has been flooded with inquiries from those not named.

In the first place, the United States government specified that 50 per cent of the appointments must go to students who were in no college or universiy last January. This automatically gave a strong preference to a group that came as entering students or as students who had dropped out of college more than a year ago.

At first the government required also that the ordinary ratio between men and women in the university be maintained in the appointments. This it later dropped. The university committee on admissions, however, voted to maintain the usual ratio between students from the twin cities and students from outside the twin ciies. Some preference was given, also, to students of good scholastic standing, either in high schools, for entering students, or in previous work at the university.

In allocating the amounts of money these students are permitted to earn per month, consideration had to be given to the federal limits of $10 and $20 a month, lower and upper limits, and to the state's allotment of $5 a month, for Minnesota students only, up to a total of $30,000 for the year.

Most students from the twin cities were limited to $15 a month, as they have the advantage of living at home. The maximum aid allotment of $25 a month, of which $20 is from the federal and $5 is from state funds was given in almost every case to non-twin city students, and the maximum of $20 a month, without state assistance. also went to that group, as they must live away from home.

Federal aid can go to any type of student, whether undergraduate or graduate, and whether or not a resident of the state. The additional $5 from the SERA goes, however, only to residents of the state of Minnesota.

Somewhat less than 100 of the students will be accepted for the various schools of agriculture, the remainder to be students of college rank or graduate students.

Hunters Urged to Prevent Accidents

With annual hunting seasons under way in the state, the Minnesota Conservation Commission urged in a statement Saturday that gunners make it a point to prevent accidents along with the taking of game. To save lives and forestall serious injuries should ever be in the mind while in woods or field, it was warned. Here are a few of the most common warnings against accidents:

Do not drag a loaded shotgun, muzzle first, thru a fence, from a boat or out of a car.

Do not lean a loaded gun against a tree where dogs are playing about. The dogs may not knock it down, but chances are they will. If the charge misses the hunter, it may kill a good dog.

Do not lay a loaded gun in the bottom of a boat and then pick it up while excited. Drowning takes longer but it is as effective as a shot thru the heart or he head. Also it is disasterous to the boat.

Do not jump ditches with gun swinging downward or walk in deep snow with the barrel down. Gun barrels must be kept free of mud, snow or water, otherwise it will explode when it is fired. Remember, the warning stated, that a good gun costs money and a head may be blown off.

See that nothing alive is in the line of fire and do not shoot at any movement or patch of color in the undergrowth until you are sure of what you are shooting at; it may be another hunter.

Rice in Java

When the rice plants blossom in Java, natives garner their choicest table foods and, throw them in the water. Their belief is that the rice is apt to develop whimsical appetites at such a time, and that by satisfying the appetite, they will insure a finer rice crop.

Venice

Venice, in medieval times one of the great powers of the world, owes its decadence to the circumnavigation of the cape and the discovery of America.

How "A Great Financial Empire" Was Built

Synopsis of Testimony Developed in the Hearings On The Northwest Bancorporation

Arrange Pressure On Congressmen

The schemes and plans by which pressure was to be put on the congressmen is shown in the same letter above quoted, where Mr. Perry suggests to Mr. Thomson: "I have been thinking over what could be done towards stirring up branch banking sentiment in the country and have thought that if we could make a clamor from the bankless towns for branch banking, we would get some real propaganda going that would be most effective. Petitions, by mayors and some of the leading citizens, to congress for branch banking would go furher than anything that we could do, and how these could be assembled is a real question. It occured to me that possibly some member of the banking and currency committee of the senate or of the house could write to all he owns that have become bankless during the last ten years and ask them whether they would like to see branch banking legislation passed. A carefully couched letter should bring an affirmative reply. This letter would state that banks in small towns could not be operated at a profit, consequently, were now a thing of the past, also that a town without a bank would lose its business to the nearest town that did have a bank, etc.

"If this general idea follows in line with your thoughts, it occured to me that I might broach this subject to Senator Glass, to see if he had any objecion to trying out an idea of this kind and see whether he would be willing to sponsor it, or whether he would have objections to somebody else sponsoring it. If we did all the work, sending the stuff out under the congressman's name and tabulating the returns, it would be no effort on the part of the individual upon whom we would impose."

The record shows that Mr. Thomson in his haste to answer did so by wire on March 16, 1933, the day after Perry's letter to him. In this wire he stated:

"Believe suggestion your letter for investigation by senate committee all towns formerly having banking facilities including towns now faced with lack of banking facilities to get their recommendations as to whether they would rather have branch or independent banking would be finest thing possible stop Hope you can get Senator Glass to approve it."

The telegram apparently approves of everything that Perry said, including the "carefully couched letter so worded as to bring an affirmative reply" sent out under the name of a congressman and, as the record herein shows, this or similar information was sent out under congressional franks.

It is interesting to note that in spite of the fact that Thomson was willing to dangle before the bankless towns the possibility of branches, yet when he was questioned as to whether they intended to put branches in these bankless towns in which they were raising the "clamor", he stated: "It doesn't involve any statement of the corporation as to what they were going to do and it was never contemplated we would put branches in all the bankless towns."

Work at Washington Expensive

The accomplishment of the legislative desires seems to have been somewhat expensive. It was necessary apparently to employ one Collins and a Mr. Shealy, about whom more will be said later. Under date of June 8, 1933, Mr. Perry wrote to Mr. Thomson about the cost. The letter follows:

Mayflower Hotel,
Washington, D. C.,
June 8, 1933.

Mr. J. C. Thomson, Vice Pres.,
Northwest Bancorporation,
Minneapolis, Minn.

Dear Tommy:

At last the Washington Expense Account is finished, and am inclosing it herewith. You will note first that I have taken the full situation from April 1, 1932, to April 1, 1933, but I have included some payments that were made after April 1, such as one paid to Shealey, stationary bill and mimeograph work, also some Congressional Record purchases which I felt justifiable belonged to the account. On the other hand, total expenditure has a short fall of about $900 of what is carried in the Bancorporation books because of the fact that some of these entries are not correctly charged.

You will note that I have carried the expenditure of Hoel, Rachac and the others, as separate items under "Other Bankers' Travel."

You will note that the total expenditure amounts to $26,067.80, on top of which is the $1,500 of the short fall of the First Securities Corporation of Ogden in its retainership fee to Collins, making a grand total of $27,567.80. Counting the share that was allocated to the Bancorporation, we have received total reimbursement of $9,508.36. You will note on the other sheet inclosed, the names of those who have contributed, but in comparing that with our records in the bank, it will be seen that the First Bank Stock Corporation, First of Atlanta and Marine Midland, have been credited with a little bit more than was actually paid on our boks. The amount that these corporations have been credited is merely the amount which they have paid out of pocket and shows on the "Washington Expenses" Sheet inclosed.

The short fall between expenses and the contributions of the corporations amounts, as you will not to $18,059.44 (this includes the $1,500 short fall in Collin's retainership). Had the groups that we had listed paid their share as follows, we would have had more than enough to take care of this short fall. These groups are as follows:

Citizens & Southern	$1,212.09
Detroit Bankers	9,615.38
Guardian Detroit Union	6,250.00
Southwest Tulsa	673.07
First Security of Utah	1,500.00
Total	$19,250.54

Accordingly, if we had been paid by these groups, our total situation would have been cared for. There is a chance that we may get something from the Guardian Detroit, but the affidavit which we received the first of this week from Jim Walsh, which Collins is filling out has the group put in, not the bank named, so possibly if we get anything, it will be a considerable cut from the $6,250.

In looking over the groups that would or could pay anything it simmers down pretty nearly to the Marine Midland, the First of Atlanta and the three Northwest Groups. Possibly the Citizens and Southern might contribute something. If we could ask the Marine Midland, First Bank Stock, Wisconsin Bank Shares, First of Atlanta and ourselves for $3,000 apiece, we ought to be able to raise the balance of $3,000 from a combination of the Guardian, The Citizens & Southern, Shawmut Association, Continental-Illinois, and one or two others. I would like to get your idea about this as to whether we could go at it arbitrarily that way asking for an even $3,000 apiece or whether we ought to portion it around, which would mean increasing the Marine Midland materially and reducing Atlanta materially.

There is no question but that this work of ours has been very productive of good results and as you said, in the past, the money that we have put into it is small compared wih what generally poured into legislative work. We have done a great deal of entertaining and, of course, an enormous amount of telephoning.

In writing to the groups, if you decide to have me to do so, it might be better for me to show the totals paid for Collins' retainership and the general expenses rather than to show it split up in the way it is on the sheet inclosed. In showing it in the way we have it divided on the sheet, it gives the wrong impression about the Wisconsin Bank Shares, First of Atlanta in the matter of their general expense contributions and it looks as if the Marine Midland had dropped off on the Collins retainership. In using this sheet, however, you will note that I have Collins on the 1933 figure as being paid for the full year. If you think there is any question about this latter, I could state that the total contributions of the different groups included Colbasis that was being paid.

Sincerely yours,
Gardner B. Perry

German Labor Fights Back

Hannover (TIT)—Bitterness and growing discontent among the German workers are the outcome of the steadily mounting economic disaster in Germany. Despite all efforts of the Nazis to keep the "German Labor Front" the contented mouthpiece of German labor, recent events show pronounced criticism in the ranks of the Nazi coordinated German workers. Demands for intelligent discussions of wage and labor problems at the meetings of the German Labor Front are increasingly heard and cannot be kept down by commands from above.

One of the many examples is a recent Labor Front meeting of the woodworkers, carpenters and allied trades at Hannover. The meeting was attended by approximately 1,000 workers who insisted on an untrammeled discussion of wage and working conditions. In obedience to the famous Nazi leader principle, the chairman took the position that no discussion should take place, but that only a lecture by a prominent Nazi labor leader followed by specific questions on the floor, would be permitted. After numerous threats against the dissenters the workers were treated to a lecture which again proved the complete lack of knowledge of social and economic conditions by the Nazis. The answers given to questions from the floor were so evading and so meaningless that a near-riot broke out. The workers left the hall in protest, singing the "International", the anthem of the Socialist movement. The demonstration was spontaneous and lasted for some time in the streets around the hall. The police authorities wisely declined to interfere.

Reports from Berlin indicate similar events have taken place at meetings of the German Labor Front in that place. In the course of a heated altercation between the Nazi speaker and a worker, a fist fight broke out which ended with the fall of the Nazi representative from the platform. He was taken to the hospital, and died a short time later.

The workers are especially bitter against the sending of unemployed as land helpers to far-a-way districts of the Reich. At the Schlesischer Bahnof Station, a train with hundreds of land helpers was held up by the wives who occupied the tracks and refused to leave. The efforts of the stationmaster to make them leave, as well as the appearance of large police detachments proved of no avail. The excitement finally became so great that the unemployed left the train and went home. It is interesting to note that the authorities are unwilling to proceed against women despite the fact that the latter often and openly voice pronounced criticism against the Nazi regime.

DRUNKENNESS RESPONSIBLE FOR SMALL PROPORTION OF ALL THE TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

Sober, tho Alky-Affected Drivers Charged with One-third of Auto Accidents

by W. G. Calderwood

It seems well established that the proportion of traffic accidents that are chargeable to drunkenness is "relatively small". But it is equally well established that the vast majority of accidents that are caused by liquor are the fault of undrunken, but alcohol affected drivers.

The Boston Post of September 16, features a full page article by Richard Milne who gives the facts as gathered from the best traffic experts. Under the subhead, "Repeal Did It", he points out the different attitudes of drinkers since repeal towards the "drink or two" habit. "Now, the driver of a party car almost always has a drink or two for himself. He does not get himself drunk, nor even under the influence. His brains are dulled to a point where he cannot think what to do in a pinch. Those two or three drinks make all the difference between getting by and a bad accident. Several things are causing the drinking by drivers— fact that liquor is legal; a driver half kids himself into believing he is doing nothing wrong. It's superficial kidding, because common sense tells him he is wrong.

"You can get a drink, it seems at almost any hot dog stand, and there is almost a boozery next door to a gas station or at least not far away. Drink is practically uung into the motorist's face, * * * "

"Then there is the casual way in which drivers have become accustomed to taking a couple of beers before leaving town for home. That's a good part of the drinking driver picture. Not the brute who gets himself slopped, so much as the otherwise good citizen who kids himself along that he's not taking any chances."

This matches up with the statement of Stoeckel, the Connecticut highway commissioner who has stoutly maintained for years that experience teaches that the driver who has had but a drink or two, and who shows no signs of drunkenness, and who believes himself in perfect driving condition, is the most dangerous man on the highway. Dr. Walter Miles of Yale joins in that opinion. He holds that drunken driving is responsible for only 7 to 10 percent of traffic fatalities, whereas one third of auto accidents are probably caused by alcohol affected drivers.

PORK STOCKS SHOW SHARP REDUCTION; BEEF SUPPLY IS UP

"Storage stocks of meats held in the United States are an important factor in present markets on livestock, and with the exception of beef stocks, they are decidedly favorable," says the weekly market bulletin issued by the Central Co-Operative Association at So. St. Paul.

Cured and frozen pork stocks held in cold storage plants and warehouses of the United States on September 1, this year were 540,493,000 pounds, or 28 percent less than a year ago, and 19 per cent less than the five year average. In other words, there was a decrease of 217,000,000 pounds in pork stocks from a year ago and a reduction of 100,000,000 pounds from the five year average.

Lard stocks at 168,719,000 lbs., shows 24 percent decrease from a year ago, but are still 22 percent larger than the five-year average. These figures are bullish and should have a favorable influence on hog markets.

In the case of frozen and cured beef stocks, the September 1st total storage stocks amounted to more than 80,000,000 lbs., or 66 percent greater than a year ago when stocks totaled 48,446,000 lbs. The five-year average holdings of beef at this date is 43,928,000 lbs.

These figures do not include beef processed from goevrnment relief cattle, but cattle slaughter generally during the past month has been unusually heavy. Including cattle slaughtered by the government during August, the total kill for the United States was 1,576,204 head. A year ago the August cattle slaughter was 725,000 head and the average slaughter for that month during the past five years was only 725,000 head.

S E R A MUST REMAIN NON-POLITICAL; OLSON

District and county offices of the State Emergency Relief Administration may not serve as centers for political activity, nor are the employees permited to take sides in behalf of any candidates for public offices, it was announced by L. P. Zimmerman, deputy administrator.

Governor Floyd B. Olson made this non-political status compulsory in an order to all district and county representatives of the SERA. The display of camp gianliterature and posters in the offices is specifically mentioned as objectionable.

The governor's letter is worded as follows: "Reports and information have come to my attention to the effect that political campaign terature and posters are handled and displayed in the county ERA offices and drouth relief offices. This is contrary to orders given in my letter sent under date of Aug. 28th relative to political activities.

"It is hereby directed that campaign literature or posters in no way, shape or form shall be displayed or handled in any of the ERA offices of the State Emergency Relief Administration. Also, no employees are to take any sides or active part in behalf of any candidate for public offices."

30 SEASONAL LIMIT ON THREE GAME BIRDS

When the open season on ringnecked pheasants, quail and native partridge or ruffed grouse starts in Minnesota at 12 o'clock noon Saturday, Oct. 20, hunters must bear in mind that only 30 birds in the aggregate of these three species may be taken by any one person during the open season, Erling Swenson, Game and Fish Director, warned today. Gunners are asked to carefully study the regulations pertaining to counties that are opened to the various species of upland game birds, time for hunting and bag limits for the day, season and possession limits.

DIS RICT JUDGE

14th Jucicial District

APPOINTED BY GOVERNOR OLSON, FEBRUARY 28, 1934 TO SUCCEED JUDGE JULIUS J. OLSON

NOMINATED AT THE JUNE PRIMARY AS A CANDIDATE TO SUCCEED HIMSELF

I feed deeply grateful for the very large primary vote given me, being in excess of fifteen thousand, nine hundred votes, and wish to take this occasion to thank you, the electors of this District, for your splendid endorsement.

..Because of the work of the office this fall, it will be impossible for me to make a personal campaign of this extensive district, and all that I can expect to do is to meet voters at such public gatherings as I shall have an opportunity to attend.

Since I have held the office of District Judge for but a few months, it is my hope that I may be privileged to serve in this capacity for a full term, striving to merit the confidence of your favorable votes November 6th.

Sincerely yours,

Mr. Brandon is 41 years of age, and in the prime of life. He is an able speaker; a sound debater and particularly fitted by training and experience to represent our District in Congress. He is fiarminded and liberal in his political views and will soon be a leader in Congress if elected. Back the President by sending to Congress a liberal who knows the needs of agriculture.

POLITICAL ADVERTISING: Prepared and inserted in behalf of Paul A. Harris, by the PenningtonCounty Farmer-Labor Ass'n., Otto Rehm, chairman and H. Halland, secretary, Thief River Falls, Minnesota, for which the sum of $8.50 will be paid.

Our Next State Senator

Every voter should remember that it is just as important to elect the right men to our state legislature, as it is to reelect Governor Olson. Governor Olson can do nothing if he does not have a friendly legislature. We therefore most earnestly urge the voters of Pennington, Red Lake, and Clearwater counties to work and vote for PAUL A. HARRIS for State Senator. He is friendly to Governor Olson, is thoroughly competent for the office, and isthe officially endorsed candidate of the Farmer-Labor Association for State Senator.

His opponont, E. L. Tungseth is bitterly opposed to Governor Olson, and the Farmer-Labor movement. We believe that E. L. Tungseth will be found fighting Governor Olson, and the Farmer-Labor movement where-ever he has a chance to do so. To show the voters of Pennington, Red Lake and Clearwater counties just how E. L. Tungseth thinks and feels about our governor and the Farmer-Labor movement we re-print a letter signed and inserted in the Thief River Falls Times for April 5, 1934, which letter reads as follows:

Editor the Times:

Many fires have now been kindled, some of them are already burning briskly and heating the political kettle which soon will be boiling to perfection. The Farmer-Labor party has gotten an early start and no doubt expects to maintain a comfortable lead in the race for offices. What the final outcome will be remains to be seen. Not any of the three leading political parties in our state are endowed with modern air-flow transportation. There will be distributing headwinds and cross-currents a-plenty before the race is over, the dust settled, and the final verdict by the voters recorded.

It will be interesting to see what the Farmer-Labor party will do on this trip to the ballot box. There are two elements in this party: the liberals and the radicals. It seems as if the radicals who by virtue of bossism have usurped the leadership no longer can wait to show off their real colors and tell us that they are Townleyites. Shoemaker is a typical hot-air artist of this group. If such as he can have their way, the Farmer-Labor party will soon find itself split wide open down-der-midddle with the destructive forces on one side and the constructive forces on the other side. If our silver-tongued governor who also is a political expert with a well constructed though somewhat worn-out political machine can hold the two elements together in the coming campaign may be an interesting subject for discussion for professional politicians.

There are no doubt many admirers of our governor who swallow him tooth and nail no matter what he says, and what he does, and what he has proven to be, and no matter what he intends to do. Such people are difficult to reach because they can not be reasoned with. He can in message to our state legislators say that the problem of liquor control is secondary to that of revenue ("Relief") and some will still adore him as possessing angelic virtue. He can permit the state tax levy constantly to increase and besides request and receive an extra five million dollars from our last special session. He can further tell convention delegates that this sum should have been thirty-six million, and still by some be hailed as our only refuge from excessive tax burdens and big business. He can cater to radical I. W. W. labor element, I mean the kind that wants big wages for not working, and honest and industrially-minded laborers and farmers will swear by Olson as their best benefactor. They are unable to see through the thin veneer of political oratory and they listen to the loud shouting of the political bandits who carry on with the parades and the band wagons. The Farmer-Labor party will retain all such votes—if there are enough of them, the party will win another election..

It can not be forgotten however, that thousands of late Farmer-Labor votes have not been of the radical character. They have been aware of the honest and constructive public service by men of Shipstad's caliber, and in hope that the party, at least eventually, might purge itself of such social parasites as the Townley types they have lined up with the party and provided a substantial number of votes. I shall not try to decide whether the late Twin City Farmer-Labor State convention endorsed Shipstead because of admiration or because of political fear, knowing that he commands a large number of votes which no amount of Band wagons and parades will swing to Shoemaker. The party's state platform indicates a very decided Townleyite leadership. I can not boast of any hatred in in my heart against Shoemaker, but I so despise such excuses for men that I am glad that he intends to enter the senatorial race against Shipstead. That stunt will bury him so deep that his carcass will not live long enough above ground to survive it.

While political parties have their place and importance in our political make-up, I can never make myself believe that any party can show cause for support by the voters unless the men they present for public service are of the right caliber. If necessary I will tresspass party lines anytime in order to vote for those men in whom I may have reason to believe. No party is better than the men in its leadership, but man can be better than political parties. Political, economical and social reconstruction will not be ours by placing any certain party in control, but in putting such men in control of public offices whom the lust of office can not kill. God, give us men!

E. L. Tungseth.

The above letter speaks for itself. There we find E. L. Tungseth's own thoughts written down, signed and inserted by him in the Thief River Falls Times. If further proof is wanted of his bitterness towards Governor Floyd B. Olson, read also his editorial in the Zion Messenger of which he is the editor, for December 1st, 1933, where he makes a bitter attack on Governor Olson. Do the people of the 65th Legislative District want a man for senator whose heart and mind is filled with bitterness towards the governor and the Farmer-Labor movement? It would appear foolish to consider such a man for state senator in the face of his own letters and editorials. We believe that for the benefit of the district, we should have a man for senator who is friendly to Governor Olson and the state administration and who can and will work in harmony with the administration. We need harmony and co-operation in the state government, and that is something that we cannot get from E. L. Tungseth. We therefore again most earnestly urge the people of Pennington, Red Lake and Clearwater counties to work and vote for PAUL A. HARRIS, for State Senator and for W. E. Day and J. O. Melby for Representatives. ..

How "A Great Financial Empire" Was Built

Synopsis of Testimony Developed in the Hearings On The Northwest Bancorporation

Arrange Pressure On Congressmen

The schemes and plans by which pressure was to be put on the congressmen is shown in the same letter above quoted, where Mr. Perry suggests to Mr. Thomson: "I have been thinking over what could be done towards stirring up branch banking sentiment in the country and have thought that if we could make a clamor from the bankless towns for branch banking, we would get some real propaganda going that would be most effective. Petitions, by mayors and some of the leading citizens, to congress for branch banking would go furher than anything that we could do, and how these could be assembled is a real question. It occured to me that possibly some member of the banking and currency committee of the senate or of the house could write to all he owns that have become bankless during the last ten years and ask them whether they would like to see branch banking legislation passed. A carefully couched letter should bring an affirmative reply. This letter would state that banks in small towns could not be operated at a profit, consequently, were now a thing of the past, also that a town without a bank would lose its business to the nearest town that did have a bank, etc.

"If this general idea follows in line with your thoughts, it occured to me that I might broach this subject to Senator Glass, to see if he had any objecion to trying out an idea of this kind and see whether he would be willing to sponsor it, or whether he would have objections to somebody else sponsoring it. If we did all the work, sending the stuff out under the congressman's name and tabulating the returns, it would be no effort on the part of the individual upon whom we would impose."

The record shows that Mr. Thomson in his haste to answer did so by wire on March 16, 1933, the day after Perry's letter to him. In this wire he stated:

"Believe suggestion your letter for investigation by senate committee all towns formerly having banking facilities including towns now faced with lack of banking facilities to get their recommendations as to whether they would rather have branch or independent banking would be finest thing possible stop Hope you can get Senator Glass to approve it."

The telegram apparently approves of everything that Perry said, including the "carefully couched letter so worded as to bring an affirmative reply" sent out under the name of a congressman and, as the record herein shows, this or similar information was sent out under congressional franks.

It is interesting to note that in spite of the fact that Thomson was willing to dangle before the bankless towns the possibility of branches, yet when he was questioned as to whether they intended to put branches in these bankless towns in which they were raising the "clamor", he stated: "It doesn't involve any statement of the corporation as to what they were going to do and it was never contemplated we would put branches in all the bankless towns."

Work at Washington Expensive

The accomplishment of the legislative desires seems to have been somewhat expensive. It was necessary apparently to employ one Collins and a Mr. Shealy, about whom more will be said later. Under date of June 8, 1933, Mr. Perry wrote to Mr. Thomson about the cost. The letter follows:

Mayflower Hotel,
Washington, D. C.,
June 8, 1933.

Mr. J. C. Thomson, Vice Pres.,
Northwest Bancorporation,
Minneapolis, Minn.

Dear Tommy:

At last the Washington Expense Account is finished, and am inclosing it herewith. You will note first that I have taken the full situation from April 1, 1932, to April 1, 1933, but I have included some payments that were made after April 1, such as one paid to Shealey, stationary bill and mimeograph work, also some Congressional Record purchases which I felt justifiable belonged to the account. On the other hand, total expenditure has a short fall of about $900 of what is carried in the Bancorporation books because of the fact that some of these entries are not correctly charged.

You will note that I have carried the expenditure of Hoel, Rachac and the others, as separate items under "Other Bankers' Travel."

You will note that the total expenditure amounts to $26,067.80, on top of which is the $1,500 of the short fall of the First Securities Corporation of Ogden in its retainership fee to Collins, making a grand total of $27,567.80. Counting the share that was allocated to the Bancorporation, we have received total reimbursement of $9,508.36. You will note on the other sheet inclosed, the names of those who have contributed, but in comparing that with our records in the bank, it will be seen that the First Bank Stock Corporation, First of Atlanta and Marine Midland, have been credited with a little bit more than was actually paid on our boks. The amount that these corporations have been credited is merely the amount which they have paid out of pocket and shows on the "Washington Expenses" Sheet inclosed.

The short fall between expenses and the contributions of the corporations amounts, as you will not to $18,059.44 (this includes the $1,500 short fall in Collin's retainership). Had the groups that we had listed paid their share as follows, we would have had more than enough to take care of this short fall. These groups are as follows:

Citizens & Southern ..	$1,212.09
Detroit Bankers	9,615.38
Guardian Detroit Union	6,250.00
Southwest Tulsa	673.07
First Security of Utah	1,500.00
Total	$19,250.54

Accordingly, if we had been paid by these groups, our total situation would have been cared for. There is a chance that we may get something from the Guardian Detroit, but the affidavit which we received the first of this week from Jim Walsh, which Collins is filling out has the group put in, not the bank named, so possibly if we get anything, it will be a considerable cut from the $6,250.

In looking over the groups that would or could pay anything it simmers down pretty nearly to the Marine Midland, the First of Atlanta and the three Northwest Groups. Possibly the Citizens and Southern might contribute something. If we could ask the Marine Midland, First Bank Stock, Wisconsin Bank Shares, First of Atlanta and ourselves for $3,000 apiece, we ought to be able to raise the balance of $3,000 from a combination of the Guardian, The Citizens & Southern, Shawmut Association, Continental-Illinois, and one or two others. I would like to get your idea about this as to whether we could go at it arbitrarily that way asking for an even $3,000 apiece or whether we ought to portion it around, which would mean increasing the Marine Midland materially and reducing Atlanta materially.

There is no question but that this work of ours has been very productive of good results and as you said, in the past, the money that we have put into it is small compared wih what generally poured into legislative work. We have done a great deal of entertaining and, of course, an enormous amount of telephoning.

In writing to the groups, if you decide to have me to do so, it might be better for me to show the totals paid for Collins' retainership and the general expenses rather than to show it split up in the way it is on the sheet inclosed. In showing it in the way we have it divided on the sheet, it gives the wrong impression about the Wisconsin Bank Shares, First of Atlanta in the matter of their general expense contributions and it looks as if the Marine Midland had dropped off on the Collins retainership. In using this sheet, however, you will note that I have Collins on the 1933 figure as being paid for the full year. If you think there is any question about this latter, I could state that the total contributions of the different groups included Colbasis that was being paid.

Sincerely yours,
Gardner B. Perry

German Labor Fights Back

Hannover (TIT)—Bitterness and growing discontent among the German workers are the outcome of the steadily mounting economic disaster in Germany. Despite all efforts of the Nazis to keep the "German Labor Front" the contented mouthpiece of German labor, recent events show pronounced criticism in the ranks of the Nazi coordinated German workers. Demands for intelligent discussions of wage and labor problems at the meetings of the German Labor Front are increasingly heard and cannot be kept down by commands from above.

One of the many examples is a recent Labor Front meeting of the woodworkers, carpenters and allied trades at Hannover. The meeting was attended by approximately 1,000 workers who insisted on an untrammeled discussion of wage and working conditions. In obedience to the famous Nazi leader principle, the chairman took the position that no discussion should take place, but that only a lecture by a prominent Nazi labor leader followed by specific questions on the floor, would be permitted. After numerous threats against the dissenters the workers were treated to a lecture which again proved the complete lack of knowledge of social and economic conditions by the Nazis. The answers given to questions from the floor were so evading and so meaningless that a near-riot broke out. The workers left the hall in protest, singing the "International", the anthem of the Socialist movement. The demonstration was spontaneous and lasted for some time in the streets around the hall. The police authorities wisely declined to interfere. Reports from Berlin indicate similar events have taken place at meetings of the German Labor Front in that place. In the course of a heated altercation between the Nazi speaker and a worker, a fist fight broke out which ended with the fall of the Nazi representative from the platform. He was taken to the hospital, and died a short time later.

The workers are especially bitter against the sending of unemployed as land helpers to far-a-way districts of the Reich. At the Schlesischer Bahnof Station, a train with hundreds of land helpers was held up by the wives who occupied the tracks and refused to leave. The efforts of the stationmaster to make them leave, as well as the appearance of large police detachments proved of no avail. The excitement finally became so great that the unemployed left the train and went home. It is interesting to note that the authorities are unwilling to proceed against women despite the fact that the latter often and openly voice pronounced criticism against the Nazi regime.

DRUNKENNESS RESPONSIBLE FOR SMALL PROPORTION OF ALL THE TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

Sober, tho Alky-Affected Drivers Charged with One-third of Auto Accidents

by W. G. Calderwood

It seems well established that the proportion of traffic accidents that are chargeable to drunkenness is "relatively small". But it is equally well established that the vast majority of accidents that are caused by liquor are the fault of undrunken, but alcohol affected drivers.

The Boston Post of September 16, features a full page article by Richard Milne who gives the facts as gathered from the best traffic experts. Under the subhead, "Repeal Did It", he points out the different attitudes of drinkers since repeal towards the "drink or two" habit. "Now, the driver of a party car almost always has a drink or two for himself. He does not get himself drunk, nor even under the influence. His brains are dulled to a point where he cannot think what to do in a pinch. Those two or three drinks make all the difference between getting by and a bad accident. Several things are causing the drinking by drivers— fact that liquor is legal; a driver half kids himself into believing he is doing nothing wrong. It's superficial kidding, because common sense tells him he is wrong.

"You can get a drink, it seems at almost any hot dog stand, and there is almost a boozery next door to a gas station or at least not far away. Drink is practically uung into the motorist's face, * * * "

"Then there is the casual way in which drivers have become accustomed to taking a couple of beers before leaving town for home. That's a good part of the drinking driver picture. Not the brute who gets himself slopped, so much as the otherwise good citizen who kids himself along that he's not taking any chances."

This matches up with the statement of Stoeckel, the Connecticut highway commissioner who has stoutly maintained for years that experience teaches that the driver who has had but a drink or two, and who shows no signs of drunkenness, and who believes himself in perfect driving condition, is the most dangerous man on the highway. Dr. Walter Miles of Yale joins in that opinion. He holds that drunken driving is responsible for only 7 to 10 percent of traffic fatalities, whereas one third of auto accidents are probably caused by alcohol affected drivers.

PORK STOCKS SHOW SHARP REDUCTION; BEEF SUPPLY IS UP

"Storage stocks of meats held in the United States are an important factor in present markets on livestock, and with the exception of beef stocks, they are decidedly favorable," says the weekly market bulletin issued by the Central Co-Operative Association at So. St. Paul.

Cured and frozen pork stocks held in cold storage plants and warehouses of the United States on September 1, this year were 540,493,000 pounds, or 28 percent less than a year ago, and 19 per cent less than the five year average. In other words, there was a decrease of 217,000,000 pounds in pork stocks from a year ago and a reduction of 100,000,000 pounds from the five year average.

Lard stocks at 168,719,000 lbs., shows 24 percent decrease from a year ago, but are still 22 percent larger than the five-year average. These figures are bullish and should have a favorable influence on hog markets.

In the case of frozen and cured beef stocks, the September 1st total storage stocks amounted to more than 80,000,000 lbs., or 66 percent greater than a year ago when stocks totaled 48,446,000 lbs. The five -year average holdings of beef at this date is 43,928,000 lbs.

These figures do not include beef processed from goevrnment relief cattle, but cattle slaughter generally during the past month has been unusually heavy. Including cattle slaughtered by the government during August, the total kill for the United States was 1,576,204 head. A year ago the August cattle slaughter was 725,000 head and the average slaughter for that month during the past five years was only 725,000 head.

S E R A MUST REMAIN NON-POLITICAL; OLSON

District and county offices of the State Emergency Relief Administration may not serve as centers for political activity, nor are the employees permited to take sides in behalf of any candidates for public offices, it was announced by L. P. Zimmerman, deputy administrator.

Governor Floyd B. Olson made this non-political status compulsory in an order to all district and county representatives of the SERA. The display of camp gianliterature and posters in the offices is specifically mentioned as objectionable.

The governor's letter is worded as follows: "Reports and information have come to my attention to the effect that political campaign terature and posters are handled and displayed in the county ERA offices and drouth relief offices. This is contrary to orders given in my letter sent under date of Aug. 28th relative to political activities.

"It is hereby directed that campaign literature or posters in no way, shape or form shall be displayed or handled in any of the ERA offices of the State Emergency Relief Administration. Also, no employees are to take any sides or active part in behalf of any candidate for public offices."

30 SEASONAL LIMIT ON THREE GAME BIRDS

When the open season on ring-necked pheasants, quail and native partridge or ruffed grouse starts in Minnesota at 12 o'clock noon Saturday, Oct. 20, hunters must bear in mind that only 30 birds in the aggregate of these three species may be taken by any one person during the open season, Erling Swenson, Game and Fish Director, warned today. Gunners are asked to carefully study the regulations pertaining to counties that are opened to the various species of upland game birds, time for hunting and bag limits for the day, season and possession limits.

NOMINATED AT THE JUNE PRIMARY AS A CANDIDATE TO SUCCEED HIMSELF

I feed deeply grateful for the very large primary vote given me, being in excess of fifteen thousand, nine hundred votes, and wish to take this occasion to thank you, the electors of this District, for your splendid endorsement.

..Because of the work of the office this fall, it will be impossible for me to make a personal campaign of this extensive district, and all that I can expect to do is to meet voters at such public gatherings as I shall have an opportunity to attend.

Since I have held the office of District Judge for but a few months, it is my hope that I may be privileged to serve in this capacity for a full term, striving to merit the confidence of your favorable votes November 6th.

POLITICAL ADVERTISING: Prepared and inserted in behalf of Paul A. Harris, by the PenningtonCounty Farmer-Labor Ass'n., Otto Rehm, chairman and H. Halland, secretary, Thief River Falls, Minnesota, for which the sum of $8.50 will be paid.

Our Next State Senator

Every voter should remember that it is just as important to elect the right men to our state legislature, as it is to reelect Governor Olson. Governor Olson can do nothing if he does not have a friendly legislature. We therefore most earnestly urge the voters of Pennington, Red Lake, and Clearwater counties to work and vote for PAUL A. HARRIS for State Senator. He is friendly to Governor Olson, is thoroughly competent for the office, and isthe officially endorsed candidate of the Farmer-Labor Association for State Senator.

His opponont, E. L. Tungseth is bitterly opposed to Governor Olson, and the Farmer-Labor movement. We believe that E. L. Tungseth will be found fighting Governor Olson, and the Farmer-Labor movement where-ever he has a chance to do so. To show the voters of Pennington, Red Lake and Clearwater counties just how E. L. Tungseth thinks and feels about our governor and the Farmer-Labor movement we re-print a letter signed and inserted in the Thief River Falls Times for April 5, 1934, which letter reads as follows:

Editor the Times:

Many fires have now been kindled, some of them are already burning briskly and heating the political kettle which soon will be boiling to perfection. The Farmer-Labor party has gotten an early start and no doubt expects to maintain a comfortable lead in the race for offices. What the final outcome will be remains to be seen. Not any of the three leading political parties in our state are endowed with modern air-flow transportation. There will be distributing headwinds and cross-currents a-plenty before the race is over, the dust settled, and the final verdict by the voters recorded.

It will be interesting to see what the Farmer-Labor party will do on this trip to the ballot box. There are two elements in this party: the liberals and the radicals. It seems as if the radicals who by virtue of bossism have usurped the leadership no longer can wait to show off their real colors and tell us that they are Townleyites. Shoemaker is a typical hot-air artist of this group. If such as he can have their way, the Farmer-Labor party will soon find itself split wide open down-der-midddle with the destructive forces on one side and the constructive forces on the other side. If our silver-tongued governor who also is a political expert with a well constructed though somewhat worn-out political machine can hold the two elements together in the coming campaign may be an interesting subject for discussion for professional politicians.

There are no doubt many admirers of our governor who swallow him tooth and nail no matter what he says, and what he does, and what he has proven to be, and no matter what he intends to do. Such people are difficult to reach because they can not be reasoned with. He can in message to our state legislators say that the problem of liquor control is secondary to that of revenue ("Relief") and some will still adore him as possessing angelic virtue. He can permit the state tax levy constantly to increase and besides request and receive an extra five million dollars from our last special session. He can further tell convention delegates that this sum should have been thirty-six million, and still by some be hailed as our only refuge from excessive tax burdens and big business. He can cater to radical I. W. W. labor element, I mean the kind that wants big wages for not working, and honest and industrially-minded laborers and farmers will swear by Olson as their best benefactor. They are unable to see through the thin veneer of political oratory and they listen to the loud shouting of the political bandits who carry on with the parades and the band wagons. The Farmer-Labor party will retain all such votes—if there are enough of them, the party will win another election.

It can not be forgotten however, that thousands of late Farmer-Labor votes have not been of the radical character. They have been aware of the honest and constructive public service by men of Shipstad's caliber, and in hope that the party, at least eventually, might purge itself of such social parasites as the Townley types they have lined up with the party and provided a substantial number of votes. I shall not try to decide whether the late Twin City Farmer-Labor State convention endorsed Shipstead because of admiration or because of political fear, knowing that he commands a large number of votes which no amount of Band wagons and parades will swing to Shoemaker. The party's state platform indicates a very decided Townleyite leadership. I can not boast of any hatred in in my heart against Shoemaker, but I so despise such excuses for men that I am glad that he intends to enter the senatorial race against Shipstead. That stunt will bury him so deep that his carcass will not live long enough above ground to survive it.

While political parties have their place and importance in our political make-up, I can never make myself believe that any party can show cause for support by the voters unless the men they present for public service are of the right caliber. If necessary I will tresspass party lines anytime in order to vote for those men in whom I may have reason to believe. No party is better than the men in its leadership, but man can be better than political parties. Political, economical and social reconstruction will not be ours by placing any certain party in control, but in putting such men in control of public offices whom the lust of office can not kill. God, give us men!

The above letter speaks for itself. There we find E. L. Tungseth's own thoughts written down, signed and inserted by him in the Thief River Falls Times. If further proof is wanted of his bitterness towards Governor Floyd B. Olson, read also his editorial in the Zion Messenger of which he is the editor, for December 1st, 1933, where he makes a bitter attack on Governor Olson. Do the people of the 65th Legislative District want a man for senator whose heart and mind is filled with bitterness towards the governor and the Farmer-Labor movement? It would appear foolish to consider such a man for state senator in the face of his own letters and editorials. We believe that for the benefit of the district, we should have a man for senator who is friendly to Governor Olson and the state administration and who can and will work in harmony with the administration. We need harmony and co-operation in the state government, and that is something that we cannot get from E. L. Tungseth. We therefore again most earnestly urge the people of Pennington, Red Lake and Clearwater counties to work and vote for PAUL A. HARRIS, for State Senator and for W. E. Day and J. O. Mayor Tungseth lays great stress in his campaing advertising of the fact that h [illegible] highest vote out of three candidates in the primary election. Of course he can't be blamed for crowing a little, but from the number of repetitions of the statement he makes, we'd say that his is taking a mighty long ride on 156 votes.

In a campaign advertisement in a Red Lake Falls Church paper he claims to be a Christian. We will not argue the point with him. We will merely call attention to the fact that he held up the pay checks of some of the members of the old council for two months, and when he was asked why he had not signed them admitted he held them up for spite.

And this fact can be verified by referring to the records of the city.

We have seen some statements by him in regard to taxes and public spending, but we did not notice him vetoing the illegal expenditure of three thousand dollars for plastering the city reservoir. He didn't waste any time signing those checks, altho the city employees; the street cleaners, electricians and other workmen had to go over a month without their paychecks as a result. Still he claims to be the candidate of the common people.

His most active campaign worker's jaw seems to hold up fine altho his legs get shaky towards evening. Whether this is from fatigue or carrying an increasingly heavy load we have not yet been able to determine.

* * *

Mr. Tungseth closed a letter in the "Public Forum" column in the Thief River Falls Times in the issue of April 5, 1934 with the prayer, "God give us men," and a few days afterwards he bounces out before the voters and says "Here I am."

WHY I AM A FARMER-LABORITE

At the Farmer-Labor social last Saturday evening at the court room, H. O. Berve, in a short talk, stated that in his opinion, every member of the Farmer-Labor association should ask himself the question, "why am I a Farmer-Laborite?" Only by so doing, and by analyzing his motives for joining with the movement, can one be a good Fermer-Laborite, Mr. Berve stated.

The Farmer-Labor movement like all movements that attain to some degree of power is afflicted with certain people who apply the party label to themselves, and yet always find some reason for not supporting the actions of the majority, and the candidates for office which that majority has chosen. They are with the party, if they can be its spokesmen and officers, or if they mey be its candidates immediately become imbued with a "reformers" spirit and they will talk about cleaning the 'communists" out of the party; laboring for the "permanent" good of the movement, etc. Strange to say, they never put their cards on the table when the organization is in convention, but afterwards support the most reactionary opponents, or themselves become "independent" candidates.

They are the self-seekers and if they will ask themselves the question as propounded by Mr. Berve last Saturday evening they find it hard to justify their position.

We have not always agreed with the majority, in all things. BUT, we have in the past and always will in the future thresh out our differences within our own party with our own party members. We feel that when the meeting is over; when the convention has adjourned; the resulting declaration of principles, and the slate of candidates selected, will represent to some degree at least our own labor and our cooperation with our fellowmen. We will have had some little part in forming the expressions of the movement. Altho we may wish some things to be otherwise, we shall support the action of the majority fully and thoroughly, and if the time ever comes that we can no longer go with the majority ,wholeheartedly, then we shall hand in our membership card and withdraw from the organization, joining with such other organization, if any exists, which more nearly attains our conception of the perfect. We will not become whisperers, nor backbiters, nor "borers from within," but then, we are not Farmer-Laborite for revenue.

There are many things that pay better than being editor of a people's newspaper. Advertising is much easier to get if you thread softly when the toes of grafters protrude; staging circuses to drag people in to spend their money is looked upon by the average member of the business element with more favor than exposing dishonest officials and laboring for a just and fair return to the producers of wealth that they may have more money to spend. But as we stated before we are not Farmer-Laborite for revenue.

We are Farmer-Laborite because we are convinced that the movement embodies in its principles the ethics of Christian Citizenship. Because if its program can be put into practice, there will be fewer undernourished children; fewer overworked and nerveracked mothers; fewer disconsolate and hopeless fathers. More milk for babies; more enlightenment and opportunity for youth; more leasure for housewives; more recreation for dad.

We believe that a reorganization of our economic system will abolish misery and want and therefore remove the greatest incentive and cause for crime; that it will provide security of home and necessities of life for the aged; We believe that it will provide opportunities for useful and honorable employment for the young men and women that are just entering upon life's journey and thus reduce the attraction of lewd pictures, wild parties and booze. In short, we believe that thru the program of the Farmer-Labor party we may attain one step nearer to perfection; one step nearer the prophisied Kingdom of God.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

JUDGE SAYS GOVERNMENT RESPONSIBLE IN LIQUOR-CAUSED CRIME

A drinking party at a West Virginia roadhouse led to the murder of two young people, by a third, all participants of the party. When the case came up in court, in Parkersburg, Judge Frances P. Moats in his charge to the jury had the following to say:

"The driving of automobiles by drunken drivers presents the most serious hazard on America's highways today . . . It is sometimes difficult to deal with such situations when we see places open, selling liquor in which the Government shares, inviting people to drink.

"When crimes occur when people are under the influence of intoxicants, particularly where serious injury or murder takes place, we are faced with an evil reflection upon our society.

"In the face of such a situation, where the Government shares in inviting a man to drink, it is difficult to preserve law and order. Most crime can be traced to the deadly influence of liquor upon the human brain.

"We must deal with such crimes in a forceful manner in order to preserve the safety of life and limb, and it is your duty when such facts are presented, to return whatever indictments are necessary in order that the peace and the public safety of the community may be preserved."

FARM and MARKET

The gravest problem confronting American parents today is the concern over the destiny of youth. Thousands upon thousands of homeless boys and girls are wandering throughout the country, desolate and penniless. Many of these youths came from farm homes—homes wrecked under the burden of economic distress; homes where the drouth has ravaged the land, where the low price of agricultural products has brought about such a condition of dire suffering and want that the older children in these homes, sickened and disheartened, flew thru an open door to trek about the country seeking a way out from it all.

* * * *

This sad picture is vividly portrayed in a book written by Mr. Thomas Minehan, a Minnesota author and former professor of sociology at the University of Minnesota. Mr. Minehan set aside his job as university professor, donned old clothes and ventured forth to join the army of wandering boys and girls. For three years he traveled about, sleeping in bum's camps, riding on freight trains and otherwise mingling with America's lost youth. Sad are the tales that he heard from the trembling lips of many a homesick lad. Desolate the picture is indeed, a picture of mental and physical suffering almost beyond the powers of verbal description.

* * * *

Mr. iMnehan's book. 'Boy and Girl Tramps of America," tells the sad tale in detil. It would be well for all parents to read this book carefully, and then decide for themselves whether or not they will pay any attention to the appeals of that political party that placed the youth of this country in such a hopeless position of despair. If parents refuse to entertain a change in the economic system as far as they are concerned personally, they should at least be unselfish enough to consider the future of their children. The children of today will live long after the older people are dead and gone. Let us do our duty to them by stamping out for once and for all, monopolistic control. Let us stand united for a restoration of agriculture and a prosperous condition of the farm home that the children of rural America will find the fireside of their mother, one of happiness, contentment, and cheer.

THOMAS JEFFERSON, REVOLUTIONIST

Thoughts of America's First Radical Still Fresh by Esther Strachy (In October, COMMON SENSE)

Condensed by Ben C. Hagglund

Tories are fond of talking about sacred American institutions" and the "founding fathers," without realizing that this country was born out of revolution and that its founders were radicals. Those who call themselves Jeffersonian Democrats forget that Jefferson was considered a dangerous radical" in his day.

It is well to remember that there have been leaders who were not afraid of change and even of revolution if the progress of man demanded it. Jefferson can well be claimed by the present radical movement as a patron saint.

When Thomas Jefferson was elected president of United States, respectable society prepared itsself for the worst. Conservatives of the year 1800 regarded the advent of Jefferson to the presidency with as much emotion as the members of the United States Chamber of Commerce would the entrance of an avowed into the White House.

Alexander Hamilton, mighty champion of the rich, went to the length of proposing a change in the election laws in order to make Jefferson's election impossible. Jefferson was a "Democrat" and to be known as a "Democrat" then was, as Prof. Beard has observed, equivalent to being known as a Bolshevik under Pres. Harding. And Jefferson himself gloried in his heterodoxy, alluding to his election as "the revolution of 1800."

Political Idealist

In spite of the fact that Jefferson was one of the most resourceful politicians of his time, he was in the last analysis a man of theory. He grasped the full significance of Tallyrand's aphorism that "all power is a permanent conspiracy"; yet few men of power have believed so little in power as an end in itself, as Jefferson.

It was just this fact that his opponents, Alexander Hamilton and John Marshall and their followers in the Federalist Party, felt to be destructive to the foundation upon which the United States were based.

A Revoluionary Period

The American people had just thrown off the yoke of the British Crown, and it was only proper that the French should imitate them. But when the moderate factions in the French revolution went the way that all such factions do, there was a change from the first burst of enthusiasm in this country Hamilton's followers reacted violently against Robespierre and the Jacobins in France as their successors were to react against Lenin and the Bolsheviks over a century later, under similar circumstances.

Jefferson left no doubt at all as to where he stood in the matter. He expressed the hope that the French "will bring at length, Kings nobles and priests to the scaffolds which they have deluged with human blood." He was Secretary of State in Washington's cabinet at the time. When one tries to conceive of either of Pres. Wilson's two secretaries, Mr. Lansing or Mr. Colby issuing such a statement about the Russian revolution after October, 1917, one grasps what a gulf lies between Jefferson and the men who succeeded to the offices he held. He once said that "he feared the future, not that the American people might have too great a spirit of rebellion in them, but that they might have too little." Contrast this with the idea behind the "red scars" during Wilson's administration.

Jefferson assured the American people that "the tree of liberty needed to be refreshed at intervals by the blood of tyrants." In view of this, it is curious to find such gentlemen as ex-president Hoover, Ogden Mills, John W. Davis, and Al Smith accusing Mr. Roosevelt of outraging the doctrines of Thomas Jefferson.

Even if Mr. Roosevelt had the faintest intent of doing anything more revolutionary than attempting to bolster up American capitalism, it would be hard for his opponents to extract much consolation from Jeffersonian Democracy.

Jefferson left behind him no complete political and economic creed, such as Karl Marx did, but he gave us his philosophy in these words: "Sometimes it is said that man cannot be trusted with the government of himself. Can he then trusted with the government of others? Or have we found angels in the form of kings to govern him? Let history answer this question."

But Jefferson knew the answer. Because he had infinite faith in the capicity of mankind to raise himself by the use of reason, he was the bitter foe of reaction. One can say of him, as Engels said of Marx, "He was above all things a revolutionist." He knew that the American revolution had only been a beginning.

Flying and Sailfish

The flying fish flies, after a fashion, and the sailfish does not. Flying fishes, of which there are a number of species, are small and light but have long wing-like pectoral fins. The fish works up speed in the water, throws itself into the air, and the "wings" are able to carry it for some distance. The sailfish is a very large deep sea fish, related to the swordfish, but having teeth, and characterized by the large, high dorsal fin, which is suggestive of a sail.

The Leadership Hurdle

"Great leaders need great followers," someone aptly said. In a great movement, both are indispensable. This is idiotically simple, but many people forget this truth.

But now, what do we hear from Anarchists and others, but that all leadership is wrong. It is easy to see the basis of this idea. We have been misled so long that it is an easy step to distrust all leaders. But once in a while humanity spawns a man who rises so far above distrust, corruption, and greed, that the people instinctively recognize his merits; and such a man becomes a great leader.

In the past it has been the custom to excoll leaders entirely. Now the pendulum is swinging the other way, giving the people all credit. I would say that both are wrong. Leaderless people are impotent. The average man is not competent to think and act for himself in case of a national emergency. Ninety-nine percent of our ideas are gotten from the outside. I might make it an even hundred percent.

It seems to be a nation-wide conviction that we are in for an era of great change, and certain people are worrying about who is going to take charge of things when they go haywire.

All I can say is, that when the lights go out, Moses will appear.

Robert and Elizabeth Browning

I was astounded at the daring of the movie producers in foisting such a picture as "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" upon a people brought up on song and dance and show girls' legs. This picture, depicting the quiet love affair of Robert Browning and Elizabeth Barrett, two of England's foremost poets, was called "great" by advance notices; and it was great, but withal subtly disappointing. I think the reason for this is that such a play is better fitted for the stage than for the movies. This was pure drama; and we are not used to seeing drama on the screen.

Frederic Marsh as Robert Browning; Norma Shearer as Elizabeth Barrett; and Chas. Laughton as the harsh father, all lent a Shakespearean quality to the play which is so sadly lacking in most of the headaches known as serious movies. "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," even if it does not make a hit with the Great American Rabble, will go down as an attempt at showing worth-while pictures via the movies.

Next I'd like to see one of Eugene O'Neill's plays on the screen; but I don't expect to see one.

Logic and Nonsense

"Logic is mainly valuable wherewith to exterminate logicians."—G. K. Chesterton.

"My dear Madam, nonsense can only be defended by nonsense."—Dr. Johnson.

There is a strange world known as the Reasonable; in it, things occur logically, strictly according to theory, without a hitch, with no slips "twixt cup and lip." It is occupied chiefly by Utopians who have a vision of a better world which they wish to inflict upon the rest of their fellow-men.

To one who has gone up and down this land snatching a living here and there, the land of Reason and Logic seems a bit unnatural. You see, we are so used to inequitable conditions under capitalism that we don't recognize justice and equiey when we see it.

There is a certain group of logicians who can pick to pieces every program brought forth to better the conditions of humanity, bu who are blind to the nonsense in the capitalist system which is defended by pompous sayings even more nonsensical.

The average man will cling to that which promises him better conditions, no matter how illogically those conditions are brought about. If socialism will turn the trick, socialism it will be. The system succeeding capitalism may be illogical as the dickens, but we hope it will be slightly better than the present one.

Minute Sermons

By Dr. Crawford Grays

Young folks are the victims parents, industry, amusements of temptations made possible by politics and law laxness and they find the church financially spiritually, educationally and constructively paralyzed because of its jig-saw splits and divisions.

All articles of the Associated Press, all films of the movies thruout the past five consecutive years, and more have favored the onward march of repeal What fairness or justice is there when we are chain-ganged by such a pair of the nation's most powerful corrupting propaganda twins.

Thousands of young people just graduated and what a world they are entering! Every known wicked influence, managed by adults, in control. Commercial, press and amusement influences hilariously ballyhooing youth on the broad road that leads to destruction. Where is the protective influence of home, school law and church? who cares?

Busy Bees Gather Pollen, Sip Sweets at Same Time

Among nature's many unique ways of doing different things is her method of effecting the pollination of different plants. Some plants, it is true, carry out this process without any outside aid whatever, others use the winds as their agents, while still others are completely powerless to help themselves even with the aid of the wind. Probably the most common of this type is white clover, says Pathfinder Magazine. One of nature's cleverest plans is carried out before our eyes without our being aware of it. Having omitted from the structure of this plant any means by which it can cross pollinate its own blooms nature provides a faithful agent. Most of such work is carried on by the bee. The blooms, having a substance which the bee desires for food, attract the bee to them. In the course of getting his food he performs the required service for the plant. Coming in contact with the stamens of one bloom small grains of pollen adhere to his body and are then carried to other blooms.

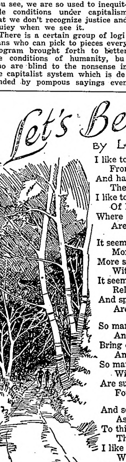
In tests to determine what amount of this work was done by insects two equal sized patches of white clover were chosen. One was surrounded with screen to prevent the entrance of any insects and the other was left entirely open. At the end of the season the enclosed patch yielded five shriveled seeds as compared to the 50,000 healthy ones yielded by the open patch.

Perfect Clock

For the measurement of time there was supplied, when the earth was created, an almost perfect clock. The earth was sent into space spinning around on its axis and it has since continued to travel in a circuit, almost circular, about the sun. This spinning, or rotation, is so regular that astronomers have never yet been able to observe any variation.

Let's Be Happy!

BY LAWRENCE HAWTHORNE



I like to turn men's thoughts away
From struggle and from strife,
And have them contemplate with me
The happy things of life.
I like to lead them down the paths
Of Nature's wonderland,
Where beauty, cheer and peace of mind
Are found on every hand.

It seems to me that life should bring
More happiness and fun—
More satisfaction and content
With every setting sun;
It seems to me that we should find
Release from daily care,
And spend more time where friendly joys
Are waiting everywhere.

So many things men think they need,
And slave so long to gain,
Bring only misery and loss
And bitterness and pain!
So many things that fill our lives
With drudgery and toil
Are such a foolish price to pay
For all the fun they spoil!

And so, I like to turn men's thoughts,
As often as I may,
To things that help them to forget
The burdens of the day;
I like to guide their weary steps
Where friendliness and cheer
Will drive discouragement away,
And bring contentment near.

COMBATING DEPRESSION OR TRYING TO SAVE CAPITALIST SYSTEM

(Minneapolis Labor Review)

That question embodied in the title of this editorial must arise in the minds of all who survey present conditions, compare them with the past and endeavor to vision what the future holds.

In fact there logically arises another question. Can the depression be successfully combated and the capitalist system saved?

And there might be even another question for the philosophers of the schools and the victims of the system, the workers to answer, is the capitalist system worth saving?

Nervous capitalists appear at times to fear that the New Deal may successfully combat the depression the Capitalist system may receive a knockout. So they query the present administration and get the answer that there is no desire to interfere with the profit motive.

That, of course, is the power house of capitalism.

So it ought to be understood that the policy of the administration is to save capitalists whether or not the depression can be successfully combated. And then the question arises; can the capitalistic system be saved if the depression is not successfully combated?

And perhaps here we have one of those capitalist contradictions of which Marxists speak, to which there is no satisfactory conclusion under the capitalist system.

It may be that the biblical answer that you cannot serve two masters solves the last problem. Either you must combat the depression successfully and abolish the capitalist system or save the capitalist system and make death the penalty for not having a job or a place of shelter, clothing and something to eat.

There is plenty of evidence that there are capitalists who would save the system at even that bloody, brutal price and indeed, the roll call of the billions who have died on the battlefield bear evidence to that.

Is the capitalist system worth saving? That may be answered by asking another question. Are poverty, crime, misery, of most every sort, and war worth saving? If so, then capitalism is worth saving.

It looks as though the present administration is attempting the impossible task of combating the depression and saving the capitalist system. Indeed, of combating the depression with hardly even disturbing the capitalist system.

For it would at least ease the situation if swollen corporations were compelled to write off some hundreds of millions or billions of their watered stock. That would permit Labor to have at least some fairer share of what it produces. But this is not even spoken of.

While four millions may have gone to work under the New Deal they have gone under part time or part pay conditions that are highly unsatisfactory.

On the other hand the capitalist and business man who was yelling for Roosevelt to save his business soul a year and a half ago is now loudly damning the President and the administration.

This is a tribute to the dumbness and the ingratitude of capitalists and perhaps another bit of evidence that you can't successfully combat the depression and save the capitalist system.

SEND HIM TO WAR

(Farmer-Labor Leader)

While war clouds darken Europe and America hopes that war of any kind will be averted but that if it does come America shall not be drawn into it, a sword-rattling editor of Minnesota delivers himself of the following:

> What this country of ours needs right now is another war. We believe that a war, not a revolution, every fifteen years would imbue our citizens with the necessary patriotism, loyalty and fighting spirit to combat and overthrow any attempt at organizing or advocating radicalism, communism, and socialism in this country. The liberal application of yellow paint and the incarceration or deportation of the "red ilk" would put the fear of hell in other doubtful patriots to walk and talk like Americans and not like communists.

It is from Hendricks Pioneer, whose editor is one of the less important opponents of the Farmer-Labor party. But his bloodthirstiness (for others) suggests a remedy.

Somehow, someway, it should be provided that if America ever enters a war during this man's lifetime no one should be allowed to go until he volunteers for front-line service throughout the entire war, as a private in the ranks without hope of promotion.

When the late Suzan B. Anthony was agitating women's suffrage an editor wrote asking how she, a women, unable to bears arms dared ask for the right to vote. "Suppose your country went to war," he jeered, "what would you do?" In her reply she said, "I would sit in my office and write editorials the same as you would do."

For some time the LEADER has been trying to raise a volunteer regiment of jingo editors. These men are not to write about the glories of war but actually go out and face the bullets themselves At the end of two years this is the score: If we had two more such editors to volunteer we'd lack only 998 of having a thousand.

When Prof. Clark, drouth relief administrator for the northwest, called on Governor Olson, he had a surprise. He had visited several governors previously and was accustomed to, that they were so busy that it was hard for them to see him.

So when he called on Minnesota's Governor, he prepared for the same sort of reception and sent in his card and a message requesting that he wanted three hours with the chief executive, divided into half hour periods, as could be spared.

The governor came right out in the reception room and greeted Mr. Clark, who asked if he might be spared a brief period for a conference. The reply astounded him. "You may have as much time as is necessary for us to get a thorough plan worked out. I want those in need cared for." They stayed in conference until noon, then until evening and from then until midnight.

A friend of the drouth relief administrator who visited in Roseau last week and who, by the way, voted for Hoover in 1932, told of the incident and quoted Prof. Clark as saying: "Minnesota has a real statesman for Governor. He is a shining light. Never has it been my privilege to work with a man with such keen insight into problems; with such a loyalty to duty."—Northern Minnesota Leader.

FARMER-LABOR PARTY HAS A BIG JOB SAYS H. Y. WILLIAMS

Cooperative Democracy is Only Solution of Crisis Williams Declares

"The greatest task of the Farmer-Labor party is to build the kind of a society where in the future no handful of men and women will be able to concentrate the great share of the wealth in their hands," declares Howard Y. Williams, national organizer of the Farmer-Labor Political Federation, in a campaign document issued to national offices at Hotel Frederic, St. Paul. This pamphlet will be used by the Farmer-Labor parties now organized in Iowa, Michigan, North and South Dakota, as well as in Minnesota, to dramatize the Farmer-Labor platform for the voters.

"Our greatest objective must be to build the cooperative democracy in which we extend this American principle of public and cooperative ownership that has been applied to roads, schools, libraries, police and fire protection, postal mines, natural resources, public utilities, banks, parking plants and monopolized industries. This is the only solution to our economic crisis and is the program of the Farmer-Labor party." continues Mr. Williams.

"We know perfectly well that we could have all these things; a social use of taxation, a huge public works program, unemployment insurance, old age pensions, maternity benefits, higher incomes for workers and farmers and still not solve our problems. European nations have tried every one of these things over the past thirty years and yet there is no solution. Great Britain has high income and inheritance taxes. She has engaged in a public works program so emphatically that roads make up most of the British Isles. Bismarck gave Germany social insurance over thirty years ago. Collective bargaining with minimum wages and maximum hours has been in effect in every industrial nation of Europe. Great Britain has tried almost every phase of the A. A. A. There is no adequate solution in these measures. England has weathered this crisis better than we have because she had unemployment insurance and old age pensions. But there is still poverty and misery in England. These measures improve conditions but they are no remedy.

"The Farmer-Labor party stands 100 percent for all of these measures and will work to the limit to secure their enactment in this interim period before the cooperative democracy is obtained. And yet we must be honest. Our greatest task is to build the cooperative democracy."

THE READER'S ROSTRUM

Editor of the Forum;

Sometime ago, a young man from St. Paul came to Thief River Falls and talked to Art. Johnson and me about organizing a Junior Farmer-Labor club in Pennington county. We both thought that the idea was fine and we could easily work up interest in the movement. Some interest was aroused, but that seems to be as far as the young people will go; a club has not yet been organized.

A word to you young voters and near voters: Do you realize that the laws which will be enacted during the coming regular session are laws under which we will have to live and work? Are we going to be herded about like sheep being driven to slaughter or are we going to take enough interest in government so that we can vote intelligently? The older generation has always run the affairs of the country; are you, young voters, satisfied with the number and kind of jobs you are supposed to be able to get? We must have some say in government and I can think of no better way than through Junior political organizations such as the Junior Farmer-Labor clubs will be.

Here's what we propose to do: Organize under a seperate charter from the senior organization. Write our own platform; hold our own conventions; endorse our own candicates, if the candidates of the senior organization are not satisfactory to us; recommend appointees, and in fact, have an independent group. Regular meetings to be held at a time and place to be decided by ourselves.

Does this sound hard when you stop to consider what we are now facing (no jobs)? Isn't the benefit which is sure to be derived worth a little of your time?

Come on, some of you progressive and alert young people. Get busy! Art Johnson will cooperate with you; and if there's anything I can do to help or explain, I shall be glad to do it. Address me at 1567 University Ave., St. Paul, or get in touch with "Art."

STATE TREE NURSERY ADDS NEW SPECIES

Demands for new varieties of trees for planting on state lands has made it necessary for the scope of the Geo. Washington state-owned memorial nursery at Badoura, near Akely, to be increased, according to Grover Conzet, state forester. The nursery is limited by law to the growing of native coniferous stock.

'When the nursery was first started, only three tree species were grown; white and Norway pine and white spruce," Mr. Conzet said, "Now jack pine, tamarack, red cedar and hemlock are also included."

START WINTER BIRD FEEDING PROGRAMS NOW

Organized groups and individuals have started to plan for their part in the winter feeding program for birds. With a shortage of natural food in most of the state, drastic steps must be taken by all persons interested in the welfare of wild life to insure a healthy brood stock for next spring. Boy Scouts and 4-H clubs have in many places commenced building of shelter and feeding stations.

Certain Wild Life Species Protected by Closed Season

No open seasons will be designated in Minnesota this fall for the taking of moose, elk, caribou, black squirrels, beaver, otter, harmless birds, mourning doves, upland plover, woodcock, snipe (other than jacksnipe), Canada spruce grouse, wild turkeys, Hungarian gray partridges, Melanistic Mutant or black pheasants, wood ducks, greater or lesser yellowlegs, swans, ruddy ducks and bufflehead ducks.

"Because of the threatened depletion of these species of wild life in our state, every effort must be made to preserve stock we now have," Erling Swenson, Game and Fish director said.

Whitefish, Tullibees Netting Oct. 15, Herring Nov. 1

Netting of whitefish and tullibees will become legal in open waters Monday, Oct. 15, and netters may legally take inland herring in open waters starting Nov. 1. The season for netting of whitefish and tullibees closes Dec. 25, and for netting of inland herring on Jan. 10.

Netting of these three kinds of fishes may be done only for domestic use and not for sale. The license fee is one dollar.

Certain waters of the state have been closed by order of Erling Swenson, Director of Game and Fish, to the netting of whitefish and tullibees and inland herring. A list of such closed waters may be procured from the county auditors of each county.

SQUIRREL SEASON OPENS ON OCTOBER 15

The open season for the taking of gray and fox squirrels starts in Minnesota on Monday, Oct. 15, at sunrise and closes Jan. 1, 1935, at sunset. Time for taking each day is from sunrise to sunset.

Limits are seven per day in the aggregate and 14 in possession.

Porcupine's Quills

When a porcupine rolls up into a pin cushion effect to protect himself from an enemy, he has a pretty solid barbed defense. His quills can make trouble for the average small animal attacker, because the implanting of a number of quills in the attacker's face or paws means much grief.

UNION RECRUITERS TAKE TO BOAT WHEN PARK IS DENIED

Spence, Mass.—Faced with refusal of the city government to permit a public meeting in its Luther Hill park, Powers Hapgood and Weldon C. Caie, organizers for the United Shoe and Leather Workers' Union, moved to state property outside the jurisdiction of the city—namely, to the center of the park's lake. With the aid of loud-speaking equipment, they spoke from a boat to the shoe workers who had gathered on the shore.

UNION RECRUITERS TAKE TO BOAT WHEN PARK IS DENIED

Spence, Mass.—Faced with refusal of the city government to permit a public meeting in its Luther Hill park, Powers Hapgood and Weldon C. Caie, organizers for the United Shoe and Leather Workers' Union, moved to state property outside the jurisdiction of the city—namely, to the center of the park's lake. With the aid of loud-speaking equipment, they spoke from a boat to the shoe workers who had gathered on the shore.

Proposed Amendments to the Constitution of Minnesota

To be submitted at 1934 General Election

STATE OF MINNESOTA,
LEGAL DEPARTMENT

HARRY H. PETERSON
Attorney General

St. Paul, Minnesota, May 1, 1934

Honorable Mike Holm,
Secretary of State,

Dear Sir:

In compliance with the provisions of Section 46 of Mason's Minnesota Statutes of 1927, I herewith furnish you a statement of the purpose and effect of all proposed amendments to the Constitution of the State of Minnesota which are to be submitted to the electors of said state at the general election in 1934, in accordance with certain acts adopted by the 1933 legislature.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 1.

By the adoption of Chapter 439, Laws 1933, the legislature has proposed an amendment to Section 1, Article 16, of the State Constitution. This section now reads as follows:

"There is hereby created and established a trunk highway system, which shall be located, constructed, reconstructed, improved and forever maintained as public highways, by the State of Minnesota. The said highways shall extend as nearly as may be along the following described routes, the more specific and definite location of which shall be fixed and determined by such boards, officers or tribunals, and in such manner as shall be prescribed by law, but in fixing such specific and definite routes there shall not be any deviation from the starting points or terminals set forth in this bill, nor shall there be any deviation in fixing such routes from the various villages and cities named herein, through which such routes are to pass.

ADDITIONAL ROUTES.

Whenever, either by reason of the creation of a new county, or by reason of the change of the county seat of any existing county, any city or village not a county seat at the time of the adoption of this amendment is lawfully constituted the county seat of any county, the legislature is authorized to add to the trunk highway system such additional routes connecting such newly constituted county seats with other county seats and other points in the state.

When after at least seventy-five (75) per cent of the total number of the miles of the routes embraced in the trunk highway system hereinbefore specified shall have been constructed and permanently improved, the legislature shall have authority to add new routes to such trunk highway system; provided, however, that no such new routes shall be added until and unless the funds available for the construction, improvement and maintenance of such additional routes shall be sufficient therefor in addition to the construction, improvement and maintenance of the several routes hereinbefore specifically described."

If amended as proposed by the legislature this section will read exactly the same as it now reads except that the last paragraph now appearing in this section will be omitted therefrom, and in the place of and instead of the paragraph so omitted will appear a paragraph which reads as follows:

"The legislature shall have authority to add new routes to such trunk highway system. All new routes added to the trunk highway system by act of the legislature during the session of 1933, are hereby ratified and confirmed. Provided, however, that no such new routes shall be added after the adoption of this amendment, until and unless at least seventy-five (75) per cent of the total number of the miles of the routes embraced in the trunk highway system heretofore created and established either by Article 16 of the Constitution of the State of Minnesota or by the legislature under and pursuant to said Article 16 shall have been constructed and permanently improved."

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose and effect of this amendment is to ratify and confirm the establishment of all new routes added to the trunk highway system by the 1933 legislature, and to give the legislature unrestricted authority to add new routes to the trunk highway system after seventy-five (75) per cent of the total number of the miles of the routes established by Article 16 of the State Constitution and established by the legislature acting pursuant thereto prior to the time this amendment was proposed, have been constructed and permanently improved.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 2.

By the adoption of Chapter 441 of the Laws of 1933, the legislature has proposed an amendment to Section 10 of Article 9 of the State Constitution. This section now reads as follows:

"The credit of the state shall never be given or loaned in aid of any individual, association or corporation, except as hereinafter provided. Nor shall there be any further issue of bonds denominated 'Minnesota State Railroad Bonds,' under what purports to be an amendment to section ten (10) of article nine (9) of the Constitution, adopted April 15, 1858, which is hereby expunged from the Constitution, saving, excepting and reserving to the state, nevertheless, all rights, remedies and forfeitures accruing under said amendment. Provided, however, that for the purpose of developing the agricultural resources of the state, the state may establish and maintain a system of rural credits and thereby loan money and extend credit to the people of the state upon real estate security in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by law, and to issue and negotiate bonds to provide money to be so loaned. The limit of indebtedness contained in section 5 of this article shall not apply to the provisions of this section, and the purposes for which the credit of the state or the aforesaid municipal subdivisions thereof may be given or loaned as herein provided are declared to be public purposes."

If amended as proposed by the legislature this section will read as follows:

"The credit of the state shall never be given or loaned in aid of any individual, association or corporation, except as hereinafter provided. Nor shall there be any further issue of bonds denominated 'Minnesota State Railroad Bonds,' under what purports to be an amendment to Article 9, Section 10 of the Constitution, adopted April 15th, 1858, which is hereby expunged from the Constitution, saving, excepting and reserving to the state, nevertheless, all rights, remedies and forfeitures accruing under said amendment. Provided, however, that for the purpose of developing the agricultural resources of the state, the state may establish and maintain a system of rural credits and thereby loan money and extend credit to the people of the state upon real estate security in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by law, and to issue and negotiate bonds to provide money to be so loaned. The limit of indebtedness contained in Section 5 of this article shall not apply to the provisions of this section, and the purposes for which the credit of the state or the aforesaid municipal subdivisions thereof may be given or loaned as herein provided are declared to be public purposes.

The legislature may authorize the taxing of any lands, title to which is acquired by the state through the operation of such system of rural credits, during the period such lands are held by the state, and for the assessment thereof for benefits arising from improvement, and may provide for the payment of such taxes and assessments out of the operation of such system of rural credits. In lieu of such taxation the legislature may appropriate to the school districts, towns, counties, cities, villages and boroughs in which such lands are located sums of money not exceeding the amounts which would have been realized by such governmental subdivisions from the assessments against or taxation of such lands if privately owned."

It will be noted that the present Section 10 of Article 9 remains unchanged as the first paragraph of the proposed amendment but that a second paragraph is added to said section.

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose of the proposed amendment is to give the legislature the power to do one of two things which it now lacks the constitutional power to do, namely: first, to authorize the taxing of any land, and the assessment of benefits for improvements against any land, which the state has acquired and owns or may acquire and own through the operation of the system of rural credits and to provide for the payment of such taxes and assessments out of the funds of the Rural Credit Department; or, second, to appropriate to the counties, towns, school districts, cities, villages and boroughs in which are located lands acquired and owned by the state under the rural credit acts sums of money not exceeding the amounts which would be realized by said governmental subdivisions from the taxation of such lands and from the assessment of benefits against such lands if owned by private persons.

Under the Rural Credit Act the state has become the owner of thousands of farms located in various counties of the state. As our State Constitution now stands, such land, being owned by the state, cannot be taxed. It naturally follows that other land within the same taxing district must pay higher taxes.

Likewise, the legislature does not now have the power to appropriate to the counties, towns, school districts, cities, villages and boroughs any funds of the Rural Credit Department to reimburse them for losses suffered by them because large areas of land acquired by the state under the rural credit law thereby have been removed from the tax rolls.

The effect of the passing of this amendment, if the power thereby given is acted upon by the legislature, will be to make good to these local subdivisions, in whole or in part, the loss they now suffer because they cannot tax rural credit land.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 3.

By the adoption of Chapter 442 of the Laws of 1933, the legislature has proposed an amendment to Section 1 of Article 9 of the State Constitution. This section now reads as follows:

"The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away. Taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects, and shall be levied and collected for public purposes, but public burying grounds, public school houses, public hospitals, academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning, all churches, church property and houses of worship, institutions of purely public charity, and public property used exclusively for any public purpose, shall be exempt from taxation, and there may be exempted from taxation personal property not exceeding in value $200, for each household, individual or head of a family, as the legislature may determine: Provided, that the legislature may authorize municipal corporations to levy and collect assessments for local improvements upon property benefited thereby without regard to a cash valuation, and provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect, modify or repeal any existing law providing for the taxation of the gross earnings of railroads."

If amended as proposed by the legislature, this section will read as follows:

"The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away. Taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects, and shall be levied and collected for public purposes, but public burying grounds, public school houses, public hospitals, academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning, all churches, church property and houses of worship, institutions of purely public charity, and public property used exclusively for any public purpose, shall be exempt from taxation, and there may be exempted from taxation personal property not exceeding in value $200, for each household, individual or head of a family as the legislature may determine. Academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning shall be construed to mean the property actually and exclusively used in the instruction and housing of the students thereof, and residences on the campus actually occupied by instructors of such institutions. Provided, that the legislature may authorize municipal corporations to levy and collect assessments for local improvements upon property benefited thereby without regard to a cash valuation, and provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect, modify or repeal any existing law providing for the taxation of the gross earnings of a railroad."

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose and effect of this amendment is to mention specifically and define definitely the property of academies, colleges, universities and seminaries of learning which shall be exempt from taxation. The present Section 1 of Article 9 provides that academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning shall be exempt from taxation, but does not specifically state what property of such institutions shall be tax exempt. If the proposed amendment is adopted the only property of said educational institutions which will be exempt from taxation under this section will be the property actually and exclusively used in the instruction and housing of the students thereof and residences on the campus actually occupied by instructors of such institutions.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 4.

By the adoption of Chapter 443 of the Laws of 1933 the legislature has proposed an amendment to Article 8 of the State Constitution. This amendment will not add to or alter any existing section of the Constitution, but will add a new section to be known as Section 8 of Article 8. The proposed amendment reads as follows:

"Any of the public lands of the state, including lands held in trust for any purpose, may, with the approval of a commission consisting of the governor, the attorney general and the state auditor, be exchanged for lands of the United States and other privately owned lands as the legislature may provide, and the lands so acquired shall be subject to the trust, if any, to which the lands exchanged therefor were subject, and the state shall reserve all mineral and water and water power rights in lands so transferred by the state."

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose and effect of this amendment is to authorize the legislature to provide for exchanging any of the public lands of the state for lands of the United States and land privately owned, such exchanges to be made with the approval of a commission consisting of the governor, the attorney general and the state auditor. Such exchanges of land cannot now be made because the State Constitution does not permit the legislature to authorize the sale of school lands, state swamp lands and state internal improvement lands except by public sale. One immediate purpose in granting such authority is to make it possible for the state to acquire compact areas of land for forestry and other conservation purposes by exchanging land outside of such conservation areas for lands of the United States and privately owned lands within such areas.

The amendment requires that all mineral rights, water rights and water power rights in lands so transferred by the state shall be reserved. The land so acquired will become subject to the same trust, if any, as the land disposed of. For example, if school land is given in exchange, the land received will become school land.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 5.

By the adoption of Chapter 444 of the Laws of 1933, the legislature proposed an amendment to Section 1 of Article 9 of the State Constitution. At present Section 1 of Article 9 reads as follows:

"The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away. Taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects, and shall be levied and collected for public purposes, but public burying grounds, public school houses, public hospitals, academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning, all churches, church property and houses of worship, institutions of purely public charity, and public property used exclusively for any public purpose, shall be exempt from taxation, and there may be exempted from taxation personal property not exceeding in value $200, for each household, individual or head of a family, as the legislature may determine: Provided, that the legislature may authorize municipal corporations to levy and collect assessments for local improvements upon property benefited thereby without regard to a cash valuation, and provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect, modify or repeal any existing law providing for the taxation of the gross earnings of railroads."

If amended as proposed by the legislature, said section will read as follows:

"The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away. Taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects, and shall be levied and collected for public purposes, but public burying grounds, public school houses, public hospitals, academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning, all churches, church property and houses of worship, institutions of purely public charity, and public property used exclusively for any public purpose, shall be exempt from taxation, and there may be exempted from taxation personal property not exceeding in value $200, for each household, individual or head of a family, and such household goods of each household, and such farm machinery, as the legislature may determine:

Provided, that the legislature may authorize municipal corporations to levy and collect assessments for local improvements upon property benefited thereby without regard to a cash valuation, and provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect, modify or repeal any existing law providing for the taxation of the gross earnings of railroads."

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose and effect of this amendment is to grant to the legislature, in addition to the power now granted by said section to exempt personal property, the authority to exempt from taxation, such household goods of each household, and such farm machinery of each farm, as it may see fit. By the present Section 1 of Article 9 the legislature is granted the authority to exempt from taxation unspecified personal property not exceeding in value $200 for each household, individual, or head of a family.

Your respectfully,
HARRY H. PETERSON
Attorney General.

CAPITOL NEWS REVIEW

Not since the bank holiday in April, 1933, has a single state bank been closed, Elmer Benson, state banking commissioner, reports. Instead, according to Mr. Benson, bank deposits have steadily increased.

Students in Minnesota schools, up to the twelfth grade, are this year receiving instruction in the effects of alcohol on occupations, society and the human body. This instruction was provided for in the Minnesota liquor control act. It is correlated with such studies as general science, economics and sociology. It was prepared by a committee appointed by the State Board of Education and David R. Arundel, liquor control commissioner. No other state has a similar curriculum required by law.

In the past year David J. Smalow, special assistant attorney general for the gasoline tax division, has prosecuted 22 cases for tax evasion, faking claims against the department, forgery and the like. The department batted 1,000 per cent, obtaining 22 convictions.

In the fall of 1933 the Federal government gave the state highway department emergency employment relief funds and urged the officials to set up as many projects as possible which would provide winter jobs. Complying with this request, Commissioner N. W. Elsberg whipped a winter road program into shape which included some 44 miles of waterbound macadam construction. A heavy crushed stone base was to be laid down, rolled and furnished by applying a bituminous surface. The cost of such work under hand labor regulations of the government sometimes approaches the cost of concrete paving. The resulting road way also is a very high type. How ever, concrete paving could not be laid in the winter, and macadam work can be done in freezing weather. Therefore the macadam was put down and hundreds of men were kept at work from November on through the winter months, which was the result of federal government desired. Of five projects, three began in November, one in January and one in Febuary. Now the highway department is being criticized for this expenditure of money by advocates of concrete paving. Such critics forget deciding factor in selecting the type of construction employed.

Over $2,000 a month or almost $25,000 a year saving to state institutions was effected last week by Al C. Hanson, manager of the State Testing mill that sells its prodsct to the State Testing mill sells its product to the State Board of Control. The saving was the result of a ruling from Department of Agriculture officials in Washington to the effect that the processing tax amounting to $1.38 would have to be paid inasmuch as theflour was being sold to state institutions from a state mill. The rulings of AAA officials confirmed an opinion of Att'y. General Harry H. Peterson that the federal government could not tax a state instrumentality.

In a statement issued last week Commissioner Rockwell, newly appointed head of the State Department of Education flayed critics who have said that he is attempting to insert "politics" into the schools. Dr. Rockwell said. "I am not interested in furthering the cause of any political group or party. As a public survant of the people of Minnesota I am responsible only to them for the conduct of the Department of Education, and I am available for talks to any group sincerely interested in seeing our educational system advance to the point where it will become the vital force in American life. I stand willing and ready at all times to defend my principles of education but the time and interest of the State of Minnesota are too valuable to be wasted in purely political squabbles." A few days later Marian LeSeur, member of the State board of Education replied to the charges made that E. N Phillips, retiring commissioner of Education was forced out of his position. Mrs. LeSeur said, "At the meeting of the Board of Education in January 1934, I met Mr. Phillips for the first time and he said to me that he had not sought the position of Commissioner, and did not want it and was ready to retire at any time." Mrs. LeSeur further states that Phillips told the Board before he retired that he believed a change in the social studies curriculum was desireable.

The absence of any activity on the part of Albert Pfaender and Fred Shilplin, defeated candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, for John Regan has caused considerable comment in the state house halls. Many are speculating as to where the support of these two gentlemen is going to go.

Checks for $93,487.30 representing a two per cent dividend was sent investors in the Capitol Trusts and Savings bank of St. Paul by the closed bank department of the state banking department, Elmer A. Benson, commissioner of the state banking department announced. Arthur Tanem, formerly of Thief River Falls is the receiver for the closed institution. The sum makes a 77 per cent dividend payment, amounting to $3,599,226.82 and represents a total of 12,770 claims allowed and paid. Most of the money goes to residents of St. Paul, but included in the dividend payments are residents of England, Scotland, Ireland, Poland, Germany, France, Rumania, Jugo-Slavia, Japan and Italy. These of course were all former residents of St. Paul and have since moved to these distant points said the commissioner of banks.

In a recent conversation with Governor Olson, E. M. Phillips, former commissioner of education, denied political rumors to the effect that he had resigned for political reasons. At the same time he said that never during his tenure of office under a Farmer-Labor governor had he been asked to change his personnel or department policy.

AUXILIARY NOTES

The Am. Legion Auxiliary completed their plans last Thursday evening for the Fall Festival.

Lunches will be served in the club rooms during the afternoons and evenings during the festival with Mrs. J. Steen in charge.

The Auxiliary will cooperate with the Legion in making a float.

The talk by Mrs. O. Smith on Rehabilitation Work was greatly appreciated.

Membership dues are coming in fine. A committee comprised of Mrs. O. Smith, Mrs. T. P. Anderson and Mrs. Geo. Baken was appointed to work out plans for the drive. Three dollars will be given to the paid up member who draws the lucky number at the next meeting. The losing team has to put on some spectacular stunt. The member getting the most points by January 1, 1935 will be given an outstanding gift.

ADDRESSED FARMERS HERE TUESDAY EVENING

ROBERT MILLER
President, Minn. Farmers' Union

Governor Opposes Freight Rate Raise

"I hope the Interstate Commerce Commission will appreciate that this proposed increase in freight rate on coal would impose an unjust and unreasonable burden upon the consumers of the Northwest," was the comment of Governor Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota, in discussing the petition by the carriers filed several weeks ago.

The Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission has signified its intention of appearing in Washington to vigorously oppose the increases.

As has been pointed out by numerous public officials, coal is a commodity which touches either directly or indirectly the lives of every man, woman and child in the country.

In commenting on Governor Olson's statement, C. B. Huntress, president of Appalachian Coals, Inc., of Cincinnati, the largest marketing organization in the coal industry, said: "If more public officials would speak against this proposal, employment would be saved for thousands of miners and railroad men; and the railroads would be saved from themselves."

Mr. Huntress insisted that an increased rate for coal would result in less tonnage for the railroads because industries would turn to other fuels if the price of coal became higher.

Farmer-Labor Women, Hold 'Accomplishment Dinners Thruout State

A series of "Accomplishment" dinners at which speakers will outline the achievements and aims of the Farmer-Labor movement will be held thruout the state beginning about Oct. 15.

This was announced by Mrs. Chas. Lundquist, Minneapolis, state chairman of the Farmer-Labor Women's Federation.

Talks will be by state officials and department heads, Mrs. Lunquist said. Dinners will be held in churches, lodges and homes, with the series to continue until election day, Nov. 6.

"It is the aim of the women's federation to make known thruout the entihe state just what has been accomplished to date by the Farmer-Labor party," Mrs. Lundquist stated. "We want all citizens of Minnesota to know how the Farmer-Labor program affects them; how we have helped improve conditions and how we hope to further their interests."

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. Louis Poppenhagen was pleasantly surprised Sunday afternoon at her home by several friends and relatives, the occasion being her birthday. The afternoon was spent socially, at the conclusion of which luncheon was served by the self-invited guests. Those participating were Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Reierson and family Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Reierson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Poppenhagen and family, Mr. and Mrs Leonard Poppenhagen and family Mr. and Mrs. Phinney Poppenhagen and family, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Northwest School Opens Fall Term

The Northwest school of Agriculture opened last week with the largest fall term enrollment since 1929. According to Superintendent A. A, Dowell, the Freshman class is one of the largest in the history of the school with one hundred already registered for first year courses. With new students reporting daily, Registrar J. W. Mlinar anticipates a total of 300 students by the end of this week.

Students in attendance from Pennington county include: Harvey Clausen, Goodridge; Truman Hemmestvedt, Goodridge; Glennie Iverson, Erie; Leo Jenson, Goodridge; Arthur Kast, Goodridge; Marvin Nabben, Goodridge; Harry Solberg, Erie; Gerald Yonke, St. Hilaire; Olaf Dahlen, Erie; Martin Hanson, Thief River Falls; Oliver Haugen, St. Hilaire; Harold Nabben, Goodridge; Ray Oen, Thief River Falls; LeRoy Peterson, Thief River Falls; Laura Hanson, and Irene Holst, Thief River Falls.

Bats Are Not Blind

Contrary to common belief, bats are not blind. They posess very good eyes, which, however, are very often hidden in the fur on the face to the extent that they are not readily visible. In addition to eyesight, however, a bat possesses very keen sensory nerves in its wings which enables it to fly about in pitch black without striking any object which may be in its vicinity.

Not since the bank holiday in April, 1933, has a single state bank been closed, Elmer Benson, state banking commissioner, reports. Instead, according to Mr. Benson, bank deposits have steadily increased.

Students in Minnesota schools, up to the twelfth grade, are this year receiving instruction in the effects of alcohol on occupations, society and the human body. This instruction was provided for in the Minnesota liquor control act. It is correlated with such studies as general science, economics and sociology. It was prepared by a committee appointed by the State Board of Education and David R. Arundel, liquor control commissioner. No other state has a similar curriculum required by law.

In the past year David J. Smilow, special assistant attorney general for the gasoline tax division, has prosecuted 22 cases for tax evasion, faking claims against the department, forgery and the like. The department batted 1,000 per cent, obtaining 22 convictions.

In the fall of 1933 the Federal government gave the state highway department emergency employment relief funds and urged the officials to set up as many projects as possible which would provide winter jobs. Complying with this request, Commissioner N. W. Elsberg whipped a winter road program into shape which included some 44 miles of waterbound macadam construction. A heavy crushed stone base was to be laid down, rolled and furnished by applying a bituminous surface. The cost of such work under hand labor regulations of the government sometimes approaches the cost of concrete paving. The resulting road way also is a very high type. However, concrete paving could not be laid in the winter, and macadam work can be done in freezing weather. Therefore the macadam was put down and hundreds of men were kept at work from November on through the winter months, which was the result of federal government desired. Of five projects, three began in November, one in January and one in Febuary. Now the highway department is being criticized for this expenditure of money by advocates of concrete paving. Such critics forget deciding factor in selecting the type of construction employed.

Over $2,000 a month or almost $25,000 a year saving to state institutions was effected last week by Al C. Hanson, manager of the State Testing mill that sells its prodsct to the State Testing mill sells its product to the State Board of Control. The saving was the result of a ruling from Department of Agriculture officials in Washington to the effect that the processing tax amounting to $1.38 would have to be paid inasmuch as theflour was being sold to state institutions from a state mill. The rulings of AAA officials confirmed an opinion of Att'y. General Harry H. Peterson that the federal government could not tax a state instrumentality.

In a statement issued last week Commissioner Rockwell, newly appointed head of the State Department of Education flayed critics who have said that he is attempting to insert "politics" into the schools. Dr. Rockwell said, "I am not interested in furthering the cause of any political group or party. As a public survant of the people of Minnesota I am responsible only to them for the conduct of the Department of Education, and I am available for talks to any group sincerely interested in seeing our educational system advance to the point where it will become the vital force in American life. I stand willing and ready at all times to defend my principles of education but the time and interest of the State of Minnesota are too valuable to be wasted in purely political squabbles." A few days later Marian LeSeur, member of the State board of Education replied to the charges made that E. N Phillips, retiring commissioner of Education was forced out of his position. Mrs. LeSeur said, "At the meeting of the Board of Education in January 1934, I met Mr. Phillips for the first time and he said to me that he had not sought the position of Commissioner, and did not want it and was ready to retire at any time." Mrs. LeSeur further states that Phillips told the Board before he retired that he believed a change in the social studies curriculum was desireable.

The absence of any activity on the part of Albert Pfaender and Fred Shilplin, defeated candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, for John Regan has caused considerable comment in the state house halls. Many are speculating as to where the support of these two gentlemen is going to go.

Checks for $93,487.30 representing a two per cent dividend was sent investors in the Capitol Trusts and Savings bank of St. Paul by the closed bank department of the state banking department, Elmer A. Benson, commissioner of the state banking department announced. Arthur Tanem, formerly of Thief River Falls is the receiver for the closed institution. The sum makes a 77 per cent dividend payment, amounting to $3,599,226.82 and represents a total of 12,770 claims allowed and paid. Most of the money goes to residents of St. Paul, but included in the dividend payments are residents of England, Scotland, Ireland, Poland, Germany, France, Rumania, Jugo-Slavia, Japan and Italy. These of course were all former residents of St. Paul and have since moved to these distant points said the commissioner of banks.

In a recent conversation with Governor Olson, E. M. Phillips, former commissioner of education, denied political rumors to the effect that he had resigned for political reasons. At the same time he said that never during his tenure of office under a Farmer-Labor governor had he been asked to change his personnel or department policy.

AUXILIARY NOTES

The Am. Legion Auxiliary completed their plans last Thursday evening for the Fall Festival.

Lunches will be served in the club rooms during the afternoons and evenings during the festival with Mrs. J. Steen in charge.

The Auxiliary will cooperate with the Legion in making a float.

The talk by Mrs. O. Smith on Rehabilitation Work was greatly appreciated.

Membership dues are coming in fine. A committee comprised of Mrs. O. Smith, Mrs. T. P. Anderson and Mrs. Geo. Baken was appointed to work out plans for the drive. Three dollars will be given to the paid up member who draws the lucky number at the next meeting. The losing team has to put on some spectacular stunt. The member getting the most points by January 1, 1935 will be given an outstanding gift.

Governor Opposes Freight Rate Raise

"I hope the Interstate Commerce Commission will appreciate that this proposed increase in freight rate on coal would impose an unjust and unreasonable burden upon the consumers of the Northwest," was the comment of Governor Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota, in discussing the petition by the carriers filed several weeks ago.

The Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission has signified its intention of appearing in Washington to vigorously oppose the increases.

As has been pointed out by numerous public officials, coal is a commodity which touches either directly or indirectly the lives of every man, woman and child in the country.

In commenting on Governor Olson's statement, C. B. Huntress, president of Appalachian Coals, Inc., of Cincinnati, the largest marketing organization in the coal industry, said: "If more public officials would speak against this proposal, employment would be saved for thousands of miners and railroad men; and the railroads would be saved from themselves."

Mr. Huntress insisted that an increased rate for coal would result in less tonnage for the railroads because industries would turn to other fuels if the price of coal became higher.

Farmer-Labor Women, Hold 'Accomplishment Dinners Thruout State

A series of "Accomplishment" dinners at which speakers will outline the achievements and aims of the Farmer-Labor movement will be held thruout the state beginning about Oct. 15.

This was announced by Mrs. Chas. Lundquist, Minneapolis, state chairman of the Farmer-Labor Women's Federation.

Talks will be by state officials and department heads, Mrs. Lunquist said. Dinners will be held in churches, lodges and homes, with the series to continue until election day, Nov. 6.

"It is the aim of the women's federation to make known thruout the entihe state just what has been accomplished to date by the Farmer-Labor party," Mrs. Lundquist stated. "We want all citizens of Minnesota to know how the Farmer-Labor program affects them; how we have helped improve conditions and how we hope to further their interests."

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. Louis Poppenhagen was pleasantly surprised Sunday afternoon at her home by several friends and relatives, the occasion being her birthday. The afternoon was spent socially, at the conclusion of which luncheon was served by the self-invited guests. Those participating were Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Reierson and family Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Reierson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Poppenhagen and family, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Poppenhagen and family Mr. and Mrs. Phinney Poppenhagen and family, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. CHOMMIE HEADS COUNTY OLSON ALL-PARTY CLUB

Election of a Conservative at This Time Would be a Calamity Says Att'y

H. O. Chommie, prominent attorney and . leading democrat of this city was selected chairman of an All-Party Olson for Governor club which was formed in this county this week. An intensive drive for the re-election of Governor Floyd B. Olson will be launched by the newly formed organization, sponsors of the club stated.

"Yes, I am for Olson," Mr. Chommie stated to a Forum reporter Wednesday, "I am for Olson because I believe that the election of a conservative Republican in Minnesota at this time would be little short of a national calamity. The eyes of the entire nation are on this state at this time because it has taken the lead in progressive politics. The election of a conservative would be used by the Republicans as an argument in an attempt to make the voters believe that the people are swinging to the right. That they are coming to their senses as they would say and are tired of experimentation.

"This is not a time to pull back on the reins. Let us consolidate our gains and if possible, make further gains. If the Republicans can defeat Olson, it will be a signal for them to start a vicious campaign to undo all that we have gained under the 'New Deal'."

"We have nothing to fear from the radical Farmer-Labor platform. We have more cause to fear tendencies toward conservatism. The reactionaries are trying to frighten us with the boogaboo of "Communism". Let us turn the tables on them, and by electing Olson we can frighten the financial powers into making further concessions to the people and to Progress.

"The people are too prone to forget th etriloasf-ihaootheyoci-get their trials when the sun shines again," Mr Chommie stated, "some fine radical movements have been born in the depressions of the past, such as for instance the Populist movement. But as times became a little better the pendulum swung back to the right and because the rich and powerful controlled the press, with their aid, it swung back too far, plunging us into misery again. Our job now is to keep the pendulum to the left for to the left lies Progress.

Referring to Governor Olson's handling of the Minneapolis strike Mr. Chommie said, "One need only compare the handling of the Minneapolis strike with other labor disturbances in various parts of the country to know that the Governor handled the situation with a master hand. There was no killings and no heads broken after he took charge of the situation.

"I am entirely out of patience with the Republican whispering and slander campaign against the governor," Mr. Chommie stated. The same charges are made now that were made two years ago and four years ago. The Republicans are not lacking in funds, they are able to make any kind of an investigation that they may desire, yet they have made no substantiation of their charges. After four years of this I must assume that they are indulging in falsehoods. Slander should not be given any consideration by the public."

Farmers' Union to Hold Convention at Moorhead On October 28,29 and 30

Plans for the Minnesota Farmer's Union convention to be held in Moorhead on October 28-29-30 are progressing very favorably according to Oscar Christensen, secretary of the convention committee. Mr. Christensen states that the businessmen of Moorhead have responded generously with goodwill contributions to help make this of the largest and most interesing convenions ever staged in Minnesota.

Miss Helen Topping, missionary from Japan, and an exponent of Christ as a teacher of world wide cooperation has been obtained to address the convention on the first day. The committee in charge announces that a program of outstanding merit has been practically assured. Miss Ruth Nelson, musical director of the Agricultural College of Morris, Minn. has been engaged as pep leader at the convention.

CITY COUNCIL INCREASES THE EXPENSE FUND

The City Band and Cemetary Funds Cut to Reduce Next Year Levy

At an adjourned meeting, last Tuesday evening, the city council adopted a budget calling for a reduction of $3,950 from last year's figure of $41,950 to $38,000.

Altho the current expense fund was increased by $2,300, the saving was made possible by cutting the levy for the Municipal band $150 and by reducing the appropriation for the cemetery $350. Another item that was reduced is the permanent improvement fund which was cut $9,000; from $15,000 for 1934 to $6,000 for 1935.

Because of the new homestead exemption law the mill rate will be slightly increased instead of being decreased from last year. The estimated tax rate for city purposes is 29 mills, which is two-tenths mills over that of last year which was 28.8 mills.

Included in the budget for the year and a listing of last year's budget follows:

	1933	1934
Current Expense	$10,200	$12,500
Aud. Maintenance	3,000	4,000
Cemetery	750	400
Library	3,500	3,500
Band	750	600
Parks	800	2,500
Pav. Imp. No. 1	6,000	6,000
Perm. Imp.	1g,000	6,000
Bonds & Int. levied by est.	1,950	2,500
TOTAL	$41,950	$38,000

Te bonds which mature in 1935 amounting to $53,000 could under the budget adpted,, be retired by using other available income according to the estimate made. $45,000 in bonds matured in 1934.

The maintainance of the National Reemployment office in this city is costing more than $100 a month. After November 1, the city will discontinue paying this expense item, because in the opinion of the council members, this expense was not justified.

On Thursday evening Mr. Frisbie, district ERA engineer, assured the council that the water from Red Lake would arrive in the pool here before the fall freeze-up.

Building permits were granted to the Math Barzen Co., to remodel their office building at an estimated cost of $175 and to the O'Hara Fuel and Ice Co., to construct a coal warehouse on the Soo Line trackage at a cost of about $200.

F-L CAMPAIGN HEADQUARTERS IS OPENED TUES.

Campaign Workers Report Good Prospects for Clean Sweep at Polls

The Pennington County Farmer-Labor association opened campaign headquarters in the Old Elks Hall on the second floor of the Citizens State Bank building on Tuesday of this week. Literature and campaign material is being supplied to the campaign workers and reading and discussion room has been provided. A radio has been installed and everyone is invited to call and get acquainted, according to H. Halland, secretary of the County Committee.

Governor Olson will be on the air on October 26, and 31, and November 2, 3, and 5, Mr. Halland states and the headquarter's radio will be turned in on his talks, as well as on the other political talks which will fill the air between now and election day. "The hall is ample to hold quite an audience" Mr. Halland states "and a part of it will be reserved for the ladies." A number of the Farmer-Labor Woman's club will be in attendance, Mr. Halland announces.

Paul A. Harris, Farmer-Labor endorsed acndidate for the State Senate and Representatives W. E. Day and J. O. Melby endorsed for re-election have been campaigning in this county thruout the past week and report enthusiastic gatherings.

"I have covered quite a large part of the county" Otto Rehm, prominent Kratka township farmer and chairman of the County Committee stated to a Forum reporter Wednesday, "and I find that the sentiment is strong for Olson and the entire slate of Farmer-Lalor endorsed candidates. There is

Thousands of Valley Dairymen Throng The City; Governor Olson Speaks at 3

New Bridge Will Be Dedicated In Friday Program; Shipstead, Ellison and Hoffman to Speak

Cong. Einar Hoidale is Unable to Attend Sat.

The Red River Valley Dairymen hold the center of the stage today in what is considered the most successful celebration ever staged in the city.

The celebration was formerly opened last evening with a large parade consisting of floats, bands and drum corps. Over 60 units took part in the demonstration which started on Atlantic avenue the parade made the round of the downtown streets thru throngs of people who stood patiently in the chilly evening air while the lengthy procession passed. A detail of the state highway patrol headed the march, followed by the American Legion color guard and the Thief River Falls Municipal band. Some exceptionally well designed floats were entered as well as some com- Northern "Ship by Rail" train was probably the most cleverly conceived.

Also taking part in the procession were the St.Hilaire School band, the Holt Community band, the Bagley Drum Corps, and the Legion Auviliary Drum Corps of this city. A dance and entertainment at the auditorium at which the dairymen were guests of honor wound up the evening.

The Dairymen's program today at the auditorium consists of business session in the forenoon and judging of the butter contest entries in the forenoon, a milking contest for the championship of the Red River Valley in front of the auditorium at noon and a speaking program in the afternoon.

Speakers featured on the program are: Governor Floyd B. Olson, who will speak at three o'olock, L. A. Gibson, dairy commissioner of Manitoba Canada; W. E. Peterson of the University of Minnesota; A. H. Lauterbach of Washington, D. C.; and A. A. Dowell, president of the organization.

A reception committee consisting of Stuart McLeod of the Red River Valley Dairymen's association; H. O. Chommie, chairman of the Pennington County All-Party Olson for Governor Club; and Otto Rehm, chairman and H. Halland, secretary of the Pennington County Farmer-Labor association and Paul A. Harris, Farmer-Labor candidate for State Senator were named by the officials in charge of the convention last evening to meet the Governor and act as escort to the city. They are scheduled to meet him at Red Lake Falls where he will speak shortly after noon.

This evening's program includes a concert by the Municipal band, and short talks by prominent speakers, among them, R. A Trovaten, Minnesota Commissioner of Dairy and Food who will present the awards in the butter contest. Mr. Pesek, secretary of the dairymen states that the entries in the contest this year set an all time record, there being over 120 entries made. An exceptionally keen competition is expected.

Senator Henrik Shipstead will speak at the dedication ceremonies speak here tomorrow at the dedication of the new bridge, which ceremony will take place at the Elks Memorial Park at one o'clock. J. T. Ellison, assistant state highway commissioner and M. J. Hoffman, state bridge engineer, will aliso be on the program. An added feature will be a short address by Ralph Webb, mayor of Winnipeg, Man.

Contrary to announcement made last week, Congressman Einar

Bothun is Awarded $1 570 In Condemnation Case

Te district court adjourned Thursday, October 11, and will convene again on Monday, November 8 at 10 A. M.

The last case to be tried was that of Robert Stewart who entered a plea of guilty to a statutory charge. Stewart was given a suspended sentence not exceeding 2 years at the State Penitentiary at Stillwater.

In the case of the State vs. Martin Bothun, dealing with the purchase of Bothun's property for condemnation for the new bridge, the jury last Thursday broughtt the verdict awarding Bothun the amount of $1 570,

Clarence Nelson and Carl Fredrickson plead guilty to paternity cases brought against them by the state.

Senator Hausler to Speak at Bagley & R. Lake Falls Tues.

Senator Chas. Hausler of St. Paul, one of the Northwest's most outstanding architects and a progressive and invaluable member of the Farmer-Labor bloc of the state senate will speak at Bagley on Tuesday, October 25 at 2 p. m. and at Red Lake Falls at 8 p. m. on the same day. Senator Hausler can always be counted on to fight hard for the people's principles, and it will be well worth while to hear his addresses, as he is a speaker of great ability.

Also speaking at these meetings will be Fred C. Proehl of this city who is one of the outstanding platform men of the Farmer-Labor movement. Mr. Proehl's addresses have been highly acclaimed by all audiences to whom he has spoken.

NRS Office Finds Help Demands Exceed Supply

There are 37 work opportunities for men and 16 opportunities for women available to persons in Pennington County desiring employment, according to Howard Davidso, statistician of the local Natioanl Reemployment Service office. He further stated that a call is expected within the week for about 40 or 50 chicken pickers to work in various packing plants. There are also many work opportunities for farm hands who are interested in cbtaining work throughout the winter.

Mr. Davidson announced that the local office contracted 46 employers last week. Only 10 placements were made due to the small supply of available labor. Public works placements were received by 2; private placements were received by 2; and 3 were placed under ERA. Two persons were transferred out of the county, and in the entire district, the placements numbered 158.

The Naional Reemployment Service is a free public employment ser vice, and absolutely no fees are charged for its services. Mr. Davidson urges persons now unemployed to register "to be in line" for possible work opportunities if they have not already done so. Those on the registration file are asked to renew their registrations regularly.

Crookston-Prowlers Play Overtime Tie

The football game between the local Prowlers and the Crookston high school team at Crookston last Friday resulted in a 7-7 tie score after playing an overtime period of about an hour. On Saturday, October 27, the Prowlers will meet the Bemidji team on the Bemidji gridiron for the next game on their schedule.

MARKET TRENDS FAVOR VALLEY SAYS B.O. NORBY

Calls Attention to L'O' Lakes Radio Broakcast Over Four Stations

The new addition t the Land O' Lakes plant will be ready for occupancy this week, B. O. Norby manager of the local plant stated yesterday. Construction of the new building sets something of a record inasmuch as excavation for the basement was started less than three week ago.

The Land O' Lakes organization are making preparation for the Thanksgiving Turkey Pool which opens November 8th, Mr. Norby stated. He suggests that turkey raisers start feeding at once to put their birds in the best possible condition. He also suggests that it will pay for the breeders in this territory to hold their birds for the late market as much as possible because due to the drouth and consequent shortage of feed there are many birds being marketed in the early pools. This section being well provided with feed should hold until later and will gain by so doing since all indications point to advancing prices, he stated.

The Land O' Lakes organization is always striving to improve the market, Mr. Norby stated, and have observers visit the eastern markets regularly to watch the trends. Their reports are very favorable this fall, he states. There will be agood demad for Land O' Lakes fancy turkeys,, ducks and geese in every market, but undergrade merchandise will be too plentiful to command any worthwhile price, he said.

Mr. Norby also calls the attention of the public to the Land O' Lakes turkey program broadcast over WCCO, WDAY and WNAX at 12:50 each day of November 6-7-8 and 9. If the breeders will listen in on this program they will be able to get some very valuable information, Mr. Norby stated.

Republican Candidate for Governor of Minn., Mails Literature from Chicago

Martin A. Nelson may be the Republican candidate for governor of Minnesota, but his campaign literature is mailed out from Chicago

On Tuesday morning the Forum received another "news release" wherein the big business cats-paw tries to curry a little favor with the voters by calling attention to a relationship with the late Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota.

While the release is headed as coming from the St. Paul headquarters the envelope is postmarked from Old P. O. Annex, Chicago Ill.

Probably this fact accounts for the Chicago gangster tactics employed by the republican in the present campaign. At any event the voters of Minnesota may judge from this fact whether or not the republican campaign is being financed by the big business interests.

Of course many people may wonder why the republicans should go to Chicago, to do their mailing. They may argue that big business money would buy stamps at St. Paul or at Minneapolis just as well as at Chicago. Which is quite right. However it must be remembered that when the campaign closes the candidates and the campaign headquarers must file a statement of money spent in the campaign with the Secretary of State or maybe it is with the State Auditor. At any rate if the money is spent in Chicago they will not have to report it in Minnesota and consequently they will not have a several million dollar fund to explain after the big show is over.

Orville E. Olson, head of the local Emergency Relief Administration since last March 1st, left Wednesday evening for Benson, where he will assume new duties as head of the Swift county ERA offices. Miss Bena Johnson will be acting relief officer here.

Mr. Olson announced this week that he has asked Rev. E. L. Tungseth to take charge of the organization of the ERA clothing drive. Rev. Tungseth will contact the local pastors and the various church oranization for discarded and cast-off clothing, after which the clothing will be renovated by women engaged on the ERA sewing and cleaning project and distributed to relief clients.

A shipment of baby beef will arrive from St Paul Sunday, according to Mr. Olson, and will be distributed locally to relief clients by the ERA from the Olson Coffee Company warehouse on Monday, October 22. The beef will also be distributed from the Clearwater creamery, Highlanding, on Tuesday morning, October 23, and from Goodridge in the afternoon of the same day.

4-H Clubs to Stage Achievement Day on Saturday, Oct. 20th

A Fall Achievement Day will be held by the Pennington County 4-H club boys and girls on Saturday, October 20 during the Decade of Progress celebration.

Eleven boys and girls will be selected in this event to compete at the Junior Livestock show in So S. Paul November 12-15

Livestock enteries must be brought to the county fair grounds so as to be judged between the hours of 11 a. m. and 2 p. m. Free trips and prizes will be awarded the winners.

In charge of the enteries will be Severin Barstad, hogs and baby beef; Donald Toomey, sheep; Chas Joyce, poultry; and Harold Jorstad, potatoes.

Wennberg Purchases the Erickson Welding Shop

Carl Wennberg, expert welder, purchased the welding shop of Geo Erickson on Second street last week and took possession at once.

Mr. Wennberg is an automobile mechanic and acetylene welder of many years experience, and has been called to the airport at Grand Forks to perform difficult fuselage welding on several occasions. He announces that he will specialize in acetylene welding and magneto work.

F-L CAMPAIGN HEADQUARTERS IS OPENED TUES.

Campaign Workers Report Good Prospects for Clean Sweep at Polls

The Pennington County Farmer-Labor association opened campaign headquarters in the Old Elks Hall on the second floor of the Citizens State Bank building on Tuesday of this week. Literature and campaign material is being supplied to the campaign workers and reading and discussion room has been provided. A radio has been installed and everyone is invited to call and get acquainted, according to H. Halland, secretary of the County Committee.

Governor Olson will be on the air on October 26, and 31, and November 2, 3, and 5, Mr. Halland states and the headquarter's radio will be turned in on his talks, as well as on the other political talks which will fill the air between now and election day. "The hall is ample to hold quite an audience" Mr. Halland states "and a part of it will be reserved for the ladies." A number of the Farmer-Labor Woman's club will be in attendance, Mr. Halland announces.

Paul A. Harris, Farmer-Labor endorsed acndidate for the State Senate and Representatives W. E. Day and J. O. Melby endorsed for re-election have been campaigning in this county thruout the past week and report enthusiastic gatherings.

"I have covered quite a large part of the county" Otto Rehm, prominent Kratka township farmer and chairman of the County Committee stated to a Forum reporter Wednesday, "and I find that the sentiment is strong for Olson and the entire slate of Farmer-Labor endorsed candidates. There is

Te district court adjourned Thursday, October 11, and will convene again on Monday, November 8 at 10 A. M.

The last case to be tried was that of Robert Stewart who entered a plea of guilty to a statutory charge. Stewart was given a suspended sentence not exceeding 2 years at the State Penitentiary at Stillwater.

In the case of the State vs. Martin Bothun, dealing with the purchase of Bothun's property for condemnation for the new bridge, the jury last Thursday broughtt the verdict awarding Bothun the amount of $1570.

Clarence Nelson and Carl Fredrickson plead guilty to paternity cases brought against them by the state.

Senator Hausler to Speak at Bagley & R. Lake Falls Tues.

Senator Chas. Hausler of St. Paul, one of the Northwest's most outstanding architects and a progressive and invaluable member of the Farmer-Labor bloc of the state senate will speak at Bagley on Tuesday, October 25 at 2 p. m. and at Red Lake Falls at 8 p. m. on the same day. Senator Hausler can always be counted on to fight hard for the people's principles, and it will be well worth while to hear his addresses, as he is a speaker of great ability.

Also speaking at these meetings will be Fred C. Proehl of this city who is one of the outstanding platform men of the Farmer-Labor movement. Mr. Proehl's addresses have been highly acclaimed by all audiences to whom he has spoken.

NRS Office Finds Help Demands Exceed Supply

There are 37 work opportunities for men and 16 opportunities for women available to persons in Pennington County desiring employment, according to Howard Davidso, statistician of the local Natioanl Reemployment Service office. He further stated that a call is expected within the week for about 40 or 50 chicken pickers to work in various packing plants. There are also many work opportunities for farm hands who are interested in obtaining work throughout the winter.

Mr. Davidson announced that the local office contracted 46 employers last week. Only 10 placements were made due to the small supply of available labor. Public works placements were received by 2; private placements were received by 2; and 3 were placed under ERA. Two persons were transferred out of the county, and in the entire district, the placements numbered 158.

The Naional Reemployment Service is a free public employment ser vice, and absolutely no fees are charged for its services. Mr. Davidson urges persons now unemployed to register "to be in line" for possible work opportunities if they have not already done so. Those on the registration file are asked to renew their registrations regularly.

Crookston-Prowlers Play Overtime Tie

The football game between the local Prowlers and the Crookston high school team at Crookston last Friday resulted in a 7-7 tie score after playing an overtime period of about an hour. On Saturday, October 27, the Prowlers will meet the Bemidji team on the Bemidji gridiron for the next game on their schedule.

MARKET TRENDS FAVOR VALLEY SAYS B.O. NORBY

Calls Attention to L'O' Lakes Radio Broakcast Over Four Stations

The new addition to the Land O' Lakes plant will be ready for occupancy this week, B. O. Norby manager of the local plant stated yesterday. Construction of the new building sets something of a record inasmuch as excavation for the basement was started less than three week ago.

The Land O' Lakes organization are making preparation for the Thanksgiving Turkey Pool which opens November 8th, Mr. Norby stated. He suggests that turkey raisers start feeding at once to put their birds in the best possible condition. He also suggests that it will pay for the breeders in this territory to hold their birds for the late market as much as possible because due to the drouth and consequent shortage of feed there are many birds being marketed in the early pools. This section being well provided with feed should hold until later and will gain by so doing since all indications point to advancing prices, he stated.

The Land O' Lakes organization is always striving to improve the market, Mr. Norby stated, and have observers visit the eastern markets regularly to watch the trends. Their reports are very favorable this fall, he states. There will be agood demad for Land O' Lakes fancy turkeys,, ducks and geese in every market, but undergrade merchandise will be too plentiful to command any worthwhile price, he said.

Mr. Norby also calls the attention of the public to the Land O' Lakes turkey program broadcast over WCCO, WDAY and WNAX at 12:50 each day of November 6-7-8 and 9. If the breeders will listen in on this program they will be able to get some very valuable information, Mr. Norby stated.

Cong. Einar Hoidale is Unable to Attend Sat.

The Red River Valley Dairymen hold the center of the stage today in what is considered the most successful celebration ever staged in the city.

The celebration was formerly opened last evening with a large parade consisting of floats, bands and drum corps. Over 60 units took part in the demonstration which started on Atlantic avenue the parade made the round of the downtown streets thru throngs of people who stood patiently in the chilly evening air while the lengthy procession passed. A detail of the state highway patrol headed the march, followed by the American Legion color guard and the Thief River Falls Municipal band. Some exceptionally well designed floats were entered as well as some com-Northern "Ship by Rail" train was probably the most cleverly conceived.

Also taking part in the procession were the St.Hilaire School band, the Holt Community band, the Bagley Drum Corps, and the Legion Auviliary Drum Corps of this city. A dance and entertainment at the auditorium at which the dairymen were guests of honor wound up the evening.

The Dairymen's program today at the auditorium consists of business session in the forenoon and judging of the butter contest entries in the forenoon, a milking contest for the championship of the Red River Valley in front of the auditorium at noon and a speaking program in the afternoon.

Speakers featured on the program are: Governor Floyd B. Olson, who will speak at three o'clock, L. A. Gibson, dairy commissioner of Manitoba Canada; W. E. Peterson of the University of Minnesota; A. H. Lauterbach of Washington, D. C.; and A. A. Dowell, president of the organization.

A reception committee consisting of Stuart McLeod of the Red River Valley Dairymen's association; H. O. Chommie, chairman of the Pennington County All-Party Olson for Governor Club; and Otto Rehm, chairman and H. Halland, secretary of the Pennington County Farmer-Labor association and Paul A. Harris, Farmer-Labor candidate for State Senator were named by the officials in charge of the convention last evening to meet the Governor and act as escort to the city. They are scheduled to meet him at Red Lake Falls where he will speak shortly after noon.

This evening's program includes a concert by the Municipal band, and short talks by prominent speakers, among them, R. A Trovaten, Minnesota Commissioner of Dairy and Food who will present the awards in the butter contest. Mr. Pesek, secretary of the dairymen states that the entries in the contest this year set an all time record, there being over 120 entries made. An exceptionally keen competition is expected.

Senator Henrik Shipstead will speak at the dedication ceremonies speak here tomorrow at the dedication of the new bridge, which ceremony will take place at the Elks Memorial Park at one o'clock. J. T. Ellison, assistant state highway commissioner and M. J. Hoffman, state bridge engineer, will allso be on the program. An added feature will be a short address by Ralph Webb, mayor of Winnipeg, Man.

Contrary to announcement made last week, Congressman Einar

Republican Candidate for Governor of Minn., Mails Literature from Chicago

Martin A. Nelson may be the Republican candidate for governor of Minnesota, but his campaign literature is mailed out from Chicago.

On Tuesday morning the Forum received another "news release" wherein the big business cats-paw tries to curry a little favor with the voters by calling attention to a relationship with the late Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota.

While the release is headed as coming from the St. Paul headquarters the envelope is postmarked from Old P. O. Annex, Chicago Ill.

Probably this fact accounts for the Chicago gangster tactics employed by the republican in the present campaign. At any event the voters of Minnesota may judge from this fact whether or not the republican campaign is being financed by the big business interests.

Of course many people may wonder why the republicans should go to Chicago, to do their mailing. They may argue that big business money would buy stamps at St. Paul or at Minneapolis just as well as at Chicago. Which is quite right. However it must be remembered that when the campaign closes the candidates and the campaign headquarers must file a statement of money spent in the campaign with the Secretary of State or maybe it is with the State Auditor. At any rate if the money is spent in Chicago they will not have to report it in Minnesota and consequently they will not have a several million dollar fund to explain after the big show is over.

MINNESOTA, IOWA ENTER JOINT LAKE IMPROVEMENT AGREEMENT SAID SWENSON

An agreement was entered into today by Minnesota and Iowa state auhorities for the improvement of the two boundry lakes by the removal of rough fish. Improvement of conditions for game fishes will be accomplished in Okamanee and Iowa lakes under a joint working agreement attested to by the Minnesota division of Game and Fish through Erling Swenson, director, and the Iowa Fish and Game Cammission through I. T. Bode, chief game warden.

The work will be done by day labor with both states sharing equally in any expenses that may accrue following the sale of rough fish secured.

"The agreement with the state of Iowa for the improvement of fishing in border lakes between that state and Minnesota is another step in the program planned by the Minnesota Conservation Commission to obtain 'conservation cooperation with neighboring states and Canadian provinces," E. V. Willard, Commissioner of Conservation, said.

Surplus Pigs To Be Processed Thru ERA

Farmers who have surplus pigs to dispose of under the AAA cornhog program may do so thru the Minnesota ERA (Emergency Relief Administration) relief workers, L. P. Zimmerman, deputy administrator, has announced.

The agents are authorized to accept the animals and to redistribute them immediately to relief clients, who will undertake to keep them until March 1, 1935, the date set for their processing into food products for the needy. No hog weighing less than fifty pounds will be accepted.

It is suggested by Benjamin E. Youngdahl, Minnesota ERA director of social service, that the animals need not necessarily be brot into the county seat, whenever a transfer is indicated by the relief worker from one family to another in the same township or district.

October Budget Slashed By Harry Hopkins

Harry Hopkins, federal relief administrator, applied the pruning shears to Minnesota's budget request for October, granting only $3,211,060, a little more than half the amount asked for, according to L. P. Zimmerman, deputy administrator of the Minnesota ERA.

Had the request been approved, as made by the Minnesota officials, the grant would have totaled $5,414,726.

The reduction followed warnings from Washington that federal allotments to the states would be cut unless reasonably matched by local contributions.

"While the curtailment may lessen the magnitude of the Minnesota ERA activities," Mr. Zimmerman said, "necessities will be provided for everyone in need of assistance."

Bedding Materials on Hand For Hundred Sewing Rooms

The need for comforters, sheets and towels in thousands of Minnesota homes will be met this winter through further grants from the Federal Surpius Relief corporation the Minnesota ERA administration announces.

Allotments to the state provide for 78,000 towels, 70,000 comforters and 50,000 sheets, to be given to relief clients in addition to their regular allowances.

The job of converting the raw material into finished products will be done by 2,500 women on relief in sewing rooms throughout the state.

Miss Jessie Bloodworth, Minnesota ERA director of women's work, will superintend, and distribution is to be handled through established relief channels.

"If the Federal Surplus Relief corporation had not made this grant to the state," Mr. Zimmerman points out, "such a general distribution of these commodities to the needy would have been out of the question."

NAZI VANDALISM IN THE SAAR TERRITORY

Saarbruecken (TIS) — Nazis from the nearby town of Zweibruecken broke into the house of the "Nature Friends" organization at Kirkel and destroyed furniture as well as all papers pertaining to the organization. Numerous documents were thrown out of the windows and burned. The anti-Nazi press in the Saar territory insists on the prosecution of the Nazi vendals who are known, and raises the question of protective measures for the property of organized labor in the Saar.

Wright's Flight in France

Wilbur Wright went to France in the summer of 1908 and made his first flight in Europe on August 8, remaining in the air 1¾ minutes; a few weeks later he remained in the air for more than an hour. In 1920 a monument to his memory was unveiled at Le Mans, France.

THE COOPERATIVE DWELLING IS NOW A REALITY

A social experiment in economic housing of transient families and women is to take form in Minneapolis, under the auspices of the Minnesota ERA, L. P. Zimmerman deputy administrator announces.

It is proposed to furnish living accomodations for 150 people, families and single women, in a building at Marquette Ave., and 13th street. The building formerly was used by the Women's Cooperative Alliance. The occupants are expected to apply their own efforts in maintaining the joint home as a self-governing establishment.

Mrs. Luella Moede Spong, an educator, formerly of Marshall, Minnesota, will act as consultant and manager. Recreational and educational facilities will be provided.

Supervision rests with the Minnesota ERA division of transients and homeless relief activities, directed by Oscar W. Behrens. "The cost of caring for these people in a joint dwelling," he says, "will be less than if they were to be provided for individually."

Of 16,227 newly matriculated students at the University of Berlin for the semester 1933-1934, only 855, or aproximately five percent (5%) come from workers families.

SUBSTITUTES BECOME COMMON IN GERMANY

Hamburg(TIS)—Even the newly wed in Germany are getting used to the idea of Ersatz (substitute) as shown by the announcement of substitute material for wedding rings. According to the German Gold and Silver Institute and other national metal associations, a metal has been perfected for use in wedding and engagement rings which will be as "durable as gold". The perfection is the result of the shortage of precious metals in Germany, notably of gold.

It must be remembered that the exchange of gold rings for substitutes was a common occurance during the war. Tens of thousands of German couple relinquished their gold bands for rings of lead which bore varied inscriptions such as "For the Fatherland" "We gave our gold for iron", etc.

EXTENSION SECURED FOR SOIL EROSION PROJECTS

Extension of time until November 1 for five Emergency Conservation Work Camps doing soil erosion control work in southeastern Minnesota was secured by Walter S. Olson, director of the division of Drainage and Waters. The camps effected are lolated at Red Wing, Rochester, Chatfield, Houston and Caledonia.

"The additional 20 days of work in these camps will permit completion of the planting of about one million trees in badly eroded areas," Mr. Olson said.

JOHN BARLEYCORN ON THE S. S. 'MORROW CASTLE'

The Sworn Record Shows that Drink Played a Bloody Role in the Tragedy

The ghoulish grin of old Bill Booze was revealed in the testimony concerning the burning of the Morro Castle off the eastern seaboard on September 8th. Acting Captain Warms, on the witness stand answered the interrogations of the federal officials with these damning admissions:

Q. How did the passengers react? A. Some wouldn't leave their rooms.

Q. How did you account for that? A. Some of them had been drinking. There had been a number of parties the evening before.

Q. Did you have any direct reports of drinking? A. I was told of a case of six girls who were all very drunk in one cabin.

Q. Was there more drinking than usual on this trip? A. I don't know, because I rarely mingle with the passengers. As for the girls who were reported to me drunk in their cabins, they had to be put to bed by stewardesses, but there is always drinking on a boat, so we don't think much about it. I suppose they were dead to the world and didn't here the alarm.

This evidence that drink was responsible for the death of some and perhaps many of the 137 who perished in the gruesome tragedy convicts John Barleycorn of this guilt in this ghastly horror of the sea.

But the origin of the holocaust is still shouded in mystery. In the early press reports it was more than hinted that an exceptionally wild party was staged in one of the card rooms, where drunkenness prevailed, ranging from the boisterous and hilarious stages to that of the stupefaction described by Captain Worms in which the victims were "dead to the world." The constant lighting of matches, and the careless disposal of live cigarette and cigar stubs was given credit for the disaster by some of those who survived it. No final verdict can be set down until the investigation now in progress has reached a conclusion based upon a judicial consideration of all available facts.

If, however, no other origin can be found, John Barleycorn will stand under the cloud of grave suspicion, even if the slaughter is not specifically added to the long and hideous record on his bloody ledger.

State Makes Large Reduction in Road Machinery Buying

Cash expenditures of the state highway department for road machinery and equipment in the past two years total approximately half the amount spent in the single preceding year of 1932, according to figures announced by the department.

Equipment expenditures in 1933 were $63,366 and in 1934 they will total approximately $115,000, it was said by Commissioner N. W. Elsberg. This is a total of $178,366 for the two years. The cash equipment expenditures in 1932 alone were $348,097. The average yearly equipment expenditures of the department from 1929 to 1932 inclusive were $473,000.

Equipment rentals by the mainenance division in 1932 were $300,080, compared with $107,505 in 1933 and $125,00 estimated for 1934.

"These large reductions in expenditures for equipment have been made notwithstanding a 65% increase in the mileage of the trunk highway system this year," Mr. Elsberg said. "By a more highly systematized use of equipment on hand, replacement requirement were decreased. Our machinery is now giving more unit hours of service per month than formerly."

NEW DEAL SKEPTICISM GROWING, SAYS BRITON

BOSTON—A growing skepticism in the attitude of the American public toward the New Deal is the first change that Fred Henderson, noted British economist, has observed upon his return to this country for a second lecture tour. Henderson is at present keeping a number of speaking engagements in the state of Massachusetts. He arrived in the United States last week from Montreal, Canada.

"A year ago," says Henderson, "confidence in the ultimate delivery of the 'goods' by the NRA administration was widespread. What I find is being very widely questioned today, however, is the ability to restore a real human standard of life and security to the American people under any policy which leaves the the producing system still predominantly subject to the profit motive.

"What is happening in America is essentially the same thing as is happening in every other developed capitalist country. We are being disabled from getting into use and consumption the things we all need and can quite plentifully produce. The needs of human life are urgent; and our producing ability to satisfy them is ample. But for some reason which the governing statesmanship of the world has not yet detected, we are having to go without them. I hold very emphatically that this compulsion to go without the things we can readily produce in plenty will continue, and probably worsen, so long as the producing system is one of producing for profit. To a community owning its own natural resources, and organizing its activities as public service for the satisfaction of its needs, there would be no such difficulty."

Henderson is the author of "The Economic Consequences of Power Production," a well-known book on fundamental economics which has been translated into many languages. He has the distinction of having furnished the labor movement in two continents with its official textbook, his "Case for Socialism" having been issued by the British Labor party, the Socialist party of the United States and the Cooperative Commonwealth Federation of Canada. He has rendered active service in public administration, is a magistrate and alderman of his native city of Norwich in England, and has been for many years the Chairman of the Public Libraries authority for eastern England.

N W SCHOOL HOMECOMING TO BE HELD SATURDAY

Plans are nearing completion for an elaborate Home Coming celebration and reunion at the Northwest School of Agriculture on Saturday of this week. Committees have announced a huge pep fest for Friday evening, a special assembly Saturday morning, a football game in the afternoon, and a dance and party in the evening.

Chief interest centers around the annual football game with the Morris Aggies. Coach R. J. Christgau's Northwest School warriors have captured the State School of Agriculture championship for four successive years; hence, the Morris aggregation coached by A. C. Heine is determined to avenge recent defeats and carry "Ossie," the inter-school trophy, back to West Central Minnesota.

With one of the largest fall term enrollments in the history of the school and inter-school spirit at a high pitch, hundreds of old grads are expected to return for the annual fall reunion.

Coach Christgau is in hopes of uncovering a successor to Edwin Widseth, who was the star performer on the Aggie squad for four years, anl now, as a sophomore at the University of Minnesota, is winning fame that promises to lead to a place on the mythical All-American squad.

WINTER SOIL EROSION SURVEYS ARE PLANNED

Surveys are planned during the winter months that a correlated program of soil erosion and water conservation controls may be continued when weather permits in the spring, according to the Minnesota Conservation Commission. Intensive soil erosion control will be continued in the southeastern part of the state. It is expected that federal and state forest camps will cooperate in water conservation work during the coming spring and summer months.

Four survey crews will outline tenative plans for soil erosion control under the federal Civilian Conservation corps program. In the Detroit Lakes region, two crews will survey conditions relative to water conservation opportunities.

Walter S. Olson, director of the division of Drainage, will have charge of the surveys.

Pike Do Not Lose Teeth

Pike do not lose their teeth at any time during the year, but at one season, about August or September, members of this family show a swelling of the gums, which hides the teeth. None of the turtles or tortoises have teeth; their jaws have horny beak-like plates which usually have sharp cutting edges.

RACE PREJUDICE APPEAL TO USED TO WEAKEN SOUTHERN STRIKE SPIRIT

CHARLESTON S. D.—Denouncing the aid given the recent textile strike by Socialists such as Norman Thomas, the News and Courier of this city once again has demonstrated how the race question is used by capita lists to weaken the workers' struggles for better hours, wages and working conditions.

"To open an avenue of escape for white families from competition with Negro labor and the Negro standard of living was a commanding if not formulated motive in the building of the Southern mills," says the News and Courier.

"Be it righteous or not, white Southerners will not accept Socialism or any other 'ism' that includes the crossing of radical lines.' They cannot imagine a 'decent world in which radical seperation shall be abandoned."

Announcement

At the suggestion of friends thruout the county I have filed as a candidate for County Attorney of Pennington County. When I was a candidate for County Attorney four years ago, I lost on a Tie Vote between myself and my opponent. The County Canvassing Board drew lots and my opponent was the lucky one in the drawing and was declared elected.

If elected I shall try to discharge the duties of the office with fairness and impartiality, and as economically as possible. The support and vote of all the voters of the county will be appreciated, and at this time I wish to request my friends thruout the county to take hold and give me their active support during the campaign.

! Warning....Beware !

The Campaign is now entering upon its last stages. We understand a determined effort is going to be made to defeat all the Farmer-Labor Candidates, and all candidates friendly to the Farmer-Labor movement. We have reason to believe that a swarm of Old Party politicians will be sent out during the last few days to see every voter in Pennington, Red Lake, and Clearwater counties, in a desperate attempt to defeat all the Farmer-Labor candidates. We believe they will try to visit every farm and every home.

Do not be misled by Republican propaganda. Look out for the Last Few Days. Keep your eyes on the Opposition Workers and candidates when they come into your neighborhood. They will be especially anxious to defeat Governor Olson, and Paul A. Harris, W. E. Day, and J. O. Melby, but they will of course try to defeat all Farmer-Laborites. THIS IS A WORD OF WARNING. Let every Farmer-Laborite in Pennington, Red Lake, and Clearwater counties be on the watch from now on until after election, and especially during the last few days. The opposition will soon open up its drive. Do not be fooled by their last minute propaganda.

How "A Great Financial Empire" Was Built

Synopsis of Testimony Developed in the Hearings On The Northwest Bancorporation

The activities that were indulged in, however, were of a character which required the expenditure of money. Mr. Thomson was asked:

"Q. Now, Mr. Thomson, in order to get this branch banking legislation through I ask you if it is not a fact that you hired some writer from the Wharton School of Finance to prepare a bunch of phamplets which were to be sent out under other people's names to these various places in order to attempt to stir up feeling for this? (Referring to branch banking legislation).

"A. * * * I think there was some man from Pennsylvania who was hired * * * *"

They likewise hired a man by the name of Shealy who was secretary of a Creditmen's organization with membership all over the United States.

Thomson testified in regard to Shealy:

"Q. He was doing this then solely because his organizations were in favor of this kind of legislation is that right?

"A. Well, Mr. Shealy is secretary for that organization. I think that in the final analysis that he must have been paid by this same group for his time, and he undoubtedly had a personal interest as well as an interest of the organization but it is equally true that Mr. Shealy must have been introduced to us by someone because I had never heard of him, and his organization had been interested in banking legislation, and they were particularly interested in this bill.

"Q. The fact of the matter is, Mr. Thomson, that you yourself had an understanding with Sheally of what he was to sell you his ininfluence wih his organization for, for, didn't you?

"A. That is not true."

Whereupon a letter was introduced from Perry to Thomson, telling Thomson that he, Perry, had had his day completely spoiled because of the fact that Mr. Shealy had presented a bill for "fees" for $10,000. There seems at this time to have been some discussion in regard to the matter of expenses between Perry and Thomson. In Thomson's wire of June 16th, after being notified of Shealy's bill, he stated: "Very much disappointed in Shealy's attitude as my understanding has been that charges would not run more than fifteen hundred to twenty-five hundred dollars. * * * We have done so much for all of them that all the expences included in your letter together with this item should certainly be taken care of. The rest of your program entirely agreeable. BE SURE TO TAKE CARE OF PERSONAL MATTERS WITH GLASS ABOUT WHICH WE TALKED."

No explanation was made as to what the personal matters with Glass about "which we talked."

"Q. The Glass who is mentioned in here is Senator Glass who was the sponsor or one of them of the Glass-Steagall Bill, wasn't he?" To which question Thomson nodded affirmation.

Perry Writes of Norbeck's Financial Difficulties

Senator Norbeck was against the bill it appears. Mr. Perry, the chain bankers' agent in Washington, wrote a leter to Mr. Brockman, publicity man for Banco, requesting Senator Norbeck's financial difficulties. By a strange coincidence it appears that Senator Norbeck had certain notes in some of the affiliates of Northwest Bancorporation according to Thomsons testimony After the requests for information on Norbeck's financial condition, testimony was introduced to show that in the opinion of Gardner B. Perry, Norbeck's position changed to where the statements he gave out about branch banking were purely for home consumption. High priced Washington representatives were the order of the day, Mr. Collins getting $25,000 a year for his services. Mr. Perry it appears, was drawing a salary of $12,000 a year he remained in Washington, and Mr. Thomson's salary, while not disclosed at that time, was later disclosed as being in the neighborhood of $27,000 a year. He also spent considerable time in Washington. The manner in which these high-priced representatives took care of the opposition is shown by letter of April 20, 1932, from Perry to Thomson, in which Mr. Perry to Thompson, in which Mr. Perry state "Norbeck saw to it that for home consumption he came out for being opposed to branch banking. I shall speak to Murphy on his arrival and see if we cannot stop this activity on Norbeck's part." The Murphy mentioned was identified as being the Mr. Murphy connected with the Minneapolis tribune, one of the Twin City papers which published news items on various matters connected with the Northwest Bancorporaion. In the same letter of April 20th, Mr. Perry mentioned that fact that he had just had a talk with Mr. Pole, Mr. Pole being then comptroller of the currency of the United States under the Hoover administration. This discussion it seems this was with reference to various senators and how they might be influenced. They were enumerated, and the letter stated as follows:

Summarizes Talk With Pole

To summarize my talk with Pole.

Waterman of Colorado—Get Ringoid of U. S. Nat. Denver to help—His influence great.

Glenn of Illinois—Thinks all right. Pole thinks the banks outside loop banks have lost some of their power in influencing legislation.

Watson of Indiana—Election coming up. Suggests Frank Ball (Director of Federal Reserve Bank, Chicago) Mfr. of glass, bottles, etc., in Muncie, Indiana. Ball pays the fiddler in Indiana campaigns. Pole also mentioned Jim Goodrich.

Robinson of Indiana—Beat Ball's brother for nomination, but apparently listens with both ears to Ball.

Dickinson of Iowa—Satisfied is all right—lives in same building.

Clapper of Kansas—Tells me to see Denton of Shipping Board about Clapper.

McGill of Kansas — Thinks Roy Bone, formerly Supt. of Banks, Kansas, now Exec. V. P. of Central National Bank, Topeka, Kansas, would help. He says Bone will do everything he can.

McNary-Steiver of Oregon—Ainsworth was in on Monday. Did not seem too strong on branch banking. Feels sure Ainsworth will be delighted to help. (In this con nection see Dick's letter to Price)

Metcalf-Herbert of Rhode Island—They should fall in line. Have branch banking in state.

King of Utah—Seems much interested in branch banking feature.

Hatfield of W. V.—Get Welch W. V. Bankers after him.

Thomas-Gore of Oklahoma—Walter Ferguson can handle both. Pole had copy of telegram Ferguson to Gore.

Fes of Ohio—Will follow administration.

Johnson-Shortridge of California Robinson laid up at present—is best man to follow this. Fleishacker can push indirectly.

Moses-Kayes of N. H. Will follow administration.

Wisconsin—If Puelicher were made chairman of some branch banking committee he would be for it

Suggest you get Fred Irish or George Yates after their banking friend in Wichita, Kansas, to push McGill, whose home town is Wichita.

Bingham told me he would follow Federal Reserve Board and his colleagues on this bill.

Kean was all up in the air about interlocking directors and how it affected the little bankers in New Jersey. He had a lot of other objections too. They were mostly old ones that he must have picked up lunching at the Downtown Asso. in New York They were not the Gov. Stokes variety. They were the ones we have heard right along from Guy Emmerson, etc. Kean is an uncle of George Roosevelt, of Roosevelt and Son. George is a director in the Guaranty Trust and between him, his brother, cousins and brother-in-law cover most of the big N. Y. banks.

Kengrick of Wyoming was very friendly but does not punch out as he should about branch banking. He has talked to Carey but apparently all four of their knees are shaking a bit. I think a little stimulation would strengthen stamina.

Carson, Couzen's secretary, feels certain that the Senator will follow Glass.

Thomas of Idaho, very communicative and helpful.

Thaddeus Page, son of Robert N. Page, former congressman and president Page Trust Co., is secretary to Bailey. He is sure Bailey will follow Glass. Said there was a bit of shouting from small banks against branch banks. Brought up that Hanes of Winston-Salem testified against bill. I straightened him out. He will introduce me to Senator and help.

Explanation was not made in the letter as to the kind of "stimulation" that Kendrick of Wyoming needed in order to "punch out as he should about branch banking," nor as to the manner in which Welch of the West Virginia Bankers was to get after Senator Hatfield of West Virginia. On the whole, the letter makes very interesting reading as to what goes on behind the scenes "when big bankers pull the strings and congressmen cavort," as was mentioned in one of the letters that was introduced, written by Perry to Thomson.

How "A Great Financial Empire" Was Built

Synopsis of Testimony Developed in the Hearings On The Northwest Bancorporation

The activities that were indulged in, however, were of a character which required the expenditure of money. Mr. Thomson was asked:

"Q. Now, Mr. Thomson, in order to get this branch banking legislation through I ask you if it is not a fact that you hired some writer from the Wharton School of Finance to prepare a bunch of phamplets which were to be sent out under other people's names to these various places in order to attempt to stir up feeling for this? (Referring to branch banking legislation).

"A. * * * I think there was some man from Pennsylvania who was hired * * * *"

They likewise hired a man by the name of Shealy who was secretary of a Creditmen's organization with membership all over the United States.

Thomson testified in regard to Shealy:

"Q. He was doing this then solely because his organizations were in favor of this kind of legislation, is that right?

"A. Well, Mr. Shealy is secretary for that organization. I think that in the final analysis that he must have been paid by this same group for his time, and he undoubtedly had a personal interest as well as an interest of the organization, but it is equally true that Mr. Shealy must have been introduced to us by someone because I had never heard of him, and his organization had been interested in banking legislation, and they were particularly interested in this bill.

"Q. The fact of the matter is, Mr. Thomson, that you yourself had an understanding with Sheally of what he was to sell you his ininfluence wih his organization for, for, didn't you?

"A. That is not true."

Whereupon a letter was introduced from Perry to Thomson, telling Thomson that he, Perry, had had his day completely spoiled because of the fact that Mr. Shealy had presented a bill for "fees" for $10,000. There seems at this time to have been some discussion in regard to the matter of expenses between Perry and Thomson. In Thomson's wire of June 16th, after being notified of Shealy's bill, he stated: "Very much disappointed in Shealy's attitude as my understanding has been that charges would not run more than fifteen hundred to twenty-five hundred dollars. * * * We have done so much for all of them that all the expences included in your letter together with this item should certainly be taken care of. The rest of your program entirely agreeable. BE SURE TO TAKE CARE OF PERSONAL MATTERS WITH GLASS ABOUT WHICH WE TALKED."

No explanation was made as to what the personal matters with Glass about "which we talked."

"Q. The Glass who is mentioned in here is Senator Glass who was the sponsor or one of them of the Glass-Steagall Bill, wasn't he?" To which question Thomson nodded affirmation.

Perry Writes of Norbeck's Financial Difficulties

Senator Norbeck was against the bill it appears. Mr. Perry, the chain bankers' agent in Washington, wrote a leter to Mr. Brockman, publicity man for Banco, requesting Senator Norbeck's financial difficulties. By a strange coincidence it appears that Senator Norbeck had certain notes in some of the affiliates of Northwest Bancorporation according to Thomsons testimony. After the requests for information on Norbeck's financial condition, testimony was introduced to show that in the opinion of Gardner B. Perry, Norbeck's position changed to where the statements he gave out about branch banking were purely for home consumption. High priced Washington representatives were the order of the day, Mr. Collins getting $25,000 a year for his services. Mr. Perry it appears, was drawing a salary of $12,000 a year he remained in Washington, and Mr. Thomson's salary, while not disclosed at that time, was later disclosed as being in the neighborhood of $27,000 a year. He also spent considerable time in Washington. The manner in which these high-priced representatives took care of the opposition is shown by letter of April 20, 1932, from Perry to Thomson, in which Mr. Perry to Thompson, in which Mr. Perry state "Norbeck saw to it that for home consumption he came out for being opposed to branch banking. THE REPUBLICAN LUNACY WARD

We do not profess to know how widely the Minneapolis Journal is read, nor how widely it is credited among its readers. But we do believe that we know after observing Minnesota politics for almost a quarter of a century, that Minnesota voters are too intelligent to be misled by the campaign of misrepresentation and abuse that the houseorgan of the Republican lunacy camp is indulging in.

Its latest Hawkshawian findings of "forged" Olson ballots in the newspaper poll is so infantile in its conception that we wonder how people with such an overdeveloped imagination can have such an underdeveloped intelligence as to believe that even the most ignorant and benighted voter will swallow a story quite so tall.

One is prone to wonder if the doddering old Journal hasn't over-reached itself again, and after having chosen its list of voters with infinitesimal care finds that even the "upper crust" has gone against it and returned a slight majority for Olson so that it became necessary to cast out some twenty thousand Olson ballots on one pretext of another in order to show Martin Nelson with a fairly substantial lead. Certainly the fact that some of the ballots are slightly wider than others does not prove them forged. Knowing something of printshop practice, we also know that unless the cards were ordered of an exact size and the point particularly stressed, there would in all probability be some small variation in batches of as many as 335,000. The story of the chemical tests reads like the super-detective doings of Philo Vance in the "Hoozegow Murder Mystery."

Someone should prevail upon the Journal cartoon artist to go a little easier on the red scare, he has evidently frightened his bosses plumb nuts.

CAPITALISM IS CRAMING COMMUNISM DOWN OUR THROATS

Many years ago we read Blatchford's "Merrie England." Being a disciple of Carl Marx, he was of course a thoroughgoing socialist and he speaks in his book of the thousand housewives each frying beefsteak in a thousand hot and stuffy kitchens. He visualized a community kitchen where ten women would be able to fry the thousand beefsteaks with much less effort, by more modern methods etc., and leave the other nine hundred and ninety women free for that day to enjoy the time in gossip, music curling their hair or whatever other pastime the women indulged in, in those days. We suppose that a nice sanitary nursery where all the babies in the community are taken care of by prim, white uniformed nurses and raised to manhood and womanhood under strictly scientific environments was a part of the same philosophy.

We remember that our boyhood enthusiasm was quite fired by the picture which he painted. Here was scientific planning and practical efficiency applied to our everyday life. Here was leasure and comfort for tens of thousands of over-worked women mapped out for them if they would but cooperate for their own mutual benefit.

However, the picture has lost some of its glamor with the passing of time. Perhaps this is due to the fact that we have lived all these years in a capitalistic society and our power of reason has become warped by the contaminating influence of "rugged individualism". We are more inclined to believe, however, that Blaschford and Marx did not take into consideration the human equation. In this point particularly, the philosophy of the Farmer-Laborites differ from that of the socialists. We have found for instance, that women seem to have a perverse love for tiding around in their own domicile. We have observed that our own better half apparently enjoys making batter cakes and "gettin' all het up" over a cookstove. She seems to get a sort of smug satisfaction from bathing the baby and to our consternation, we belive we have at times, even detected a look of unholy contentment on her face while she was engaged in changing the baby's diapers. Unless our conclusions are entirely erroneous, most women are that way, much as they may rebel against the grind at time.

The very foundation of American institutions rests upon countless families, each in its own home, secure in tenure. And security of tenure can only be possible with an assurance of income. This the Farmer-Labor Party would provide, by exempting from taxation homes and homesteads up to $4,000, which we would estimate to exempt seventy percent of the homes of the people. By social insurance and old age pensions; by higher income and inheritance taxes, tending to return to the people the swollen fortunes which by their power endanger the very life of the people; by state ownership of public utilities and transportation systems, eliminating the rake-off taken by those who contribute neither value nor service; ;by assuring cost of production to the tillers of the soil; and by providing useful employment for all the people. Such a program, it seems to us is a definite safeguard for the sanctity of the American home and therefore a safeguard for American institutions.

While we have observed that socialization has violated the "sanctity of the small shops", driving them out of existence and replacing them with huge factories which employ whole communities, we have condoned this in the interest of effiviency and because it provides great quantities of manufactured goods which should enrich the lives of the people. This socialization of industry need not and should not mean socialization of the home. Rather it should mean that with labor-saving devises of all kinds for the home it would bring greater enjoyment to the home.

Yet, so self-contradictory is the present economic order, which we commonly call "capitalism" that it actually brings into existence the very things which its defendants pretend to oppose. So great has been the concentration of wealth in the hands of a few under the present system of socialized industry privately owned, that millions of people become homeless thru foreclosures, and evictions due to loss of income. Loss of jobs has made untold numbers into transients who drift from place to place while the breaking up of homes has set almost half a million children adrift in the nation.

The Administration is meeting this problem in the only way it can be met so long as the evil cause exists. By establishing transient camps, of which there are several in this state; by establishing training schools for homeless children and now according to ERA news releases, community homes to be run and operated a la Karl Marx.

It is one of the illogical anomalies of a world of anomalies that the people who most decry the philosophy of Communism are actually forcing it down our throats by their avarice.

AMENDMENT NO. 1 TO PROTECT HIGHWAYS
(From a Highway Bulletin)

One of the state constitutional amendments to be voted on at the general election November 6 will, if adopted, ratify the expansion of the state trunk highway system authorized by the 1933 legislature It will also prevent further expansion until 75 per cent of the enlarged system has been constructed and permanently improved.

This proposal will appear on the ballots as Amendment No. 1. It is de scribed on the official ballots as "allowing additions to trunk highways." Adoption of the amendment as a safeguard to the present trunk system is being urged by N. W. Elsberg, state highway commissioner, and various good roads organizations. In order to carry, the amendment must reseive a majority of all votes cast at the election.

STARVATION WAGES—DEAD BABIES
(Union Advocate)

About a year ago when President Roosevelt inaugurated his economy program there was a great hue and cry for the abolition of the Children's bureau of the U. S. Labor Department. The politicians were very anixious to put a stop to some of the investigations of this department into the exploitation of little children in the industrial treadmill.

One reason why big business was concerned in the matter was revealed last week by the publication of certain stastistics relative to the death rate of children.

In a survey made in seven industrial cities of the nation the following facts were uncovered:

If fathers made less than $450 per year the Children's Bureau found that 167 babies out of every thousand born alive died in less than a year. When the family income was between $450 and $550, 125 babies out of every thousand died in the same time. If the income was between $600 and $850 the death rate of babies was 107 per 1,000. And when the income was more than $1,250 per year the baby death rate dropped to 59 out of every 1,000. But when there was no more income, 211 babies out of each 1,000 born alive lived less than a year.

That there is a direct and close relationship between incomes and infant mortality no one can deny in the light of these figures, and one does not need to wonder why the politicians were anxious to abolish the children's Bureau under the guise of economy.

MR. DAWES GETS DOLE
(Labor)

Carles G. ("Hell'n Maria") Dawes Chicago banker, barrowed $90,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in June, 1932, for his shattering Central Republic Bank and Trust Co. Of the loan $58,261,931 of the principle is still due—has been since January, 1933, and there is a trifling item of some $3,000,000 past due interest.

Chairman Jesse Jones of the R. F. C., who always was a hopeful soul, thinks he can get the major part of this money collected in the next five years, but adds that a full settlement will take ten years.

Two remarks appear to be in order. For one Dawes' action in borrowing that money was a scandal. His bank, obviously, was a shell, and a well-nigh empty shell. Dawes had been head of the RFC where he could "line up" its other officials. He resigned that position, walked out the front door, so to speak, and coming back by the side door, borrowed an enormous sum of which barely one-third has been repaid yet.

The other point to notice is that Dawes belongs to the group that for years has been denouncing federal aid to the unemployed as a demoralizing dole. He has been the one of those who fight and protect against every "interference of government in business." Yet his bank and hundreds of other banks are in existence solely by virtue of the "government interference," and few federal contribution made to a whole city equal the amount of Dawes' loan.

The big doles from government gone to the rich, and Charles G. Dawes has shown himself a past master of the "grab and get" group.

EXCISE TAX ON FATS
(Land O' Lakes News)

During the latter part of the last session of Congress a law was passed providing for a 3c excise tax on imported foreign oils. Dairymen and livestock men through their organizations put up a determined fight to get this law on the statute books. While it was not all that they desired, it was at least of some help.

Now, to the disappointment of dairymen and livestock producers, we find the first step in the nullification of what was hoped to be an act that would be of some real benefit to agriculture. On August 17 the bureau of International Revenue issued an orderer permitting the importation of fatty acids extracted from cocoanut oil without payment of the 3c per pound excise tax.

This is clearly an evasion of the intent of Congress in its attempt to protect the American farmer apainst the importation of cheap fats and oils to be used as substitutes for home-produced fats and will, undoubtedly, lead to other exemptions that will be even more serious. Land O' Lakes Creameries has made a vigorous protest against the order issued by the Internal Revenue Department.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

THE COUNTRY ADRIFT

We are witnessing the spectacle of a country adrift. He would be a rather sordid selfish mortal who would not wish the administration well in its efforts to get the nation back on the highway to prosperity. But even its best friends will have to admit that some of the things done have little relationship to desired results.

The administration began with a proposal which in the effect called upon the people to bring themselves into good times and the government into adequate revenue.

Only failure should follow that.

All the glorious promises of employment of men by the liquor business and of increased financial resources for the government proved to be glittering generalities having no real connection with facts.

The same blight is overtaking plans on other lines. No sooner is a board appointed to attend to some vital affair than it is disbanded to be succeeded by two others. The alphabet has been exhausted for letters to describe them. The extent to which the country is muddling through seems to be due to natural causes rather than to wise and efficient leadership.

We are in a fair way to learn again that they who come to power to serve the liquor traffic can accomplish little of good for the nation on other lines.

Ours is a drifting country.

FARMER-LABOR PRESS SERVICE
By
Senator H. G. Teigan

On Tuesday evening of last week Governor Floyd B. Olson, in a radio address warned the voters of the state against the Republican politicians attempt to deceive the voters in a so-called "newspaper poll" then just launched.

At the time the Governor spoke there were no returns from the poll. But rumors were afloat to the effect that it was to be a "loaded" proposition with the intention, of course, of swaying public sentiment. The important objective was to force the retirement of Mr. Regan, democratic nominee for governor, and permit the "big business elements to concentrate their efforts back of the candidacy of Martin A. Nelson, republican nominee.

A Fraudulent Poll

The poll is now practically complete. That it is fraudulent is only too obvious. Sufficient proof of this can be found in comparison of certain counties in the newspaper poll with the returns from the recent primary election.

The newspapers conducting the poll—and they are all republican, have announced that the total number of persons circularized is 335,000. These persons were all supposed to be owners of motor vehicles. This is a large number but not as large as the number circularized in the 1932 Literary Digest poll in this state. Approximately 550,000 persons received ballots in the Digest poll. Approximately 15.5 percent responded to the poll, and this the Digest stated in its issue of October 29, 1932, represented a return "considerably above the average for polls of this sort."

The so-caled present newspaper poll is at least 35 per cent on the basis of 335,000 persons circularized. This would represent a response far beyond that of any previous poll taken in this or any other state. There can be little ground for believing that this would be possible. And yet I am not for one moment questioning the the correctness of the number of ballots recieved by the "certified accountants" doing the tabulating and totaling of the returns.

Then again it isn't at all likely the voters of a county that gave the Farmer-Labor candidates a subsantial lead in the primary election in June will make the sort of shift that would be indicated in the newspaper poll. It is interesting to make a comparison on this point.

Comparison with Primary

Let us take the counties of Kanabec, Mille Lacs, and Sherbourne, which constititute the 5th legislative district. Those counties returned following total for each of the three political parties on June 18 last:

	F-L	Dem.	Rep.
Kanabec	1756	376	602
Mille Lacs	2898	1235	1081
Sherburne	967	1241	588
Total	5621	2852	2271

In the newspaper pool, however the returns are as follows:

	F-L	Dem.	Rep.
Kanabec	87	52	120
Mille Lacs	178	117	181
Sherburne	58	94	120
Total	323	264	521

Results Realized

In the primary election the Farmer-Labor party polled a majority of the votes cast in these counties. That is to say, the candidates of that party received more than half of the votes cast and that too without more than half of the votes cast and that too without any campaign waged to bring out the votes. The Democratic party was in second place, and the Republican in third.

In the newspaper straw vote, however, the situation is completely reversed. The Republicans are first, the Farmer-Laborites second and the Democrats third.

Such a change is well nigh impossible. Nothing has occurred since the primary election to cause any such shift in political sentiment.

Mr. Nelson, republican nominee is also credited with a lead in the newspaper poll in the counties of Hennepin, Ramsey, and St. Louis. He is credited with a total vote of 15,477 to 12,447 for Floyd B. Olson, and 7,726 for John E. Regan, Democrat.

In the primary election the results in these counties were as follows: Farmer-Labor, 99,284; Democratic, 89,816; Republican, 52,345.

"Banco" Cast Heavy Vote

Referring again to the percentage of returns in the present daily newspaper poll and that of the Literary Digest of two years ago it should be stated that the Digest allowed better than five weeks for the ballots to be returned to their tabulators, while the G. O. P. newspapers conducting the present poll have allowed less than two weeks The Digest as stated above took pride in having received 15.5 percent return while the Minnesota newspapers can boast of 40 percent.

That the whole scheme is a fraud is in my opinion absolutely certain.

It may be pertinently asked "How many votes were allotel to the Banco crowd and to the power companies as well as to the steel trust and oher branches of the plunderbund?"

The Liberal Digest

Notes On the Fall Campaign
(From Common Sense for October)

All political sign-posts this fall point to the increasing radical trend of American politics. The Tories have a right to be alarmed, especially in view of the failure of their American Liberty League to make real headway. Even the near-Fascist Committee of the Nation is desperate in its pleas to raise money for the coming year—quite frankly "to protect business properties."

The old parties themselves are seeing the need for liberal and "progressive" utterances. Even the Republican Party feels it necessary to urge old age pensions in many states, as a blind to their business connections. In New York State the Old Guard put up a liberal, Robert Moses, to meet the threat of Macy's backing of the reformer, Samuel Seabury. In the South the new successes of Senator Long of Louisiana and Governor Bilbo of Mississippi, won by a mixture of bayonets, hot air, bravado, and crack-brained radicalism, have given the conservatives more cause for alarm than Roosevelt himself.

Most significant Democrat today is of course Upton Sinclair. After his trip east the national Administration apparently felt it imperative to go along with him, and has no doubt brought pressure to bear on his erstwhile opponents, McAdoo and Creel, so that the whole Democratic machine in California has had to swallow EPIC. Whether Sinclair has had to make any concessions is not yet clear; but substantially his EPIC stands, and is now more than likely to carry the state.

Nationally this is important. Political observers have been taking official note of the growth of a third party movement in all but name; but now Roosevelt has managed to keep it within the fold—by expanding the fold. He would like to do the same with both La Follette and Olson; but fortunately they are outside the fold. He will do much to keep them from going any farther with plans for a new ticket in 1936.

The LaFollettes rolled up a sizable vote for the new Progressive Party in Wisconsin, almost 150,000. There is some indication that the vote would nave been even larger if the LaFollettes' personal programs had been more radical.

The Farmer-Labor Party in Minnesota has been piling up strength for Olson's re-election in November. With Olson's recent acceptance of the position of Honorary Vice-Chairman of the national Farmer-Labor Political Federation, he more than ever out in the open as the major possibility for leadership of a national third party in 1936.

Mayor LaGuardia of New Yorg has been mentioned by some ~~mate~~ political wise-acres as his running mate. His Labor Day address in Chicago, in which he was labor's guest of honor, hinted at "drastic changes" in the "system." If the A. F. of L. were to swing for a Farmer-Labor Party LaGuardia would be their choice. He would have thesupport of the leaders of his New York City Fusion Party in such a case.

Other significant third party moves of the last month have been the lannching of a Farmer-Labor Party in North Dkaota, where the better judgment of the anti-Langer faction has asserted itself and is heading once more toward the future; and the campaign of Peter Zimmerman in Oregon. Zimmerman is running as an independent for governor on a near-radical platform, and stands a real chance of election. In Iowa and Michigan the newly formed Farmer-Labor Parties are campaigning vigorously. One of the most promising candidates in Iowa is Judge John F. Wirds, editor of the Farm-Labor Times, running for Congress in the third district.

Clearly there is a band-wagon getting under way. Old-party politicians are already trying to hop aboard. The time is rapidly approaching when the chief difficulty will be to keep off rank opportunists.

Rugged Individualism

Herbert Hoover's contribution to our national phraseology was "rugged individualism." This asininity furnished loads of ammunition for the Democrats in the 1932 campaign.

But now, in a recent speech, Franklin D. Roosevelt announces that "the driving force of individual initiative and the urge for private profit" will carry us out of this depression as it has carried us out of all other depressions.

In other words, the very thing that caused this depression will cure it.

We hate to contradict those august personages who form our public opinion for us, but when they try to create the impression that Franklin D. Roosevelt is a radical seeking to foist a collectivized society upon us ragged individualists, we can but examine his latest utterances, and seek in vain for evidence upholding the charge The only explanation we can offer for this misapprehension is, that it must have been two other fellows.

A Long Life—What For?

An eminent scientist recently said that thru the efforts of himself and his colleagues, he had made it possiqble for the average span of life of the human bean to be lengthened to ninety years.

This is all well and good. But we have a suggestion to make. Why not devote precious time to improving the quality of the present span of life? What does mere length of life mean if one is not happy if one spends the whole of it merely to gain the very means to live? An easy, worryless existence should be our first goal—after that, we lengthen or shorten the period of existence as we saw fit.

The first step in the improvement of this life, it seems to me, is the abolishment of the profit system. As long as the profit system continues, I see no object in wishing anyone a long life.

Is Capitalism Dying?

Students of economics seem agreed on one thing—that capitalism is dying. I would like to trace the inception of that idea. What seems to be the evidence that capitalism is dying?

Looking at the situation candidly, I find that the majority of Americans, for instance, want capitalism to continue. It is something they have—and the substitutes offered by the idealists are mere "scraps of paper" in the eyes of the public.

The career of capitalism, as laid out by Karl Marx, is comparatively immature in the United States yet. It has gone thru the stages of individual capitalism and imperialism; now it is entering an era of state capitalism, where government is used frankly to perpetuate the corporations. Big business will continue to operate in the future, under the proection of the state;—unless something drastic happens, like a revolution. But even in case of a revolution, it is likely that fascists groups would set up an oligarchy.

The reason so many think that capitalism is dying is that it is so very sick right now. But capitalism is tough; and its health was never very good.

CAPITOL NEWS REVIEW
By
A. I. Harris

Happy days are here again for the state's needy farm families. According to Governor Olson, relief administrator, fourteen thousand families on the relief rolls have been declared eligible to rehabilitation measures which will make them self-supporting by the next harvest season. A recent study revealed that the drouth accounts for the plight of about two-thirds of these farmers. The remainder are in need of such aid as pigs, cows and chickens to supply food, machinery, repairs to existing buildings and additional crop land. The Minnesota Emergency Relief Administration division of rural rehabilitaton will make every effort to provide these necessities. The aim is to restore these individuals to a normal economic status.

John R. Foley, Wabasha, chairman of the Conservation Commission, has put the clamp on loose statements made about the Departmen of Conservation by the Republican candidate for Governor. Taking exception to the keynote statement of the Republican candidate that the game and fish division was $10,000 in the hole, Mr. Foley, in a letter to the former, said: "The report of the Division of Game and Fish submitted to the Conservation Commission on September 1, 1934, shows that there was on hand in all the funds of Division of Game and Fish, on August 21, 1934, $342, 586, and you can appreciate that when I heard your statement that the Division of Game and Fish was $150,000 in the hole I was certainly surprised." In no branch of state government have the advances been so pronounced during the past few years as they have been in he Department of Conservation. The Commission was assigned a body of such magnitude as has seldom if ever been faced by a body of men working without pay and for the good of their fellow men. They have disagreed at times on matters of policy, but the finger of selfishness has yet to be pointed towards a single member. They have worked for the good of conservation, oblivious to the attacks of fake conservationists ad persons of ulterior motives. The future will appreciate the work and devotion to the public good of these men, because their services are of a permanent nature.

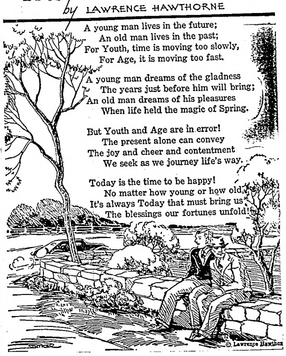
The Time to Be Glad
by LAWRENCE HAWTHORNE



A young man lives in the future;
An old man lives in the past;
For Youth, time is moving too slowly,
For Age, it is moving too fast.

A young man dreams of the gladness
The years just before him will bring;
An old man dreams of his pleasures
When life held the magic of Spring.

But Youth and Age are in error!
The present alone can convey
The joy and cheer and contentment
We seek as we journey life's way.

Today is the time to be happy!
No matter how young or how old,
It's always Today that must bring us
The blessings our fortunes unfold!

Austro-Hungarian Monarchy

Prior to the World war the Austro-Hungarian monarchy consisted of two states, the Austrian empire and the Hungarian kingdom. The relation between them was fully regulated by the so-called compromise of 1867. According to this agreement the two states were perfectly independent of each other, each possessing its own constitution, legislature and executive departments for most branches of state affairs. There was, however, a close political connection between them, through the identity of the sovereign and the community of certain departments of state affairs.

Camel and Dromedary

The camel is a large ruminant that is found chiefly in northern Asia. Its two humps and large back surface make it an especially valuable beast of burden. The dromedary, a one-humped member of the same family, lacks the strength and endurance of the camel, but for this deficiency it compensates by its great speed. In fact, says G. R. Turner in the Kansas City Times, in comparison to the ordinary camel it is as speedy as is a race horse to a cart horse. The habitat of the dromedary is mainly Arabia and northern Africa.

"Love Spoons" in Wales

Welsh love spoons are considered so interesting that Aberystwyth has a museum collection of them. Until recently young men used to carve wooden spoons for the girls of their choice. The decoration became so elaborate that many of them are not spoons at all, but panels, carved all over with wonderful figures, a tiny hole being made just to recall the fact that it began as a spoon. Many of these spoons are preserved, and are handed down in Welsh families. They are all carved with a pocket knife.

Cock-Crower's Job Ended

From 1041 to 1840, the kings of England maintained an official "Cock-crower," a man who appeared in the king's apartment at midnight on Ash Wednesday and crowed, to remind the monarch of Christ's betrayal. On this night in 1840, the new Prince Consort, who had never heard of the crower, was quietly reading when his door flew open and a voice cried, ""Cock-a-doodle-doo." The shock was terrible. Thus ended the 799-year-old job.—Collier's Weekly.

"Work," said Uncle Eben, "is like rain; you's either gittin' more dan you kin tend to, or none at all."

Trapping Weasels

Weasels are not difficult to trap. They have regular territories which their cover. Their trails usually lead through low swampy territory, and they have a habit of following old rail fences, and of going under all bridges, or through dense woods.

Stanton R. Dahlen	Silverton

Commissioner Roy offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

"WHEREAS under the supervision of the present District Engineer of the Emergency Relief Department, the program of work relief has been handled contrary to the recommendations of the County Emergency Relief Committee and the County Board, and

WHEREAS projects are being approved and showed through without the approval of the Local Committee and Officials whose duty it is to see that the projects are proper projects to effect the needed relief in this community, and

WHEREAS the greater portion of the money expended on these projects does not give relief to those deserving of relief in as much as they are projects on which the unemployed and destitute are not qualified to work, and

WHEREAS the County Emergency Relief Administration, the County Board and County Highway Engineer are being severly criticized and condemned for not providing suitable projects to relive those in distress rather than create unnecessary projects entailing a large expenditure for Engineering and Machinery, and

WHEREAS repeated efforts to have the present District Engineer co-operate with the other agencies of relief in this County have failed,

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that we respectfully request the Hon. L. P. Zimmerman, State Emergency Relief Administrator and Hon. N. Harris, state Emergency Relief Engineer, to transfer the present District Engineer in this District and furnish us with a District Engineer with whom the local agencies can co-operate and secure a better distribution of the relief money allotted this County."

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the County Auditor is hereby instructed to send copies of this resolution to the Hon. L. P. Zimmerman, N. Harris Benj. Youngdahl and Hon. Floyd B. Olson, Governor."

Motion for adoption of the foregoing resolution was seconded by Commissioner Mandt and unanimously carried.

The following resolution was offered by Commissioner Ness who moved its adoption:

Commissioner Roy offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

"WHEREAS under the supervision of the present District Engineer of the Emergency Relief Department, the program of work relief has been handled contrary to the recommendations of the County Emergency Relief Committee and the County Board, and

WHEREAS projects are being approved and showed through without the approval of the Local Committee and Officials whose duty it is to see that the projects are proper projects to effect the needed relief in this community, and

WHEREAS the greater portion of the money expended on these projects does not give relief to those deserving of relief in as much as they are projects on which the unemployed and destitute are not qualified to work, and

WHEREAS the County Emergency Relief Administration, the County Board and County Highway Engineer are being severly criticized and condemed for not providing suitable projects to relive those in distress rather than create unnecessary projects entailing a large expenditure for Engineering and Machinery, and

WHEREAS repeated efforts to have the present District Engineer co-operate with the other agencies of relief in this County have failed.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that we respectfully request the Hon. L. P. Zimmerman, State Emergency Relief Administrator and Hon. N. Harris, state Emergency Relief Engineer, to transfer the present District Engineer in this District and furnish us with a District Engineer with whom the local agencies can co-operate and secure a better distribution of the relief money allotted this County."

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the County Auditor is hereby instructed to send copies of this resolution to the Hon L. P. Zimmerman, N. Harris Benj. Youngdahl and Hon. Floyd B. Olson, Governor."

Motion for adoption of the foregoing resolution was seconded by Commissioner Mandt and unanimously carried.

Proposed Amendments to the Constitution of Minnesota

To be submitted at 1934 General Election

STATE OF MINNESOTA,
LEGAL DEPARTMENT

HARRY H. PETERSON
Attorney General

St. Paul, Minnesota, May 1, 1934

Honorable Mike Holm,
Secretary of State,

Dear Sir:

In compliance with the provisions of Section 46 of Mason's Minnesota Statutes of 1927, I herewith furnish you a statement of the purpose and effect of all proposed amendments to the Constitution of the State of Minnesota which are to be submitted to the electors of said state at the general election in 1934, in accordance with certain acts adopted by the 1933 legislature.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 1.

By the adoption of Chapter 439, Laws 1933, the legislature has proposed an amendment to Section 1, Article 16, of the State Constitution. This section now reads as follows:

"There is hereby created and established a trunk highway system, which shall be located, constructed, reconstructed, improved and forever maintained as public highways, by the State of Minnesota. The said highways shall extend as nearly as may be along the following described routes, the more specific and definite location of which shall be fixed and determined by such boards, officers or tribunals, and in such manner, as shall be prescribed by law, but in fixing such specific and definite routes there shall not be any deviation from the starting points or terminals set forth in this bill, nor shall there be any deviation in fixing such routes from the various villages and cities named herein, through which such routes are to pass.

ADDITIONAL ROUTES.

Whenever, either by reason of the creation of a new county, or by reason of the change of the county seat of any existing county, any city or village not a county seat at the time of the adoption of this amendment is lawfully constituted the county seat of any county, the legislature is authorized to add to the trunk highway system such additional routes connecting such newly constituted county seats with other county seats and other points in the state.

When after at least seventy-five (75) per cent of the total number of the miles of the routes embraced in the trunk highway system hereinbefore specified shall have been constructed and permanently improved, the legislature shall have authority to add new routes to such trunk highway system; provided, however, that no such new routes shall be added until and unless the funds available for the construction, improvement and maintenance of such additional routes shall be sufficient therefor in addition to the construction, improvement and maintenance of the several routes hereinbefore specifically described."

If amended as proposed by the legislature this section will read exactly the same as it now reads except that the last paragraph now appearing in this section will be omitted therefrom, and in the place of and instead of the paragraph so omitted will appear a paragraph which reads as follows:

"The legislature shall have authority to add new routes to such trunk highway system. All new routes added to the trunk highway system by act of the legislature during the session of 1933, are hereby ratified and confirmed. Provided, however, that no such new routes shall be added after the adoption of this amendment, until and unless at least seventy-five (75) per cent of the total number of the miles of the routes embraced in the trunk highway system heretofore created and established either by Article 16 of the Constitution of the State of Minnesota or by the legislature under and pursuant to said Article 16 shall have been constructed and permanently improved."

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose and effect of this amendment is to ratify and confirm the establishment of all new routes added to the trunk highway system by the 1933 legislature, and to give the legislature unrestricted authority to add new routes to the trunk highway system after seventy-five (75) per cent of the total number of the miles of the routes established by Article 16 of the State Constitution and established by the legislature acting pursuant thereto prior to the time this amendment was proposed, have been constructed and permanently improved.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 2.

By the adoption of Chapter 441 of the Laws of 1933, the legislature has proposed an amendment to Section 10 of Article 9 of the State Constitution. This section now reads as follows:

"The credit of the state shall never be given or loaned in aid of any individual, association or corporation, except as hereinafter provided. Nor shall there be any further issue of bonds denominated 'Minnesota State Railroad Bonds,' under what purports to be an amendment to section ten (10) of article nine (9) of the Constitution, adopted April 15, 1858, which is hereby expunged from the Constitution, saving, excepting and reserving to the state, nevertheless, all rights, remedies and forfeitures accruing under said amendment. Provided, however, that for the purpose of developing the agricultural resources of the state, the state may establish and maintain a system of rural credits and thereby loan money and extend credit to the people of the state upon real estate security in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by law, and to issue and negotiate bonds to provide money to be so loaned. The limit of indebtedness contained in section 5 of this article shall not apply to the provisions of this section, and the purposes for which the credit of the state or the aforesaid municipal subdivisions thereof may be given or loaned as herein provided are declared to be public purposes."

If amended as proposed by the legislature this section will read as follows:

"The credit of the state shall never be given or loaned in aid of any individual, association or corporation, except as hereinafter provided. Nor shall there be any further issue of bonds denominated 'Minnesota State Railroad Bonds,' under what purports to be an amendment to Article 9, Section 10 of the Constitution, adopted April 15th, 1858, which is hereby expunged from the Constitution, saving, excepting and reserving to the state, nevertheless, all rights, remedies and forfeitures accruing under said amendment. Provided, however, that for the purpose of developing the agricultural resources of the state, the state may establish and maintain a system of rural credits and thereby loan money and extend credit to the people of the state upon real estate security in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by law, and to issue and negotiate bonds to provide money to be so loaned. The limit of indebtedness contained in Section 5 of this article shall not apply to the provisions of this section, and the purposes for which the credit of the state or the aforesaid municipal subdivisions thereof may be given or loaned as herein provided are declared to be public purposes.

The legislature may authorize the taxing of any lands, title to which is acquired by the state through the operation of such system of rural credits, during the period such lands are held by the state, and for the assessment thereof for benefits arising from improvement, and may provide for the payment of such taxes and assessments out of the operation of such system of rural credits. In lieu of such taxation the legislature may appropriate to the school districts, towns, counties, cities, villages and boroughs in which such lands are located sums of money not exceeding the amounts which would have been realized by such governmental subdivisions from the assessments against or taxation of such lands if privately owned."

It will be noted that the present Section 10 of Article 9 remains unchanged as the first paragraph of the proposed amendment but that a second paragraph is added to said section.

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose of the proposed amendment is to give the legislature the power to do one of two things which it now lacks the constitutional power to do, namely: first, to authorize the taxing of any land, and the assessment of benefits for improvements against any land, which the state has acquired and owns or may acquire and own through the operation of the system of rural credits and to provide for the payment of such taxes and assessments out of the funds of the Rural Credit Department; or, second, to appropriate to the counties, towns, school districts, cities, villages and boroughs in which are located lands acquired and owned by the state under the rural credit acts sums of money not exceeding the amounts which would be realized by said governmental subdivisions from the taxation of such lands and from the assessment of benefits against such lands if owned by private persons.

Under the Rural Credit Act the state has become the owner of thousands of farms located in various counties of the state. As our State Constitution now stands, such land, being owned by the state, cannot be taxed. It naturally follows that other land within the same taxing district must pay higher taxes.

Likewise, the legislature does not now have the power to appropriate to the counties, towns, school districts, cities, villages and boroughs any funds of the Rural Credit Department to reimburse them for losses suffered by them because large areas of land acquired by the state under the rural credit law thereby have been removed from the tax rolls.

The effect of the passing of this amendment, if the power thereby given is acted upon by the legislature, will be to make good to these local subdivisions, in whole or in part, the loss they now suffer because they cannot tax rural credit land.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 3.

By the adoption of Chapter 442 of the Laws of 1933, the legislature has proposed an amendment to Section 1 of Article 9 of the State Constitution. This section now reads as follows:

"The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away. Taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects, and shall be levied and collected for public purposes, but public burying grounds, public school houses, public hospitals, academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning, all churches, church property and houses of worship, institutions of purely public charity, and public property used exclusively for any public purpose, shall be exempt from taxation, and there may be exempted from taxation personal property not exceeding in value $200, for each household, individual or head of a family, as the legislature may determine: Provided, that the legislature may authorize municipal corporations to levy and collect assessments for local improvements upon property benefited thereby without regard to a cash valuation, and provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect, modify or repeal any existing law providing for the taxation of the gross earnings of railroads."

If amended as proposed by the legislature, this section will read as follows:

"The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away. Taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects, and shall be levied and collected for public purposes, but public burying grounds, public school houses, public hospitals, academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning, all churches, church property and houses of worship, institutions of purely public charity, public property used exclusively for any public purpose, shall be exempt from taxation, and there may be exempted from taxation personal property not exceeding in value $200, for each household, individual or head of a family, and household goods and farm machinery, as the legislature may determine:

Provided, that the legislature may authorize municipal corporations to levy and collect assessments for local improvements upon property benefited thereby without regard to a cash valuation, and provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect, modify or repeal any existing law providing for the taxation of the gross earnings of railroads."

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose and effect of this amendment is to grant to the legislature, in addition to the power now granted by said section to exempt personal property, the authority to exempt from taxation, such household goods of each household, and such farm machinery of each farm, as it may see fit. By the present Section 1 of Article 9 the legislature is granted the authority to exempt from taxation unspecified personal property not exceeding in value $200 for each household, individual, or head of a family.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 4.

By the adoption of Chapter 443 of the Laws of 1933 the legislature has proposed an amendment to Article 8 of the State Constitution. This amendment will not add to or alter any existing section of the Constitution, but will add a new section to be known as Section 8 of Article 8. The proposed amendment reads as follows:

"Any of the public lands of the state, including lands held in trust for any purpose, may, with the approval of a commission consisting of the governor, the attorney general and the state auditor, be exchanged for lands of the United States and other privately owned lands as the legislature may provide, and the lands so acquired shall be subject to the trust, if any, to which the lands exchanged therefor were subject, and the state shall reserve all mineral and water and water power rights in lands so transferred by the state."

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose and effect of this amendment is to authorize the legislature to provide for exchanging any of the public lands of the state for lands of the United States and land privately owned, such exchanges to be made with the approval of a commission consisting of the governor, the attorney general and the state auditor. Such exchanges of land cannot now be made because the State Constitution does not permit the legislature to authorize the sale of school lands, state swamp lands and state internal improvement lands except by public sale. One immediate purpose in granting such authority is to make it possible for the state to acquire compact areas of land for forestry and other conservation purposes by exchanging land outside of such conservation areas for lands of the United States and privately owned lands within such areas.

The amendment requires that all mineral rights, water rights and water power rights in lands so transferred by the state shall be reserved. The land so acquired will become subject to the same trust, if any, as the land disposed of. For example, if school land is given in exchange, the land received will become school land.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 5.

By the adoption of Chapter 444 of the Laws of 1933, the legislature proposed an amendment to Section 1 of Article 9 of the State Constitution. At present Section 1 of Article 9 reads as follows:

"The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away. Taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects, and shall be levied and collected for public purposes, but public burying grounds, public school houses, public hospitals, academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning, all churches, church property and houses of worship, institutions of purely public charity, and public property used exclusively for any public purpose, shall be exempt from taxation, and there may be exempted from taxation personal property not exceeding in value $200, for each household, individual or head of a family, as the legislature may determine: Provided, that the legislature may authorize municipal corporations to levy and collect assessments for local improvements upon property benefited thereby without regard to a cash valuation, and provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect, modify or repeal any existing law providing for the taxation of the gross earnings of railroads."

If amended as proposed by the legislature, said section will read as follows:

"The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away. Taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects, and shall be levied and collected for public purposes, but public burying grounds, public school houses, public hospitals, academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning, all churches, church property and houses of worship, institutions of purely public charity, and public property used exclusively for any public purpose, shall be exempt from taxation, and there may be exempted from taxation personal property not exceeding in value $200, for each household, individual or head of a family as the legislature may determine. Academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning shall be construed to mean the property actually and exclusively used in the instruction and housing of the students thereof, and residences on the campus actually occupied by instructors of such institutions. Provided, that the legislature may authorize municipal corporations to levy and collect assessments for local improvements upon property benefited thereby without regard to a cash valuation, and provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect, modify or repeal any existing law providing for the taxation of the gross earnings of a railroad."

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose and effect of this amendment is to mention specifically and define definitely the property of academies, colleges, universities and seminaries of learning which shall be exempt from taxation. The present Section 1 of Article 9 provides that academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning shall be exempt from taxation, but does not specifically state what property of such institutions shall be tax exempt. If the proposed amendment is adopted the only property of said educational institutions which will be exempt from taxation under this section will be the property actually and exclusively used in the instruction and housing of the students thereof and residences on the campus actually occupied by instructors of such institutions.

Your respectfully,
HARRY H. PETERSON
Attorney General.

Hoidale will not appear in the city on Saturday. He has been invited by the National Grange, to speak over a national network from Chicago, on behalf of the Democratic Party and will consequently be unable to appear here. His speech will be from 11:30 to 12:30, postmaster Andy Anderson announced today. Congressman McGuinan of Kansas will speak over the same hook-up, the two talks being in the nature of a debate, Mr. Anderson stated.

In lieu of the speaking program the committee has yielded to numerous requests for a repetition of the parade of Wednesday evening. It will start at 1:30 p. m.

A Dedication banquet will be held in the Trinity crurch at 6 p. m., Friday evening. Those wishing to attend should make reservation with postmaster Anderson, the committee announces.

no doubt in my mind but that Pennington county will be the Banner Farmer-Labor county in the state again this year.

"One thing is significant," Mr. Rehm stated, "in spite of the fact that Mr. Tungseth has been making a desperate appeal to the church people thru his calling, he is losing their support fast because of his high-handed tactics in the affairs of the city government and his unjustified attack upon Governor Olson thru the columns of his church paper and the 'Public Forum' of the Thief River Falls Times. I havn't met a single clergyman who is supporting him."

Asked what he thought of the prospects of a clean-cut victory for the entire Farmer-Labor ticket, Representative W. E. Day of Bagley stated that it is his opinion that Clearwater county will as usual go overwhelmingly Farmer-Labor. "Harris will carry our county hands down," he stated, "There was no work done for him in our county before the primary. Very few people knew him or had met him Ours is a predominantly rural county, and the fact that L. A. Nelson, a farmer was passing himself off as a Farmer-Laborite drew him a large vote. Ninety percent of that vote will go to Harris on November 6th. Printed copies of Mr. Tungseth's nasty attacks on the governor has been circulated in our county and our people are pretty sore at him. He'll be lucky if he gets half the vote in the run off that he got in the primary."

Quail may be taken from noon October 20 to sunset November 4 in Sherburne, Wright, Carver, Sibley, Scott, Dakota, Olmsted, Winona, Fillmore and Houston counties.

Hunting of ruffed grouse or native partridge will be permitted in Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake, Polk, Mahnomen, Clearwater, Becker, Hubbard, Crow Wing, Morrison, Mille Lacs, Goodhue, Winona, Fillmore and Houston counties during short season starting at noon October 20 and ending at sunset October, 28.

The long season on ruffed grouse or native partridge opening at noon October 20 and ending at sunset November 4, includes ten northern counties. These are Cook, St. Louis Koochiching, Beltrami, Itasca, Cass Carlton, Pine, Aitkin and Kanabec counties.

Three rignecked pheasants, males only, may be taken in one day, not more than six are allowed in possession, with 18 birds the limit for the season. Limits on quail are six per day and 12 in possession. Daily limit on ruffed grouse or native partridge is five birds with 10 as the possession limit.

Not more than 15 game birds of all kinds in the aggregate may be taken by any one person in one day, Mr. Swenson cautioned. He also warned that not more than 30 birds in the aggregate of pheasants, ruffed grouse and quail may be taken by any one person during the open season.

Director Swenson also called attention to the closed season this fall on Hungarian or gral partridge and Melanistic Mutant or black pheasants. Both of these varieties of game birds have been successfully introduced in Minnesota.

"Indicative of the numbers of various small game in the state is the fact that every county in Minnesota with the exception of Ramsey which is a game reserve, will have some form of upland game bird hunting," Mr. Swenson said.

Erskine Man Narrowly Escapes Serious Injury

A tragic accident was narrowly averted resently when Mr. Solberg of Erskine was pinned under his car about 3 miles south of Plummer. Resulting from a punctured tire, the car skidded into a ditch, smashed against a high line post and turned over, pinning Mr. Solberg under it. Nearby neighbors rushed to the rescue.

Original Spanish Main Greatly Narrowed Down

Named in the heyday of conquistadores and pirates, the old Spanish Main originally comprised that part of the Atlantic ocean plied by Spanish treasure ships, says the National Geographic society. The name later embraced the shores of the Caribbean islands and adjacent coasts of South and Central America, but finally narrowed until it denotes specifically the northern coast of South America between the Isthmus of Panama and delta of the Orinoco—the coastal zones of Venezuela, Colombia and Panama.

Columbus sighted the palm-fringed shores of the Spanish Main in 1498. Red-painted Indians sucking brews from gourds watched the subsequent arrivals of Balboa and others who carried back to Europe amazing tales of pearls, gold, and Indians suitable for slaves. Men swarmed the coast to erect fortified settlements and to ship wealth back to Europe. Seeking the fabulous riches reputed to be in the interior, they pushed through almost impenetrable jungles. Before them fled harassed Indians, discharging poisoned arrows, futile against armor.

Settlers lived largely on a plentiful supply of immense tortoises and wild boars. Some, settling near what is Santo Domingo, hunted and smoked buffalo. They became known as buccaneers from the French word boucaner, to smoke meat.

Others became farmers, cultivating tobacco with the aid of numerous white and negro slaves. Many of the slaves ran away and joined the buccaneers, who, having become bored with buffalo hunting, took up pirating, preying on Spanish galleons and coastal settlements. The Spanish Main offered numerous natural advantages to these seafaring bandits: luxurious forests out of which to build their barks, lakes of pitch for calking the new craft, and hidden harbors from which to surprise their prey.

Air Surrounding Planet Fifteen Pounds to Inch

The poet writes of "trifles light as air," and we often talk of "airy nothings," but the atmosphere which surrounds our planet and accompanies it on its journeyings through space is not so light as we often imagine. Its average pressure is 15 pounds to the square inch.

The barometer, as its name implies, is an atmosphere weigher, and on the varying weights, noted over large areas, depend our daily weather forecasts. A change of an inch in the height of the mercury column means a change of atmospheric weight of half a pound per square inch on the earth's surface, so that even a change of one-tenth of an inch in the barometer represents 88,000 tons per square mile. A change of an inch over the land area of the British Isles signifies the colossal total of considerably more than one hundred thousand million tons of air!

The Variation

Variation means change, and when a piece of music is called an air and variation it means that the composer has rung the changes in different ways on a tune of his own, or somebody else's, making.

When keyed instruments first appeared variations were very popular. At first they were twiddles and ornaments attached to the air. Then little note patterns came along, and eventually the tune was dressed in all kinds of ways—sometimes in dance rhythm, sometimes in stately measure. Often a variation would bring out a sad feeling in the melody. Beethoven wrote as many as 32 on his own original tune. Bach and Brahms loved making variations.

Infected Meat Dangerous

Avoidance of trichinosis is so simple that no one need fear it, if he makes sure to eat no pork except that which has been thoroughly cooked. Most cases of trichinosis seem to result from the eating of uncooked summer sausage and raw or imperfectly cooked smoked meats, though any part of an infected animal is equally dangerous.

The amount of money that the state asks from the taxpayers for 1935 will be $1,136,913 less than it was a year ago, it was announced by the State Auditor in making public the tax millage rates for 1934 taxes, collectible in 1935. The amount of the levy this year is $16,679,000 as compared to $17,815,913 of a year ago. The tax mill rate will be 11.95 mills as compared to 11.06 a year ago but the rise in the millage rate is explained by the mill production figure, the amount of money it is estimated that will result from a one mill tax. The mill production which arises and falls with the assessed valuation dropped this year from $1,617,741 to $1,400,000 and is the main reason for the rise in the millage rate, it is said. In addition relief needs of the state have boosted the rate of taxation for the Board of Relief for .24 mills of a year ago to 1.2 mills this year or a rise of almost one mill. The drop in the total assessed valuation is attributed to the Homestead Tax law which reduces the assessed valuation on the homesteads valued under $4,000 and thereby shifts the burden of taxation from the home and farm owner to the owners of income producing property.

Teachers, ministers and priests have come to the support of Minnesota's department of education stating that they feel the political attacks being made on the administration "are unwarranted" and "politically inspired." "We cannot help but feel that these attacks—politically inspired as they are—constitute an insult not only to a man of superior qualities, but also to the school and community in which we take so much price," a letter from the teachers in Litchfield read.

The New York Times in the issue of Sunday, October 7, carries the story of a farmer near Chicago who received five cents for two eighty pound hogs. The story then went on to explain how the deduction of commission fees, etc., relieved the farmer of so much money. Its a story that is tragically familiar to Minnesota farmers and is one of the principal reasons why Governor Olson in talks throughout the state has been advocating price fixing to secure cast of production plus fair profit for the farmers as the only adequate solution to the plight of the people who till the soil to produce the nation's food.

It has been reported at the Capitol that attendance at the Governor's speeches throughout the state far exceeds that of previous years. At Long Prairie, supposedly a Republican town, there was not a person to be seen on the streets while the Governor spoke there. Cars lined the curbs but men and women and children jammed the Armory to hear their Governor. In town, "not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse."

Brussels Sprouts

It is claimed that brussels sprouts have been grown from time immemorial around Brussels in Belgium, but they were not described by botanists until 1623, when Bauhin names them and tells how some plants had as many as 50 heads. They were first mentioned in America in 1806 by McMahon.

Nordic Theory

The so-called Nordic race (from the word "nord" meaning north) is understood to refer to the tall, blond, long-headed peoples of northern Europe and the name was so applied by the French anthropologist Deniker to this race which once inhabited Scotland and northern England. They were supposed by some to have been the most highly developed branch of the white race. In the popular sense of the term, it has been extended to all the Germanic or Teutonic peoples. Advocates of the Nordic theory claim the inevitable superiority biologically of persons of Nordic descent.

Bridge Dedication

Hoidale will not appear in the city on Saturday. He has been invited by the National Grange, to speak over a national network from Chicago, on behalf of the Democratic Party and will consequently be unable to appear here. His speech will be from 11:30 to 12:30, postmaster Andy Anderson announced today. Congressman McGuinan of Kansas will speak over the same hook-up, the two talks being in the nature of a debate, Mr. Anderson stated.

In lieu of the speaking program the committee has yielded to numerous requests for a repetition of the parade of Wednesday evening. It will start at 1:30 p. m.

A Dedication banquet will be held in the Trinity curch at 6 p. m., Friday evening. Those wishing to attend should make reservation with postmaster Anderson, the committee announces.

no doubt in my mind but that Pennington county will be the Banner Farmer-Labor county in the state again this year.

"One thing is significant," Mr. Rehm stated, "in spite of the fact that Mr. Tungseth has been making a desperate appeal to the church people thru his calling, he is losing their support fast because of his high-handed tactics in the affairs of the city government and his unjustified attack upon Governor Olson thru the columns of his church paper and the 'Public Forum' of the Thief River Falls Times. I havn't met a single clergyman who is supporting him."

Asked what he thought of the prospects of a clean-cut victory for the entire Farmer-Labor ticket, Representative W. E. Day of Bagley stated that it is his opinion that Clearwater county will as usual go overwhelmingly Farmer-Labor. "Harris will carry our county hands down," he stated, "There was no work done for him in our county before the primary. Very few people knew him or had met him Ours is a predominantly rural county, and the fact that L. A. Nelson, a farmer was passing himself off as a Farmer-Laborite drew him a large vote. Ninety percent of that vote will go to Harris on November 6th. Printed copies of Mr. Tungseth's nasty attacks on the governor has been circulated in our county and our people are pretty sore at him. He'll be lucky if he gets half the vote in the run-off that he got in the primary."

Pheasant Season Opens

Dodge, Wabasha, Norman, Clay and Wilkin.

Freeborn, Fairbault, Martin, Jackson, Nobles, Rock, Pipestone, Murray, Cottonwood, Watonwan, Blue Earth, Waseca, Steele, Goodhue, Rice, LeSueur, Nicollet, Brown, Redwood, Lyon, Lincoln Yellow Medicine, Renville, Sibley, Scott, Dakota, Washington, Hennipin, Carver, McLeod, Wright, Meeker, Kandiyohi, Chippewa, Lac qui Parle, Big Stone, Swift, Traverse, Stevens, Pope, Stearns, Sherburne, Anoka, Chisago, Isanti, Pine, Kanabec, Mille Lacs, Benton, Morrison, Todd, Douglas, Grant, Ottertail, Wadena, Crow Wing, Aitkin, Carlton, Cass, Hubbard and Becker counties are included in the long ringnecked pheasant season starting at noon October 20 and terminating at sunset Nofember 4.

Quail may be taken from noon October 20 to sunset November 4 in Sherburne, Wright, Carver, Sibley, Scott, Dakota, Olmsted, Winona, Fillmore and Houston counties.

Hunting of ruffed grouse or native partridge will be permitted in Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake, Polk, Mahnomen, Clearwater, Becker, Hubbard, Crow Wing, Morrison, Mille Lacs, Goodhue, Winona, Fillmore and Houston counties during short season starting at noon October 20 and ending at sunset October, 28.

The long season on ruffed grouse or native partridge opening at noon October 20 and ending at sunset November 4, includes ten northern counties. These are Cook, St. Louis Koochiching, Beltrami, Itasca, Cass Carlton, Pine, Aitkin and Kanabec counties.

Three rignecked pheasants, males only, may be taken in one day, not more than six are allowed in possession, with 18 birds the limit for the season. Limits on quail are six per day and 12 in possession. Daily limit on ruffed grouse or native partridge is five birds with 10 as the possession limit.

Not more than 15 game birds of all kinds in the aggregate may be taken by any one person in one day, Mr. Swenson cautioned. He also warned that not more than 30 birds in the aggregate of pheasants, ruffed grouse and quail may be taken by any one person during the open season.

Director Swenson also called attention to the closed season this fall on Hungarian or gral partridge and Melanistic Mutant or black pheasants. Both of these varieties of game birds have been successfully introduced in Minnesota.

"Indicative of the numbers of various small game in the state is the fact that every county in Minnesota with the exception of Ramsey which is a game reserve, will have some form of upland game bird hunting," Mr. Swenson said.

Erskine Man Narrowly Escapes Serious Injury

A tragic accident was narrowly averted recently when Mr. Solberg of Erskine was pinned under his car about 3 miles south of Plummer. Resulting from a punctured tire, the car skidded into a ditch, smashed against a high line post and turned over, pinning Mr. Solberg under it. Nearby neighbors rushed to the rescue.

Original Spanish Main Greatly Narrowed Down

Named in the heyday of conquistadores and pirates, the old Spanish Main originally comprised that part of the Atlantic ocean plied by Spanish treasure ships, says the National Geographic society. The name later embraced the shores of the Caribbean islands and adjacent coasts of South and Central America, but finally narrowed until it denotes specifically the northern coast of South America between the Isthmus of Panama and delta of the Orinoco—the coastal zones of Venezuela, Colombia and Panama.

Columbus sighted the palm-fringed shores of the Spanish Main in 1498. Red-painted Indians sucking brews from gourds watched the subsequent arrivals of Balboa and others who carried back to Europe amazing tales of pearls, gold, and Indians suitable for slaves. Men swarmed the coast to erect fortified settlements and to ship wealth back to Europe. Seeking the fabulous riches reputed to be in the interior, they pushed through almost impenetrable jungles. Before them fled harassed Indians, discharging poisoned arrows, futile against armor.

Settlers lived largely on a plentiful supply of immense tortoises and wild boars. Some, settling near what is Santo Domingo, hunted and smoked buffalo. They became known as buccaneers from the French word boucaner, to smoke meat.

Others became farmers, cultivating tobacco with the aid of numerous white and negro slaves. Many of the slaves ran away and joined the buccaneers, who, having become bored with buffalo hunting, took up pirating, preying on Spanish galleons and coastal settlements. The Spanish Main offered numerous natural advantages to these seafaring bandits: luxurious forests out of which to build their barks, lakes of pitch for calking the new craft, and hidden harbors from which to surprise their prey.

Air Surrounding Planet Fifteen Pounds to Inch

The poet writes of "trifles light as air," and we often talk of "airy nothings," but the atmosphere which surrounds our planet and accompanies it on its journeyings through space is not so light as we often imagine. Its average pressure is 15 pounds to the square inch.

The barometer, as its name implies, is an atmosphere weigher, and on the varying weights, noted over large areas, depend our daily weather forecasts. A change of an inch in the height of the mercury column means a change of atmospheric weight of half a pound per square inch on the earth's surface, so that even a change of one-tenth of an inch in the barometer represents 88,000 tons per square mile. A change of an inch over the land area of the British Isles signifies the colossal total of considerably more than one hundred thousand million tons of air!

The Variation

Variation means change, and when a piece of music is called an air and variation it means that the composer has rung the changes in different ways on a tune of his own, or somebody else's, making.

When keyed instruments first appeared variations were very popular. At first they were twiddles and ornaments attached to the air. Then little note patterns came along, and eventually the tune was dressed in all kinds of ways—sometimes in dance rhythm, sometimes in stately measure. Often a variation would bring out a sad feeling in the melody. Beethoven wrote as many as 32 on his own original tune. Bach and Brahms loved making variations.

Infected Meat Dangerous

Avoidance of trichinosis is so simple that no one need fear it, if he makes sure to eat no pork except that which has been thoroughly cooked. Most cases of trichinosis seem to result from the eating of uncooked summer sausage and raw or imperfectly cooked smoked meats, though any part of an infected animal is equally dangerous.
